New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Basil W. Delgass, former vice president of the Amtorg Trading corporation, the official soviet trading company in the United States, today told the Fish congressional committee investigating communism, particularly its short wheat sales on the Chicago market, that information concerning American army and naval defenses had been transmitted to Moscow in secret code after having been gathered by Amtorg's agents here.

According to Delgass, who disclosed what he declared were the inner workings of the Amtorg organization since the departure of Saul Bron, the former president, and the arrival of P. G. Bogdanov, the new chief, the affairs of the trading organization have been directed by "a communist cell" presided over by "Comrade Lisa," the mysterious figure who disappeared at the time the so-called Whalen documents were made public.

Ordered Shot, He Says.

Prior to the testimony of Amtorg officials before the Fish committee, Delgass asserted, they were called into conference and were told what to say. Delgass said he resigned because he did not wish to commit perjury, and that since then he has been sentenced to be shot and his property in Russia confiscated. Delgass declared that all sorts of deductions were made from the wages of Amtorg employés for various funds and that all Amtorg's soviet citizens were compelled to send their children to "junior and senior Red cells," where Amtorg officials addressed them. He knew of no communist activity directed by Amtorg outside its own boundaries, but informed the committee that Bogdanov had a "special private fund" to expend as he saw fit.

Delgass, who appeared under subpoena, was accompanied by a bodyguard, as he said threats had been made against his life, testified that ten days before the Fish committee met a meeting was arranged in the office of Mr. Shuster, business manager of Amtorg, at which Joseph Michaels, attorney for the organization, was present with others.

Told to Take Oath.

The question as to whether the witnesses would take the oath or not was discussed and the general opinion was that it was not a question of principle but one of expediency. No matter whether the Amtorg employés believed in God or not they were told to take the oath. One man objected, fearing that such an indiscretion might reach the ears of the leaders in Moscow, but he was assured that the central committee of the party would take care of that. Then it was decided that if the Fish committee asked whether there were any communists in the Amtorg that the reply should be in the negative.

Concerning communist activities within the Amtorg, Delgass said that an internal organization of communists known as a "cell" supervised the activities of the communists within the organization and that there was constant conference between members of the communist party and the communist cell in Amtorg. Amtorg employés were compelled to pay 2 per cent of their wages into a fund for "so-called professional needs," Delgass declared. Further deductions were made for soviet government loans and for "special funds" of various sorts.

Woman Represents Communists.

As for Comrade Lisa, the witness said that everybody in the Amtorg knew her. She had no duties in the Amtorg, but represented the communist party in that organization and reprimanded employés who "did wrong things."

Questioned as to the Whalen documents, Delgass said that important communications with Russia were in cipher and the Whalen documents were not in cipher. While the main purpose of the Amtorg when it was organized was to promote trading between Russia and the United States, that purpose has been changed since the

Jones Wins; Holds All Major Golf Titles

BEATS HOMANS, 8 AND 7, IN U. S. AMATEUR FINAL

It's No Surprise to 15,000 Fans.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 27.—Not that there was any doubt about the result at any stage of the game, but Bobby Jones walked out over the golfing grounds of the Merion Cricket club with Eugene Homans of Englewood, N. J., this afternoon, and confirmed his winning of the national amateur championship on the 29th green.

Homans, a tall, narrow young alumnus of Princeton university, had won just three holes of the twenty-nine, and as Bobby was then eight up on him with seven left to play, the match came to a quiet and casual conclusion.

The victory definitely established young Mr. Jones as the greatest golfer of all time, the first man to win the open and amateur championships of the United States and Great Britain in one season. The great, restless horde of about 15,000 customers massed about the players, seemed to realize all of a sudden that they had been shouting inwardly about this great achievement for an entire week, and had no further shouts to shout. There were a few self-conscious pipes out of the crowd as Homans missed a putt, the last stroke of the tournament, and stepped across the sward to grasp Bobby's hand.

Marines Guard Champion.

The detail of U. S. marines who had been escorting the principal players through the press all week closed in around Bobby. The outer edge of the crowd gave way, and the mass began to scatter as though some baling wire had snapped. A few enthusiasts, animated by the instinct of the gossip or courier, went legging it up the rise toward the club house, sliding on slick soles on the trampled, greasy grass, panting out the news to a world that knew all about it in advance.

Even the members of the Atlanta, Ga., golf party, including some who have traveled behind Bobby afoot, on trains and on steamships for years as he played for the championships, boy and man, seemed at loss, in the greatest moment of their long devotion to him, for words or antics adequate to the occasion. I suppose the people who live on the Grand Canyon sometimes find words failing them.

The match had been no contest, anyway, but only a ceremony. In order to win the championship Mr. Jones had to win a certain program of matches, and it was Mr. Homans' rather doubtful fortune to struggle through to the final round and qualify as the victim of the day. They set off in a rowdy blow of wind in the cool of the morning, just after 10 o'clock, with about 5,000 people tagging along and more thousands bobbing up on the grounds along the line of march as the migration passed.

Bobby's Drive Hits Customer.

Homans did not shoot a hole in par until he reached the sixth and, though Jones was none too dashing himself, Bobby had him 3 down at the fourth. Bobby lost a stroke at the long second, to halve the hole in 6, when his drive curved off and winged a customer. There was much indignation at the customer.

Bobby was still 3 up at the 9th. He was 7 up at the end of the morning round of 18 holes. He won another on the 21st hole and still another at the 22d, to be 9 up. By this time, the following was so large that the crowd instinctively broke into two general divisions, one content to watch the boys hit from the tees, the other jamming the borders of the greens. The section which had watched the drive would then gallop away to the next green and the crowd from the green just played would press against the clothes line barriers at the ensuing tee.

Talkie Wagons Like Tanks.

The talking picture wagons left the roads and rolled across the fairways, lolloping over the dips in the ground not unlike tanks in maneuvers, with their garrisons on their upper decks squinting through their sights in order to anticipate the finish. The boys must have wasted great footage on the afternoon round as Homans put up his dying resistance, halving the 23d, 24th, 25th and 26th and postponing the inevitable. Then, when the

CHICAGO GAINS SLEEP AS CLOCKS ARE SET BACK

Chicago awoke today a little more rested than usual as the result of gaining an extra hour's sleep, made possible by the return from daylight saving to standard time. The official change was made at 2 o'clock this morning, although bedtime last night was the general hour for moving clock hands back sixty minutes.

The switch affected several thousand night workers adversely, however, compelling them to put in an extra hour of labor. On the other hand, they were merely making up for the hour less work they had last April when advanced time went into effect. There was no confusion during the change this morning. Railroad schedules were adjusted to meet the new time without any hindrance to routine. Only on the suburban lines was there any decided readjustment.

Chicago's largest clock, "Big Ben of La Salle street," on the new Board of Trade building, was changed twelve hours earlier than the official time. It was stopped between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and set at correct time by Len B. Mitchell, superintendent of the Cleveland Telegraph company.

Long Drought Gives Chicago Early Autumn

BY PAUL POTTER.

The year 1930 may go down in history as the "year of the summer drought" in the opinion of gardeners and landscapers of Chicago parks, who yesterday indicated that the combination of extremely hot weather and a shortage of almost seven inches in rainfall here nad advanced the autumn season for vegetation from three weeks to a month.

Leaves have been falling from trees, lawns and gardens have entered the dormant stage, and farm work in the country around Chicago is far in advance of normal, despite the total absence of frosts during September. Shrubbery in parks and in the forest preserves is already turning into its fall hues, red sumac, golden rod, woodbine, and other foliage being a common sight to week-end holiday seekers.

Seven Inch Rain Shortage.

"We are 6.95 inches short of normal rainfall this year to date," declared C. A. Donnel, federal weather forecaster. "The month of September alone shows a deficiency of 1.48 inches so far. No one can tell how much of this we can still get back in the remaining months of 1930, but it is likely that the seven inch shortage will stand for Chicago."

A near approach to freezing the last two nights did no damage to plant life, which was described by floricultural experts as advanced beyond frost danger by the drought. Some sections of the middle west have had light touches of frost, notably in the cranberry bogs of Wisconsin, where farmers have already harvested the Thanksgiving crop considerably in advance of the usual time. Corn in most sections has matured beyond the possibility of severe frost damage, reports indicate.

Calls Drought a Help.

"Hot weather and hot winds have been more of a blessing than a pestilence to Cook county farmers," declared O. G. Barrett, farm bureau adviser for the county. "In the north end truck and field crops were better than usual, while the farmers in the southern part of the county more than made up their drought shortages by advanced prices. Nearly half of the county is still in tillable land, in spite of industrial progress and subdividing."

"The dry summer has caused leaves to fall fully a month early," asserted H. Benthe, for 36 years landscape gardener for the south parks. "Never in all my experience has the season been so detrimental for tree, shrub, and plant growth in our parks. Yet extra work has kept them in good shape."

"Twice the normal amount of watering has been necessary in the west parks to keep flower beds, turf, and shrubbery green," according to August Koch, chief florist. He believes there will be no reaction to the drought by trees and shrubs this fall or next season.

FRANK MERRIWELL'S FATHER IS ROBBED OF $5,000 IN JEWELS

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Charged with the larceny of jewelry valued at more than $5,000 from Gilbert Patten, author of the Dick and Frank Merriwell stories, Harrison H. Wentworth, 43, was arraigned today in the Washington Heights Magistrate's court and held in $7,500 bail.

PILOTS BREAK SPEED MARK ON CLEVELAND RUN

Cutting seven minutes off the old time, Pilots Reuben Newton and Russell Arden of the Universal air lines yesterday established a new speed record for passenger planes between Chicago and Cleveland by flying the 326 miles in one hour 30 minutes. Their ship, a tri-motored Fokker, weighed, with its load of ten passengers and baggage, 13,500 pounds

The previous record of one hour 37 minutes was made by Pilots Ray Fortner and Garnett Caldwell, and had stood for eight months. Newton and Arden left here yesterday afternoon at 4:05 central standard time, arriving in Cleveland at 6:35 eastern, standard time. Their average speed was 216 miles an hour.

Ordinary flying time between Chicago and Cleveland as maintained by mail planes is two hours 20 minutes, eastbound, and two hours 45 minutes westbound. The disparity is explained by the fact that the prevailing winds are from the west.

Wine Is Safe if Home Made and Not Sold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Home wine makers who create fruit juice beverages in the kitchen for their own use were assured by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock today of immunity from dry law enforcement officers.

Basing his statement on the difficulty of prosecuting such cases under the Volstead act which defines as illegal only such fruit drinks as are "intoxicating in fact," and the further difficulty of obtaining evidence, Mr. Woodstock pointed out the practical impossibility of agents obtaining evidence for prosecution of home wine manufacturers.

Although Director Woodcock has never directly sanctioned the making of home brew his comments on wine making were interpreted as further indication that home made beverages of all kinds are to be let alone by federal agents.

Difficult to Get Evidence.

"We are an investigating body out to get evidence in a legal way," said the prohibition director, explaining that search warrants for private homes can be obtained only on presentation of evidence of sales. In home brew cases, he added that "as a criminal law problem it is extremely difficult to get evidence."

Significance was given to Mr. Woodcock's interpretation as it followed immediately on the heels of a disclosure that California grape growers are about to stage a countrywide advertising campaign, with the indirect aid of the federal farm board, to encourage the consumption of home made wines.

Get Farm Board Aid.

Plans of the grape producers to stimulate the sale of unfermented grape juice and thereby help absorb the grape surplus became known through a page announcement appearing the Produce News labeled "The government joins hands with the grape industry." The advertisement was that of California Grape Control, Ltd., a pool recently formed by the aid of the farm board which has advanced to the grape growers a line of credit amounting to $16,257,750.

Under subheadings which read "Extensive advertising and trade promotion planned" and "Legal purchase and home consumption of juice grapes assured," the announcement of the grape pool stated:

No Federal Interference.

"Juice grape sales will be aided through the service of a competent manager located in New York or Chicago and ample assistance will be given him in all important markets. The trade will be contacted daily and necessary steps taken to acquaint all classes of consumers with their rights under existing laws.

"There will be no authorized federal interference with consumers who desire to purchase grapes for home manufacture and consumption of fruit juices. Ample protection will be afforded in all cases where necessary. Regional representatives will be available to handle such cases in coöperation with the state and federal governments."

Gem Burglar Routed from Home by Girl's Screams

Returning home last evening with several young friends after playing golf with her father, Richard O'Hara, traffic manager for Swift & Co., Betty O'Hara, 19 years old, interrupted a burglar who was looting their apartment at 7012 South Shore drive. The thief pocketed rings, watches and other jewelry and fled as the girl's screams brought her friends. Mr. O'Hara arrived several minutes later and notified police. Mr. O'Hara believed that several thousand dollars worth of jewelry had been taken.

Reveal Furniture Style Trend in Shows at Stores

Shows! Whether it is a rodeo or a radio exhibit, a world's fair or a display of paintings, the American people insist on making comparisons and on having the opportunity to do so.

Chicago stores selling furniture realize this. So they're conducting—until next Saturday night—individual Furniture Style Shows.

Practically every Chicago store which sells furniture has made up a special exhibit designed to show what the well-dressed home of today should wear. Not content with displaying collections of the new individual pieces, many of the stores have arranged ensembles showing completely furnished rooms.

A journey through the stores reveals a marked trend in decorating the home. Simplicity seems to have supplanted the ornate modes of former years. Prices are very attractive, being as a whole the lowest since the war.

GUARD PLACED NEAR SICKBED OF BEER BARON

Terry Served with Vagrancy Writ.

Terry Druggan, notorious beer gangster, and one of the 26 public enemies named in the vagrancy warrants issued by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, was placed under arrest late yesterday afternoon at the University hospital, where he is undergoing medical observation. He will be kept under armed police guard until he is able to leave the hospital.

The beer boss received Lieut. Andy Barry and the other captors coldly. As the policemen stepped into his room, Druggan half rose from his bed and scowled.

"Why can't you fellas let me alone?" he wailed. "I'm only being repaired."

Druggan Says He's Sick Man.

Lieut. Barry replied that his only mission was to serve a vagrancy warrant. But Druggan protested. He was a sick man, he asserted, and to prove his argument he summoned Dr. Adolph Kraft. Dr. Kraft told Lieut. Barry that Druggan had entered the hospital two days before, and was under observation for stomach ulcer and bronchial ailments. It would be three weeks before Druggan could leave the hospital, he predicted.

After a few moments of deliberation, Lieut. Barry decided to permit Druggan to remain at the hospital under armed guard, and detailed two policemen, one at the door of Druggan's room and another outside the hospital, to keep the gangster under surveillance. The guard will be maintained as long as Druggan is in the hospital, one to prevent Druggan's escape and the other to prevent any efforts of rival hoodlums to kill him.

Policeman Serves Warrant.

Before departing, Lieut. Barry served the warrant on Druggan and notified him he would be arraigned in the felony court the day he left the hospital.

Druggan is scheduled to appear Monday before Federal Judge James Wilkerson on an income tax evasion charge, and whether or not his purported illness would excuse him from appearing was not learned last night. Druggan and his former beer partner, Frankie Lake, were indicted by the federal grand jury recently. The case has been postponed from time to time, and was set finally for Monday. At that time the date of the actual trial will be set.

Guard "Mike de Pike."

"Mike de Pike" Heitler, hoodlum and one of the public enemies, will be served with a vagrancy warrant in the Jefferson Park hospital, where he is being treated after having been injured in an auto accident, Lieut. Walter Storms said yesterday. If Heitler's physical condition permits he may be moved to the Bridewell hospital, Storms said. A police detail was posted at the hospital yesterday by order of Chief of Detectives Norton to prevent Heitler's escape.

GUZIK BROTHERS FREED

Sam Guzik was set at liberty yesterday after almost two days in federal custody on income tax fraud charges, and his brother Harry, who was held in a police station cell on a vagrancy warrant issued by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, was released late last night on $10,000 bonds. Sam and Harry are gangland lieutenants of Alphonse Capone and their brother, Jack, a more important Capone leader, is one of the 26 public enemies listed by the Chicago crime commission.

The real estate bond for Harry was furnished by Joseph and Bertha Kopskin, 1342 Summerdale avenue, and was approved earlier in the day by Judge Francis Borrelli. On presentation of the certified bond, police opened cell doors for Harry and he emerged to freedom with an admonition to appear in felony court tomorrow.

Counts Out $25,000 in Bills.

Ike Roderick was brother Sam's bondsman. He appeared before Assistant District Attorney Alfred Bosworth in the federal building yesterday morning and dug into his pockets. He extracted a roll of bills, and began counting them carefully.

Twenty-five $1,000 bills were eventually stacked on the desk, whereupon Roderick straightened his back with a sigh and remarked: "There, I guess that's enough to get him out." It was just enough, and Sam was speedily taken from the county jail to sign his release; then he walked to the street with his attorney, Charles Horgan. There were no police near to hand him a vagrancy warrant as had happened to his brother, Harry, on Friday, and Sam disappeared westward, perhaps to Cicero.

Plan Vagrancy Action.

Future action against the "public enemies" named by the Chicago crime commission and for whom vagrancy warrants were issued by Judge Lyle, was planned yesterday at a conference between Police Attorney William Luthardt and Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and James A. Brown, the latter two conferring later with Chief of Detectives John Norton.

At the conference it was agreed that individual questionnaires for every known hoodlum would be sent to the police who have arrested the gangsters in the past and the vagrancy bureau can thus be informed as to the gangster's past, habits, loitering places and information valuable for vagrancy prosecution.

ANDREE REMAINS REACH SWEDEN; 50,000 AT DOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Sept. 27.—The Swedish cruiser Svenksund with the remains of Salomon August Andree, Nils Strinberg, and Knut Frankel, first aerial arctic explorers, entered the harbor this evening and lay along the same quay from which the three men sailed for Danes island for their ill fated balloon flight 33 years ago.

Between 50,000 and 60,000 persons, including the relatives of the three explorers, gathered at the quayside, on which were erected four high columns draped in black. A catafalque had also been erected and decorated with wreaths. Church bells tolled as the warship anchored.

The coffin lay on the after deck of the ship covered with the national flag. Gov. Von Sydaw of the Gothenburg and Bohus province paid tribute to the memory of Andree and his companions, as did Lieut. Col. Swedenborg, who was with the explorer on Danes island.

YIDDISH TALKIE IN PALESTINE LEADS TO HEBREW RIOT

TEL AVIV, Palestine, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Many persons were arrested here today after disorders broke out over the showing of a Yiddish talking picture called "The Jewish Mother," produced by the Judea company of New York.

A section of the populace considered that the film in Yiddish endangered the Hebrew language, and at the first words of the talkie the audience threw ink at the screen and set off foul smelling bombs.

A big crowd gathered outside the movie theater and mounted police made several ineffective charges before it was dispersed. The evening performance was prohibited by the authorities, and all those arrested were released later.

GASOLINE PRICE TO TAKE 2 CENT DROP TOMORROW

The service station and tank wagon price of gasoline and kerosene will be cut 2 cents a gallon tomorrow, according to an announcement made yesterday by officials of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. This cut will be made at all points in Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North and South Dakota, and Kansas, except where local adjustment to meet competition has been made.

In Chicago the service station price for motor grade gasoline will be 17 cents, including 3 cents state tax. Tank wagon prices will be 1 cent lower. Unsound conditions in the oil industry prompted the price cut, President Edward C. Seubert stated.

Wife Is Granted Divorce from Will Abbott Kelly

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Kelly, 1145 Maple avenue, Evanston, yesterday won a divorce from Will Abbott Kelly, a lawyer, son of Harry Eugene Kelly, past president of the Union League club. Superior Judge Sullivan granted the decree on grounds of desertion and awarded Mrs. Kelly the custody of their two children, Eugene Kirk, 12 years old, and Elizabeth Abbott, 7. Attorney Jay Stough, representing Mrs. Kelly, said a property settlement was made out of court. The couple were married on April 2, 1917, and separated Dec. 5, 1923. Kelley is associated with his father in the firm of Kelly, Pratt & Zeiss.

URUGUAY IN PERIL OF REVOLT; STATE INCREASES POLICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 27.—This city is full of strange rumors today, causing some anxiety in business and other circles, since it is believed that the Uruguayan government is taking unusual precautions, such as preceded the Argentine outbreak. The uneasiness in government circles is evidenced by the reinforcement of guards at police stations and elsewhere.

Predict Revolt in Brazil.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 27.—A prominent American business man of long South American experience who returned today from an extensive visit in Brazil says the Brazilians are openly declaring that Dr. Julio Prestes will never be allowed to assume the presidency and freely predicting a revolution before Nov. 14, the inauguration day.

The southern states of Iarana, Santa Catharina and Rio Grande do Sul are said to be ready for revolution and the states of Rio de Janeiro, Minaes Geraes and others are described as merely waiting for the south to start the revolt.

Brazilians describe President-elect Prestes as a weak tool of President Washington Luiz and charge his election was due to wholesale frauds under the president's direction.

Yrigoyen Suffers Relapse.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—It is understood that former President Hipolito Yrigoyen has suffered a relapse. Dr. Landa, who saw him aboard the cruiser Belgrano where he is a prisoner, has advised the provisional government to bring the former president ashore for teratment by specialists.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY SOUGHT TO PROBE RACKETS

Urge Plan to Aid Swanson in Investigation.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Peter Kofenty, murder, sentenced to life in the penitentiary; Curtis Williams, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Peter H. Schwaba.

The racketeering investigation being conducted by State's Attorney Swanson and his staff probably will be placed before a special grand jury. This announcement was made yesterday by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court, who ordered the inquiry in a special charge to the regular grand jury.

Judge McGoorty summoned Prosecutor Swanson to a conference to be held tomorrow morning at which will be discussed the feasibility of calling a special grand jury which would have nothing to do but investigate racketeering. Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury, who are in direct charge of the inquiry, also will attend, as will G. F. Slaughter, 1408 Ridge avenue, Evanston, who is foreman of the regular grand jury.

Suggests Special Grand Jury.

The idea for the special jury, it was said, came from Mr. Slaughter, who is vice president of the American Steel Foundries, 410 North Michigan boulevard. The present jurors, it is reported, have heard enough evidence to convince them that an intensive investigation should be made of racketeering.

"It is our idea that if a special jury was called with nothing else to do but investigate rackets it would add impetus to the inquiry now being conducted," said Judge McGoorty. "I believe that it would also have the effect of helping the state's attorney's office in getting the desired evidence from recalcitrant witnesses."

Sees Aid to Prosecutor.

Judge McGoorty made it plain that the special jury move is in no way meant to cast any reflection on the investigation as now conducted by Prosecutor Swanson and his assistants. He said, on the contrary, that he believed the special jury would be a valuable aid to the prosecutor because it would enable him to question under oath all witnesses summoned, rather than being forced as now to talk to them in his office without an oath being administered.

Another point in favor of a special jury, it was pointed out, would be that in cases where a witness refused to answer or was obviously not telling the truth the power of contempt proceedings might force him to talk. Such witnesses could be taken before the chief justice and punished.

Want Full Month for Quiz.

Inasmuch as even a special grand jury cannot be in session for more than a month, it is expected that no effort will be made to summon such a body until the October court term, in order to give the jurors, if they are called, a full month for their investigations.

The value of contempt proceedings for recalcitrant witnesses would be especially valuable in the investigation to determine how gangsters and racketeers muscled their way into legitimate labor unions it was pointed out. The members of the unions seized by such racketeers as George (Red) Barker and William J. (Three Fingered Jack) White, who are former convicts and who were listed as public enemies by the Chicago Crime commission; Bernard O'Donnell, brother of Myles (Klondike) O'Donnell, another public enemy; John Barry and Anthony (Red) Kissane, have so far shown no disposition to help in the inquiry.

If several of the members of these unions were indicted for perjury or sent to jail for contempt for refusal to answer it is believed that the others would tell how the gangsters seized control, it was said.

Charges Racket Pressure.

"We know that in most every case the unions were taken over by threats and intimidation," said Prosecutor Lounsbury. "The election of O'Donnell as business agent for the commission wagon drivers is a typical case. Only about 15 out of a membership of 1,400 men attended the meeting at which he was elected. The others were intimidated so that they stayed away from the meeting, and we want them to explain."

The investigation of the beauty shop racket was held in abeyance yesterday pending possible grand jury action next week, it was said. Emery T. Erickson, executive secretary of a number of north side business men's organizations, as well as the Beauty Parlor Owners' association, was freed yesterday pending the completion of the investigation. Ray Williams, former convict and former official of the barbers' union, and Peter Cuniff, known as "Dynamite Pete," are also connected with the owners' and employés' associations. Williams has been arrested, but Cuniff has not been found by the police.

CRAIN ASKS CHECK OF DEAD FOR BODY OF JUSTICE CRATER

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—District Attorney T. C. T. Crain announced today that, since two weeks of inquiry by the grand jury had failed to reveal a reason or motive why Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater should disappear, he had formed the belief that the judge was dead, and was prepared to act accordingly.

He is sending a request, Mr. Crain said, to all district attorneys, medical examiners and coroners of cities and towns in a 100 mile radius of New York, asking them to make a careful check on records and bodies of men who have died by accident or violence since Aug. 6, the date that Crater strangely dropped from sight. He is asking that particular attention be paid to a check of drownings and to unidentified men buried as paupers.

Sailor of Seven Seas to Mark 100th Anniversary

Nicholas Voss, who has sailed the seven seas in wooden ships, will reach the century mark of life next Friday, and friends today are preparing to observe the occasion with a gala celebration in Voss' home at 2256 West 139th street, Blue Island. Voss was born in Antwerp, Belgium, Oct. 3, 1930, and brought to the United States two years later. Before he was 25 he had circled the globe in sailing vessels. The sea still appeals to him, he says. Spain is his favorite land.

All Detectives Face Inquiry in Search for Gangland Spy

Every member of the detective bureau was under suspicion yesterday as Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock's investigation into the mysterious disappearance of a secret list of gangsters, later found in the hands of a Capone bondsman, got under way.

Chief of Detectives John Norton again consulted with Commissioner Alcock concerning the missing document. Norton, his deputy, Capt. John Ryan, and Patrolman William Balswick, who were charged with responsibility for the papers, reiterated that they knew nothing concerning how the list of gangsters disappeared from a locked desk in the bureau, later to be found in a raid by federal agents in the room of Tony Tagenti, known as a Capone bondsman, at the Carleon hotel, 2138 South Wabash avenue.

Norton Expresses Regret.

Chief Norton expressed regret at a hasty remark he made when first questioned about the mystery. He said then: "Maybe some newspaper men took it out of the desk for all I know." Yesterday he told reporters stationed at the bureau: "I know all you fellows and you're all right. I didn't mean what I said."

"But haven't you any idea of who might have taken the list and slipped it to Tagenti?" Chief Norton was asked.

"I don't pick the men who are assigned here," was the chief's answer.

Patrolman Balswick, who is Deputy Chief Ryan's secretary, typed the list and put it in his locked desk. After it had disappeared he typed another list "from memory." A coincidence into which Commissioner Alcock was inquiring was the fact that the list from memory omitted the names of eight Capone gangsters. On the original list found with Tagenti there was a penciled mark opposite each of these eight names.

Balswick Points to Record.

Balswick defended himself by pointing to his record of 12 years' work as secretary for police officials.

"I hope just as much space will be used to tell the public that I am clear as was used to show why I should be suspected," he remarked.

Acting Commissioner Alcock's face was grim as he reviewed the circumstances of the case. The vagrancy bureau and the list of gangsters who might be accused of vagrancy was his own idea, it was pointed out, and he had been hopeful that through such a bureau's information he might make some headway against the gangsters.

With private information concerning vagrants thus in the hands of gangsters before the vagrancy bureau had a chance to begin its work, the acting commissioner's ire was expressed succinctly in his statement. He said:

"Some one was responsible and that some one will be found. Whoever it was will suffer heavily."

Ald. Arthur F. Albert, who several months ago demanded a city council investigation of the police department, yesterday renewed his demand in a letter to Ald. Thomas F. Byrne, chairman of the council police committee.

"The fact that a police department list was found in the hands of a Capone bondsman shows conclusively the need for reviving an investigation of charges of collusion between police and gangsters," the letter read. "With the coöperation of the civil service commission, the council could investigate the department and drive out the crooks."

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

YOUNG WOMAN HELD BY ROCHE IN LINGLE CASE

Chief Investigator Pat Roche of State's Attorney Swanson's office last night was holding in custody a young woman seized in a raid on the Bellaire hotel, Diversey parkway and Sheridan road. It was reported she might have information relating to the Alfred Lingle case.

Her attorneys sought to obtain her freedom on a writ of habeas corpus, but Mr. Roche informed Judge George Fred Rush he wished to keep her in custody until Monday morning. She was named in the application for the writ as Gladys Sterling, but was said to be the wife of Joe Fiore, a west side gunman.

With her was arrested Ted Virgillo but apparently he was not wanted, as he was booked for disorderly conduct at the Sheffield station after the habeas corpus action.

LAKE PACKET WITH 6 ABOARD BELIEVED SUNK

Raises Storm's Death Toll to Eleven.

BULLETIN.

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 27.—(Special.)—Coast guard officials fear for the safety of Capt. William Preston, who set out at 9 o'clock this morning with four men in a motor driven life boat in search for the North Shore. The captain planned to zigzag across the lake to Racine. Ordinarily the trip takes seven or eight hours. At a late hour no report had been received of his arrival at Racine.

Holland, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—All hope for the fruit packer North Shore and the five men and a woman aboard it was abandoned late tonight as huge quantities of grape crates came drifting ashore south of Holland. Grapes comprised the cargo of the North Shore when it left Benton Harbor, Mich., for Milwaukee early yesterday morning, a few hours before a smashing storm bore down on Lake Michigan. It was regarded as certain that the North Shore had met the fate of the two other ships which went down in the gale yesterday. This raises the probable toll of the storm to 11 lives and three ships. Five persons perished when the barge Salvor sank four miles north of Muskegon, Mich., yesterday. The schooner Our Son, owned by Win Schlosser of Milwaukee, foundered near Ludington, but its crew of seven were rescued by the steamer William Nelson.

Captain's Bride Aboard.

In addition to Capt. Erwin Anderson and his wife, Harriet, 18, those known to have been aboard the North Shore were Joseph Tekus, Cudahy, Wis.; Royal Richter, 16, Washington Island, Wis.; Arthur Peters, Milwaukee, and John Johnson, Two Rivers, Wis. Capt. Anderson was part owner of the missing freighter. His father is Judge John A. Anderson of Washington Island. The captain and his bride were married in Port Washington a month ago. Mrs. Anderson was Miss Harriet Smith of Milwaukee.

The North Shore was due at Milwaukee at 2:30 p. m. yesterday.

The lake was combed today by coast guard crews from all points and by pilots of all planes of the Kohler Aviation corporation, operating ships between Milwaukee, Muskegon, and Grand Rapids.

A Welded Vessel.

The missing North Shore was constructed in Milwaukee last spring and attracted wide attention because, instead of being riveted together, her plates were electrically welded. She was powered with Diesel engines. During the summer the boat was used for excursion trips about Milwaukee harbor, from Juneau park to South Shore park.

While out searching for the North Shore today Capt. Alfred E. Kristofferson of the Kenosha coast guards went to the assistance of the stranded fishing tug Charles K. of Kenosha. The steering gear of the tug was damaged early today and the small craft was drifting hopelessly about 20 miles from its home port when sighted by the coast guards. The coast guard towed the fishing tug into Kenosha harbor.

Owner Clings to Hope.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Discovery of grape baskets believed to have been on board the missing freighter North Shore by the coast guard beach patrol near South Haven, Mich., tonight were interpreted by W. J. Lawrie, one of the freighter's owners as evidence that the ship might still be afloat far to the north of that part of the lake. Searches were made today by coast guard patrol and airplanes.

Mr. Lawrie said he believed Capt. Anderson had ordered the cargo of fruit lightened and had cleared the boat's decks. He believes the ship may have exhausted its fuel supply and drifted far north. Mr. Lawrie said the North Shore was propelled by twin screw 150 horse power motors and burned gasoline.

Tells Night of Terror.

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Harry Smith of Newark, N. J., rescued with Raymond Nedeau of Muskegon this morning from the wreckage of the barge Salvor, which sank in a storm off here yesterday, described as "a tough fight" the efforts of the two men to prevent being swept to their deaths in the turbulent waters.

"Our great fight was to keep from freezing in that northwest gale as the giant waves rolled over us every few seconds," Smith said. Smith revealed that in addition to Clinton Lane, who was found dead aboard the barge, a fourth man, Clarence Brunett, had tried to live through the storm by clinging to the derrick. After fighting several hours with the waves Brunett dropped into the water.

"It was a tough fight," said Smith. "For about three hours after midnight it seemed the sea was breaking over us all the time. Nedeau and I and Lane climbed onto the frames as soon as the ship went aground.

"We had lashed the boy, Lornie Olmstead, and the two women, Mrs. Ida Olmstead and Alice La Plaunt, to a life raft and pushed them off. Several others went the same way. Brunett and two other men were hanging onto each other and trying to stay on deck. Brunett wanted to climb up with us, but every time a big wave came along he was washed to the other side of the ship. Then he would crawl back, only to be washed away again.

"Darkness came and we could see the lights on shore. It seemed ages. About dark we saw Brunett drop into the water. We still clung to our place.

"Lane kept talking to us all the time until about two hours after midnight. About the last thing I remember him saying was that he wanted to come down where we were and get warm. All the poor kid had on was a bathing suit, a vest, and one sock. The sock was still hanging to his foot this morning. I went up there and felt his pulse at daylight. He must have been dead since he last spoke, at 2 o'clock."

Sailors Rescued from Sinking Lake Boat Reach Chicago

DRAMA OF LAKE RESCUE TOLD BY SHIPS' CAPTAINS

Crew of Lost Schooner Is Brought to Port.

Capt. Fred Nelson, 73 years old, skipper of the three-masted schooner, Our Son, which foundered in the middle of Lake Michigan Friday afternoon, after its crew had been taken off by a passing freighter, the William Nelson, stepped ashore yesterday at 91st street and the Calumet river followed by his crew of six.

Capt. Charles H. Mohr of the Nelson can now claim a total of 27 lives saved in five rescues made during the ten years he has held his present rank. Asked for the story of Friday's rescue, he told how he first sighted the Our Son flying distress signals about midway between Ludington, Mich., and Manitowoc, Wis., at 3:45 p. m.

Tells of the Rescue.

"The Our Son's rail was about two feet above the water," Capt. Mohr said, "and we could see it wouldn't be long for her. There was some wreckage above deck and the crew was huddled just aft of the foremast. We were rolling in one of the heaviest seas I have seen. It was quite a job getting next to the schooner, but we did it in about fifteen minutes and the boys from the Our Son walked aboard."

"Handling a freighter loaded to the gunwales with sand like the Nelson was some job, and Capt. Mohr ought to get a medal for the chances he took," said Capt. Nelson, who has never forsaken sailing ships in his 48 years on the lakes. The Our Son was also a veteran, having been built in 1875. It was the last sailing freighter on the great lakes. It was owned by Wayne Schloss of Milwaukee.

Long Battle with Storm.

"We were bound for Muskegon, Mich., from Monitoulin island in Lake Huron, loaded with 525 cords of pulpwood," Capt. Nelson continued. "We had been fighting a heavy sea and tricky wind all day. Just before we sighted the Nelson we lost our deck load. It just happened that we were all forward and no one went with it.

"The water was pouring over our stern and the hold was filling up fast. We put the flags out when we saw the Nelson. She hove to and we jumped aboard. The Our Son sank in half an hour. I didn't like to see her go down but I was glad all the boys were safe."

The captain valued the cargo lost at about $8,000.

Capt. Nelson lives in Des Plaines, is married and the father of three boys. Other members of his crew are: Carl Schroeder of Muskegon, and Walter Schallert, Alfred Petterson, Jonn Olsen, Tom Larsen and Peter Olsen, all of Milwaukee.

KIRK WINNER OVER JOYCE IN ELECTION CASE

Court Ruling Adds to Muddle.

Wallace F. Kirk, defeated in election returns for the Republican nomination for state senator from the Twenty-ninth district, yesterday was declared the winner by Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr., presiding over the election contest hearing. Kirk's margin over the late Senator John T. Joyce was placed at 156 votes in the recount.

Judge Taylor's decision further complicates the strange election muddle and leaves three candidates in the running for the nomination left vacant by the death of Senator Joyce, who now appears not to have been nominated.

Kirk Gains 136 Votes.

In the recount Kirk made a net gain of 136 votes while Joyce had a net loss of 291 votes. The final figures give Kirk a total of 3,979 votes and Joyce a total of 3,823 votes. In the canvass of votes Joyce was the winner by 271 votes.

The recount of the April primary vote was begun before Judge Taylor early in June. During the hearings, at which evidence of fraudulent balloting was given by Kirk's attorney Urban Lavery, Joyce's lead was cut to 171 votes. On July 10 Judge Taylor left for a ten weeks' trip to Europe, withholding his decision until his return.

Meanwhile Joyce died suddenly of poison under mysterious circumstances. The Republican organization, advised that there was a vacancy on the ballot, named Charles E. Peace, ward committeeman of the 42d ward, as the candidate. Edward [Piggy] Joyce, brother of the late senator, and Mrs. Mary Joyce, his widow, also filed as candidates.

On Sept. 4, Joyce's attorney, John F. Tyrrell, went before Circuit Judge David M. Brothers, sitting in Emergency court, and obtained an abatement of the contest. Two weeks later Judge Taylor returned from his trip and vacated Judge Brothers' order on the grounds that he lacked jurisdiction.

The hearing was resumed and on the testimony of an investigator for the Citizens' association eighty votes were cut from Joyce's lead. A handwriting expert, produced by Attorney Lavery, offered evidence to prove that marks opposite Kirk's name on 32 ballots had been erased and crosses substituted for Joyce.

Called Proper Course.

In announcing his decision Judge Taylor said: "I regret the lack of assistance from Attorney Tyrrell. I did not like to do anything ex-parte but I am confident that it was the proper proceeding for me to go on with the hearing."

Attorney Tyrrell had withdrawn from the case on the ground that Senator Joyce's death closed the contest.

To further complicate the situation Attorney Warner A. Schroeder, representing Peace, announced that he had been retained to petition the Supreme court to vacate the order issued by Judge Taylor.

DRY NOMINEES DODGE QUERY ON PARTY PLANKS

Also Conceal Their Stand on Referendum.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Political observers who have examined the returns to date from the prohibition questionnaire sent by THE TRIBUNE to candidates for congress and the general assembly in the state election of Nov. 4 have commented particularly on one fact they consider outstanding—the silence, the evasion, or the refusal to answer on the part of many well known drys.

The questionnaire was sent out on Aug. 30. On the last day for filing independent petitions—last Thursday—a reminder telegram was sent to all the recipients who up to that time had failed to answer. Replies have been received from a large majority of the important candidates, but they are still coming in. Therefore the tabulation of the result will not be published until a full month has elapsed since the mailing of the questionnaires.

Evasion by Leading Drys.

In the meantime the assembling and classification of the filled in blanks and the perusal of letters sent in by some who did not return the questionnaire has aroused comment to the effect that notable drys have chosen to ignore the planks on the prohibition issue adopted by the Republican and Democratic state conventions at Springfield in August.

The Democratic state platform declared that it favors repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The Republican plank read:

"The Republican state convention pledges its representatives in the congress of the United States to vote consistently to carry out fully the expressed will of the people of their districts at the referendum of Nov. 4."

Four Questions Asked.

Following the action of the convention THE TRIBUNE submitted to nominees for congress two primary questions asking their stand on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and two alternative questions based on the result of the referendum. For example, the alternative question concerning the eighteenth amendment read:

"Will you favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment if the vote of your district in the state referendum of Nov. 4 favors repeal?"

Some Democratic congressmen, whose party organization in the state voted unanimously, "unreservedly and unqualifiedly" for repeal, have failed to answer the questionnaire. And several Republican congressmen and nominees for congress have flatly refused to answer the question whether they will abide by the results of the referendum to which their state convention pledged them.

Not a word has been heard from Richard Yates, congressman-at-large, His Republican running mate, Frank L. Smith, in reply to the reminder telegram, wired yesterday: "I stand pledged to the policy as stated in the Republican state platform."

Democratic Nominee Silent.

One of the two Democratic nominees for this office, former Judge William H. Dieterich of Beardstown answered both the questionnaire queries affirmatively and wrote a letter emphasizing his position. His running mate, Walter Nesbit of Belleville, has remained silent.

In addition to the platforms of the state conventions, the nominees for congress from Cook county districts have before them the county platforms of their parties, both of which are wet. Among the dry congressmen from this county who have failed since Aug. 30 to reply to the questionnaire are the following:

Morton D. Hull, Second district.
Elliott W. Sproul, Third district.
Carl R. Chindblom, Tenth district.

Downstate there has been similar silence on the part of these men:

Frank R. Reid, Eleventh district.
John T. Buckbee, Twelfth district.
William R. Johnson, Thirteenth district.
Homer W. Hall, Seventeenth district.
William P. Holaday, Eighteenth district.
Henry T. Rainey, Twentieth district.
William W. Arnold, Twenty-third district.

Three Definitely Refuse.

Three present members of the federal house of representatives wrote letters definitely refusing to answer the questionnaire. Their names and excerpts from their letters follow:

Charles Adkins, Nineteenth district: "My constituents were fully advised during the primary campaign what I would do on the wet and dry question if nominated and elected to congress. I expect to keep faith with them if I am elected to the 72d congress."

John C. Allen, Fourteenth district: "My constituents were advised what I would do on the wet and dry question if nominated and elected to congress. I expect to keep faith with them if I am elected to the 72d congress."

E. E. Denison, Twenty-fifth district: "I do not care to answer the question categorically. I will say, however, that personally I am dry and I have consistently voted dry, as my record will show, and I do not favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. If the people of my district who believe in prohibition and are opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment should participate in the referendum and the vote should be fairly counted, the result of the referendum would have a very persuasive influence with me in determining my course on submitting the proposition of repeal to the several states."

In addition to these letters from sitting congressmen there was a long one from Probate Judge Roger E. Chapin of Sangamon county, Republican nominee in the Twenty-first district, explaining why he did not answer the questionnaire — because it did not propose a substitute for the prohibition system under the eighteenth amendment.

Other Nominees Dodge.

Silence and refusal to answer were not limited to congressional candidates alone. Not a word has been received from a number of state senators and representatives who have voted dry in one or more sessions. Among the senators in that category are Lowell B. Mason of Oak Park, Martin R. Carlson of Rock Island, Harry G. Wright, of De Kalb, Richard J. Barr of Joliet, and Charles H. Thompson of Harrisburg.

Among former dry leaders in the house who have remained silent are these: Hugh M. Luckey, Potomac; Roger F. Little, Champaign, G. J. Johnson, Paxton; Homer Tice, Greenview; Truman A. Snell, Carlinville; and Elbert Wallare, Tamaroa.

Fall Fashions Worn by Notables

Edwin W. Sims (left) and George Getz as they arrived on Century yesterday, wearing latest in fall fashions for men.

Getz and Sims

Fall fashions, brought into display by a gust of wind and a snappy turn of the weather, were on view in the La Salle street station yesterday.

George F. Getz, millionaire coal operator and member of the state athletic commission, arrived on the Century from New York wearing what appeared to be a brand new topcoat. It was a tannish coat, in raglan sleeve effect, and was apparently one of the fashionable Scotch tweeds, although that fact was not verified by Mr. Getz. He also carried a cane and an umbrella, prepared for snow or most anything.

Not to be outdone by Mr. Getz, Edwin W. Sims, senior partner in the law firm of Sims, Godman & Stransky and former president of the Chicago crime commission, was all done up in a fashionable overcoat of tailored lines, in blue, with a suit to match. He also carried a cane and wore gray spats.

SECRET RADIO OF HUGE BOOZE RING IS SEIZED BY U. S.

Directed Rum Runners in Evading Capture.

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The far-flung operations of a liquor syndicate, now doing a business of $15,000,000 annually despite the fact that its major movements have been known to the prohibition authorities throughout the last several years, were pictured here today by department of justice agents following the arraignment of two wireless experts arrested Friday in a raid on a secret station in Brooklyn. The federal authorities were declared to have their hands tied by conditions which the state department has so far been unable to correct.

The charges were made by H. J. Simmons, chief agent for the department of justice in Brooklyn, and by his aide, Carlo M. Bernstein, who conducted the raid on the radio station on Friday.

Wanted in "I'm Alone" Case.

It was said by a federal employé who did not wish his name used that Cecil Molyneaux, described by the department of justice agents as a "radio genius," who by mere chance was arrested in the raid, was believed to have been radio operator on the "I'm Alone" and that the state department was seeking to have his bail increased from $7,500 to $50,000 because he was regarded as a valuable aid towards resolving the controversy between the United States and Canada as a result of the sinking of that vessel by a revenue cutter in the Gulf of Mexico a year and a half ago.

The same authority indicated that the "I'm Alone" was operated by the syndicate that owned the radio station as well as the station in the stronghold at Atlantic Highlands that was raided last year with the arrest of fifty-two men and the indictment of fifty-seven, trial of all of whom is now pending in New Jersey.

Twelve Vessels Operated.

The elusive operations of the syndicate, as described by Mr. Simmons, involve the constant operation of twelve vessels, each capable of carrying a cargo of several thousand cases of liquor. These vessels, which load at Ste. Pierre and in the Bahamas, are supplemented by an "innumerable fleet" of fast, seaworthy power launches, he declared. Both the larger vessels and the launches are equipped with radio, operating on a fixed schedule.

The reason given for the inability of the prohibition authorities to keep the syndicate's operations from proceeding so smoothly that they have constantly increased in scope was that the larger vessels, remaining beyond the twelve mile limit are immune from harrassment by the coast guard.

The smaller power launches, while cargo is being shifted to them, are likewise immune from attack under the existing treaties. By radio they are despatched out to sea at such times as the syndicate's watchers are satisfied the coast guard vessels are elsewhere.

If the coast guard and federal agents are watching a landing point, a terse radiogram directs the contact vessel to another and unguarded one, designated only by a mysterious numeral or letter and even though heard, giving the federal authorities no information to work upon.

The syndicate is believed to have come into existence soon after the beginning of the prohibition era, Mr. Simmons has declared; but it was not until the last few years when recoures was taken to the short wave radio, which covers long distances on very low power, that it has increased its operations by leaps and bounds, until now, he said, it was "doing roughly $15,000,000 a year."

The two men arrested in the South Brooklyn raid, Molyneaux and Malcoin McMasters, alias Frank Baker, were held on charges of radio infraction. They are accused of directing operations of the alleged rum fleet from their "outlaw" radio station.

BILL OF RIGHTS THE ISSUE, SAYS MRS. M'CORMICK

Raps Dry League for Its Political Allies.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The Anti-Saloon league was depicted as off on a joy ride with the dripping wet Democratic party on the liquor referendum by Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for senator, in today's speechmaking. In Belleville, the capital of St. Clair county, oldest of the counties and largest outside of Cook, and also the wettest, the biological freak was exhibited of the camel, which can go eight days without a drink, growing web feet and a set of fins.

Upholds Constitutional Rights.

Mrs. McCormick declared the league's attack upon the referendum raises the issue of "the constitution first." The league's attitude, she argued, is an onslaught upon the bill of rights and the privilege of citizens to petition their government, which runs back to Magna Charta.

"We are going to get back to the constitution and stay there," said Mrs. McCormick. "We are not to be diverted from our adherence to the law and constitution by any despotism of denunciation.

"We have the Anti-Saloon league and the wet Democratic party standing together in opposition to the referendum, while the W. C. T. U. and the Republican party are arrayed on the side of the referendum. As a Republican, I maintain I am in far better company than is the Anti-Saloon league."

Rivals Campaign Nearby.

The tail of the week saw a concentration upon St. Clair and Madison counties by both candidates, Mrs. McCormick and James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee. This great East St. Louis-Belleville-Alton industrial area with 300,000 population is the largest outside the Chicago district. It went overwhelmingly wet on the referendums of 1922 and 1926. St. Clair county, second in Illinois in population with 157,388, was one of the fourteen counties carried by the late George Brennan for senator, in 1926, and it is rated as the great debatable ground downstate.

Both Republicans and Democrats are centering upon matters of unemployment. The wet and dry issue is given the great play. In Madison county, third in Illinois in population with 143,808, Mr. Lewis in a speech late last night at Granite City laid business conditions to the Republicans, while today the Republican orators dwelt upon the business situation as a reflection of world wide conditions and the backwash of the war which was looked for along about 1920 but was delayed in arriving in the United States. Mrs. McCormick spoke at Duquoin and Belleville and the candidates for state office hit it up in Mount Vernon, Chester, Waterloo, and Nashville.

Senator Otis F. Glenn, in talking of calamity howling by the Democrats, said the question confronting the voters is:

"In times like this, are you going to retain the good old reliable family physician, the Republicans, or call in the patent medicine quack, the Democrats?"

Mrs. McCormick speaking on the wet and dry referendum said the Anti-Saloon league, in hooking up with the wet Democrats as soul mates on the public policy popular vote, was on the opposite side from four of the leading militant dry members of the United States senate.

"Four bone dry senators," she said, "have taken a position on the referendum plan of ascertaining the will of the people which is identical with the one taken by the Republican party of Illinois and by me.

Quotes Leading Drys' Attitude.

"All of these men have had long records of service as militant defenders of law enforcement and as opponents of repeal of the 18th amendment. They are Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana; Wesley L. Jones, Washington; Morris Sheppard of Texas, and Lee S. Overman of North Carolina. I ask you to consider carefully the record of those four veteran warriors in the prohibition cause so that you may be able more clearly to judge the conduct of the Anti-Saloon league in Illinois in condemning the referendum on the ground that it is not a true test of public opinion.

"These men are field marshals of prohibition. Will the Anti-Saloon league denounce them as traitors and trucklers because they, in spite of their intense loyalty to the dry cause, have recognized that there is American justice and unquestioned legality in the referendum, which gives citizens the opportunity to petition their government."

Mrs. McCormick reiterated that she is a dry, but said she would follow the expression of the citizenship upon the liquor referendum.

Lewis Assails Referendum.

Mr. Lewis, leading the Democrats into Madison county, addressing an audience at Granite City late last night before leaving for Chicago, assailed the referendum and dwelt upon unemployment.

"Mrs. McCormick started out by saying she was politically and personally dry," he said, "now she is all tangled up in referendums.

"Mrs. O'Neill believes the country should be treated to ten years more of prohibition, then it will be used to it and like it. She is wrong. The free people of America will never consent to this abridgment of their individual liberty of the continuance of the horrible conditions that accompany prohibition."

"There should be no unemployment," he continued. "When these fellows who run the government come out here in Illinois, ask them how it happens there is no money with which to keep the factories going.

"The Democrats passed the federal reserve act when we were in power and the President appointed a board that would see to it that the money needed in the Mississippi valley states would not be taken away to the east.

"But what have these gentlemen now running the government done? They took off the board the men who represented this great section of the country and put on easterners, then they took the money that is needed to keep business going out here and loaned it to Wall street stock gamblers.

"If they won, they put the profits in their own pockets. If they lost they took the losses out of your pockets."

NYE PRAISED BY MRS. O'NEILL FOR PRIMARY INQUIRY

Assails Mrs. McCormick in Speech.

Cropsey, Ill., Sept. 27.—(AP)—On the second day of her campaign as an Independent candidate for the United States senate, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill today defended the Nye senatorial committee which investigated Illinois primary campaign expenditures.

She also assailed her Republican opponent, Ruth Hanna McCormick.

"Mrs. McCormick dragged this chairman, Senator Gerald P. Nye, over the coals because he was doing his duty," she declared. "That committee has at all times acted within its rights."

Makes Short Speech.

Her speech was short. It was delivered before farmers of three counties assembled for a corn festival.

"I am the Hoover Republican in this race," Mrs. O'Neil said. "Mrs. McCormick is the Barney Snow Republican."

She referred to Bernard Snow, Cook county chairman, whom she accused of initiating the referendum on prohibition Nov. 4 through political expediency. She declared that Mrs. McCormick, in spending more than $300,000 in the primary campaign, as testified before the Nye committee, virtually bought her way in.

"I haven't any money in this campaign," she said; "all I have is a lot of nerve."

Attacks Liquor Referendum.

Attacking the referendum, she said she and James Hamilton Lewis, the Democrat, constitute the only real referendum in this coming election.

"I am dry; Lewis is wet; Mrs. McCormick is moist," she said. "There can be no clearer issue. I am the only candidate for whom the drys can vote.

"The Republican standard is a dry standard. I am carrying that standard to the polls. I have been a Republican all my life and for four terms I have served Du Page county in the legislature as a Republican. This time the party leaders have gone too far. I am not in this election to beat anybody, to elect anybody else. I am in it to win and to carry the principles for which I stand to the senate."

Sen. Allen Recovering; May Go Home Next Week

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who underwent a major operation at Johns Hopkins hospital recently, may be able to leave for his home next week.

REPUBLICAN PARTY WILL CONTINUE DRY, SENATOR CAPPER SAYS

Ottawa, Kas., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A prediction that western Republicans would make "no surrender" at the party's national convention in 1932 "to the demands of the great wet cities of New York and other eastern states" was made today by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas.

"The Republican party in 1928 stood for enforcement, not repeal of the 18th amendment," said Senator Capper in addressing a political rally here.

"And in 1932 the west, which will control the national convention, will stand where it stood in 1928."

Senator Capper said that while New York Republicans, who have adopted a wet plank, "therefore seem to be in favor of outlawing the liquor traffic by putting the states into the liquor business, they do not represent the sentiment on this question of the Republican party throughout the west, which today has come to be the dominant end of the party."

ELECTORS VOTE ON HALL OF FAME CANDIDATES OCT. 1

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The college of electors to New York university's hall of fame will vote on Oct. 1 to elect several more distinguished Americans to places in the gallery of the great, it was announced.

The college includes 106 men and women from every state and a three-fifths vote is required for election.

James Abbott McNeil Whistler, painter and etcher, heads the list submitted by the preliminary committee with 18 of the 21 votes. Sixteen voted for William Penn, and 15 votes each were cast for James Monroe, the fourth President; Walt Whitman and Matthew Fontaine Maury, scientist.

Others voted upon and the ballots cast included Thomas Paine, Henry David Thoreau, and Noah Webster.

Dutch Baron Finds His Missing American Wife

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Baron John Melville Van Carnbee of The Hague, who yesterday asked police to aid him in a search for his wife, the former Virginia Etnier of Spokane, informed detectives today that he had found her at the Allerton house, after she had been missing two days. The baroness recently received treatment for a nervous disorder. She wore jewelry valued at $25,000.

Ex-State Senator Slays Nephew Who Left School

Chickasha, Okla., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Ed F. Johns, former state senator and liquidating agent for a number of failed state banks, shot and killed his nephew, Jack Comer, 19, and himself at the family home here today. He apparently was angered at the youth for failing to remain at a Mississippi military academy.

SON WHO SHOT SAYRE HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Sidney Sayre, 35, war time aviator, yesterday was ordered held to the grand jury on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury investigating the death of his father, Rockwell Sayre, millionaire realty dealer. The elder Sayre, who was 83, was found shot to death in his apartment at 5116 Indiana avenue Friday night by a police squad under Sergt. Edward Donovan which arrived in response to a radio police call telling of shooting there.

Paul Sayre, a professor of law at the University of Iowa, informed the coroner's jury, under Deputy Jacob Schewell, that his brother had not been mentally competent since being shot down in his plane in France during the war. He was declared insane in 1924 after an examination at Madison, Wis., he declared, but his father had objected to having him incarcerated. He asserted there was no foundation for Sidney's hallucination that the elder Sayre had been showering attentions on Miss Alma Zschaechner, the nurse in charge of Mrs. Sayre, who had been an invalid for years.

BOTH CANDIDATES ENTITLED TO VOTE OF THIS WOMAN

Franklin, N. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Bert Slagle is the Democratic candidate for sheriff in this county.

Sam Franks is Republican candidate for the same office.

Slagle noted a woman chopping wood. He offered his help.

At last the wood was cut and Slagle seated himself on the front porch to rest. The question of his candidacy came up.

"I hardly know who to vote for," the lady said. "Both you and Mr. Franks have been so nice to us. Why, right now Mr. Franks is out on the back porch churning."

PUBLIC CLAMOR LEADS RAILWAY TO ELECTRICITY

New York Central Starts Change in 1903.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
ARTICLE NO. 2.

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Electrification of the New York Central's Manhattan terminal, for which there had been steadily increasing public agitation for nearly a decade, was begun in 1903 and completed in 1912.

It was largely the development of certain symptoms of public sentiment in 1902 touching the pocket nerve of the company to the quick that hastened the inauguration of the undertaking.

The legislature of that year had adjourned in the spring with nothing accomplished in the direction of the compulsory electrification the commuters had demanded. Gov. Odell had vetoed the bill requiring the company to electrify because it was hooked up with another bill granting the company extraordinary powers to condemn abutting property which was widely denounced as a railroad land grab.

Railway Makes Pledge.

The company, however, had promised to electrify and had formally submitted its plans therefor to Mayor Low, who had approved them. When the work would be begun was a question to which the public could get no satisfactory answer for several months. The only comment forthcoming from the New York Central board room was that the substitution of electric for steam motive power was a vast undertaking which would be begun as soon as it was humanly possible to do so.

It was bruited about that the company would continue to oppose action by the next legislature fixing an iron clad time limit on completion of the project. The commuters, however, were preparing for a formidable onslaught on the legislature of 1903. Everett P. Wheeler, an eminent New York lawyer, had been retained to represent the Park avenue property owners who had joined the suburbs in the agitation for electrification. Mr. Wheeler, whose ability and resourcefulness in managing a matter of this kind commanded the utmost respect in the New York Central's board room, began operations by calling attention to the successful operation by electricity of 21 miles of subways then nearing completion.

Can Be Done, He Says.

"The thing can be done," said Mr. Wheeler, "and the New York Central ought to be compelled to do it in a reasonable time."

In the early fall the company changed its attitude radically. It no longer was opposed to legislation requiring electrification by a definite date. On the contrary it ardently desired the passage of such a bill by the next legislature. With this end in view the company asked the city to join with it in the formulation of a plan for the project upon which such legislation might be based.

There were several reasons for this change of front of the part of the company since the preceding February when Vanderbilt, Morgan, Depew and six other directors had written Mayor Low urging that their pledge to electrify be accepted "in lieu" of the proposed compulsory legislation.

Railway Gets Options.

For one thing, the company had purchased or obtained options on nearly all the abutting private property that it was going to need for the expansion of its terminal and yards. It had done so at figures far below what it would have been compelled to pay had it been already under compulsion to complete the work by a specified date, for it was conceived that the abutting property owners would have taken advantage of such a situation to hold up the company for the ground it required. For this reason the company was no longer opposed to legislation fixing a reasonable time limit.

For another thing, the shrewd directors of the railroad were intent upon getting as much advantage as possible out of the expensive luxury of electrification, as they viewed it, which public demand had compelled them to go in for. The city wanted electrification. They why should the city not pay for it in part? The electrification project involved a terminal expansion calling for the closing of certain streets, for the acquirement of parts of streets by the company and for other concessions by the city. If the city really wante electrification it doubtless would make these concessions on reasonable terms. Hence, the company wanted to make a deal with the city as a condition of electrification.

Suburban Growth Retarded.

But what appears to have been a particularly impelling consideration accounting for the company's change of front was the evidence accruing since the tunnel disaster that the continued use of steam motive power in the Park avenue subway would seriously retard the growth of suburban patronage on the New York Central and the New Haven lines.

Since the catastrophe of the preceding January the commuters had been distinctly "tunnel shy." They were afraid to ride to and from New York in the rear coaches of trains, for the 17 who were killed and nearly all of those who were injured in the tunnel collision were in the rear coach of the New Haven train telescoped by the New York Central train. Thereafter that empty rear coach on almost every train represented an economic waste. Moreover, it was a poor advertisement of suburban train service.

Dodge Smoky Tunnels.

Still more disquieting were certain indications that until the menace of the Park avenue tunnel should be removed the development of the suburban regions served by the two roads was likely to suffer. People were exhibiting reluctance to build homes in suburbs served by the lines entering New York through a smoke filled tunnel, on the other hand Long Island was beginning to enjoy a suburban real estate boom by virtue of the fact that it was soon to have railroad service to the heart of Manhattan through the electrically operated Long Island railway tunnel. Similarly New Jersey suburbs were finding new favor by virtue of the assured prospect of rapid transit into New York through the Pennsylvania's electrified Hudson river tunnel.

It was manifest that the longer the Vanderbilt road delayed electrification the longer it was postponing the development of a volume of suburban patronage that would pay for electrification many times over. Finally enabling legislation for electrification was necessary, for the existing law dating from the pre-electric era prescribed the use of steam only as a motive power in the Park avenue tunnel. The company's directors decided to move for legislation at the next session with the backing of the city and to that end sought an agreement with the municipal authorities.

In a letter dated Sept. 5, 1902, President W. H. Newman of the New York Central broached to the city the purchase of parts of Park Avenue and intersecting streets for the projected extensions of the yards incidental to electrification, stating that the additional ground was needed in part for power houses.

The proposed closing of certain streets elicited charges from property owners' associations that the railroad was seeking to wrest unwarranted concessions from the city as the price of electrification. Controller E. M. Grout echoed the accusations.

"The New York Central railroad company, ever since its existence," he said, "has been living off favors granted by the city of New York. It is about time this granting of favors stopped."

Eventually the city and the company came to an agreement on plans for the expansion of the terminal which called for the depression of the tracks, thereby obviating the closing of any streets.

Steam Only in Emergency.

The agreement as to electrification included a proviso that in an emergency arising from a breakdown of the motive power through trains only might be operated by steam, the emergency in each case to be determined by the mayor.

The agreement was reached before the legislature met in January.

In February Chairman Bedell of the railroad committee of the assembly introduced a bill acceptable to the New York Central. It prohibited the use of steam as passenger train motive power south of the Harlem river. It provided that work on the entire project was to commence 30 days after enactment of the legislation and that it should be completed within five years.

Project Is Outlined.

Mayor Low had transmitted the bill to Chairman Bedell with a letter in which he said that the New York Central intended to use electricity exclusively in its passenger terminal and to a point considerably beyond the city limits both on the Hudson river and Harlem railroads.

"This," said the mayor, "will satisfy the demands of the traveling public for a change of motive power which made itself so irresistibly felt after the accident of a year ago.

"A time limit of five years has been fixed for the reason that the very great changes contemplated must be carried on without interrupting the ordinary business of the road. On the other hand the company hopes to complete the work in much less time."

The bill was passed by the legislature virtually without opposition and signed by Gov. Odell.

30,000 VOTERS PUT NAMES ON COUNTY LISTS

Second Registration Day Will Be Oct. 7.

An early count last night indicated that approximately 30,000 voters in the country towns of Cook county placed their names on the poll books yesterday in the first day of registration under a new law requiring every citizen in the county to be registered before he may vote. The statute was passed by the general assembly last year.

Formerly most of the villages did not require voters to register before the day of election and in many instances the registration was accomplished by telephone or by proxy.

There is a second day, Oct. 7, on which the suburban residents may put their names on the polling lists. On Oct. 7 also the voters of Chicago and the five towns under the jurisdiction of the election board will have their one chance to register for the election of Nov. 4. The five towns are Chicago Heights, Berwyn, Cicero, Evergreen Park and Summit.

The Registration Figures.

The following table shows the numbers of voters registered yesterday in the county towns which had made the first reports:

Snow Predicts Big Vote.

The first forecast as to the election Nov. 4 was one yesterday from Bernard W. Snow, chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee. He predicted that a large vote will be cast.

Chairman Snow said the first day registration in the country towns was sufficient evidence of a genuine interest in the campaign.

"The bigger the vote the bigger the Republican victory."

Tax Amendment Condemned.

The proposed amendment to the revenue section of the state constitution was condemned in a statement issued by the Illinois Manufacturers' association telling the experiences of its president, Theodore R. Gerlach, and other officers during a two weeks' trip throughout the state in which they discussed the proposal with business leaders.

According to the statement, President Gerlach and his associates found the business men of the state opposed to the new grant of power to the general assembly for the following reasons:

"1. They believe that the delegation of unlimited authority in tax matters to a mere majority of the assembly would result in a constant shifting of the tax burden and a condition of uncertainty that would retard commercial and industrial development.

Point to Other States.

"2. The immediate purpose of the amendment was to legalize a classified income tax. Similar laws in other states have been simply an additional form of taxation without giving any aid to real estate.

"3. They believe that the provision in the amendment empowering towns, counties, school districts and other municipalities to make local improvements by special assessment or special taxation would result in extravagance.

"4. The business men are convinced that our problem in Illinois is too much taxes, and that elementary businesslike methods in the 12,000 or more local governing bodies of the state would accomplish a material improvement."

Headquarters of the Illinois Republican Service Men's league for this campaign will be opened tomorrow at 100 North La Salle street in charge of Everett H. Allison, state and county secretary, and Phil Collins, member of the Illinois commerce commission, who is county chairman. There are thirteen service men on the local Republican ticket.

RUSSELL WINS 1930 NATIONAL AIR TOUR; ILLINOISAN SECOND

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Swept along by a heavy breeze, the 18 contesting planes in the 1930 national air tour sped into airport late today, completing a 4,500 mile jaunt through the midwest and Canadian prairie provinces.

First over the finish line on the last lap from Cincinnati was Harry L. Russell, Detroit, piloting a trimotored Ford. Russell, who maintained a consistent lead both in speed and reliability throughout the tour, piled up 58,575 points in the scoring system and was announced winner of the $7,500 trophy and a $2,500 cash prize.

John Livingston of Aurora, Ill., flying a Waco, landed second, to gain a $2,000 cash prize. Third to land was Art Davis, Lansing, Mich., pilot, also flying a Waco, and in fourth place came Myron E. Zeller, Detroit, in a Ford trimotor. Davis and Zeller, who also held third and fourth places in the final tour standings, will receive $1,700 and $1,500, respectively.

Starting Sept. 11 from Detroit, the air caravan flew to 27 cities in the United States and Canada and returned without mishap to any of the contestants or the 20 accompanying planes.

Quake in Andes Mountains Razes Several Villages

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Fragmentary reports today brought first news of an earthquake in the Andes mountains last Tuesday, in which several villages were either razed or severely damaged. At least one death occurred, that of a woman. The villages of La Merced Montevideo, Poyogastilla, Lavima, and San Carlos suffered serious damage.

Three Cold Facts

Of vital interest to every citizen

1. The University of North Carolina recently made an investigation of retail food prices in Durham, N. C., a typical American city. It found that chain store grocery prices of advertised goods were 13.79 cents in the dollar lower than prices in other stores.

2. The University of Kentucky announced a few days later that it had made a retail price study of all sorts of food in Lexington, Ky., another typical city. It found food prices in chain store groceries were 14.03 cents in the dollar lower than prices in other stores.

3. The average American family spends for food between $600 and $800 a year, according to estimates of the best known authorities. This means that the average family buying its food at chain stores saves from $84 to $112 a year.

Customers of A&P knew these facts before these impartial investigations were made. It is in the public interest that everyone should know them.

BEATRICE RIPLEY, FRANCES ELLISON BECOME BRIDES

Misses Smith and Roberts Bow to Society.

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

Yesterday's most interesting social events were the weddings of Miss Frances Ellison, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Hamilton Ellison of Evanston, to Ayres Boal Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal of Winnetka, and of Miss Beatrice Ripley, daughter of the Robert H. Ripleys of Indian Hill, to Frank Allen Baker Jr. of Kansas City, and the debuts of Miss Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith, and of Miss Katharine Eleanor Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Roberts.

Miss Ellison's and Mr. Boal's wedding took place at the Winnetka Congregational church at 5 o'clock, with a small reception following at the Winnetka Woman's club.

Bride Wears Ivory Satin.

The bride's gown was of pale ivory satin, with an attached train and no ornamentation. Her veil of filmy illusion was of the same shade, and she carried a bouquet of cream colored Joanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Edward H. Naylor, the bride's sister and matron of honor, wore a long tiered frock of deep gladiola red, trimmed with a paler shade of the same color; and the bridesmaids, Miss Sally H. Windes and Miss Henrietta Boal, wore similar frocks of the paler shade trimmed with the darker. The attendants wore brown felt hats, off the face and full at one side and the back, and carried gladioli and delphinium. The church was decorated with autumnal flowers and leaves. Charles Thorne, the bride's grandfather, accompanied her down the aisle. After Nov. 15 Mr. and Mrs. Boal are to reside in Niles Center.

Miss Ripley Is Bride.

Miss Ripley's bridal gown was of pale pink satin trimmed with some of the same point de Venise lace that adorned her mother's wedding dress, and her pale pink tulle veil had heirloom rosepoint on it. She carried pale pink roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Ruth Taylor of Pelham, N. Y., wore sky blue flat crêpe with a long, full skirt and cape collar, a matching brimmed hat of violet, and carried yellow gladioli and delphinium. The other attendant, Miss Mary Van Etten of Grand Rapids, Mich., wore a similar costume in yellow.

The wedding service was read at 4 o'clock in the court of the Ripley residence, the bridal procession emerging from the front entrance of the house to take their places in front of a prie-dieu. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. Baker and his wife go to Bermuda for their wedding trip and are to be at home after Nov. 1 at Morristown, N. J.

Miss Smith Makes Début.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, who was presented to society by her parents at their residence in Lake Forest, wore a blue taffeta dress for her coming out party. Its long skirt was tiered in small ruffles from waist to hem, and it had a collar of deep yellow Battenburg lace. She held a bouquet of Talisman roses as she stood with her mother to receive the guests. Mrs. Smith wore black velvet with touches of white.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts gave the debut tea for their daughter at their residence in Highland Park, afterward taking the bud and her assistants to the Harvest Home dinner-dance at the Exmoor Country club. Miss Roberts' debut frock was a bouffant model of apricot colored net.

Woman Loses $500,000 Suit for Plagiarism

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The $500,000 suit brought by Miss Florence Deeks of Toronto against H. G. Wells and Macmillan & Co., publishers, charging plagiarism in preparation of the "Outline of History" was dismissed today by Justice Raney. Miss Deeks charged that much material in the outline was taken from her manuscript, "The Web."

INDICT LAWYER IN $1,000,000 GAS FRAUD INQUIRY

Possibility of the indictment of several politicians was announced yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney John Holman when he made public the fact that Attorney Wilbur J. Mc Ginness, 77 West Washington street, was named in a true bill charging him with operating a confidence game, and larceny as bailee.

The true bill voted against Attorney McGinness makes the third batch of indictments voted by the grand jury in the last two weeks in the investigation of the defrauding of the state out of perhaps $1,000,000 or more through manipulation of the gasoline tax.

It is alleged that Attorney McGinness maneuvered the tax business for the Crescent Refining company and that he failed to pay into the state treasury $3,121.45 given to him in November, 1929, for that purpose. He is said to have offered to obtain a $700 reduction from the state department of finance for the November tax through influence.

Officials of the refining company said that McGinness exchanged checks for $700 with them as a guarantee that he would save that amount. His check was returned marked not sufficient funds, it is charged, and that is what the confidence game charge is based on. Then it is alleged he pocketed the $3,121.45 given to pay the tax. It is said that McGinness has paid back part of the latter amount.

"The investigation into this gas tax matter, which has been going on for some time, shows that the state has lost, in Cook county alone, more than $1,000,000," said Prosecutor Holman. "The investigation is going to reveal the doings of several local politicians. That is all I can say at this time."

Mrs. Hoover Goes to Camp to Visit Son Who Is Ill

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Herbert Hoover went to Rapidan camp today to visit her son, Herbert Jr., confined there by illness. The President remained at the White House working on speeches to be delivered within the next ten days. He planned to go to camp tomorrow morning.

LEAGUE AIMS TO GET $150,000 ON TAG DAY OCT. 6

Fifty children's charities, all indorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce, will benefit from a tag day to be held on Oct. 6 by the Chicago Children's Benefit league.

"Funds are needed more this year than ever before because of the unemployment situation," Mrs. Charles E. Frankenthal, publicity chairman, said yesterday. "We hope to raise $150,000."

Officers of the league are Mrs. Thomas G. English, president; Mrs. George C. Carrothers, Mrs. Frank A. Healy, Mrs. William R. Tucker, vice presidents; Mrs. Wilfred S. Reynolds, secretary; Mrs. George B. Holmes, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. James V. Burke, treasurer.

It was estimated last night that the ninth annual Forget-Me-Not day of the disabled veterans of the world war would net the $80,000 the organization had set as its goal. The contributions will not be tabulated until tomorrow, all the collections of the 12,000 workers having been turned over to the First National bank. The committee in charge consisted of N. O. Isaacson, chairman; Howard O'Brien, Raymond A. Lesance, Solomon Vollowich, Joseph Lynch, Omar Cooper, Roy Cunningham, and Henry Gano, who represented the national headquarters.

Auto Crashes Through Rail Into Water; Four Drown

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Three young daughters of Thomas C. Raley, president of the Getz Exterminator company of St. Louis, and their nurse were drowned in Bellefontaine Bayou, a mile west of Pascagoula, Miss., yesterday afternoon. The Raley automobile crashed through a wooden guard rail and sank in 10 feet of water. Mr. Raley, who was in the front seat of the car, crawled out an open window and dragged his wife to safety.

LEAGUE TO INVITE WORLD TO PARLEY ON WHEAT CRISIS

Seeks Way for Industry to Absorb Grain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—Agricultural troubles are the primary, if not the sole cause of the world economic depression, according to the report of the league of nation's second commission, which is investigating the situation. The commission says that hard times come in cycles, without well definable reasons, and makes no mention of speculation as one of the reasons.

The report proposes a world conference on wheat to study means for using cereals for industrial purposes, thus relieving the predicament of growers and others due to the world overproduction. The proposed conference, to which invitations will be issued soon, will be in two sections. One will deal with European production and the other with overseas production.

Pessimistic Over Situation.

The report views the resent depression as grave, with the increase in unemployment and the aggravation of commerce, and also urged an investigation into the fluctuation of the purchasing power of gold.

"In the case of almost all essential commodities and raw materials," says the report, "there has been a marked increase in production, always in excess of the increased consumption. In the case of wheat, the most recent data suggests unfavorable prospects. The harvest is between 25,000,000 to 35,000,000 quintals less than last year in North America, Europe and north Africa, 30,000,000 quintals more in India, generally favorable conditions in Russia, and estimates of a 55,000,000 quintal increase in the southern hemisphere.

Much Greater Harvest.

"Consequently, the aggregate is a much more abundant harvest than in 1929 and despite the reductions of stocks held in Europe and Argentina, the increase in the total supply available will be much greater than the increase in demand."

Regarding dumping the report says: "Whenever it is difficult to sell at home or abroad because of the customers' lack of means and incentive to purchase, international competition assumes abnormal aspects, owing to the necessity of securing markets, regardless of the cost om employment for workers and plants. Dumping becomes formidable because it is susceptible to being practiced in many branches of manufacture, without maintaining a proportion between the cost of sales and price."

Clash Over Tariffs.

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Conflicting interests of European agricultural countries as against nonEuropean agricultural producers clashed in the league of nations assembly economic committee today.

A division arose during consideration of the resolutions of the Warsaw conference, which wished the league to approve of a plan for preferential tariffs in European states for European agricultural products. Poland and the Danubian countries were ranged against Canada, India, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. The latter group opposed any approval in the economic committee's report of the Warsaw move.

"We do not challenge the right of groups of states to negotiate special tariffs," said Walter Riddell, the Canadian delegate, "but we insist that the league itself shall not be used by any group to further its interests at the expense of another country or group."

Mr. Riddell previously had stated that if the league undertook to execute the Warsaw proposal for European preferential rates, it would be acting to shut out America, Canada, and other overseas countries from free competition in European markets.

Reveal Big Russian Shipments.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 27.—In view of the extensive soviet dumping of grain, oil products and minerals in Europe and America, the following figures, obtained from trustworthy sources, are significant:

During July, 1930, ships from Russian Black sea ports passed Istanbul carrying 65,000 tons of wheat, corn, barley, oats and rye; 370,000 tons of oil products, and 205,000 tons of coal and manganese. During August the figures were, respectively, 355,000 tons, 315,000 tons, and 210,000 tons. During the first twenty-five days of September the figures were 360,000 tons, 235,000 tons, and 135,000 tons.

Germany Boosts Duty.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The official Reichs Anzeiger today published a ministerial order, effective tomorrow, raising the import duty on wheat from 15 to 18½ marks per hundred kilograms.

CODE MESSAGES ON ARMY, NAVY SENT TO RUSSIA

Former Soviet Trade Aid So Testifies.

economic crisis began last December, the Amtorg has been attempting to squeeze American concerns for better credit terms, threatening to transfer the bulk of orders to other countries. This, said Delgass, was a move calculated to force recognition of Russia by the United States under threat of withholding trade.

E. Y. Belitzky, vice president of the All-Russian Textile syndicate, which gave the orders to sell 7,765,000 bushels of grain short in the Chicago market, disclosed in testimony that his instructions came from Chlebtorg, the Russian grain organization in Hamburg which had that amount of wheat to sell and wished to be certain that it would receive as high a price as possible. A "hedge" was therefore arranged, said Belitzky, as conditions indicated that the price of wheat in the world market would probably go down.

Far from wishing to depress the price of wheat in this country, Belitzky stoutly maintained that the short sales, made with circumspection in Chicago, the broadest market in the world, had no effect one way or the other. Had his client wished to depress the price of wheat, the transaction would have been in the narrowest market available where a large transaction would have had a depression and affected other markets.

Hedges Are Explained.

The committee was unable to shake Belitzky's testimony, which was offered after the three brokers who received the orders had described their relation to the All-Russian Textile syndicate. The brokers also insisted that there was no possibility that the amount sold short could have depressed the market and they also explained the purpose of arranging hedges so that prices might be fixed.

Mr. Belitzky revealed that on Sept. 9 an officer of Chlebtorg, soviet grain dealing organization in Hamburg and subsidiary of Export Chleb, parent grain trust in Moscow, had telephoned him to sell 210,000 metric tons, or 7,765,000 bushels, of grain in Chicago. The official explained, according to Mr. Belitzky, that Russia had wheat to sell and could not wait until the other wheat countries offered their supplies, as the prices might go down. Having in mind estimates made in London on Sept. 8 that the world crop would be 268,000,000 bushels more than last year, the Russian grain officials felt it would be dangerous to wait and so decided to hedge in the Chicago market.

The witness admitted frankly that his government had had no intention of delivering the wheat here but that its short sale here merely insured that it had fixed the price of its wheat in Europe. If wheat continued to drop the profit made by his client in buying to cover its short position would balance the loss on the cash wheat sold in Europe. If the market went up there would be a profit on the European sale and a corresponding loss when it came time to fill the short order here.

The witness said he made every effort to prevent it from becoming known that Russia was selling short here. His orders were placed with a limit and not "at the market." Asked why Russia had not sold in the European market the textile official explained that Chicago was the broadest market in the world, that such a transaction would not depress that market as "the bigger the market the better for the man who hedges." He described the operation as "the usual hedging operation that every wheat trader does every day."

Three Brokers Act.

The brokers and the amounts of grain they sold short on the orders of the All-Russian Textile syndicate were J. Harold Bache, of J. S. Bache & Co., 42 Broadway, 2,300,000 bushels; Alvin L. Wachsmann, of Wachsmann & Wassall, 120 Broadway, 3,110,000 bushels, and Adolph E. Norden, of A. Norden & Co., 60 Beaver street, 2,355,000 bushels.

The committee will meet in Chicago Monday and make further inquiry into the Russian wheat transaction.

WHEAT CONTINUES TO DROP.

Neither the barring of the soviet government of Russia as a short seller nor an optimistic statement about wheat consumption by the Farmers National Grain corporation had any effect in preventing a continuance of the downward trend of prices yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

September wheat closed at 74½ cents a bushel, the lowest for this delivery since 1906. All futures were off, the change from the previous close being a loss of 2 to 2⅝ cents. Declines were reported from other markets.

The action of the Board of Trade's directors in complying with the request of Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to bar the soviets was the subject of acrid comment by Samuel P. Arnot, former president of the board, who asserted that the government's request was "manifestly inspired by political expediency and a rather undignified exhibition of hysteria."

3 FACE ILLEGAL ENTRY CHARGE.

La Salle, Ill., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Three Serbians, charged with paying $200 each to gain illegal entry into the United States from Canada, were picked up in Oglesby by immigration officers today. The men, sought for five months, are to be deported. A smuggling syndicate is blamed.

YANK ESCAPES RUSSIA; TELLS LIFE OF HORROR

Bluffs His Way Out of Soviet Clutches.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Sept. 27.—Soviet Russia's story as seen from behind the scenes, was revealed here today in the report of an American tractor specialist, who escaped from Russia after a struggle of months to regain his confiscated passports.

He told a tale of hundreds of American workmen, held prisoners in Russia because police confiscated their passports, thus preventing them from leaving the country. He also charged that confiscated American passports are being altered and used to slip communist agitators from Russia into the United States as returning American citizens.

He also described conditions of famine, filth, widespread immorality and of open boasts by soviet officials that they will wreck American capitalism by flooding world markets with cheap grain and other Russian products "making the poker chips of American capitalism worthless."

Recruited Nineteen Agents.

The man who made this report is Peter Grant Sutherland, 44, native of San Diego, Cal., employed by a soviet agent, who, at a caterpillar tractor factory in San Leandro, Cal., near San Francisco, last year recruited nineteen American tractor experts to go to Russia to instruct soviet workers in operation and repair of thousands of American tractors Russia is buying. According to Sutherland, soviet officials told him the government planned to flood the world with cheap grain and "help wreck American capitalism."

Sutherland sailed from New Orleans today for Puerto Castilla, Spanish Honduras, to take charge of the United Fruit company's fleet of tractors on its banana plantations there.

His Russian revelations were made in a report on his earlier employment to P. D. Parks, assistant general manager of the company.

Hired Through Amtorg.

Following are the outstanding points of his story of his six months' stay in Russia from December, 1929, to May, 1930.

Several hundred skilled American workmen, hired as he was hired through Amtorg, the soviet trading corporation in the United States, are now prisoners in soviet Russia, their passports confiscated by the police on their arrival. Soviet officials, Sutherland claims, tell them they cannot leave Russia without a passport, and pass them from bureau to bureau in a vain search for passports, which have always been sent on to some other soviet official.

Soviet officials, who believed Sutherland was unable to leave Russia because he had no passport, told him that these confiscated American passports, doctored, altered, counterfeited and forged, were being used to slip communist agitators into the United States, "to keep on stirring up trouble until we overthrow your capitalist government at Washington."

The escaped American declared he entered Russia a "husky six footer," weighing 180 pounds, and emerged a half year later weighing 137 pounds.

Cabbage, Soup, and Water.

"My diet in that time was cabbage, cabbage water soup, and sour black bread," he said. "About once a month we were issued two and a half pounds of rice, three-quarters of a pound of China tea, and six salt herring.

"I saw babies three months old sucking at pieces of this sour black bread. Their mothers were too weak from starvation to nurse them. Months apart came three ounce issues of pulped camels' meat mixed with potato starch and fried in sunflower seed oil. I couldn't eat it. I once stood in line for hours for a promised issue of salted raw fish roe smeared on black bread. Russian men trampled down women and children to get to it, and the supply gave out a quarter of the way down the line.

"I discovered marriage in Russia was a matter of signing a register, and divorce a matter of signing another. Each ceremony took all of five minutes. Husbands and wives shifted often almost monthly. If a child was born, the mother named the probable father, and the man paid two dollars a month to a soviet bureau for the child's support.

Moscow and Leningrad, Sutherland said, are the two "shirtfront cities." where visiting delegations and tourists are shown Russia's sunny side.

Nearly 160,000,000 Russians are living in filth and squalor outside of these two cities, he added.

Finds Starving Russians.

His headquarters, where he was in charge of 180 tractors and 400 students, were located on the south coast of Russia, near the foothills of the Ural mountains, about 36 hours by express train from Moscow east toward Turkestan. The district station was Demiyas. The nearest city was Saratov. Arriving here in December, 199, Sutherland declares, he found thousands of Russian starving villagers, their wood fuel supply gone with the temperature far below zero. All wore heaviest sheepskins and slept in them under filthy felt blankets. Nobody bathed. There were no facilities. Sanitation did not exist.

"The leeward sides of house walls were piled with dirt," he said. "The district director's house, best in the district, was made of mud and straw walls."

Drank Melted Snow.

The water supply was polluted, Sutherland said, while worms and wrigglers had to be strained from it. "I drank melted snow," he added.

All land, all buildings were "sovietski"—owned by the state. Unmarried men were allotted one room, married men two, regardless of the size of families. Huddling together for warmth, they slept on the floors of the rooms so they could keep warm. Communities ate at soviet mess halls. Homes had vanished. Churches were used as stables, warehouses, and bootleg joints. Pigs and chickens, kept concealed from soviet officials for personal use, lived and slept with humans.

"Police were everywhere," he continued. "No man knew when he would be reported as anti-soviet, arrested, given a secret trial, be executed and buried in a cellar. Men I knew vanished."

Kept 100 Letters.

Censorship was strict. He claimed he wrote nearly 100 letters, not one reaching America. Only two letters of scores written him reached him.

His health failing, fearing the pestilence he knew would come with the spring, he tried to get back his passports the police had confiscated. Russian assistants laughed at him, he said.

"We're paying you $300 a month to get your brains," his official interpreter told him. "When we have enough of you we'll kick you out. Until then you stay here."

He went to Saratov to demand his passports. They sent him to Polotov. There they sent him to Altata. Soviet officials there told him the passports had been forwarded to some point 500 miles up the line.

"I went back to Demiyas after chasing those passports nearly 5,000 miles and tried American bluff," he said. "My district director was anxious to make an economical showing with superiors at Moscow. I told him I had trained two Russian assistants so they could do my work and save the $300 a month salary I drew. The bluff worked."

They gave him back his passports and sent him to the railhead with a soviet guard, who, he says, tried to assassinate him. Sutherland said he bribed and bluffed the guard after he had missed fire and finally got out by way of Moscow to Warsaw, Poland. Then he returned to America.

FRANCE KEEPS CRIME 'ON RUN'; THERE'S REASON

No Bail, No Pardon, and No Parole.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 27.—There is more crime in America than in Europe because there is more everything in America than in Europe. There is more potential loot available to a criminal in the United States than there is to one over here, and there is more opportunity for an American criminal to enjoy the fruits of his booty in the United States than there is for one here.

"C'est l'audace, c'est l'audace" is how high officials of the Paris prefecture of police described the operations of American gangsters and bandits, and that phrase epitomizes the fundamental difference between people of all ranks in life—honest and dishonest—in Europe, France particularly, and in the United States.

It is audacity that makes a poor country lad determine to rise to wealth and power in the United States. It is an ambition and determination to achieve rank, authority, influence and affluence that is totally lacking in these countries of class dogma.

One Gang in French History.

Rightly directed, the poor American youth attains success in legitimate fields. Wrongly directed he works feverishly at his racket, applying modern inventions and conveniences to aid him, and perfects methods unknown to the petty larceny type of criminals of the continent.

Since the days when gangs were legal—since the times of the feudal system, when the various dukes and princelings were ruling their respective domains through the power and force of their "gangsters" in shining armor and carrying lances and swords—down to date there has been only one record of a band of desperadoes operating in France.

That isolated case was the celebrated Bonnot band, whose short-lived existence in 1912 shocked the country, the continent, and even America. Eight or nine men, affiliated through their nihilistic tendencies formed a group in Paris under the leadership of one Bonnot, and held up a bank messenger.

Chicago Bank Messengers.

Bank messengers in Chicago are identified by sending them on their errands in armored motor cars, with guards carrying automatic pistols and sawed-off shotguns to convoy them.

France, in 1912 and to this day, identifies her bank messengers, all aged employés too old for active work, by making them wear queer shaped cockaded hats as they trudge about the city with their brief cases containing money or receipts for money collected.

Bonnot's men got 18,000 francs [their worth about $3,600] from the bank messenger, then went out to the Fontainebleau high road and held up and seized an automobile—an unheard of event 18 years ago. They drove to Chantilly and held up a bank. Then they drove to Nogent-sur-Marne, a suburb of Paris, and celebrated with vin rouge.

But Prefect of Police Lepine tracked them to Nogent. Any automobile was a curiosity in those days and the stolen car furnished a telltale trail.

A Three Day Battle.

When the French gendarmes rapped at the door of Bonnot's shack and ordered him to surrender "in the name of the republique" a volley rang out from within and two officers fell dead. The police besieged the house for three days. Thousands of rounds were fired by the police and the desperadoes. Several of the bandits were killed. Finally Lepine secured a 75 millimeter gun and in three rounds blew the Bonnot house to bits. That ended gangs in Paris. There has not been one since.

French police are no more efficient than their American colleagues; indeed, in many respects they are not as efficient. They lack some of the conveniences and facilities that Chicago police enjoy. There are only a few motor cars and no motorcycles. There are plenty of bicycles, however.

They must work with the slow, inaccurate telephone and telegraph system, which the government controls. Their communications are limited by scarcity of phones. They do not possess the physical or mental training of American policemen, nor even their average intelligence.

But the Paris police have certain marked advantages in handling their problem over that of the Chicago police.

In the first place, they work hand in glove with what corresponds to the district attorney, and the triangle is completed by the close coördination and coöperation of the police and the "procureur general" with the magistracy.

There is no bail, there are few, extremely few jury trials, there is practically no commutation of prison sentences, there is no parole system, there is no pardon board, and there is no life of ease in the penitentiary.

Crooks Fear French Cells.

Terrible conditions prevailing in French prisons is one of the strongest deterrents to crime here. And it is so strong that mighty few foreign crooks will take a chance of operating here and "doing a rap in a French jug."

Solitary confinement is a usual thing, the cells are poorly lighted, sometimes not at all, with the only illumination coming from the corridor. The food ration is so bad that it is scarcely edible. There is no sanitation, prisoners do not take baths for months at a time. The exercising yard is a joke and many convicts do not leave their cells for weeks at a time.

Guards rule with stern hand. A prisoner is allowed to receive only one letter a month and that from his family or next of kin. He may write only once a month and that letter is censored. He is not allowed to read newspapers.

Radio, baseball games, movies, amateur theatricals! Why, middle class Frenchmen on the outside don't even enjoy those "luxuries."

Politics and crime don't mix. There are no ward leaders as chief lieutenants of municipal councilors or alderman, and therefore there is no place for the strong arm gang of these henchmen.

No Political Allies.

No conseilleur municipal would dare to try to exert any influence to aid a French criminal awaiting trial or to obtain any special dispensations for him while he was doing time. M. Barthelemy, director of the judiciary police of the Seine, said:

"Why, the constituents of any public man or political figure in the country would rise as one man and hurl the canaille from office if he dared to be even identified indirectly with any criminals, or even suspects."

There is extremely little graft in French police. One reason is because the pickings are nil. Such things are done on an extremely small scale. A man running a hand book on the races might slip a French copper a five franc note [20 cents] once a week or so to be allowed to work without trouble.

Saloons, disorderly houses and gambling joints don't have to "kick in" with any protection money, because they are legalized, pay taxes to the state treasury and are entitled to run.

France enjoys another advantage over America, and that is the possession of the most prolific system of stool pigeons in the world. It is estimated that more than 70 per cent of solved crimes are due to the activities of these "indicateurs." The stool pigeons work for nothing. They receive no wages. Their information is extorted by the police in return for winking at their own slight infractions of the law.

Most of the stools are recruited from the huge number of criminals expelled from large cities. Every prison sentence carries with it, besides the time in the cell, a longer period during which the person is forbidden to inhabit either the city in which he committed the felony or any of the dozen large cities in France.

When the convict is freed, he is conducted outside the city limits. But rarely does he remain away from Paris, Marseilles, Bordeaux, Lyons, or Havre, or whatever city banished him for the three years, five years, or ten years.

Instead, he sneaks back to the city. The first time a policeman or detective recognizes him he isn't rearrested.

How "Pigeon" Operate.

"I am going to give you five days to bring me some news," says the gendarme. "Hurry up or I'll throw you in jail."

The freed convict returns to his old haunts, where he is sure to find other crooks congregated. He overhears something about a "coup," learns who pulled it, and comes back to the authorities with the information.

Paris, as well as every other large city, is jammed with such as these, all forbidden to live there, but doing their stuff, living off fallen women, handling little "stickups" in which they don't use force, stealing automobiles, rifling servant girl quarters on the top floors of apartment houses, pilfering tills in little shops.

But they turn up the more dangerous criminals, those who carry guns and use them.

Paris has 17,000 policemen, including 3,000 or 4,000 detectives. The rest of the country outside the capital is divided into seventeen districts, each of which has a mobile brigade composed of 40 to 50 men with a car. Then there are 30,000 odd communes or townships in France and each of these has a brigade of five gendarmes, some mounted, some working afoot or on bicycle.

Rene Cassellari, formerly an officer in the prefecture of police and now operating a private detective agency here, affiliated with Col. Bernard Flood, formerly of the New York detective bureau, believes that the high crime rate in America is due largely to the diversity of races in the United States.

"Our worst crime center is Marseilles" he explained. "The population and characteristics of Marseilles and its population comes closer to resembling similar conditions in Chicago or New York. Marseilles is a great port, there is a constant arrival and departure of boats, with passengers and crews. The local population consists of many foreigners, a large Italian colony, a big Spanish section, many Algerians, Moroccans, Poles, Czecho-Slovakians, Russians, Greeks, Levantines, and Armenians.

"As a result of this lack of homogeneity, Marseilles is the toughest nut in France. There have been frequent police shakeups. However there are no gangsters. They work in groups, it is true, counterfeiters and forgers and even house robbers and shop looters, but after each job they break up and a new combination is formed for the next racket.

Racketeering Is Unknown.

Racketeering is unknown. It has never been attempted anywhere in Europe to my knowledge. French people would not stand for being shaken down like that. One reason is I suppose because the shop keepers and tradesmen don't make enough money. Come easy, go easy, they say. America is a land of big opportunity, big money, big profits, quick turn overs. A man gets a little shop and he starts figuring on being a chain store owner. The Frenchman is not like that, he inherits a little store from his father and never dreams of trying to enlarge it or expand it.

"If any gangster came along and ordered him to kick in with 5 per cent of his profits or even five francs a day for protection, the Frenchman would rather close his place, or get killed defying the bandits, rather than give up a sou."

The Third Degree.

I visited the depot, where suspects and arrested cases are sent for investigation. Police give them the third degree and use leather hose pipes so it won't leave any marks, but they rarely have to use much force.

Morgan Farrel, an American lawyer, practicing here, outlined to me court procedure. When a man is arrested on any charge he appears first before a prosecuting judge, who investigates the police report. He then confers with the "procureur de la republique," or district attorney, and advises him of his findings. The judge d'instruction can keep a person imprisoned for a year and a day while investigating his case. With police coöperation and a special corps of detectives he can even keep him incarcerated even longer by court procedure.

If the investigations reveal that the man is probably guilty the prosecuting judge and the procureur discuss whether it is advisable for him to be tried by the Correctionel court or the Assize court. Theoretically what corresponds to misdemeanors go before the former, where three judges preside, and felonies before the latter with a judge and jury.

But in criminal cases the authorities prefer not to take chances on sympathetic juries and usually railroad these cases into Correctionel court, where the triumvirate of judges in red robes pass judgment. The prisoner may protest and take exception, insisting on his right to be tried in the Assize court by a jury, but the three Correctionel court judges may and usually do, state they are competent. If found guilty and he appeals, and the upper court, the Court of Cassation, affirms the decision of the lower court, his sentence is made heavier on the ground that he should be further punished because he has wasted the funds and time of the state. A sentence of three years by the Correctionel court is generally increased to about five years by the upper court, if it sustains the lower one and it nearly always does.

FRENCH TO SAY 'NO' TO BRITISH PLEA FOR PAR VALUE ON WAR BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The treasury has information that the French reply to the demand of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, that French war bonds sold to Great Britain during the war at sterling prices be redeemed at sterling instead of four cent francs, is on the way and will be received early next week.

It is reported to be a flat refusal, accompanied by a long argument that British investors must take their gruel the same as the French, and, anyway, the money was spent by the gallant French in saving Great Britain from the Germans.

CHILDREN JAM HALL TO BEGIN STUDY OF ART

500 from County Schools Take Up Course.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

"Saturday off," usually reserved during winter school months for the opportunities of juvenile life that include vacant lot baseball, top spinning, and doll tea parties, found itself dedicated yesterday to Chicago's future as the art center of the world. Into the halls of the Chicago Art Institute, as seriously as might their elders engaged in the same profession and as eagerly, trouped 500 embryo artists under 16 years of age from Cook county's grammar schools. They had been selected by their school principals and art instructors as pupils of promising artistic ability to attend the fall art lectures and workshop criticisms given by Dudley Crafts Watson, lecturer for the James Nelson Raymond lecture fund. This was founded by Mrs. Anna Louise Raymond in 1926.

Catch Spirit of Culture.

Fullerton hall was crowded, the overflow of children standing. No loud whispering or inattention disturbed the speaker as he encouraged them to go out and do better than the work of the masters whose pictures he threw upon the screen. It was apparent that the half thousand grammar grade pupils had caught unconsciously the significance of that thing the grownups call culture. They understood that art is more than photography and that originality and imagination are of rare value.

"Some of you carry papers and work to put yourself through school," Mr. Watson told the children. "Others of you work at home, but you can find time to do the art problems assigned you. The finest play in the world is done in enthusiasm.

"Be original, creative artists. Come here and find out how it is done, from the masters, and then do it yourself. See the pictures here on the screen and go home and do better. Don't copy. Don't paint just what you see. Leave that for the camera. You are to be an emotional artist, to use your imagination.

Urges Jazz and Speed.

"We have things these days that old masters did not have. They had no such thing as electricity, no motion picture shows, no airplanes, no mammoth machinery, no jazz. The more you put jazz and speed into the pictures you will paint or draw this winter, the better I will like them."

Then Mr. Watson turned to the screen, asked that the lights be turned out, and while a series of autumn scenes was reproduced in color, called attention to the qualities that make a picture famous and the errors the artist may have let pass.

"This harvest scene was done in the fields of France. It shows the sunlight streaming over a great load of straw and the fields," he began. "The oxen are lumbering animals, but they draw a larger load than horses can draw. But you notice there are three of four elements of interest which detracts from the single unit or theme the picture should convey."

Explains Other Paintings.

Mr. Watson explained a painting of the wind, the beauty of a boy lazily daydreaming on a hill top, the loneliness of a Puritan maid with her arms outstretched toward a ship sailing away toward England, the soft autumnal colors in Millet's "The Gleaners"; the "rhythm of Minnesota" as painted in a mural, the three-four time of a cubist painting, and lastly George Inness' "Autumn, the Red Oak," standing against an autumn sky with the shadows of winter gathered around.

The grade school group is one of three groups benefiting from the fund. On Saturdays at 1:30 a course is given for the children of members, and on Monday at 4 p. m. is a class for pupils selected from the high schools. The registration in each class approaches 800.

Millions in Cash Moved Through Loop Streets

Loading money and securities on trucks at the Guardian National bank, Monroe and Dearborn streets, yesterday for transportation to Union Bank of Chicago. The institutions have consolidated. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Police on Guard

Four armored trucks bearing $5,000,000 in securities and currency from the Guardian National bank, 105 South Dearborn street to the Union Bank of Chicago, 25 North Dearborn street, yesterday proceeded down a lane formed by more than 50 policemen armed with riot and machine guns. The arrival of the valuable cargo completed task of consolidating the two institutions, which will be headed by Daniel Harkin.

The combined institutions have a capital of $1,300,000, a surplus of $1,000,000, undivided profits of $300,000, and total deposits of approximately $11,000,000. The name of the Union bank will be retained.

British Scholars to Visit Chicago on Library Tour

The Bodleian library commission, comprised of distinguished English scholars, was expected to arrive in Chicago today to inspect the library system of the University of Chicago. The commission was brought to the United States by the Rockefeller Foundation to make a library survey and prepare plans for the rebuilding of the famous Bodleian library of Oxford. Members of the commission are Sir Henry A. Miers, chairman; Sir Frederic G. Kenyon, Sir Edmund K. Chambers, George N. Clark, Henry R. F. Harrod, and Kenneth Sissam.

Second Fire in Week Damages Park Bathhouse

The second fire in a week was discovered yesterday in the children's bath house at the Fullerton avenue beach and extinguished with a loss estimated at $500 by Lieut. Samuel Pinkus of the Lincoln park police. The flames, believed to have started from defective wiring, destroyed about 40 lockers.

GIRL BICYCLIST DIES OF INJURIES.

Injuries suffered on Aug. 26 when she lost control of her bicycle and crashed in the side of an Illinois Central railroad train near her home caused the death yesterday of Helen Becker, 9 years old, 7130 Merrill avenue.

Albanian Bishop to Hold Services in Chicago Today

Bishop F. Noni, former premier of Albania, arrived in Chicago yesterday to hold the ceremony of the Albanian church for the first time in America in Albanian. The ceremony will take place in the Russian Orthodox church, 1121 North Leavitt street, at 11:30 a. m. today. Bishop Noni, a Harvard graduate, is making a tour of the United States in the interest of the Albanian church.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

John Kelley, 65 years old, 1111 South Whipple street, a janitor, died at the county hospital today of injuries received Thursday when he fell down a flight of stairs.

ILLINOIS TAKES LEAD IN PLANS TO PLANT TREES

Will Honor Washington on Bicentennial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Illinois has taken the lead in tree planting plans in honor of the bicentennial of George Washington, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, said today in announcing that every school in the state has been urged to set out trees as memorials to the first President.

Mr. Pack made public a telegram he has received from Gov. Louis L. Emmerson stating that Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair is taking the lead in proposing a Washington memorial tree beneath every American flag in each school in Illinois. Mr. Pack replied to the governor and Mr. Blair, thanking them for their coöperation.

The tree association is directing the tree planting phase of the program of the George Washington bicentennial commission which is promoting a nation wide Washington anniversary celebration in 1932.

Women's Clubs Coöperate.

On Oct. 18 Gov. Pollard of Virginia, Mr. Pack and the Wakefield Memorial association will plant the first state tree in the capitol grounds at Richmond. The school teachers convention of Wisconsin meeting at Eau Claire next week will be presented with 300 tree planting books. The women's clubs of Michigan, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Kansas are putting on statewide tree planting plans. The idea of the association is to get ten million trees planted between now and Feb. 22, 1932, and have them all dedicated on that date.

The Lions club of Ada, Okla., has informed the tree association, it will guarantee 5,000 trees in and near that city. Masons all over the country are asking for tree planting instruction and making plans for all the way from one tree to memorial groves.

Other organizations coöperating in the tree planting program include the Rotary International, Knights of Columbus, S. Y. W. C., and S. D. A. R.

Goal Is Ten Millions.

"From the outlook now with the fine coöperation of such plans as that of Illinois," said Mr. Pack, "we will register more than ten million trees because cities like Grand Rapids are putting under way plans for a town forest in which the youth of the city will have a share in planting. There is hardly a municipality in the country that will not find a town forest a great asset."

COUPLE ROBBED IN AUTO.

Miss Esther Dane, 20 years old, and her escort, Miguel Weimer Jr., 900 Dakin street, were robbed by a bandit as they sat in an automobile in front of her home, 4101 Nelson street, Friday night. Miss Dane lost $10 and Weimer lost $15 and a watch.

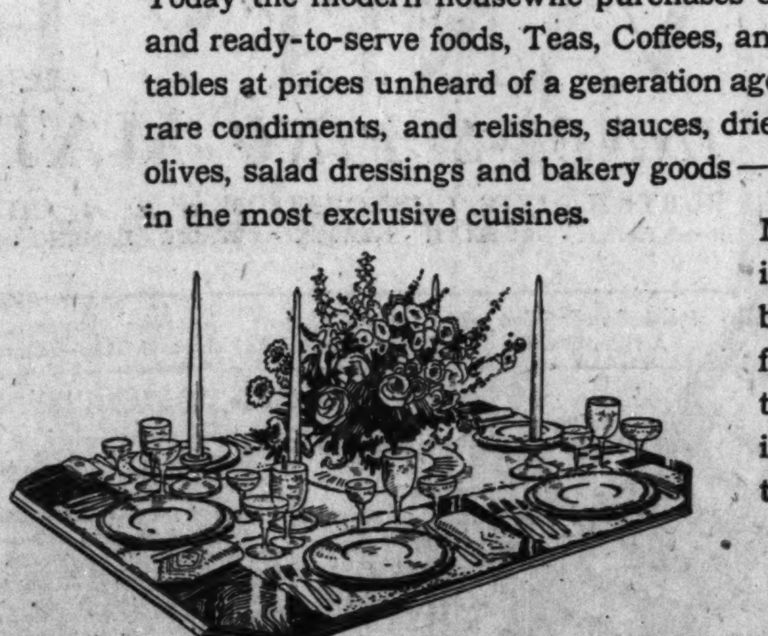
These are the "Good Old Days" for FOODS

Remember, oh so long ago, when sweethearts whirled through the park on the bicycle built for two; when temperamental horse-cars clattered townward at breakneck speed; when dainty ankles peered out so daringly from the folds of taffeta petticoats? Still, we respect them as "the good old days," when nickels looked as big as dollars, and bought-well-not quite so much.

MODERN FOOD PRICES have reached unparalleled "lows" through the perfection of economic distributing units and superior producing methods, while food-quality and healthfulness has increased many fold. We may well call 1930 "the Good Old Days" for foods.

The National Tea Company was born at the close of the nineteenth century. As a youngster it watched prosperity come and go, growing in the firm belief that the economical distribution of dependable quality groceries would win the confidence of the consuming public. National Tea Co's. growth is the expression of this confidence.

Today the modern housewife purchases canned Fruits, Vegetables, and ready-to-serve foods, Teas, Coffees, and Fresh Fruits and Vegetables at prices unheard of a generation ago. She finds she can afford rare condiments, and relishes, sauces, dried fruits, preserved fruits, olives, salad dressings and bakery goods — all found years ago only in the most exclusive cuisines.



National Tea Co's. economical methods of food distribution have made it possible for those of moderate means to enjoy food luxuries which in past were available only to the rich.

GROVES, MISSING INDIANA BANKER, RETURNS HOME

Blames Disappearance on Amnesia.

Hazel K. Groves, treasurer of Lake county, Ind., and president of an East Chicago bank, who had been missing for a week, was back in his home at 4725 Northcote avenue, East Chicago, yesterday. He explained his absence, which resulted in the closing of his bank and scrutiny of the accounts of his office, by saying that he had been the victim of amnesia and that his memory had returned to him on Friday in Peoria.

It was a happy homecoming for Groves. His family was overjoyed at his return after a week's search by authorities of two states since his disappearance. Hundreds of friends, who had denied insinuations that he had reason to disappear, called at the home to greet him.

Financial Affairs Sound.

The affairs of Groves' bank, the American State of East Chicago, were found to be sound. Records of the county treasurer's office were discovered to be in perfect condition. State's Attorney Oliver Starr and Sheriff Joseph B. Kyle of Lake county were among the first to offer congratulations. Both scoffed at rumors that Groves was to be questioned. They said that nothing had been found in his accounts to warrant action at any time and that their visit was one of friendship.

Groves vanished at 9:30 on the morning of Sept. 19. He had called at the bank and said that he was leaving for his treasurer's office in Crown Point. On his way he had driven to the Bohemian, a resort at Cedar lake.

"I am unable to remember anything since I left East Chicago a week ago," Groves said yesterday at his home. "On Friday I found that I was in a hotel in Peoria. Everything previous to Friday since I left East Chicago is a blank. I believe, although I am not sure, that I was in Peoria all that time.

Telephones to His Brother.

"When I realized where I was, I called my brother, Harry, at Springfield. He drove up to meet me. In Peoria we got in touch with Walter Schrage, president of the East Chicago State bank, who met us at Homewood and we all returned to East Chicago.

"I cannot tell how happy I am to be back. Nor can I express my gratitude to the friends who stood by me during a trying time. It is refreshing to note that an esteem of thirty years cannot be torn down by a week of rumors."

Here Mr. Groves smiled at his family and a group of friends. He said that his physician had warned him to rest and not attempt to recall his experiences for several days. Later in the week he will proceed with negotiations to merge his bank with that of Schrage. The negotiations were begun before his disappearance. His bank may be opened tomorrow.

During the day Mr. Groves visited the bank and his office at Crown Point. He is to consult with John Meyers, state bank examiner, who conducted the audit of the bank's books, regarding their condition. It is understood that the bank is financially sound, although a few technical irregularities in its operations were found.

PARADE TO MARK CHICAGO DAY ON OCTOBER 9TH

Chicago day will be celebrated on Oct. 9 with a large parade. Many floats will depict the achievements and growth of the city.

Plans of the municipal government for the occasion will be outlined tomorrow at a noonday meeting with a group of Chicago's leading contractors and builders. Mayor William Hale Thompson will preside and Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, will talk. Tuesday a committee of insurance men will map a program.

William Randolph Hearst will be the guest of the city Oct. 9, reviewing the parade, and later occupying a seat with the mayor at Soldiers' field.

Col. Paul Hutton Takes Army Medical Post Here

Col. Paul C. Hutton of the army medical corps assumed his new post as surgeon of the 6th corps area here yesterday. He is on the staff of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the area, and succeeds Col. John L. Shepard, who retired last month. Col. Hutton will be in charge of all medical matters of the army in Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, and will also have supervision of officers in training in the medical reserve of those states.

Letter received by members of the Huckeby family of Jacksonville, Ill.

The letter was sent by Mr. Ewert's mother in the course of a round-the-world trip. She spent two months in China before going to Vladivostok for the trans-Siberian journey to Russia.

Tientsin is situated in the province of Chi-li, 70 miles southeast of Peiping. It is the port of Peiping, with which it is connected by rail. One of the leading ports of China, it is a great emporium of internal trade.

The city, surrounded by a lofty wall with towers, presents a mean appearance with its great expanse of low houses. But the foreign quarter, outside the city proper, is well built and provided with the appurtenances of occidental civilization.

Tientsin figured prominently in the hostilities between the foreign powers and the Chinese in 1900. Last June it occupied the spotlight again when, in a customs crisis, the Nationalist government officially closed the port, leaving import and export business deadlocked, with huge quantities of goods strewn all over the wharves.

Scarcely noticeable at first —loss of sleep from

takes a toll in youthful charm

New inner-spring mattress with "COBWEB" construction helps you get utmost relaxation from your sleep!

OF course a few nights of disturbed sleep don't seem to make much difference. But Night Nerves, the inability to get refreshing sleep night after night, does have a serious effect on general health. This condition, while in most cases easily corrected, is usually caused by no more than a poorly constructed, faultily designed mattress.

You quickly recognize the type—bumpy, with sagging hollows and jutting surfaces which simply won't let you get the kind of sleep you need to keep young and fit in appearance.

New Vanity Fair inner-spring mattress sure relief

Thousands of people—just like you—have found the unusual new Vanity Fair inner-spring mattress a great relief. The reason for Vanity Fair's restfulness is the "COBWEB" construction—the crowning achievement of experienced engineers.

Suppose you stripped off the fine cover of your Vanity Fair and burrowed down deep beneath the thick cushioning layers of fine cotton felt . . . you would come to this new spring principle.

You would see a large number of cushioning springs joined to each other like a great cobweb. This exclusive construction is why the Vanity Fair adjusts itself to your individual weight!

No wonder you are supported firmly but gently —as if by air. No wonder muscles and limbs relax urging sound sleep. There can be no sagging, no hammocking, as in cheaper inner-spring mattresses. Once you sleep on Vanity Fair you awake charged with new energy, new pep and eagerness.

Lighter weight—new colors— new workmanship

Because every ounce of excess weight has been eliminated due to the "COBWEB" construction, Vanity Fair is a full 15 to 20 pounds lighter than the usual inner-spring mattress. Any woman can turn it easily.

A noted designer created a special new fabric exclusively for Vanity Fair. It is exquisitely decorated in a beautiful pattern suggestive of the modern mode. Three new shades, Beige, Orchid or Jade Green.

Vanity Fair's unrivaled workmanship will delight you. Sides are "biscuit" quilted, edges of the roll type and smartly taped. Special Air Windows are placed on the sides to assure perfect ventilation inside.

A new conception of durability— guaranteed

Severest laboratory tests equal to many years of normal wear prove Vanity Fair 50% more durable. It is fully guaranteed by the maker—an established firm in the fine mattress business for more than 30 years.

Unusually low price

Vanity Fair was built to sell for $42.50 but, due to refined manufacturing methods, it also reflects the downward trend of commodity prices and is offered at the exceptionally attractive figure of $35.75. See price list for pillow and box spring price reductions.

	Inner-Spring Mattress	Box Spring	Pillows
Vanity Fair	$35.75	$37.75 (was $42.50)	$17.50 per pair (was $22.50)
Luxease	29.75	29.75	13.00 per pair
Superease	22.50	27.50	8.00 per pair

Vio Ré-Vitalized Cotton Felt Mattress, $15.00.

The Burton Perfect Sleeping Units, which include mattress, box spring and pillows, are designed to go "hand in glove" with each other for comfort and beauty. Together they are the most fashionable bedroom ensemble.

SOMETHING ABOUT EDITORIALS.

The Rev. Mr. Hopkins of Highland Park suggests a subject in a letter published in the Voice of the People on this page. He and others, judging from other comment, believe that the readers have a right to the names of writers of editorials and would be the better for it. The shortest answer is that a signed editorial would not be an editorial. It would be a signed article. There are many in the newspaper, both of general and special character, of news and opinion. The use of the name is mainly to indicate a special assignment, a particular training or familiarity or expertness, as in the case of Dr. Evans in public health, John Steele in British affairs of state, and Westbrook Pegler in sports.

Anonymity in writing has had various reasons at various times. The principal considerations for it have been fear, dignity, and irresponsibility. None of these accounts for unsigned editorials, as can be explained later. Byron trifled with the standards of his caste when he wrote poetry. Its irresistible fascination helped to excuse him, but he did not dare take money from his publisher. He could not have lived that down. Scott was Waverley. Even the modest Bronte sisters wrote anonymously. Dickens and Thackeray began with pen names. Shakespeare was a low class Englishman with no social reputation to lose. The theory that he was the front for Bacon assumes that the aristocrat could not afford to be a play writer. Sir Philip Sidney, the most gallant of the brave, tried to break down the prejudice and did not succeed.

Aristocracy's position is plain. Attainments resting upon individual ability are contemptible. They must be or there is no aristocracy by birth. Ability in war is accepted and excepted because the heaviest mailed fist eventually made aristocracy. Distinction which might be derived from the mind was most contemptible because it was most dangerous. Consequently, in the Norman-Saxon culture particularly, mental achievements, with the possible exception of ecclesiastical, were degraded. (Even the family clergyman in the Anglican establishment under the Stuarts and the Georges was little above a menial.)

Surgeons were barbers, actors were outcasts, writers were brawlers and rogues, scientists were obscure monks or school recluses, musicians were dependents, and artists were patronized because portraiture meant perpetuation of the aristocratic ego. Writers occasionally crept under that mantle of protection. It is plain why dignity required anonymity when a person of any consequence felt an irresistible urge toward the ink well.

Fear was an explicable reason. Aristocracy was not to be criticized. Printing presses were licensed. Reports of parliament were forbidden. The freedom of the press was freedom to print at the risk of liberty. The seven bishops were brought to trial for seditious libel because they petitioned James II. not to break the law. John Wilkes used his own name against George III. and skipped hastily to foreign parts; returning, he was brought to trial for sedition. "Junius" made his invective safe by staying successfully under cover.

When public questions were foremost in the American colonies the claims of dignity and the counsels of fear had worn out some of their effects on public writing, and yet there was a residue of each, and Hamilton, Sam Adams, Jefferson, John Marshall, and innumerable distinguished and undistinguished pamphleteers wrote anonymously. Sam Adams must have had a hundred names.

Irresponsibility is always a charm for a wanton pen, and time probably will not dim its attractions for mean people who love the mischief which malice can make without accountability.

These are some of the considerations which have given anonymous writing so great a place in literature and public affairs. Authorship has been revealed in the most distinguished cases eventually, either by discovery or by self-identification when success removed the first scruples. The precedents are imposing, but they do not contain the reason for unsigned editorial writing. Here there is no evasion of responsibility, but merely recognition of the complexity of the authorship. The larger newspapers are not of recent establishment. They contain generations of work, represented by straight descent or by combinations retaining something of the older days.

There have not been many editors who were highly regarded in their day who have not left something of their ideas to their successors. They may be imponderable or specific, but a man of force does not wash out of the institution continuing after him. It is not inevitable, but it is probable, that the standards of a paper will have received a valuation and its ideas a direction which will have influence. That is one factor in an editorial.

In the arrival at comment and expression in matters which the newspaper may consider important there is seldom one unmodified opinion. That of the owner, publisher, or editor may be paramount, but it generally is influenced by the opinion of subordinates. What results is the expression of the paper as an institution serving the interests of a community, directed particularly to that part of the community which has shown its interest in that newspaper by buying it.

The editorial expression of a responsible newspaper is not the work of one man, although the writing of it may be. It reflects many things other than his personality, and this held good even in the case of such individualistic writing editors as Henry Watterson of recent activity and of Greeley, Dana, Medill, and others of early days. When the personality of the writer overbalanced that of his institution it was then "Greeley says" and not "the Tribune says." The difference is essential. On one side there is a man in public affairs; on the other an institution which may survive the lives of several men successively.

Public discussion is full of personal, individual statements. They probably make up the bulk of it. Many of them are irrelevant to any material responsibility. The pleasure or displeasure of the hearers may be inconsequential to the speaker or writer. In the course of time newspaper opinion is held accountable by the body which makes its existence possible, its readers. They take it or they leave it. They make it or they destroy it. There is no irresponsibility in the unsigned editorial, either in or outside of law.

Mr. Hopkins mentioned the newspaper act requiring acknowledgment of editorship and financial backing. That law has no penalty for violation and consequently in many cases it does not produce what it is apparently intended to show, particularly as to the financial interests. Mr. Hopkins, as a reader of THE TRIBUNE, finds the law obeyed exactly. He knows who owns THE TRIBUNE and who is responsible for it. A signed editorial could not tell him any more, and, for the reasons for which an explanation has been attempted, it would cease to be an editorial.

WHERE IS THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE?

Among the various alarms that subject Englishmen to strange tremors and untimely sweats none is more potent than the fear of lingual decadence and the vulgar flood of Americanism over the so-called speech of kings. The talkies and the tourists, the jazz songs and the jokes and slang will emigrate, it seems, from those western shores that Columbus unfortunately discovered, and Englishmen, who should know better, absorb them all too joyfully. As a purist and an Englishman, the inhabitant of the rainy isles resents their coarse intrusion; as a participant in the dynamic pleasures of the day, in the sports, the talkies, the dancing, motoring, and other high speed occupations, he picks them up with much avidity. England, the critic says, is talking more and more American, and that is too bad.

Where the English language now resides is something of a question, and, though the critic is alarmed over its decline, he finds it hard to say just what the English language is. Once it was the language of the southern counties, always with exceptions; again it was the tongue of London, excluding, of course, the cockney; again it was the Oxford jargon; and some critics claim that the language of the schools, of Eton, Harrow, Rugby, and the like, is the authentic English tongue. There is Yorkshire English and southern English, peasant and townie English, all firmly set and so far differentiated that Englishmen in different counties may well have difficulty in understanding what the other says. These, to the Englishman, are quaint diversities that enrich the language, though the cockney or the Oxford lingoes sound to Americans far more like barbarous distortions and affectations. The English variants are taken with a mellow tolerance, but where Americans have changed the speech the matter becomes serious, if not outrageous barbarism and vulgarity. "Trowbridge," says the London Times, may be "Truebridge," for example, "Troubridge," "Trawbridge," or otherwise, as "Chicago" here may be "Chicawgo," "Chicahgo," or "can" may be "cawn," "cahn," "cain"; but English variants are interesting to the usual critic's prejudice, while American are bad.

The English language, as a fact, is nowhere at all unless it be within the various modes and variations used by English speaking people, and injuring such a thing is hard. It is a concrete, living language, and efforts to abstract and fix its character do more harm than good. The language of the dominating groups of English speaking people would seem to be the only standard that can be made available. On this basis, it may be, the language of the British isles will be in time a set of quaint and curious dialects on the American periphery.

Editorial of the Day

A LARGE UTOPIA.

[Manchester (England) Guardian.]

Prof. W. Lutoslawski, in his address to the congress of philosophy last week, gave a picture of the perfect political system as he conceived it. The philosophers have always loved Utopias, and Prof. Lutoslawski's Utopia was entirely in the tradition of the Republic and the New Atlantis and Erewhon. It assumed as man's salvation a care for inward values so great as to bring to an end all that preoccupation with material prosperity which now wastes the lives of individuals and of nations. The philosophers have in most cases been agreed that human greatness and happiness can only be achieved to the full in this way. For only so can man's native restlessness and curiosity find a complete outlet without involving him in the waste and desolation of rivalries and imperial ambitions. Prof. Lutoslawski's Utopia is peculiar only because it is conceived in terms of great units. He does not envisage any little snug community or colony, but embraces all humanity, divided into four or five groups, each existing by virtue of its sense of an aim or mission of achieving a certain significance in the world's history. Material links are thus transformed into spiritual links, and patriotism becomes not an allegiance to a particular community, but to a particular ideal. In a world of this kind there could be no war, because there could be no rivalry in the bad sense—no itch to dominate or extend boundaries; there could be no unemployment, because work as we think of it now would be the least of man's activities, and spiritual and intellectual and art productions would be all his preoccupation. The advantages of all Utopias are, indeed, obvious enough. The trouble is to translate them into realities. And here civilization after civilization has failed, each being forced to content itself with a Utopia in heaven. Yet, since Utopia has been conceived, it must some day come.

AMERICAN HEROES

JOHN MARSHALL

A Brief Review of His Contribution to Our Country.

(The articles of which the following is the nineteenth are intended as five minute sketches of early Americans of particular achievement and distinction, each flashed briefly against the background of the times and conditions in which the subject made his contribution to the nation. Their names may be well or may be little known now to the generation which has inherited the benefits of wise, laborious, and, in many instances, heroic work.)

(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

JOHN MARSHALL was the most varied character of the revolution and the early republic. His life had the largest span and his public achievements the widest range. As a boy he was on the frontier, from which he derived some qualities. Its limitations seem to have in general two chains of consequences, one tending to ignorance, crudity and sloth, enlivened in better instances by courage and endurance; the other, with fewer exhibits to show, developing minds of notable originality and power. Marshall was one illustration, Lincoln another.

Marshall was a soldier, foreign envoy, state maker, and jurist, the great chief justice of the United States Supreme court. No other great man of his times had such a spread of experience and service. Jefferson, Mason, Morris, Franklin, and Adams were not soldiers. Hamilton was soldier, statesman, and financier. Many of the men who sat in constitutional conventions had been soldiers. Many more had not been. Many soldiers had little other than a military part in the great era. If Marshall had been only a soldier he might have been admirable, but he would not have been notable, and nevertheless his military experience had decisive influence on his subsequent thought and philosophy of government. The lack of such service had an equal influence on Jefferson, whose moral courage was certain enough, but whose temperament was antipathetical to the physical terms of war. He might have forced himself to endure them, but it was his nature to avoid them.

An intelligent man could not have seen at close contact and at his own peril the conduct of the war for independence without having his ideas fixed for a responsible government able to act in the hazards to which its citizens might be exposed. The soldiers suffered too much to have any respect for such a loose and incapable government as that provided first by the amorphous Continental congress and then by the congress under the articles of confederation. The soldiers were realists when, later, the form of the union was to be determined. Washington, Hamilton, and Marshall were for authority and competence. As Federalists it was inevitable that they should meet Jefferson and his followers head on. It was Marshall who lived to carry the conflict to the compromises and adjustments which were to endure.

John Marshall's father was Col. Thomas Marshall of Westmoreland county, Va., a soldier in the French and Indian war and afterward his son's colonel in the revolution. Thomas Marshall married Mary Keith [Randolph blood] and moved to sparsely settled Fauquier county, where the limitations were those of the frontier.

When it was determined that John was to be a lawyer his father gave him a copy of Blackstone's Commentaries. This reading, with three months of lectures at William and Mary college under George Wythe, was his preparation for what was to make him famous.

Before he came of age [he was born Sept. 24, 1755, and died July 6, 1835] he went to war with his father. Marshall said he entered the army as a Virginian and left it as an American. The young man won recognition for courage at the battle of Great Bridge and put himself in line for promotion. In 1776 he was made a lieutenant in the Eleventh Virginia and a captain in 1777. The war had three fields, northern, central, and southern. Washington's was the central and Marshall was with him, his military experience culminating at Monmouth, a battle which may be taken as the classic example of how the Americans should not have fought their war.

Clinton was moving his base from Philadelphia to New York and took the overland way instead of the sea, fearing the French fleet. His supply wagons made a train miles long in the march out of Pennsylvania through New Jersey. It is not believable that he could have reached the safety of the New Jersey highlands with 3,000 Sioux Indians on his flank. Three thousand of Morgan's riflemen, campaigning as they would have on the frontier, would certainly have had his supply train and if he had saved his troops they would have been decimated and demoralized. An equal number of Marion's or Sumter's mounted riflemen or of the mountain riflemen, who picketed their horses and stormed King's mountain, would have made Clinton's escape at the best a matter of salvage.

Monmouth was fought on British terms, the Americans using their half knowledge of tactics taught by Von Steuben against an enemy professionally trained. At the close of a day in which heat was even worse than gunfire, the Americans had done well to sleep on the field, but the British could continue their retreat, regiments unbroken, supplies intact. It was Marshall's last big military experience, as indeed, with the exception of Yorktown, it was Washington's. In 1780 Marshall was at William and Mary college for lectures and in 1781 he was admitted to practice in Fauquier county. His marriage to Mary Ambler gave him an ideal home [in Richmond, where he was to be buried].

He appears in the beginning of his real greatness as a member of the constitutional convention, a Nationalist, out of his soldier experience, and, as one, fighting Jefferson to get a central government which could govern. Virginia's acceptance of such a government was Marshall's work. His service to the nation thus created took the form of a diversion when he was sent abroad, with Pinckney and Gerry as associates, to get satisfaction from the French directorate for French spoliation of American shipping. His shrewd and resolute progress through the corrupting intrigues of Talleyrand came to a climax when proof of the French demand for bribes was laid before the United States in the X. Y. Z. letters. It ruined French influence in American politics.

Marshall was secretary of state in 1800 and John Adams made him chief justice of the Supreme court as the Federalists surrendered the presidency to Jefferson and the Democrats. Jefferson and Marshall, old enemies in doctrine, eyed each other from their separate heights, resolutely and distrustfully. Out of a conflict of executive and legislative act and judicial decision the constitution gathered its meaning and the union its substance.

Marshall's first great decision had a curious background. Adams' last act as President was to make as many appointments as he could. Among them were some trivial notary public places the certificates for which Marshall, closing his desk as secretary of state, forgot to mail. When they did go out Jefferson refused to acknowledge them. A test case was brought and the Democrats smiled. Their position against the court seemed impregnable. If it upheld the validity of the questionable appointments the administration would ignore the decision. The court had no means of enforcing an opinion against the executive and as a superior authority it would be exploded at the very beginning.

Marshall was too deep for that. He had his objective in another direction, an objective of greater import and unperceived by others. He declared the law of the appointments unconstitutional, established the precedent that an act of congress was subject to the decision of the federal court. The appointments were void, for reasons which Jefferson denied but could not combat.

Marshall the jurist will not submit to abbreviation. The Federalists perished for their political sins, but their greatest legal genius, purified of their errors, sat on the Supreme bench until 1835, making organic law by interpretation and making a nation with it, one of the greatest natural prodigies in the world of jurisprudence.

HELPING PORTO RICANS.

TRYING to improve the health of the Porto Rican has become the vogue. Columbia university has established a school of tropical medicine there and to this school travel scientists from many parts of continental America to teach things and to learn more.

In the first place, the island is terribly overcrowded and there is none of the inventiveness nor organized industrialism necessary for high standards of living when density of population is great. Therefore disease and death rates are high and the people are in need of help. Lacking the effort to teach them economics, increased productiveness, and greater earning power, we are trying to teach them how to eat and how to live generally.

In the second place, there are lessons to be learned in Porto Rico which can be made use of elsewhere. Drs. Cook and Rivera report on the Porto Rican diet and make some suggestions for its betterment. This diet consists largely of rice and beans. The rice is polished. Rice is an energy food. One dollar buys a large amount of food values in the shape of rice. It is a starch food, stable, easily marketed, easily kept, easily prepared, palatable, and easily digested. But it is short in fat, protein, and minerals.

To supply these shortcomings the Porto Rican eats a mixture of beans and rice. Beans supply protein, fat, minerals, and vitamins. As served, they contain the germ as well as the starchy part and this is the source of the vitamins and much of the fat, proteins, and mineral.

At that, Drs. Cook and Rivera found the Porto Rican diet in need of great improvement. If the beans were cooked with more fat meat and the combination were served with gravy, butter, oil or other grease it would be improved. The Porto Ricans do not eat enough greens and salads. They need to eat more green and yellow plants. The investigators found several such plants of edible quality in Porto Rico, but they were not eaten to any great extent.

In their experimentation it was found that cod liver oil was a better source of vitamins than was sunlight. In fact, while sunlight supplied vitamin D, it did not supply vitamin A nor minerals, and these are needed.

TRY HARDGROVE TREATMENT.

E. G. writes: I have been suffering from Vincent's angina for nearly a year. I have lost several teeth and must lose the remainder. My gums are inflamed. It has extended to my tongue and is now involving my throat. My docotor has used sulpharsphenamine. It did no good. Neither did peroxide. I am 21 years old. What can I do?

REPLY.

Ask your physician or dentist to try the Hardgrove treatment. He applies a 20 per cent solution of chromic acid in water. Immediately thereafter he applies peroxide of hydrogen to the spots to which the chromic acid was touched. Then he rinses the mouth with the peroxide. A very few treatments suffice to cure most cases.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

M. E. C. writes: Would you explain the symptoms of infantile paralysis in children?

Does it follow colitis?

Does it prove fatal in a very short time by a child being thrown into convulsions?

REPLY.

If a child has colitis and a few days later symptoms of paralysis develop, the probability is that the case was one of infantile paralysis from the beginning. Infantile paralysis generally starts with bowel trouble. Most of the cases never go on to the second, or paralytic, stage.

Convulsions is an occasional symptom. Some cases terminate fatally in a few days or less, but that is not the rule.

THE CAUSE OF SHINGLES.

D. A. R. writes: What is the cause of shingles? I have been told by a doctor that it is a nervous disease.

REPLY.

The scientific name is herpes. It belongs in the same class with cold sores and fever blisters. It is the result of an infection of nerve roots with something—either a virus or a coccus.

Also, in case the agents bring some tenants who are not suitable, would we be obliged to pay the agents even if we did not take them? K. O.

It could be agreed either way. We suggest that you see that these points are expressly covered.

The bureau of streets is cognizant of conditions and appreciates the necessity for "Stop and Go" signals at 76th and Halsted streets, but because of the defeat of the bond issue for the installation of these signals at a recent election we are without funds to erect same.

OTHER CITIES AREN'T AS INTERESTED IN CHICAGO'S CRIME AS THEY WERE A WHILE BACK

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 28, 1914.

ON THE BATTLE FRONT, VIA PARIS.—Desperate attempts of the Germans to break through the western end of the allies' army and stop the turning movement resulted in the most furious fighting of the whole campaign. Corps after corps of the Germans were hurled against the flower of the French and English armies in bayonet charges, only to be thrown back with enormous losses. The engagement extended over nearly two-thirds of the whole battle front and even where charges were not made the fighting by the millions of troops was almost hand to hand. The infantry bore the brunt of the fighting, but artillery of both armies continued throughout 24 hours to bombard each other's positions.

LONDON.—The statement issued from German headquarters at Berlin, while insisting that the allies' attack had been repulsed, still referred to it as an advance. This is the first official German announcement which in any way admitted that the allies are getting the better of the contest.

TOKIO.—It is officially announced that the Japanese have defeated the Germans in a stubborn battle lasting 14 hours on the outskirts of Tsing-Tau, seat of the government on the German island possession of Kiau-Chau, China.

CHICAGO.—Arthur M. Tree, only son of the late Judge Lambert Tree, died Sept. 26 in Southampton, England, according to cable advices. He was a former husband of a daughter of the late Marshall Field, now the wife of Admiral Sir David Beatty of the English navy.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 28, 1900.

PUEBLO, Colo.—Just as the Roosevelt train was pulling out of Pueblo it was learned that a plot to mob Roosevelt had been prevented by Mayor West and Chief of Police Griffin of this place. The plans were disclosed to the police by Igo Ferrio, an Italian employed at the smelters near Pueblo. Two hundred special policemen were sworn in and were on duty when the Roosevelt train pulled in. Six men whose pockets were filled with eggs, stones and tomatoes were arrested. The plot is attributed to padrones at Bessemer who are professed anarchists and are extremely bitter against Senator Wolcott and the McKinley administration.

LONDON.—The report is current that Lord Curzon of Kedlestone has intimated a desire to resign his viceroyalty of India because of the ill effects of the climate on Lady Curzon's health.

CHICAGO.—Walter B. Smith captured first place in the qualifying round for the western amateur golf championship at Onwentsia with a score of 161 for the double circuit. Walter E. Egan was second with 167, and John Stuart third wits 171.

CHICAGO.—Evanston had its first large wedding of the season when Miss Anabel M. Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Albert Ward, became the bride of Lawrence Nelson De Golyer at the First Congregational church, the Rev. Dr. Loba performing the ceremony.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 28, 1865.

CINCINNATI.—A diabolical attempt was made to kill Lieut. Gen. Grant by some of the many unrepentant rebels who have been allowed to take the oath of allegiance or by some sneaking copperhead who never had the courage to do a brave deed. As Gen. Grant and staff were coming from Indianapolis part of their train was derailed while running over a switch at Guilford. The train was stopped before Gen. Grant's car reached the switch, and he escaped injury. Investigation revealed that the locks of the switch had been broken and it had been thrown in such a way as to derail the train.

PHILADELPHIA.—William J. Duane died at the age of 85 years. He was secretary of the treasury under Gen. Jackson and resigned his office rather than consent to the removal of deposits from the United States bank.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The state convention declared that the white population alone should be the basis of representation in this state.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE WORLD.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Your editorial today on "What's Wrong With the World?" tempts me to give the answer, for I have it.

While it is true, as you say, that "contemporary capitalism" has "provided more goods" than any other age has known, found the "widest markets," and "benefited the largest number," at the same time greatly "reducing individual drudgery," the question remains: Has it yet been fair; has it shown statesmanship, or selfishness? For this land of superabundance is seldom without a vast population of worthy men and women on the ragged edge. That is what is wrong with our world. Let everything else be perfectly right, that makes the world wrong.

We boast too much of the number of people who have automobiles, radios, washing machines, and the like, and overlook the unnumbered population altogether without these, just as Chicago struts along its lake front apparently oblivious of the west side and various seamy sides.

We learn from Genesis (which is a good place to start) that man was consigned to a life of work. That being so, a world without work for all is wrong. This planet is a working place for man; and, as McCutcheon showed the other morning in a great picture, a good and certain job is the workingman's happiness. "Contemporary capitalism" never has taken sufficient account of the fact that the world is primarily not for the behoof of capitalists but for workers. It has done much for workers, but mostly incidentally. Its controlling motive has been to go after and bring back. Much of what it has done organized labor forced it to do; but as organized labor is only one-fifth of the workers, that leaves a great population to the will of employers.

When McAdoo became director general of the railroads during the world war he gave substantial increases of wages to half a million of shop men, to all clerical and other unorganized forces, which "contemporary capitalism" never had justly paid, gave women employés the wages of men, and gave Negroes the wages of whites. The increase of pay to workers totaled $1,071,000,000 every year. That was an innovation shocking to "contemporary capital," but, as the sequel showed, it was entirely feasible and immensely beneficial to the country and has been ever since. Employers with the view of statesmen would have done that themselves instead of leaving it to a political party.

To conclude what is wrong with the world we must first have an opinion on the purpose of its existence. If the plan was that it be the theater of men who would dazzle themselves and others by the magnitude of production and the extent of distribution, who would work consolidations of capital so that stocks at 900 and more might be raised higher, and who would manufacture unemployment almost as definitely as they fabricate steel or cloth, then there is nothing wrong with the world.

But if the design was that the world should carry without end the incomparable happiness of continuous employment and that no industrious men or women should, in the midst of unfailing plenty, drag themselves fearfully through life, then in my time the world of the United States never has been fully in balance.
THOMAS JAMES NORTON.

SIGNING THE EDITORIALS.

Highland Park, Ill., Sept. 16.—The growing custom of having important news articles from both domestic and foreign correspondents signed by the writers is one which for many reasons is to be commended. Your readers like to know whose are the sentiments and opinions often expressed in such articles and thus be able to judge somewhat as to their value and weight.

Also, it is a rule, and doubtless a wise one, to require all readers sending in communications to your paper, especially if they expect publication, to sign their full and real names and give their addresses—"as an evidence of good faith" is, I think, the way you word your reasons for this requirement.

Now, why do you not sign all your editorials—"as an evidence of good faith"? The vast majority of your readers would insist upon this had they the power to compel it. We know perfectly well that not all editorials are written by any one or two men, and even suspect that at times editorials are printed which have been written by men not on the staff of THE TRIBUNE. Some of us remember the day when no periodical was compelled to publish the names of its owners or its circulation, but now the law requires this. Of just as much importance to many of your readers is the knowledge of the identity of the writer of an editorial. Perhaps some day the law will require this also. Is there any valid reason why this should not be done? Is there any weightier reason than simply "custom" back of this?

It might be interesting to give this matter a little publicity and ascertain what the reading public think about this rather unfair and one sided situation.
F. D. HOPKINS,
Minister Grace M. E. Church.

THE INTEREST SUITS.

Palos Park, Ill., Sept. 17.—Attorney General Carlstrom seems to be aching to give information, especially when it is not within the range of his duty. He was elected to represent the state of Illinois and not the nominee of a political party. Every taxpayer in the state should be concerned as to why he is not prosecuting the case against Lieut. Gov. Sterling and ex-Gov. Small for return of interest money to the state, but yet no information is coming from him as to why he is neglecting the interest of the taxpayers by not bringing this case to trial. Neither has he ever given a satisfactory reason why he settled the case against ex-Gov. Small by reducing it nearly $400,000. Are the good citizens of the state willing to have this case nol-prossed without any good and sufficient reason being given them for it?
EVAN L. REED.

ADDITION TO THE PLATFORM.

Blue Island, Ill., Sept. 8.—As item 9 in THE TRIBUNE's platform for Chicagoland I suggest "A New Management for the Chicago White Sox."

DURING THE NATIONAL HOME FURNISHINGS STYLE SHOW

Sept. 26th ❖ Oct. 4th

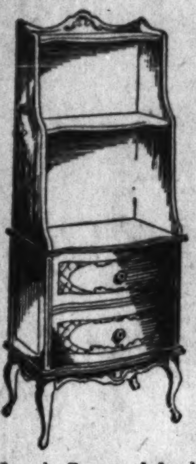
Of outstanding interest in the Revell Showing are smart ensembles on each floor, featuring color schemes and furnishings from the most luxurious to the most moderate in price. These groupings offer a wonderfully varied choice of suggestions for furnishing your home in the latest fashion . . . at whatever price range you desire.

OPEN TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY EVENINGS, 7:00 TO 9:30!

This store will be open Tuesday and Wednesday Evenings to give those who cannot attend in the daytime an opportunity to see these beautiful exhibits. No merchandise will be sold at these evening openings.

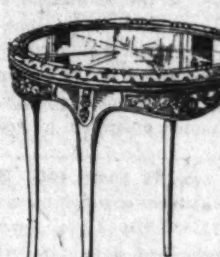
MR. ROSS CRANE, nationally known Interior Decorator, will lecture these two evenings at 8 o'clock. These lectures will be dramatized with actual examples and will be of great interest to all. Plan to come.

The Store of the Home
REVELL'S
at WABASH and LAKE



Lovely French book and knick-knack cabinet with two drawers, $21.

THIS is the first National Style Show of Home Furnishings ever held . . . but it is a familiar role for Revell's, for they have long realized that styles in furnishings are just as interesting as styles in apparel. Revell's have held a style show each Spring and Fall, inviting their friends. Come and view the newest things for the home!



Exquisite French coffee table with intricate carvings — a charming piece for a living room. $65.

So, on this momentous occasion, when the home and its surroundings are being emphasized all over the country, we invite you to come to this Store of the Home for suggestions for your home!

Come, stroll down the broad arcade flanked with brightly lighted, interesting window displays and enter the Main floor.

Here we inspect the new Record and Radio Department . . . they're playing some brand new tunes right now . . . while we're listening to those, let's ramble through the interesting gift shop and see the many smart things gathered from the far corners of the earth. These "little things" are so important in the modern home . . . and give it a more individual touch. Take note, too, of the beautiful lamp ensembles on display. Every one is a work of art in combining shades and bases to form a perfect blending of design and coloring.

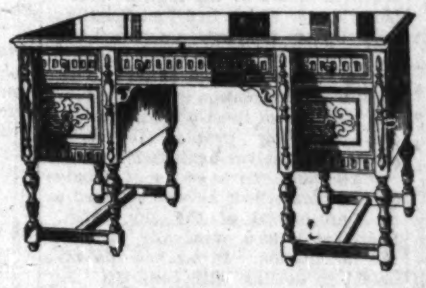


Table desk of rich walnut takes its design from the William and Mary period—unusually charming design. $75.

Radio bench supplies a modern need in the home. Nicely turned legs and loose pad of rich red mohair. $12.50.

From here we enter the elevator . . . and in a moment we arrive at the Second Floor!

Let's look at Dining Rooms . . . a wonderful sight, is'nt it? Individual groupings of massive, carved suites or the simple designs of Hepplewhite, Sheraton and Duncan Phyfe in ensembles that emphasize their refined, simple lines. And what a dash of color the wall hangings give the suites!

From the Dining Room Exhibits we enter into a colorful display of the newest styles in furniture for the sunroom . . . and in conjunction with this display here are setups all ready for a lively game of bridge . . . and if you are up on your toes you will be more interested in BACKGAMMON . . . so we've arranged groupings for that, too!

If you will step in the elevator again we will go up another floor to the Third! As we leave the elevator on the Third floor, we step off into Oriental splendor. Draped on the large pillars are rare specimens of Oriental rugs. Over there, with its rich, lovely colorings high-lighted, is a $35,000 rug! Study its intricate design, note the silky texture, and the soft, mellow colors!

We mustn't miss the interesting exhibit of American Orientals—beautiful designs copied from rare specimens of real Orientals that have a deep, lustrous nap and unusually desirable! Be sure to examine the very moderate prices!

Large, luxurious, comfortable — the ideal chair for a man and the kind every living room needs! Down seat and back, a splendid value, too, at $75.

Now, let's step over to the Ross Crane Home Decoration and Advisory Bureau. Here you will find a marvelous display of the very last word in drapery fabrics and combinations. Better look these over carefully and secure some new ideas for your windows!

Don't forget the Model Rooms! They are all refurnished and decorated typical of the modern home. These rooms are used to actually work out problems in decoration and perform a very important function in the activities of the Interior Decorating Department!

Isn't this just loads of fun . . . and how keenly interesting! You probably have dozens of ideas already jotted down and what a revelation this Style Show has been!

A clever Duncan Phyfe coffee table has unusual character, $17.50.

But you haven't seen the best yet. Wait until you see the exciting things on the Fourth Floor!

See the exquisite ensembles for the bedroom! Gorgeous suites that embrace all the furniture craftsman's art, and suites that are lovely in their simplicity . . . to please any budget!

The famous "Modes of the Moment" Bungalow is all refurnished and is extremely interesting. There is a new Bedding Section, too, that is just as cozy as can be and shows the newest color ensembles for the bed. We might call it the Rainbow Division because every color of the rainbow is represented in the collection!

Yes, you have probably been thinking of living rooms—and what on earth to do to make it look better, so let's go to the Fifth Floor, where new surprises await you . . .

These convenient book and occasional tables fill a genuine need in the modern room, $20.

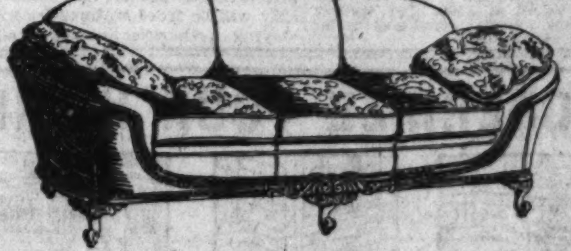
Here, easily seen from the elevator, and inviting us to examine them more closely, are beautiful living room ensembles. They range in price from the most sumptuous to the most moderate. Cleverly draped beside each grouping are lengths of fabrics to suggest draperies for that room.

The Art Gallery will interest art lovers! A new exhibit of water colors by George B. Trimmer, etchings by P. T. Jensen, and oils by J. Richard.

Now just bear with me a while and let's all go to the next floor—the Sixth!

Directly in front of us is an exhibit that will probably be of more interest to the men—so if the men will please step forward they may view modern, handsome furnishings for the business man's workshop! How refreshingly different are the beautiful designs of these modern desks and chairs that replace the old roll top with its disarray and pigeonholes!

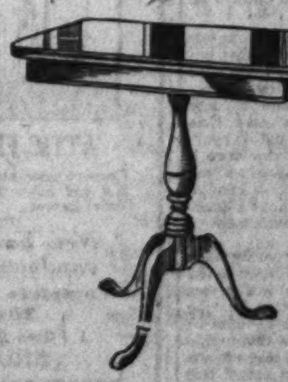
The wing chair gives a room a formal appearance and adds to its comfort as well. This style in various coverings. $57.50.



A lovely sofa covered in rich rose mohair with beautiful frieze, loose pillow ends and cushions. $195. Chair may be had to match. $100.

To the right are the executive offices. Here you are invited to come at any time to discuss frankly your problems in budgeting your home furnishings expenditures. Your suggestions, too, on how we might better serve you are welcomed here.

We hope you have enjoyed this little tour, and don't forget to tell your friends to come to Revell's for the National Home Furnishings Style Show . . . and plan to come Tuesday and Wednesday evenings when Ross Crane will deliver interesting lectures.



Console table of genuine mahogany has double leaf to form larger table when needed. $25.

SCIENCE TO TAKE PHOTOGRAPHS OF CHICAGO'S NOISE

New Device Aids Drive for Quieting City.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

As a by-product of industrial laboratories, science is now able to make a photograph of noise. The picture is the dance of light across a dark surface.

This mechanism is to be used in a survey of the noises of Chicago for the purpose of discovering just what are the component causes of a jangled crash such as may be heard on any loop street and what may be done toward reducing this.

The scientific committee of the new noise commission of Chicago, of which Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel is president, will take up this branch of the campaign soon under the direction of Dr. William Braid White of the American Steel and Wire company laboratory. The company has offered to help in this work as a measure of public good.

Seek Scale of Noise.

"What we are seeking to avoid is a verbal description of noise," said Dr. White. "The American Society of Mechanical Engineers at its next meeting is to try to agree upon a scale which will stand in any court test and which will guide the future building of machinery and in other work.

"This is a product of the last twenty-five years that is just beginning to be used. If it is followed it will mitigate greatly the horrors of modern civilization in the way of discord and noise. The principle must be practiced in building so that noise will be absorbed rather than reflected. This should enter into the new subway.

Need Coöperation of Experts.

"We will need the coöperation of such men as Prof. F. R. Watson of the physics department of the University of Illinois and Dr. Paul Sabin of the Riverbank laboratory at Geneva, two world authorities on acoustics, and other laboratories.

"We have a method of measuring sound objectively. The wave motion is photographed. The amplitude, or up and down of the wave, shows the loudness of the sound and the composition of the wave shows its quality.

"Our ears have been so dulled by the shattering impacts of noise waves that we have lost the sense of discrimination between noise and not noise. Education of the future should be directed toward the ear as well as the eye. As a result of this neglect in the past we are growing up an unmusical nation."

How the Device Works.

The mechanism which is available for this survey was demonstrated by Dr. White and his assistant, E. I. Van Harlingen. The piano and microphone were used and the sound thrown on a screen. A gentle tone produces a slow, evenly crested, undulating wave, while a discord produces a splashy effect on the light lines, with sharp up and down movements.

"The microphone," explained Dr. White, "is an electric ear and when a sound reaches it it vibrates as a whole, just as the telephone transmitter does.

"It turns the air vibrations into a vibrating electric current. This current is then passed through wires to the amplifying box and thence to a small box with wires on it. This small box is a portable Westinghouse oscillograph. Within it is a pair of tiny silver wires surrounded by the curve of a horseshoe magnet. A tiny mirror is cemented across the two wires.

Sound Written in Light.

"When the current from the microphone has traversed the amplifier it reaches this pair of wires. It throws them into vibration and they, in turn, cause the mirror to vibrate. A beam of light is thrown on the mirror and thus a dancing spot of light comes into being. The dance of the light is exactly according to the vibration of the sound.

"A photographic film is placed in the drum. A small motor rotates the drum. The film is exposed and at the moment the sound is produced the light is flashed on and the dancing beam from the mirror writes its light signature on the film. In this way a photograph is taken of the sound which exactly reproduces the form of its vibration."

Another machine takes this photograph and breaks up the waves of noise into its component parts, so that the engineers can read the whole secret of the sound, of what elements it is made, how loud it was, its quality, or color, and many other things.

YOUTH SLASHED ON STREET.

Harold Cassidy, 20 years old, 5618 South May street, yesterday received minor wounds in the neck when an unidentified man slashed him with a knife at the corner of 63d and South Halsted streets. Police believe it was a case of mistaken identity.

NEW GERMAN POCKET APPARATUS AIDS THE DEAFENED

Can be had on free trial

From Germany comes a small electrical appliance that bids fair to become the greatest boon to deafened people in many years. So small is this new appliance that it can be conveniently carried concealed in the clothing with as little bother as a watch. This newcomer, Teutonophone, is a product of post-war Germany and is being demonstrated and distributed in Chicago by the Associated Hearing Aids Co., 5 So. Wabash Ave.

Teutonophone indicates a striking advance over former type earphones. Its power to amplify sounds for even those with only a small percentage of hearing is amazing—yet it is as clear as a bell and produces enlarged sounds with a mellowness of tone not before attained. Included in this hearing aid is a remarkable tiny appliance, a button-like transmitter the size of a silver half dollar and an earpiece small enough to be worn inside the ear without a headband. The weight of this instrument is about two ounces.

While the instruments are superbly made and finished, they are being offered to the deafened at unprecedentedly low prices—so that no one with defective hearing need deprive himself of the benefits of Teutonophone. To appreciate thoroughly the benefit and comfort these instruments offer to deafened persons, an actual test is essential, because mere words cannot portray them adequately.

The distributors of Teutonophone will be pleased to mail complete information regarding these instruments to any one writing to them. They will be glad to demonstrate them privately at their offices daily from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

GOOD WILL PARTY STARTS ILLINOIS TOUR TOMORROW

Randolph to Lead A. of C. Group.

Thirty Chicago business men will leave by bus tomorrow morning on a five day tour of principal communities in northern and central Illinois. It is the second "good will" party sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce to establish closer relations between this metropolitan center and other parts of the middle west. The tour is directed by the Illinois committee of the association, with which various chambers of commerce and civic clubs are coöperating in promoting agricultural and business betterment in the state.

Randolph to Head Party.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the association, heads the representatives of diversified interests composing the party's personnel. Bankers, utility officials, and representatives of railroads, department stores, hotels, and the building industry are included, as well as emissaries of the 1933 Century of Progress exposition, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the International Live Stock exposition, and the Chicago press.

Among those accompanying Col. Randolph will be:

Earl Benedict,	J. B. Lamson,
Louis A. Bowman,	Edward C. Otte,
Thomas M. Chisholm,	Maj. Rufus Putnam,
Dr. Rudolf A. Clemen,	J. B. Rayn,
Elmer R. Cogswell,	William R. Rummler,
Howard Easte,	Roy F. Stowell,
Harden Fitts,	Carl R. Sundstrom,
William W. Geary,	Col. E. L. Thorton,
Arthur F. Planck,	J. N. Van Der Vries,
E. R. Hagens,	Clarence A. Waite,
B. H. Heide,	Charles N. Wheeler.
Lawrence A. Kempf,

First Stop at Rockford.

Rockford is the first city to be visited on the course announced yesterday. Following a tour of the city with members of the chamber of commerce, luncheon will be served to the Chicagoans and Rockford leaders. A brief stop will be made at Dixon in the afternoon, en route to the Rock Island arsenal, where a banquet is planned by business men of Rock Island, Moline, East Moline, and Davenport, Ia.

Lucien W. Powell, Noted Artist, Dies in Capital

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Lucien Whiting Powell, widely known artist, died today at Washington sanitarium following a contraction of double pneumonia. He was 84 years old and a native of Loudon county, Virginia, where much of his work was done.

"In the Afterglow" in the Corcoran Art gallery and "Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone River" in the National Art gallery are the best known works of Mr. Powell. His specialties were landscape paintings.

BIND AND ROB SHOP OWNER.

Two men, posing as patrons, entered the musical instrument repair shop of John Sipek at 3212 West 22d street yesterday afternoon and robbed him of $45 and a diamond ring valued at $400 after trussing him with rope. Sipek was released by his wife several minutes later.

THOMAS D. JONES OF LAKE FOREST IS DEAD, AGED 79

Friend of Woodrow Wilson and Princeton Donor.

Thomas D. Jones of Lake Forest, retired lawyer, member of the board of directors of the International Harvester company and an intimate friend of the late President Woodrow Wilson, died yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital of pulmonary embolism following a minor operation a week ago.

Mr. Jones was 79 years old. He had not been actively engaged in business since 1915. His Lake Forest home, where he had lived for forty years, was at 500 North Green Bay road. Mr. Jones was a bachelor, and his niece, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, lived with him. A nephew, Owen B. Jones, is president of the Pal-Waukee airport at Wheeling. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Besides his interest in the International Harvester company, Mr. Jones was once president of the Mineral Point Zinc company, serving as president for many years. The company was consolidated in 1897 with the New Jersey Zinc company.

Center of Senate Battle.

President Wilson in 1914 projected Mr. Jones into an historical incident when he nominated him as one of the seven members of the federal reserve bank board, which had just been created under the new currency law. Mr. Jones and his brother, David B. Jones, had contributed $21,000 to the Wilson pre-convention campaign fund.

A majority of the United States senate, including twenty Democrats, aligned themselves against Mr. Jones' confirmation. In a series of debates on the senate floor he was referred to as "an official of the zinc trust." President Wilson eventually withdrew the nomination. It marked his first defeat in dealing with congress. Mr. Jones served during the world war as a member of the war trades board, being in charge of the food embargo to enemy countries.

$1,500,000 Gifts to Princeton.

A graduate of Princeton university in 1876, Mr. Jones made many gifts to the university. Among them was one of $200,000 to endow the Henry Burchard Fine chair of mathematics, making it the most highly endowed chair at Princeton. Another gift of $200,000 was made in 1927 for a chair of physics. Miss Gwethalyn Jones at the same time made a gift of $200,000 for a chair in chemistry. Altogether Mr. Jones' Princeton endowments totaled more than $1,500,000.

He was a member of the Onwentsia and Old Elm Country clubs, the University and Chicago clubs, and a member of the board of trustees of the Children's Memorial hospital. He maintained a Chicago residence at 1435 Astor street.

Dr. Thomas W. Burrows Dies on Tour of Europe

Relatives were notified by cable yesterday of the death of Dr. Thomas W. Burrows, 669 Irving Park boulevard, in Utrecht, Holland, on Friday. Dr. Burrows was touring Europe with his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Hugh Bailey. He was head of the Burrows hospital where he resided. He spent most of his medical career at Ottawa, Ill., where he practiced forty years. Besides his widow and daughter, Mrs. Bailey, Dr. Burrows is survived by two sons, Dr. Samuel J. Burrows and Richard Burrows, and two other daughters, Anne and Edyth Burrows.

Ackermann, German War Commander, Dies at 61

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Rear Admiral Richard Ackermann, 61, one of Germany's most popular war heroes, died in Berlin today. Early in 1914 he was given command of the battle cruiser Goeben in the Mediterranean. The Goeben and the Von Moltke reached Turkey after a thrilling pursuit by the British fleet from Messina.

Boy Kills Stepfather; Probably Escapes Trial

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 27.—[U. P.]—Gale Bartlett, 14 year old high school boy, who said he shot and killed his step-father to protect his mother, probably will be freed without trial for the slaying, authorities indicated today.

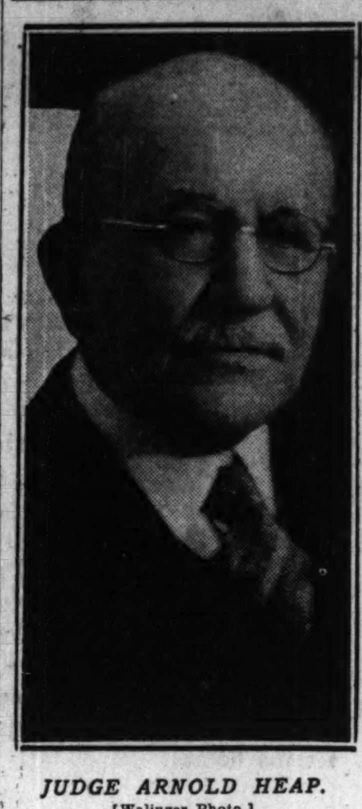
JUDGE DIES



JUDGE ARNOLD HEAP.
[Walinger Photo.]

Judge Arnold Nelson Heap, 76 years old, veteran Chicago Municipal court jurist, died yesterday at the Edgewater Beach hotel, where he has lived since the death of his wife four years ago.

Judge Heap is survived by a son, William C. Heap, and two sisters, Mrs. Leland A. Babcock of San Antonio, Tex., and Mrs. Frank L. Rexford of Chicago, and a brother, George Heap, of Kansas City. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Sheldon chapel, 5708 West Madison street, with interment at Rosehill cemetery.

Judge Heap was born in England, coming to Chicago with his parents in 1854. He was graduated from the law department of Northwestern university in 1879. In 1906, when the Municipal court judiciary was organized, he was elected with the present Chief Justice Olson and has been a member of that body ever since, with the exception of two short periods.

His club and fraternal affiliations include the Hamilton club, Apollo commandery, No. 1, Medinah temple, and the Chicago, Cook County, and Illinois State Bar associations.

Society Girl Is Suicide, Coroner's Jury Declares

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A verdict of "poison taken with suicidal intent" was rendered by a Chester county coroner's jury today in the death of Miss Grace De Lancey V. Newlin, 30, member of a prominent Bryn Mawr family who disappeared from her home Tuesday and was found dead Thursday in a clump of bushes on a farm near Edgemont.

Witnesses at the inquest testified Miss Newlin suffered from a nervous condition and feared she was losing her mind.

Cherokee, Ia., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The body of Glen Beeghley, 31, of Cherokee, was taken from the bottom of a 40 foot well this afternoon. He had been imprisoned in the well four hours. Beeghley was trapped when the well caved in at noon today.

INSURANCE MEN IN CONVENTION HERE THIS WEEK

25th Annual Meeting to Open Tomorrow.

Hundreds of insurance men are expected in Chicago this week to attend the twenty-fifth annual American Life convention, which will open tomorrow at the Stevens hotel. Noted insurance authorities will address the sessions, which will continue until Friday.

The first session of the convention will be addressed by William P. Sidley, president of the Chicago Bar association. Recent legal opinions on insurance problems will be discussed at a luncheon tomorrow, at which Judge Will M. Sparks of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Seventh district, will be a guest of honor.

The legal section of the convention will close on Tuesday and the main section will begin the following day with an address by President Charles W. Gold, who will preside at the convention. The early sessions will be addressed by Rufus G. Dawes, chairman of the Century of Progress exposition.

The Chicago life insurance companies which are members of the American Life convention are Central Life, Continental Assurance company, Federal Life, Illinois Life, Mutual Trust Life, National Life of the United States, North American Life, Old Colony Life, and Security Life of America.

EVANSTON MAN IS KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

J. F. Hayes, 50 years old, 1405 Leonard place, Evanston, was killed last night when he drove his automobile in front of a Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific express train at a grade crossing in Glen View. The car was carried 200 feet by the train. This death raised the 1930 Cook country motor toll to 754.

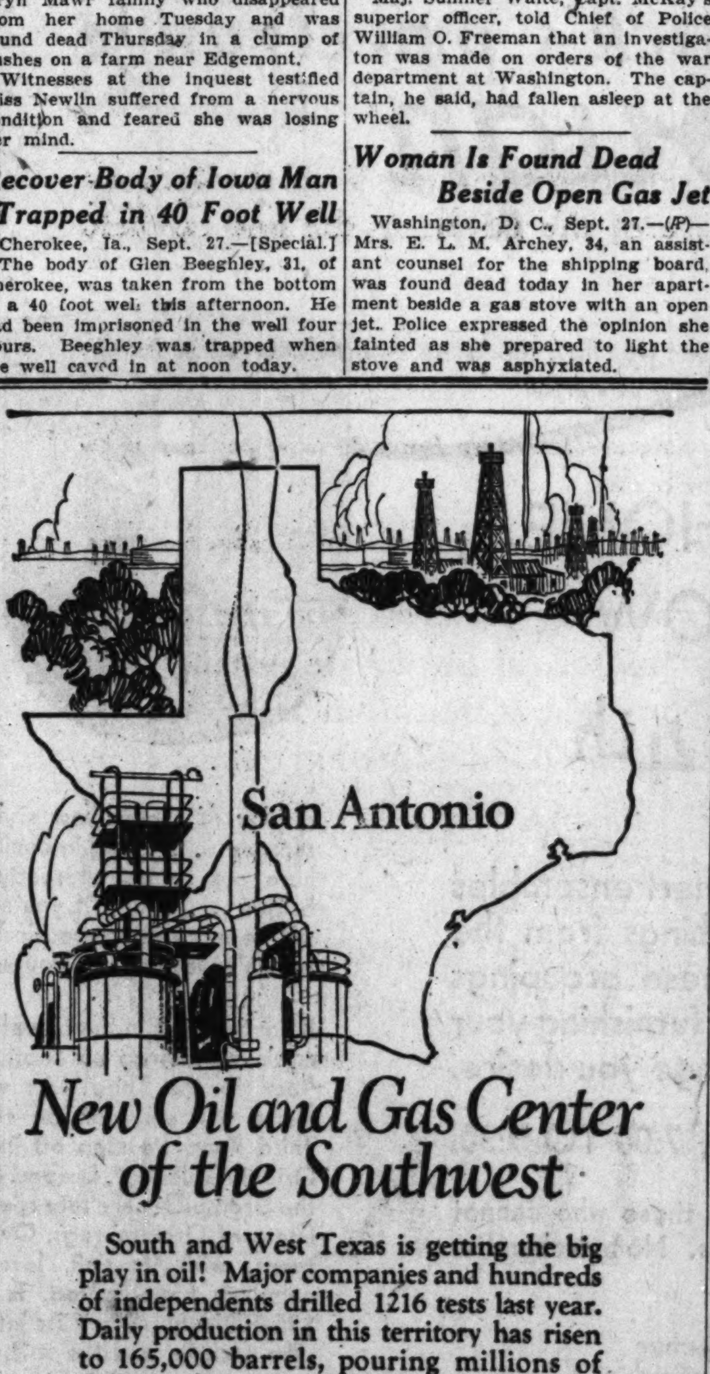
Hayes' widow, from whom he was divorced recently, lives at Adams, Wis., with their four children.

Threatened prosecution of Capt. W. R. McKay, Fort Sheridan army officer, for driving his automobile into three southbound cars in Sheridan road near Calvary cemetery, on Friday, was dropped by the Evanston police last night on the captain's promise to settle all damages.

Maj. Sumner Waite, Capt. McKay's superior officer, told Chief of Police William O. Freeman that an investigaton was made on orders of the war department at Washington. The captain, he said, had fallen asleep at the wheel.

Woman Is Found Dead Beside Open Gas Jet

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. E. L. M. Archey, 34, an assistant counsel for the shipping board, was found dead today in her apartment beside a gas stove with an open jet. Police expressed the opinion she fainted as she prepared to light the stove and was asphyxiated.



New Oil and Gas Center of the Southwest

South and West Texas is getting the big play in oil! Major companies and hundreds of independents drilled 1216 tests last year. Daily production in this territory has risen to 165,000 barrels, pouring millions of dollars of new wealth into San Antonio's commercial channels every month. A prodigious supply of natural gas has been made available for industrial and domestic use.

San Antonio is headquarters for the Southwest's oil and gas development—which is still in its infancy. Throughout South and West Texas the absorbing quest for oil is being pushed on an ever-larger scale.

But oil is only one of the factors contributing to San Antonio's growth and prosperity. This city is the capital of America's last great frontier—a field rich in opportunities of every description. Come see for yourself.

WRECKAGE OF PLANE FOUND; HUNT BODIES OF PILOT, PASSENGER

Conneaut, O., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Searching parties went out from here today in an effort to find the bodies of William McNulty, Columbus, O., salt manufacturer, and his pilot, Willard Parker of Cleveland, shortly after the wreckage of their airplane in which they took off from Cleveland Wednesday was found near here.

Police took charge of the search immediately after the wreckage was found. A short time later Sheriff Frank Sheldon at Jefferson planned the organization of searching parties. Coast guard boats prepared to join the search, but postponed it until the lake became smoother. A plane was sent out from Cleveland to search over the lake, but early this afternoon it had not reported.

REFUSES TO PAY WAUKEGAN AUTO TAX; GOES TO JAIL

H. J. Jennings, 21 years old, of 902 Mott street, Waukegan, yesterday started a twelve day term in jail as the result of his refusal to pay a $17.50 fine for failure to pay the Waukegan $5 vehicle license tax.

Jennings was represented, at a jury trial before Justice of the Peace Wilfred Hall, by R. H. Stripe, president of the Waukegan Taxpayers' association, who is urging members to resist collection of the tax on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

Stripe will go on trial tomorrow on a charge of refusing to pay the tax. Interest in the case is so great that Justice of the Peace Charles Mason, who will preside, has arranged for the use of the circuit court rooms in order to accommodate the crowd.

Stripe yesterday filed a $30,000 damage suit against Arthur Bulkley, corporation counsel; Frank Just, editor of the Waukegan News-Sun, and Oscar Soderquist, former president of the Waukegan real estate association, charging that they "slandered and libeled" him in criticizing his struggle against the vehicle tax.

4 buyers choose BUICK EIGHTS to 1 who selects the second most popular car* . . . .

*. . . and more Buicks are being purchased than all other eights in Buick's price range combined

Today, when motor car buyers are selecting their cars with the greatest care, Buick is winning a larger share of the buyers in the fine car field than it has ever won before.

Today: 1 Four buyers choose Buick for every one who buys the second most popular car in Buick's field or the second most popular eight of any price!

2 Representative cities throughout the land are awarding Buick 40 to 60 per cent of the combined sales of the 15 cars in its price class.

3 More people are buying Buick Eights than all other eights in its price range combined.

Buick deeply appreciates this overwhelming preference on the part of the public. For in this way American motor car buyers are placing their stamp of unqualified approval on The Eight as Buick Builds It. And by awarding the Buick Straight Eight such complete leadership immediately after its introduction, they are demonstrating once again their supreme confidence in Buick engineering skill and in Buick's determination always to build better and better automobiles.

Take the wheel of a Buick Straight Eight. Thrill to the mastery of boulevard and road which it gives you. Then you will know why more people are buying Buicks than all other eights in its price range combined.

THE EIGHT AS BUICK BUILDS IT

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT : : : BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

*Buick's Percentage of Sales out of every 100 made among all cars sold in its price class during August in 108 representative cities

Notifies Experts to Have Plans Ready.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

President Michael J. Faherty of the board of local improvements started a fire under the board of subway advisory engineers yesterday. He announced there will be a public hearing on Oct. 17 regarding the State street subway.

He then notified the board of advisory engineers of his action. This board is composed of George M. Wisner, chairman; David A. Wallace, Edward J. Noonan, George C. Lenth, and the chief engineer of the subways, Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr. They are not ready for a public hearing; but Mr. Faherty by his action notified them that he expects them to have complete plans and estimates by Oct. 17.

The engineers were appointed on July 16 and Mr. Faherty believes that three months is sufficient time to get out the major features of subway plans. Mr. Faherty has attended a number of the public sessions of the advisory board and each time has urged them to "arrive at some conclusion." He has told them they should make some decisions so that the plans for the subways may be completed.

Puts Questions to Engineers.

Some time ago Faherty presented to the advisory board a list of more than 20 questions. He said the answers to those were a prerequisite to holding a public hearing. He had not received answers to all of the questions yesterday.

Some one has apparently called Mr. Faherty's attention to a statement issued on June 22 last, which was written by George M. Wisner and concurred in by Mr. Wallace and Mr. Noonan. That statement said that "if the ordinance is approved, construction of the subway can be started by the first of the year." The ordinance was approved on July 1 at a popular referendum by an overwhelming vote.

The resolution passed by the city council on July 16 appointing the engineers ordered them to "proceed with all practicable speed" in designing the subways. At that time the engineers had 30 subordinates, while today about 120 are at work.

Seek to Speed Task.

Mr. Faherty has been dissatisfied for some time with the progress made. Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the council local transportation committee, appeared before the engineers once to urge more speed.

It was understood that various questions were pending before the advisory board, and that the answers to these questions were necessary before actual designing could proceed. A list of these questions was printed in THE TRIBUNE on Sept. 22. It is understood that since then more progress has been made.

Another progress report has been ordered by Ald. McDonough for Oct. 5—12 days before the public hearing called by Mr. Faherty.

Under the law only the owners of property abutting on the route of the improvement—State street between 18th street and Chicago avenue, and Chicago avenue between State and Franklin streets—will be invited to the hearing. The statute does not require the summoning of approximately 8,000 more property owners who will be asked to pay a part of the special assessment. Undoubtedly the property owners present will want to know what the subway is to cost and as much as they can find out about the design to determine for themselves how much the ywill be benefited by the tunnels.

Lawyer for City Is Accused by a Cop in Burglar Case

Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles M. McDonnell, who is also the city's prosecutor of charges against policemen before the civil service commission, was charged yesterday with trying to coerce Sergt. Harry Whedon of the detective bureau into helping a burglary client to get off with a Bridewell sentence. Sergt. Whedon made the charge against McDonnell to Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora, who is prosecuting Kurowski.

Chester Kurowski, McDonnell's client, is now on trial before Judge G. Fred Rush in the Criminal court on a charge of robbing the store of Walter Wein, 1511 Milwaukee avenue, on March 30. Some of the $1,500 worth of leather goods stolen from the store was recovered in Kurowski's home.

The Sergeant's Charge.

"Attorney McDonnell told me to go to the state's attorney and get the charge changed from burglary to petty larceny," said Sergt. Whedon yesterday.

"I told him to go see Lieut. Andy Barry, my squad leader. McDonnell told me to go in and see the state's attorney and have it done. He said the penalty for trimming prisoners is three years and that trial board charges could be preferred."

Kurowski, through Attorney McDonnell, is basing his defense on the charge that the police beat him to extort the confession. This charge is denied by the police, including Chief of Detectives John Norton.

Lawyer Makes Denial.

"I have nothing whatever to do with that," said Attorney McDonnell when asked about the charges made by Sergt. Whedon. "The cops are probably a little sore because I ripped them up when they were on the witness stand.

"The truth of it is that I told the policemen that no matter what came out in court on the charge of brutality, that the charge was dead except as evidence in the trial.

"I have been in the case for some time. I took it because of family friendship."

First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen said he was surprised to learn that Attorney McDonnell was defending a man charged with crime.

"As I understand the rule of this office, assistants are not to engage in private law business and especially in defending criminal cases," said Breen.

The trial of Kurowski will be resumed tomorrow when Judge Rush will rule on the admissibility of the confession.

CITY OFFICIALS DENY CHARGES OF MERCHANTS

Fifteen Dealers Arrested by Market Master.

The charge that an effort had been made several times under pressure to collect political campaign contributions from the merchants of the city market at 71st and State streets brought activity in several directions yesterday.

William J. Balmer, commissioner of public service, and Dr. J. F. Timmis, a dentist, who is the master of the market, denied that they were involved in any attempt to collect money for the city administration. In addition, Dr. Timmis had 15 of the merchants arrested yesterday for blockading the sidewalk.

The merchants filed a petition with Mayor Thompson's secretary asking for the removal of Dr. Timmis as market master. This was in accordance with a resolution adopted on Friday night at a gathering of the merchants.

Fifteen Merchants Arrested.

A reporter for THE TRIBUNE visited the market while some of the arrests were being made. He reported that other merchants were blocking the street as much as those who were arrested, but these were not molested. Two merchants who were out on the sidewalk were asked if they had been arrested, and they said they had not, but expected to be. Fourteen of those arrested were taken to the Woodlawn police station and the fifteenth to the Englewood station.

Dr. Timmis in his statement said that "90 per cent of the business men on the street are high class honorable merchants." Commissioner Balmer in his statement said: "There are more disreputable characters in that market than in all the others in the city combined."

Mr. Balmer said that his statement exposes the "malicious motives" of Charles Braunstein, who was chairman of the Friday night meeting and was one of those arrested yesterday. Balmer, Republican committeeman of the 17th ward, in his statement did not charge the merchants with blocking the street, the offense for which they were arrested. He said that the Hamilton Park Home Owners' association first complained. His statement continued:

"The merchants were throwing rubbish and garbage into the streets and alleys and otherwise violating common decency. The odors they created were terrible and spread for two blocks."

Accuses Merchants of Threats.

To regulate the merchants a zoning ordinance was passed and the merchants then attempted to get the restrictions removed, according to Balmer.

"They came to me and threatened me politically and said they would see that the market master was removed," the statement went on. "They were never asked for a contribution of one penny for anything at any time. I am backing Dr. Timmis to the limit and I am sure that Aldermen Coyle, Meyering and Northrup will do likewise. The Hamilton Park Home Owners' will meet again Monday night to discuss the market situation."

Dr. Timmis said that he had read Braunstein's statement and then commented:

"Braunstein is one of half a dozen who for two years have resisted sanitary regulations prescribed by the health department, and against whom we have had numerous complaints for selling decayed produce, short weight, and other petty cheating.

"I personally never have had anything to do with collections and have kept out of politics since my appointment. The best answer to the charge that I was collecting money for the city administration is that I was the Democratic candidate for congress from this district and have been affiliated in that way. Ninety per cent of the business men on the street are high class honorable merchants, and it is with this group that I have been coöperating. Braunstein and his clique have been the only source of trouble."

SNATCH PURSE FROM WOMAN.

Two young thieves halted Mrs. Maude Lamont, 54 years old, at Elm and Moore streets yesterday afternoon, and snatched her purse containing $16. She is blind in one eye, and was unable to give an accurate description of the purse snatchers.

DO SCIENTISTS BELIEVE IN GOD, IMMORTALITY?

Question to Be Looked Into by Forum.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Do American men of science believe in God?

A unique adventure into this vast field of thought and investigation is to be undertaken this winter by the Sunday Noon forum of Evanston, under the direction of Prof. Edward L. Schaub, head of the department of philosophy at Northwestern university, editor of the Monist, and past president of both the American Philosophical association and the American Theological society.

The sessions will begin today in the chapel of the First Congregational church, when the question of the distinction between the God of religion and the god of metaphysics, and whether the ideas attained by scientists and philosophers may serve to enrich and correct, rather than destroy, the god idea engendered by personal experience and religious life will be discussed.

The Darwinian Hypothesis.

Einstein, the new physics and, perhaps, the new psychology, have thrown the older religionists into a state of flux which may be compared with that tremendous shift of the god concept made necessary by the growth of the Darwinian hypothesis.

Space, the only reality—matter reduced to electro-magnetic energy, mysterious cosmic rays bombarding us everywhere, old space and time gone into the welter of human illusions, old absolutes swept away—what is the human mind going to do with traditional religion and at the same time hold respect for its intellectual processes? Is it to be atheism, humanism, or a new revelation of the creative power and purpose back of the universe and man?

"The major attempt," said Dr. Schaub, "will be to clarify the ideas basic to or affirmed by religious experience. Increasingly these ideas—and not alone the creeds of Christendom—have come under the shadow of distrust and denial. Uncertainty and confusion with respect to them prevail on every hand. The assessment of creeds and the discovery of religious beliefs that are consonant with modern knowledge and that may equip men to live wisely and confidently are today matters of vital practical import and of common concern."

Questionnaire Submitted.

As a basis for the discussion Dr. Schaub will use the latest statistical investigation in the beliefs of men of science. This was made several years ago by James H. Leuba, professor of psychology in Bryn Mawr college, but it stands as a picture of religious conditions today, according to Dr. Schaub, reflecting the trend not only among greater and lesser scientists and teachers, but among college students.

The following questionnaire was submitted to two groups of 500 persons each, listed as members of the American Historical association, the American Sociological society, the American Psychological association, and in American Men of Science. They were asked to mark one of the following statements:

1. I believe in a God in intellectual and affective communication with man, I mean a God to whom one may pray in the expectation of receiving an answer. By "answer" I do not mean to subjects psychological effect of prayer.

2. I do not believe in a God as defined above.

3. I am an agnostic.

It is noted that the historians do not include professors of church history or professors of history in Roman Catholic institutions, and that from the list of psychologists were omitted those teaching in Roman Catholic institutions, or exclusively in medical schools.

The philosophers were left out because, it appears, they could never be expected to agree on a definition of God.

The results of the questionnaire are as follows: Believers, 41.8 per cent; disbelievers, 41.5 per cent; agnostics, 16.7 per cent.

A comparison of the answers of men of greater with those of lesser distinction showed 31.6 per cent believers among the former and 48.2 per cent among the latter.

The following table shows a comparison of the percentage of believers between the distinguished and the more distinguished in the special groups of scientists:

	Distinguished.	More distinguished.
1—Physicists	43.9%	38.8%
2—Biologists	30.5%	16.9%
3—Historians	48.3%	32.9%
4—Sociologists (professors)	24.4%	19.4%
5—Sociologists (nonacademic)	54.6%	....
6—Psychologists	24.2%	13.2%

A second questionnaire was sent out concerning the belief in personal immortality. The main outcome of the research, according to Prof. Leuba, in "God and Immortality," is this:

"It shows that in every class of persons investigated, the number of believers in God is less, and in most cases very much less than the number of nonbelievers, and that the number of believers in immortality is somewhat larger than in a personal God; that among the more distinguished, unbelief is very much more frequent than among the less distinguished; and finally that not only the degree of ability, but also the kind of knowledge possessed, seems significantly related to the rejection of these beliefs.

"I do not see any way to avoid the conclusion that disbelief in a personal God and in personal immortality is directly proportional to abilities making for success in the sciences in question [biologists, historians, and psychologists].

"The place occupied by the historians next to the physical scientists would indicate that, for the present, the reign of law is not so clearly revealed in the events with which history deals as in biology, economics, and psychology.

"A large number of historians continue to see the hand of God in human affairs. The influence, destructive of the Christian beliefs, attributed in this interpretation to more intimate knowledge of organic and psychical life, appears incontrovertibly, as far as psychical life is concerned, in the remarkable fact that whereas in every other group the number of believers in immortality is greater than that in God, among the psychologists the reverse is true; the number of believers in immortality among the greater psychologists sinks to 8.8%. One may affirm it seems that, in general, the greater the ability of the psychologist as a psychologist, the more difficult it becomes for him to believe in the continuation of individual life after bodily death.

Doubt Fundamental Dogmas.

"The students' statistics show that young people enter college possessed of the beliefs still accepted, more or less perfunctorily, in the average home of the land, and that as their mental powers mature and their horizon widens, a large percentage of them abandon the cardinal Christian beliefs. It seems probable that on leaving college, from 40 to 45 per cent of the students with whom we are concerned deny or doubt the fundamental dogmas of the Christian religion."

The women students, it was found, are more conservative than the men, and both groups show a larger measure of disbelief during the sophomore and junior years.

FAMOUS BRITISH ENGINEER FOUND SLAIN IN CAIRO

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Sir John Griffiths, prominent engineer and governing director of the Norton Griffiths company, public works contractors, was found dead today under mysterious circumstances.

While no official statement has been issued, it was said in reliable quarters that Sir John paddled out in a surf boat from the beach at the San Stafano Casino early this morning. Later it was noticed that the boat, a long way from shore, appeared to be unoccupied. Investigators found Sir John lying dead with a bullet in his temple. The tragedy, coming as it did after the suspension of work on the heightening of Assuan dam, which was being carried out by his company under a contract with the Egyptian government, caused a great sensation.

[Sir John, world famed engineer who, by virtue of his notable activities in the various parts of the British domain, was known as "Empire Jack," was the man who coördinated and worked out in detail the blowing up of famous Messines ridge, one of the most notable operations of the world war. He was also the man who carried out the difficult task of destroying the Rumanian oil wells to prevent them falling into the hands of the Germans when the central powers began their devastating sweep across Rumanian territory.]

Build Library to Honor Slain Bradley Teacher

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Contracts for the building of the Jennie M. Constance Memorial dormitory for women have just been let by the board of trustees of Bradley Polytechnic institute. The building will cost in excess of $75,000. It will be a memorial to Miss Constance, who was for nine years head of the department of English and who met her death at the hands of an assailant while doing graduate work at Northwestern in August, 1928.

Another Distinguished Piano Comes to Lyon & Healy

Chickering
ESTABLISHED 1823

The Imperial Cross of the Legion of Honor—one of nearly two hundred First Medals and Awards received by the Chickering

IT IS with exceeding pleasure that we announce the addition of the Chickering Piano to the distinguished list of instruments that make up the Lyon & Healy piano family.

Nothing we say can add to the high name which the Chickering possesses, for the lovely tone of the Chickering has long been an ideal. In an older day, it blended with the voice of Jenny Lind. Gounod awoke it into melody with the music of "Faust", and it responded to the touch of Sir Arthur Sullivan as he played "The Lost Chord."

The Chickering of today has added outstanding beauty of design to age-old brilliancy of tone. We invite you to come in this week and see our Opening Exhibit of 1931 Chickering Pianos.

BUSINESS FAITH PAVES WAY FOR 10 MILLION JOB

Fishers Will Build Now to Provide Work.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The Fisher brothers have faith in the future of Detroit and America; they look on an industrial depression as the time to prepare for future prosperity.

Consequently the Fisher brothers will break ground within thirty days for a new office building, architecturally similar to the Fisher building, which will extend the entire block of Second boulevard from Lothrop avenue to Bethune avenue. It will cost $10,000,000.

Expressing unshakable confidence that "the industrial and financial importance of this city will constantly increase," the brothers announced that they are setting their building program forward one year "as an incentive for others to proceed with normal expansion and thus assist in solving the present unemployment problem."

Planned First for 1931.

"When we erected the Fisher building," the announcement said, "we looked forward to the growth and development of this section and purchased adjacent property for expansions purposes. Our program at that time called for the erection of a new building in the fall of 1931.

"We have decided to anticipate our previous plans and begin the construction of a new building at once for the reason that we feel that by taking this course it will serve as an incentive for others to proceed with normal expansion and thus assist in the solving of the unemployment problem. We want further to give a practical demonstration of our continued and steadily growing faith in the future of Detroit.

Better than Many Years.

"One of the principal difficulties of the present, as we view it, is the prevalent belief of the average business man that business is not normal because it is not better than the previous peak year. As a matter of fact general business is better today than it was in many of the recent years when all were content with their progress.

"The fact that general business during this year does not pass the peak of other years should not deter business interests from going forward."

TWO GUNMEN ARE HELD.

George Laurie, 23 years old, 1338 South Turner avenue, and Andrew Manzie, 19 years old, 1113 South Marshfield avenue, whose gun battle with a policeman resulted in the wounding of four bystanders at Douglas boulevard and Turner avenue last Tuesday, were held to the grand jury on $6,000 bonds yesterday.

Merchants Busy as Autumn Chill Brings Out Shoppers

Chicagoans awoke yesterday morning with their suspicion of the previous day, that fall was upon them fully confirmed. Wives dug among mothballs in cedar chests and produced their husbands' topcoats with, it is safe to assume, the remark: "You're not going to wear this thing another season, are you?" and followed it up with: "I know I have to have a new one."

All this had its reflection in the aspect of State street and store interiors yesterday. While merchants assumed expressions of cheerfulness shopping crowds tied up traffic in the loop and packed the stores.

Elevator starters enjoyed again their old importance as they shunted crowds hither and thither. There seemed to be a certain relish to their oft-repeated cry of: "That's all, please! Next car, please!" And elevator girls echoed: "Stand back in the car, please!"

Explaining Hat Styles.

In a hat department, one saleswoman was heard to say to another: "It's the first time in a long time the customers have been complaining because of not getting waited on!" Then she turned to her customer and said, "They're all like that, ma'am, funny looking and off the face. They give you that astonished look. Still, the old style looks worse than these now!"

In the basement of one department store a group of women pressed around the blanket and quilt salesmen. Sales of men's overcoats and women's and children's coats also were brisk Friday and yesterday, it was reported. Scotch tweeds, covert cloths in green, gray, blue, and tan, and camel's hair overcoats are in demand for fall wear.

Short fur jackets or boleros combining with one piece wool dresses are smart for women's fall sports wear. Sports coats in cloth are a few inches above the dress, which is of the length known as "upper calf length," and dress coats are just below the dress hem. Long fur coats in princess lines, with flares, and novel cuff and sleeve effects, are being shown for winter, as well as sports coats of three-quarter lengths.

Wool Fabrics Popular.

In one department store, sales in sports dresses and moderate priced dresses yesterday exceeded those of the corresponding day last year. Light weight wool leads in fabrics. Russian tunics and tight fitting peplums are popular. Black and white leads; next comes brown, and third, red. These include burgundy, which is carried out in suede shoes, suede handbags, suede gloves and hats.

Whatever the cold snap had to do with it was not made clear, but one saleswoman reported a demand for evening dresses. Evening and other dresses, it was noted, are more sophisticated this year. Fur is used to trim many of them, as well as paillettes—little round decorations our grandmothers sewed on their close fitting jackets.

In men's wear, one fashion note must be made known: that of the pajama suit, corresponding to the tea gown pajamas worn by women. The men's are made of luxurious satin-back crêpe, and the coats are transformed into blouses.

CHICAGO WILL BE MECCA OF CHAIN STORE LEADERS

Third Annual Session to Open Monday.

Chicago will be the Mecca this week of representatives of the country's leading chain stores, who will be here to attend the third annual convention of the National Chain Store association.

The meetings will open tomorrow at the Palmer house and are to continue through Wednesday with a number of nationally known speakers scheduled to discuss the problems of chain store merchandising and their solutions.

Silas Strawn to Speak.

Silas Strawn, chairman of the board of Montgomery Ward & Co. and former president of the American Bar association, will be the guest speaker tomorrow.

He will be followed by Alvin E. Dodd, assistant to the president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., who will discuss "What is ahead for the chain store industry?"

"What will be the result of chain store baiting?" will be asked and answered in an address by William Nelson Taft, editor of the Philadelphia Retail Ledger.

J. C. Penney to Speak.

On Tuesday A. S. Dudley, president of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, will discuss "Chambers of Commerce and the Chain Store," and J. C. Penney, chairman of the board of the J. C. Penney company, will speak on "The Chain Stores as Citizens."

Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general of the United States, will be the guest speaker on Tuesday.

Wednesday sessions will be devoted to business and election of officers.

Diamond Cutters' Jobs Now Scarce, Survey Shows

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANTWERP, Sept. 27.—At the international diamond committee meeting here today it was revealed that 50 per cent of the Belgian and German diamond cutters are out of jobs, while 75 per cent of the workers in the Dutch industry are jobless. In France, it is reported, the work is at zero.

$4,000,000 BANK IN CUBA CLOSES; FEAR FAILURE

HAVANA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Bank of Commerce, a $4,000,000 institution, closed its doors today "for readjustment," and despite announcement that it would reopen Monday indications tonight were it would be unable to do so.

Government aid to enable the bank to resume business promptly had been anticipated, but as yet no word has come from President Machado to indicate he will authorize such assistance. Carlos Miguel de Cespedes, secretary of public works, and one of the more important depositors at the Bank of Commerce, said he felt certain the president would return here some time tonight or early tomorrow to investigate the situation.

Reassured by this a number of the largest depositors, including leaders in the sugar and tobacco industries, prominent merchants and real estate men, called a conference and issued a statement expressing their confidence.

CONFIDENCE WILL CURE BUSINESS, DAWES INSISTS

"Man Without Hope Is a Fool," He Says.

BY ROBERT SAYERS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, Ireland, Sept. 27.—"Nothing is more certain than coming business recovery."

This prediction was made here today by Ambassador Charles G. Dawes at a civic luncheon during his visit to Ulster. In his talk on world trade depression the ambassador said that "the business fool in 1929 was the one who had no fear. The fool today is the one who has no hope."

The guests at the luncheon included Prime Minister Viscount Craigavon and Lieut. Gen. Sir Travers Clarke.

General Attitude Changes.

"In this center of worldwide business, the city of Belfast," Gen. Dawes said, "I may properly briefly discuss the present worldwide industrial trade depression cause and its probable duration, since, as everywhere else, it is having its serious local effect. World depression in business is due always to a sudden change in the attitude of the world's people. This changed attitude is often explained in different countries as being the result of diverse cause, including unwise national policies, undue speculation, overproduction, underconsumption, political or social upheavals.

"These, however, are more the effects of the change of the general attitude than the causes of it. It is often easier to conclude that one catastrophe or error in business is the cause of the following one rather than that both originate from one underlying cause. In the United States, for instance, as well as elsewhere, major depression of business has always been preceded a few months before by a stock panic, induced by overspeculation. Nothing more could be untrue.

"Many have assumed that the collapse of the stock market was the cause of the later depression. Many have assumed, too, that this correct forecasting of business trends by stock speculators is evidence of the composite intelligence of the speculating class.

Loss of Confidence.

"The truth is that the stock market depression and the following business depression are both caused by the same thing—a fundamental change in the attitude of the average man resulting from a sudden loss of confidence on his part, the first public manifestation occurs on the stock exchange.

"Let us consider the fundamental cause. After a hectic period induced by the regrettable combination of overconfidence and misdirected energy reaction and a return to normalcy of things causes the first collapse of business, then a period of stagnation, and then a period of recuperation.

Sees Normal Times in 1931.

"We know that in a general way under the law of action and reaction the periods of underactivity of business are somewhat proportional to the length of the periods of activity preceding them. That time is considerably over a year behind us when the public suddenly turned over from that exhilaration and that confidence in the future which is the basis of prosperity to that lack of confidence which is the basis of business depression.

"I don't think the business of the world left its normal trend earlier than 1927, two years before the collapse of prices in 1929 on the leading stock exchanges of most nations. If I am right, this and other things being equal, may we not hope that a normal trend of world business will be resumed by the summer or fall of next year, which will mark the end of the after two year period?

"Exceptional local conditions may in this or that country advance or return the healing effect of returning world business confidence, but nothing is more certain than the coming business recovery. The business fool of 1929 was he who had no fear. The fool now is he who has no hope."

7,000 CHINESE SLAIN; THOUSANDS OF GIRLS KIDNAPED FOR RANSOM

PEIPING, Sept. 27.—[U. P.]—Seven thousand persons have been killed, more than 100 villages and towns have been captured and looted, and thousands of women and girls have been carried off for ransom, according to reliable reports from Honan province.

Twelve separate bandit gangs, under powerful leaders, have ravaged most of the districts in the province which were not occupied by the armies of Feng Yu-Hsiang, the Christian general, the reports indicate. Many districts were isolated for weeks, and the news is just beginning to come out.

In the Yuhsien district alone two bandit gangs captured 48 villages, looted and burned them all, and carried off 1,100 persons for ransom. The bandits seemed to go almost insane as the orgy of killing and looting progressed. They destroyed for the pleasure of destroying, even burning down the growing grain in the fields.

Execute 4 Mexico Bandits, Terror of District 20 Years

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 27.—Four bandits, guilty of numerous outrages, were executed yesterday in the small village of Jalpa, state of Zacatecas, by a firing squad after capture by the local militia. The men had been terrorizing the district for 20 years.

PAY ROLL MESSENGER ROBBED.

John Horky, pay roll messenger for the Mapes & Sprowl Steel corporation, 817 West 22d street, was robbed of $131 and his car by a bandit near the company offices yesterday.

With Hats
"OFF the FACE"

All eyes are turned
"ON the FACE"

ONE cannot afford to look anything but young and exceedingly lovely every minute of the time, in this year of "face." The new hats, with their shallow crowns, are worn far back on the head, and nary a hair is permitted to furnish a flattering touch to the forehead. The face is the thing—and it must be flawlessly fresh—free of fatigue lines—always.

Before you buy your new hat, visit the Elizabeth Arden Salons, and have an expertly trained attendant give you one of Miss Arden's famous face treatments. Your skin will be thoroughly cleansed—and that is so important. Every line of worry, age, or fatigue will be carefully erased. Skin blemishes that have no place in this era of elegance, will be removed. If there is a sign of "crêpey-ness" in your chin, it will disappear. Your face will glow thrillingly with new vitality and loveliness. Then you will be ready to buy that new off-the-face hat and face the world with the poise of the "bien soignée."

For an appointment at the hour you prefer, please telephone Superior 6952.

PRATT CONSIDERS PLAN TO REDUCE NAVY PERSONNEL

Some Ships and Admirals Also May Go.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Admiral William V. Pratt, the new chief of naval operation, is considering a new operating plan in the navy which would cut down the enlisted personnel slightly during the fiscal year beginning next July 1. The plan contemplates also a reduction in numbers of ships in commission during the next year and it is possible it will result in cutting down the number of admirals afloat by one or two.

Consideration of the new operating plan was begun by Admiral Pratt immediately after he succeeded Admiral Charles F. Hughes as chief of operations. While house pressure for economy during the next two years together with the ratifications of the London naval treaty are the major factors responsible for the development of reorganization plans.

Decline to Discuss Plans.

While Admiral Pratt and other naval officers have declined to discuss the preliminary plans for navy reorganization under the treaty it is known that consideration is being given to cutting down the size of the control and base for cost now maintained. It is also possibly the size of the special service squadron maintained in Caribbean waters may be reduced by one vessel. The major part of the fleet will be maintained on the Pacific coast as the battle fleet. The scouting fleet, made up mostly of 8 inch gun cruisers and destroyers, will remain on the Atlantic.

No details regarding the number of enlisted men to be cut has been made known.

Chicago Will Be Flagship.

Under next year's operating plan the new 10,000 ton 8 inch gun Chicago will be the flagship for the United States fleet. This vessel will be completed late this fiscal year and turned over to Admiral J. V. Chase, commander of the fleet, next July. It will take the place of the battleship Texas. The 10,000 ton Northampton will act as flagship for the scouting fleet, beginning at once.

Another of the 10,000 ton cruisers will be sent to Asiatic waters to replace the armored cruiser Pittsburgh. If present plans go through five of the 8 inch gun cruisers which the navy will have in operation at the close of this fiscal year will be kept with the scouting fleet. Virtually all of the ten 6 inch gun cruisers of the Omaha class will be assigned to the battle fleet for use in the fleet screen and for the protection of the aircraft carriers.

The army economy program for the current year has been submitted to President Hoover. It calls for retrenchments amounting to between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000. The navy's cuts will run closer to $30,000,000.

Flyer Dies When His Plane Crashes at Air Festival

Rapid City, S. D., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Claude Wilbur, Belle Fourche aviator, died this afternoon from injuries received in a plane crash while stunting at an air festival here.

'31 ARMS PARLEY FAILURE SPUR TO BIGGER U. S. NAVY

Experts in Favor of 10 Year Program.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Official Washington declined comment today on the failure of the disarmament committee of the assembly of the league of nations yesterday to instruct the league council to call a general arms conference in 1931. In unofficial circles, however, it was freely predicted that the coldness of the league to an early disarmament move coupled with the failure of France and Italy to reach an agreement on a new naval cut would influence the administration to support a larger naval authorization bill this winter than would have been the case if a new naval parley had been scheduled.

Expect Hoover's Approval.

Officials close to the President expressed the opinion that Mr. Hoover would approve a fairly large authorization bill which if enacted into law would permit the United States to build up to the maximum tonnage limits permitted by the treaty in the most important types of warships. The view expressed was that the chances for further cuts in 1935 when the London treaty powers meet again would be enhanced if the United States had at least a large paper program.

It was recalled in this connection that during the senate consideration of the London treaty several of the American delegates emphasized that the United States was handicapped at London because it had not built warships and had allowed the fleet to deteriorate.

Ten Year Program Favored.

Discussing the building program which the general board and Secretary of the Navy Adams are preparing for submission to the President, the Army and Navy Register today predicts the program will be based on a ten year period of construction. It asserted tat Secretary Adams and Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, favor a longer program than one which would take the fleet up to the expiration of the pact in 1936.

"They believe a more practical plan would be to agree upon a ten year program," this service publication states. "This would mean more orderly building and in addition it would give the navy time to test out new types. Admiral Pratt has suggested a possible program which would call for an expenditure of $1,071,000,000 in ten years and would include replacement of battleships after 1936."

THOUSANDS SEE 36TH BIG ROCK PLOW CONTEST

Several thousand farmers of the Aurora-Joliet region gathered yesterday at Big Rock to watch 30 plowmen compete in the 36th annual Big Rock plowing contest.

The results of the contests were not altogether satisfying to loyal Big Rock fans, since two of the principal prizes went to plowmen from the rival village of Wheatland. They were Homer Lapp, driving horses, and Carl Shoger in the farm tractor class. Ray Lewis of Big Rock won the tractor event in which entries were limited to previous years' winners.

The contest is one of the leading annual events in the community. Years ago it was the custom for the contestants to plow while attired in frock coats and silk hats.

ITALY TELLS HOW FRENCH INSIST ON SEA POWER RACE

Break Up Naval Talk by Huge Tonnage Demand.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 27.—Stoutly maintaining that it was not responsible for the rupture of the Franco-Italian conversations seeking a naval accord, Rome for the first time reveals the nature of the new proposals which had been put forth by Italian experts as a basis for compromising the parity question between the French and Italian fleets. These proposals have hitherto been kept secret.

When Minister Rizzi and several other Italian naval experts went to Paris to resume discussions with Count Rene Massigli in an effort to reach a basis on which an accord could be reached with France, he presented the parity project based on the number of units in the two fleets rather than on tonnage.

Would Overshadow British.

The knot in the problem hitherto had arisen over France's claim for over 700,000 tons of warships as its absolute need. Had Italy, in her claims to parity, built up to this the combined tonnage of the two nations would have disturbed the status quo in the Mediterranean with respect to the British fleet.

The Rizzi project, however, according to the revelations now made, apparently was to enable the French through larger ships, to have the edge on tonnage while not exceeding the Italian fleet in units.'

The Italian announcement says that this proposal was at first considered as a possible solution by the French experts and conversations continued with such optimism that reports grew at Geneva that the much desired accord had been reached.

French Evolve Counter Plan.

Then suddenly, according to Rome's announcement, the French presented new counter proposals (about which nothing definite has hitherto been published) which were based on construction programs up until 1936 and which would give France, in all categories of ships allotted, 50 per cent more tonnage than that of Italy.

The Italian delegation could not consider the French proposal and conversations were interrupted, concludes the announcement.

Meanwhile the press here prints elaborate disclaimers that Italy was responsible for the breakup of the parleys, maintaining that her conduct has been consistent all along with Premier Mussolini's formula of willingness to limit Italy's fleet to that of the strongest other European power.

It was denied here again that Italy's naval aspirations represent merely prestige or that there has been a divergence of viewpoint between Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Grandi as suggested in French circles.

Plan to Increase Fleet.

At the same time official quarters indicate that Italy will proceed to build up her fleet to parity with the French and that the Mediterranean armament race thereby entailed will be forced on her in the interests of her own defense. Something like 55,000 tons of warships are either authorized or being built in Italian yards at the present. The fact that Italy is in an armament race with France, which will possibly jeopardize the three power pact reached at London last spring, appears to be openly accepted here and all hints that financial obstacles are in the way causes only irritation.

DU PAGE COUNTY VOTERS TO FILL 4 NEW OFFICES

Du Page county will vote on candidates for four new county offices at the November election. The offices are: Probate judge, clerk of the Probate court, county recorder of deeds, and county auditor. Under the state law a county must have a population of 75,000 before holding an election for these offices. The 1930 census gives Du Page county a population of 91,000.

Due to the fact that returns from the 1930 census were not obtainable in time for the primary election, candidates for the new offices must be listed under a party that is not represented on the regular ballot. Voting for the new offices will be done on a special ballot. When the filing of candidacies was ended on Wednesday twenty candidates, representing five new parties, had signified their intention of running for the new offices.

ROB REALTY OFFICE AND STORE.

Three colored bandits yesterday held up Miss Jane Callahan, cashier in a real estate office at 4654 South State street, and escaped with $500. The same bandits locked Archie Stein, a grocer, in the icebox of his store at 119 East 47th street and escaped with $190.

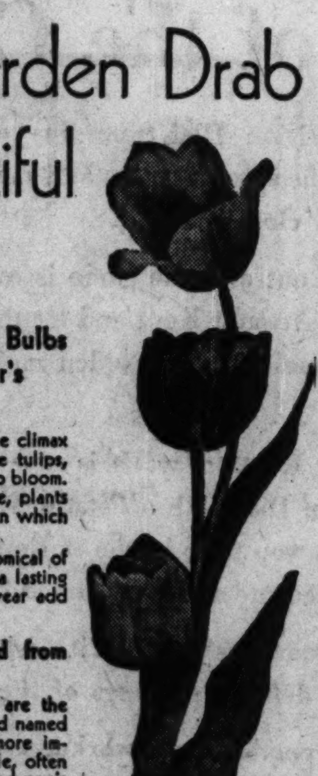
Is Your Garden Drab in the Beautiful Spring?



Only One in Three Plants Bulbs and Perennials for the Year's Most Brilliant Season

MOST garden lovers agree that the climax of beauty has passed when the tulips, peonies, and irises have ceased to bloom, and yet only one garden owner in three, plants in the fall the bulbs and perennials upon which the spring garden wholly depends.

The purchase of bulbs is the most economical of garden investments. A bulb garden is a lasting garden and expenditures from year to year add permanently to its beauty.

Vaughan's Bulbs Have Arrived from Holland

Vaughan's bulbs and perennial plants are the lasting kind, aristocrats of fine strains and named varieties. The smaller a garden, the more important its quality. Fine strains cost little, often no more. It is poor economy to expend one's labor, land and fertilizer on inferior crops.

Since 1876 most of the merchandise sold by Vaughan's Seed Store has been bought by professional florists and private estate gardeners who have expert knowledge of quality and insist upon values. All our goods are chosen to meet their requirements, and if you buy them and use them as we direct, your garden can be of professional quality.

A Rainbow Garden of Tulips for $2.

This year we have a higher value in this famous collection, which is the pride of every garden in which it grows. We offer fifty bulbs, five each of ten named varieties, of May-flowering Darwin, Cottage and Breeder strains, all first size bulbs, postpaid to 300 miles for $2. These are the giant flowered, soft colored, tall, graceful late tulips, in a brilliant, artistic color blend. Two dollars never bought more of beauty.

Home Garden Grade of Darwin Tulips, Bedding Size, $2.50 per 100

These imported bulbs of a special grade, are all named varieties and of flowering size for outdoor planting, but not recommended for forcing. They were especially selected by our Dutch growers for this offer. All mixtures are carefully prepared with even balance of different varieties. Supplied in the following assortments:

Mixed, Lavender, Red, Pink and Yellow tones. All at doz., 35c; 100, $2.50.

Peonies, Irises and Other Perennials.

Peonies and irises should be planted soon. Beautiful, free-flowering named varieties may be purchased here as low as 50 cents a plant for peonies, 35 cents for irises. All perennials which can be planted in the fall are here, grown in our own greenhouses.

Ask for Our Fall Catalog.

It illustrates, describes and prices, all seeds, bulbs and plants which can be planted in the fall. Cultural directions are given for everything listed. Special feature articles on "The Modern Peonies and Irises," "Tulips for Color-scheme Borders," "Bulbs for the Rock Garden," "How to Succeed with Bulbs." Also, for those who wish it, our Special Nursery Catalog of Trees and Shrubs. Free by mail or at our stores.

BRITISH WORKERS TO DIVIDE THEIR JOBS WITH IDLE

Expected to Place ...,000 Unemployed.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27.—On the eve of the imperial conference, which is scheduled to open here next Wednesday to thresh out political and economic problems of the British empire, Great Britain is making a great effort to solve her own local problems.

Close on the heels of warnings from three business leaders in separate speeches yesterday of dangers ahead in Great Britain's rapidly mounting expenditures and taxation and of the need for immediate retrenchment and economy, it became known today that a practical plan for reducing unemployment by spreading existing work among the greatest possible number of workers is under discussion between officials of the Federation of British Industries and the trades union congress.

Reduce Hours of Work.

The first section of the new proposal would ban all overtime work in plants controlled by members of the federation. The second section reduces the number of hours worked per week all around so as to allow the engagement of more workers. The employers promise to maintain the standard wage rates for the time actually worked.

It is estimated that in this way work can be found for five hundred thousand of the more than two million unemployed. It is calculated that at least one million workers are now earning an average of $5 weekly by overtime. This alone would mean work for more than 250,000 of those at present.

The proposal to reduce the hours of work has already been voluntarily adopted in some trades. A few days ago the London bus combine announced the discharge of 250 men as the beginning of a drastic reduction scheme. Today it was announced that the workers for the company have voluntarily agreed to reduce the hours of work from 48 to 40 in order to avoid discharges.

Attacks Installment Buying.

In a speech yesterday at the Sheffield conference of the Society of Incorporated Accountants and Auditors, Hewitson Nelson, past president of the society, pointed out that Great Britain's national expenditure has more than quadrupled since 1914; that the income tax has increased by $27 per head and that local rates have increased by more than $11 per head.

"One of the supreme difficulties of the hour," Mr. Nelson said, "is that the new standard of living created in the boom period is still tenaciously clinging to our people, and it is largely ministered to by installment buying, especially of luxury articles and nonessentials."

Although many advocates defended "consumers' credit," Mr. Nelson said that the recent experiences in America would not be without a salutary warning to other countries.

William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, declared at Carlisle that British taxation at $75 or $80 per head was undoubtedly the world's heaviest. During the last two years the income of 10,000,000 people has been reduced by at least $3,500,000,000 per year. British trade, he said, has encountered a "first class economic storm."

Points to U. S. Competition.

Foreign countries and other parts of the British empire, Mr. Graham said, are building up their own industries and the United States is rapidly penetrating Canada, Australia, and other parts of the British commonwealth. The crisis demands a sacrifice in the form of a redirection of expenditure from all classes in the community.

Sir Basil Blackett, a director of the Bank of England, in a speech at Buxton deplored the fact that the people are not saving as they did previously. "The world as a whole is not storing up capital as fast as it ought," said Sir Basil. He also emphasized that practically everybody, including perhaps Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, realized that direct taxation has passed far beyond its natural limits.

"Twilight of the Empire."

"Twilight of the Empire" is the title of an article in the Tory Weekly Review regarding the imperial conference, which opens here next Wednesday. The article is designed to prove that the Labor party is selling out Great Britain's imperial heritage and is purely partisan, but it suggests consideration of what is really happening. There is no doubt that the old empire builders would agree that the empire is very much in its twilight and that night is close at hand. Instead of a mother country surrounded by its docile children, the meeting which begins next week will be of eight nations, all equal and all insisting on equality. Some of them will press it almost to the breaking point. South Africa is supported in this by Ireland, and it is reported that even Australia will insist on an explicit declaration of the right of secession.

Far more important than this, however, for the right of secession is merely academic at present, will be the economic discussions which will take place at the conference. Great Britain will seek from the dominions some sort of an effective preference for its trade in dominion markets. The trouble is that at present it has nothing to give in return.

The "empire free traders," who are really high protectionists, advocate taxes on foreign food in order to grant a preference to food from the dominions. The Labor party is unalterably opposed to food taxes, and is supported by the Liberals.

On the other hand, Great Britain is requesting from the dominions a preference on its manufactured articles. The dominions are willing enough to grant a theoretical preference over foreign goods, but they are taking care to make the tariff high enough to shut out British goods in any case if they compete with dominion manufactures. This is clearly illustrated in the new Canadian tariff, which is directed just as much against Great Britain as against the United States.

PRIZES ARE OFFERED AGAIN FOR TRAILING HIDDEN WANT ADS

Armchair sleuths are directed to the want ad section of today's TRIBUNE, where is revived, by popular request, the feature contest of the Hidden Want Ads, which last year proved one of the most popular contests THE TRIBUNE had ever conducted. A total of $100 is offered in prizes.

On page 9, part 6, of today's edition will be found a page advertisement detailing the rules of the contest and easily identifiable by a cartoon which illustrates the heading of some want ad section. Tracing the clew in this cartoon the reader will find another clew in the section hinted at and further clews will lead him a lively chase over the entire section. Not less than 10 nor more than 15 clews can be found.

These must be arranged in their proper order, pasted on a blank in the full page advertisement, and mailed to "Hidden Want Ads," THE TRIBUNE, for consideration by the contest judges. The winners of today's contest will be announced two weeks from today. Nineteen prizes will be given.

PRINCES SUPPORT IDEA OF INDIA AS BRITISH DOMINION

Would Abolish 567 States Studding Peninsula.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27—One of the most serious problems coming before the Indian conference, which meets here in November, is that of Indian native states which nominally are independent and which owe their existence to treaties with the king emperor and have no connection with the government of British Indian.

There are 567 of these states, varying in size from one square mile with an annual revenue of $37.50 yearly to states as big as England with millions of inhabitants and revenues of $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 yearly.

All these are theoretically sovereign states, but in practice their independence varies in accordance with treaties made at different times.

As the rights of all these states depend on treaties they cannot be withdrawn except by mutual consent and even the smallest state cannot be coerced into a federated India against its wish.

The chamber of princes, which includes all the most important native states, has declared in favor of a federated dominion for India, but has only indicated in the vaguest way what machinery such federation should be.

The idea of creating a federal India to get rid of the anamoly of the two Indias, one British and one non-British when India itself presents a geographical whole, was suggested as far back as 1918 in the Montagu-Chelmsford report. The idea was taken up in greater detail by the Simon commission, and in its recommendations last June concrete proposals were made for federalizing India.

The so-called spiritual side of Mahatma Gandhi's movement has made less appeal to the princes, who are mostly hard boiled landlords and business men, and who viewed with some fear Gandhi's subversive doctrines.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all rest where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retainer-Simplex (Patent No. 747247, No. 1237709 and other patents pending)—a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days in the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method or operations and producing results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) especially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injection, medical treatment or prescriptions with distinguished personal patrons of all nations. *See Booklet on "The Fallacy of Surgical Procedure." MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATS ASK DRY LAW REPEAL

Republican Plank Is Dry with Reservations.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Republicans of Massachusetts straddled the prohibition question and the Democrats went on record for repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead law as both parties met in state conventions here today and adopted platforms.

Although the Republican prohibition plank included several strong dry statements it also contained sufficient sop to wets to make the whole statement a middle ground proposition with a touch of dampness. It was adopted with the rest of the platform by acclaim and threatened bolts from wet and dry extremists failed to materialize, thus allaying the only possibility of party discord.

Five Major Points.

As adopted the plank makes five major points in the party's stand on the liquor question, including: Reaffirmation of the 1928 national convention for enforcement of all laws; indorsement of President Hoover's views that all citizens have the right to work for the repeal of the laws they cannot believe in; a statement that the party has always opposed the saloon, but the Democrats have not; a suggestion that the report of the Wickersham committee will throw light on a proper solution of the prohibition question; and finally an assertion that when the will of the people is definitely registered it should be carried out, but until then the party is not obliged to discuss referenda subjects in its platform.

Democrats Definitely Wet.

The Democratic wet plank is as definite as the Republican is vague and carried a last minute rider to the effect that the party will not countenance the return of the saloon.

Opening with the statement that the balance between state and nation guaranteed by the constitution is believed to have been "seriously impaired by the 18th amendment and the Volstead law," the plank states:

"We, therefore, to preserve our dual sovereignties, and to end the appalling orgy of crime and corruption, favor the repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and the restoration to each state of the authority to deal with the liquor problem in accordance with the mandate of the citizens. Pending the repeal of the 18th amendment, we favor the re-defining by congress of the word 'intoxicant' as used in said amendment, so as to permit each state constitutionally to exercise jurisdiction within its own borders on the question."

The plank wound up with the recommendation that Massachusetts citizens vote for the repeal of the state enforcement law next month in the belief that "such repeal will not result in any greater lawlessness than exists today, and that it is necessary as an effective protest."

WOMEN QUIT G. O. P., MRS. ROSS DECLARES; 'RECOGNITION' DENIED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Women in increasing numbers are deserting the Republican party for the Democratic fold, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming and vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, asserted today on her return from a political tour. She charged that Republican women were disgruntled because the party leaders had accorded them only "negligible recognition."

Mrs. Ross said that under the administrations of Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, the Republican party has failed to include women, in any just degree, in the administration of government. She added that dissatisfaction with the attitude of the Republican Presidents would be one of the factors in swinging several doubtful states to the Democratic column in the congressional elections this fall.

"Even partisan Republican women have given both public and private expression to their dissatisfaction with the attitude their party has shown in ignoring women, and no matter how much the Republicans may try to suppress further expressions of like import from leading Republican women they have already spoken," Mrs. Ross said.

WANT NEW YORK TO MAKE TAXIS PUBLIC UTILITY

Walker Group Urges City Control.

New York, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Establishment of the city's taxicab industry as a public utility under the jurisdiction of a bureau of taxicab control in the board of transportation is recommended in a report made public today by Mayor Walker's commission on taxicabs.

The report recommends operation under a system of certificates of public convenience and necessity to be issued by the new bureau to individuals and organizations who comply with strict standards of financial responsibility and public safety outlined in the report.

The report voices the commission's strong conviction that the ultimate solution of the taxicab problem is operation under a single franchise in coöperation with all other rapid transit agencies. It urges that its recommendations be carried out under a program which has this goal in view.

Among other things the report recommends restriction of the number of cabs operating on the city's streets, adoption of the prevailing rate of 15 cents for the first quarter mile and 5 cents for each succeeding quarter, as a uniform rate.

The report also recommends preservation of the police department's power to issue and revoke drivers' licenses and hack licenses, and the raising of annual license fees for cabs to $50 and those for drivers to $10 a year.

GROESBECK WINS SUIT FOR CLOSER VOTE RECOUNT

Ruling Further Tangles Michigan Politics.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The result of the Sept. 9 primary in which Attorney General Brucker apparently defeated former Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, was further confused today when the Michigan Supreme court granted Groesbeck a writ of mandamus to force the state board of canvassers to make certain changes in procedure in conducting a statewide recount.

The court held the canvassers erroneously had refused to recount the ballots in more than 800 ballot boxes, and these boxes must be returned to Lansing for this purpose.

Progress of the recount was halted Thursday noon on account of the Republican convention in Grand Rapids which many engaged in the recount work wished to attend. The court had already granted a restraining order to prevent the canvassers from certifying a nominee until the tribunal had ruled on the several contested issues presented in the mandamus action.

Groesbeck Far Behind.

When the count was halted only 114 precincts remained for consideration, with Groesbeck showing a net gain of only 93 votes. Brucker had a plurality of 4,726 in the official canvassed returns.

The board of canvassers was rebuked as having "misconceived its duties in some respects."

In order to maintain the principle that the voters' intent shall be respected, the court holds that the board should not have rejected for recount large numbers of ballot boxes because the number of ballots in the boxes did not correspond with the number of voters as shown by the poll lists. This boxes must be returned and sufficient ballots be removed from the boxes by a duly authorized blindfolded person to make the number tally with the poll books.

Brucker Wins a Point.

The count refused to throw out the vote of precincts where the ballots or voting machines were not "rotated." The holding on this point distinctly benefits Brucker, as Groesbeck would have gained over 3,500 votes, it is claimed, had all precincts been thrown out where rotating was not practiced. The court held that the voter could not be penalized for the oversights of negligent election officials.

Brucker adherents here could see no material benefit for the Groesbeck camp in the decision. They pointed out that the ratio of errors in the boxes not yet counted will probably not vary widely from that established in the completed tabulation, and that Groesbeck cannot conceivably make sufficient gains to overcome the Brucker plurality.

Brucker himself declared the decision, which was signed by all eight Supreme justices, "most fair and favorable."

Deaf Hear Again Through New Aid

Earpiece No Bigger Than Dime Wins Enthusiastic Following Ten-Day Free Trial Offer

After twenty-five years devoted exclusively to the manufacture of scientific hearing aids, the Dictograph Products Co., Inc., Dept. 508M, 180 North Michigan Blvd., Chicago, Ill., has just perfected a new model Acousticon that represents the greatest advance yet made in the re-creation of hearing for the deaf. This latest Acousticon is featured by a tiny earpiece no bigger than a dime. Through this device, sounds are clearly and distinctly transmitted to subnormal ears, with wonderful benefit to hearing and health alike. The makers offer an absolutely free trial for 10 days to any person who may be interested, and a letter will bring one of these remarkable aids to your home for a thorough and convincing test. Send them your name and address today.

SEYMOUR FACES PERJURY CHARGE, NYE INDICATES

Will Trace Contributions to Grocer Norris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Arrest of Victor Seymour, the resigned Republican senatorial employé, on perjury charges in connection with the candidacy of George W. Norris, Broken Bow grocer, in the Nebraska primary was indicated as probable today by Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], chairman of the senate campaign expenditures committee.

Senator Nye returned today from Nebraska and announced that United States District Attorney Sandall of Omaha was prepared to proceed against Seymour on information developed by the committee at its recent hearing in Lincoln.

Trace Checks, Liberty Bond.

Seven checks Seymour is reported to have received from New York as well as a $500 Liberty bond he gave Grocer Norris are being traced, Senator Nye said.

Seymour, who is charged with promoting the candidacy of Grocer Norris as a scheme to defeat Senator George W. Norris by confusing the voters, resigned yesterday as assistant vice chairman of the Republican national senatorial campaign committee in charge of western regional headquarters at Denver, Colo.

"Biggest Scandal."

In the opinion of Senator Nye vast sums of money were sent from the east to foster the Seymour program to put the unknown Norris in the field. Some investigators are of the opinion that the source of such contributions is the "power trust," although Senator Nye said today he would not be surprised to find that the Liberty bond came from the Continental Oil corporation, which gave Will Hays Liberty bonds some years ago to wipe out the Republican national committee deficit.

"This is the biggest scandal the committee has uncovered and the surface has only been scratched," Senator Nye said. "While we have only found that Seymour received seven checks from January to July from New York amounting to $7,000 and a $500 Liberty bond, we are satisfied that a vast sum was poured into Nebraska by the interests to defeat Senator Norris."

Miss Bankhead May Star in Hollywood for 3 Years

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Tallulah Bankhead, noted American theatrical star, will probably go to Hollywood for a three year engagement. She has been offered a big contract to appear in films and she is expected to return to America as soon as the run of "Let Us Be Gay," in which she is appearing in London, ends.

Why does Big Business choose the Autopoint?

The reason furnishes a tip on what pencil you'll like best!

BEFORE you buy a pencil—think a moment! What about firms whose pencil purchases run into hundreds of dollars? How do they decide?

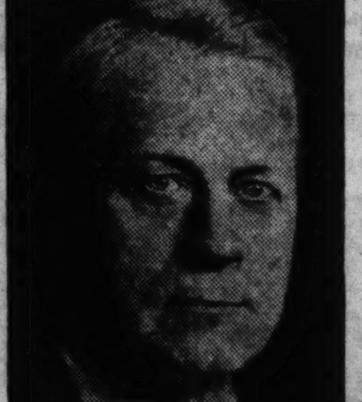
American business buys Autopoint pencils by the thousands to use as "remembrance" advertising. Without a doubt, Autopoint is the leading pencil used for this purpose.

Certainly your dollar is worth just as much to you as the larger sums are to big business firms. So why not get as much for your dollar as they do for theirs?

Autopoint is the answer. Autopoint wins everyone because it is so sturdy and foolproof. Its mechanism is simplest of all. Only one moving part. It is easy to refill an Autopoint.

The beauty of Autopoint's Bakelight barrel will appeal to you. This handsome onyx-like material is light in weight but strong. Drop an Autopoint, knock it—it won't break.

See Autopoint at your stationer's. He has a wide range of styles and models in color combinations to suit your fancy. Prices range from 50c to $4. If by any chance you have trouble finding Autopoints, write us. We'll see that you get an opportunity to look them over.



Reavis Jackson, General Western Freight and Passenger Agent, Munson Steamship Line.

Munson Steamship Line uses Autopoints

"We have used the Autopoint Pencil for some years to attract prospective passengers and shippers of freight," says Reavis Jackson, western agent. "Autopoints excel in attractiveness, durability, efficiency, and in personality."

Who else lives at The Shoreland and Why?

Hotel Shoreland quickly became part of Chicago's tradition—an important institution—because Chicagoans of importance made it their hotel-home.

Exactingly high standards of service—a new note in hotel character—rooms, suites, apartments that sounded a new era in hotel living—all contributed to give The Shoreland prestige and recognition.

And yet—to many it was Chicago's premier South Side Hotel. For Chicago then was "zone conscious."

Then came May 3rd. The amazing Outer Drive was opened. The Shoreland moved closer to the city-center. With all its charm of Lake-front and country-home location—it moved within 10 minutes of the "Loop."

"North Siders" were astonished. Now Shoreland became their own. For now Shoreland spelled "convenience" plus beauty of location, imposing structure, meticulous service—plus outstanding Character—the last word in hostelrics.

So today those who value a clean, wholesome, refined environment—who want smartness and refined elegance in appointments, with an alert and dignified management—those who seek and demand the best in hotel-living—have found Value in the truest sense at Hotel Shoreland!

POPE TO LEAVE VATICAN TO BLESS MISSION COLLEGE

Cardinal Mundelein Will Attend Inauguration.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 27.—The next departure of Pope Pius XI. from the Vatican will occur late in November or early in December, when the pontiff will personally participate in the official inauguration of the new college for the propagation of the faith erected on Janiculum hill, close to the Vatican, through funds largely raised in a loan floated by Cardinal Mundelein in Chicago.

The pope's presence at the ceremonies, it was announced at the Vatican tonight, is practically certain. It was also announced as certain that Cardinal Mundelein will attend.

College Close to Vatican.

The pontiff has not left the Vatican since his unexpected visit to St. John of Lateran when he crossed Rome last December. His visit to the new college building will be easy. The building occupies part of the ground over which extraterritoriality is recognized by the Lateran pact and is only separated from the Vatican by the wall and avenue at the Gate of Cavalleggeri.

The new college replaces the old one at Piazza di Spagna, founded in 1627 by Pope Urban VII., which was designed by Giovanni Bernini, the sculptor. This building has outgrown itself through the growth in the activities of mission students. In the future it will be used only for offices.

Site Cost $2,000,000.

The site of the new building on Janiculum hill was part of the old Villa Gabriella and was purchased by Pope Pius for $2,000,000. The new college for the propagation of the faith will be adjacent to the American college to be erected on an adjoining tract bought by the pope.

The school building of the new college was inaugurated by Cardinal Van Rossum in April, 1928. Already 800 students are in attendance. The building is designed along the lines of American schools and has furnishings made in America. At the same time work was pushed on the main edifice destined for the college, which is now ready for inauguration.

These buildings will cost about $1,000,000. The loan, which is to be liquidated in twenty years, was largely secured through the offerings of the Propaganda Fide in the Chicago archdiocese.

Two years ago the pope desired to show his interest in the Propaganda Fide by personally blessing the corner stone of the new building, but, as the Lateran pact had not yet been accomplished, he did not leave the Vatican. The stone was carried to the Vatican gardens, where the ceremonies took place.

GERMANY TO ASK PAY CUTS FOR ALL PUBLIC OFFICIALS

Bruening Proposes a 5% Reduction.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Public officials of Germany are being called upon for heavy sacrifices in behalf of the burdened taxpayers. Though the cabinet's reform program was not disclosed today, as expected, it is known that the government will propose a compulsory cut of five per cent on all public officials' salaries.

Already the municipality of Breslau has decreed a reduction of salaries of all its 2,235 officials. It will thus avert imposition of further taxes.

Hamburg Officials Cut Pay.

This falls in line with the voluntary surrender of $1,250 by two Hamburn burgomasters and the president of the Hamburg city council from their yearly expense allowances. This money will be used to help feed the poor. Hamburg senators have already given up ten per cent of their salaries.

With the formation of a new cabinet for Brunswick, which includes Fascist participation and which is headed by a school teacher, it is announced that here, too, the program includes slicing ten per cent of public officials' pay, including that of cabinet members.

It is understood that Chancellor Bruening will tell party leaders to "either take or leave" his new financial program, aimed to restore Germany to a condition of economic stability.

Chancellor Out to Win.

If the reichstag should refuse its support, the chancellor will simply ask President Van Hindenburg to adjourn parliament.

Though this program is considered extremely dictatorial, observers say he will find a way to prevent its reconvocation until his program is put into effect.

YOUTH WHO TRIED TO KILL PRINCE GETS 5 YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Sept. 27.—Five years in prison for having attempted to shoot Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, was the verdict the jury rendered today after the three day trial of Fernando de Rosa, 22 year old anti-Fascist. The jury replied "yes" to the question whether De Rosa had intended to kill Prince Humbert.

Throughtout the trial De Rosa insisted that he wanted to shoot the Italian prince for allying himself with the Fascists, who he hates. The jury took into consideration the extenuating circumstances only because the would-be assassin's past was irreproachable.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—A verdict holding "Diamond Lil" Gyette, alias Paralee McNeal, for murder and Jonie Yelm, her bouncer, as an accessory after the fact for shooting Joseph Fisher, 33 years old, reputed bootlegger, early yesterday morning in the woman's resort was returned this afternoon by a coroner's jury.

CENTURIES OLD BLOOD FEUD ENDS IN SONG AND WINE

Two Towns of South Italy Swear Eternal Peace.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 27.—A feud which has lasted for centuries between two communes in Calabria and has cost the lives of numerous people on both sides was brought to an end today with picturesque ceremonies when the inhabitants of the two towns of Stilo and Bivongi agreed to shake hands, bury the hatchet and live peacefully.

The regional inspector of the district of Regio, Deputy Parolari, a war hero, was chiefly instrumental in settling the vendetta.

Original Quarrel Forgotten.

The people of Stilo and Bivongi had long since forgotten what their quarrel was about. It was hidden in the mist of centuries. Arson, homicide and vendettas had seemed to be the only inheritance of the villagers. For years civil and ecclesiastical authorities had sought to end the rivalry.

Sig. Parolari, believing that education and personally courageous action would solve the problem, went to work on the leaders first. Then he got the rank and file of the inhabitants together.

Today the populations of both villages were assembled at the neutral town of Pazzano, about three miles distance from each of the warring towns. All weapons were left at home.

In the public square Msgr. Fiorentini, archbishop of Catanzaro, said mass and sang a Te Deum accompanied by the crowd. Then both sides took an oath to discontinue their vendettas. The town bands played and every one cheered and fell on each other's shoulders. Then Msgr. Fiorentini made an address and called on every one to keep true to the oath they had taken to preserve peace among themselves.

Sig. Parolari then spoke to the people telling them the peace they had sworn to must be eternal. Tonight the former blood foes are dancing and singing together to accordion music in their picturesque costumes and pledging each other in wine.

CHINESE JAILED FOR ELOPEMENT WITH GIRL OF 16

Jim Yong, 21 years old, a Chinese waiter charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor as the result of a runaway marriage with Irene Sinclair, 16 years old, 637 West 69th street, yesterday was fined $200 and sentenced to a year in the Bridewell by Judge Max Luster.

The couple were married last Saturday in Bloomington by Justice Clinton White after they had obtained a license in McLean county by giving the girl's age as 18. They were arrested on complaint of the girl's mother. The girl testified she had been forced into the marriage by Yong who threatened her life if she refused.

Aids Her First Husband; Lands in Bigamy Trouble

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The desire of Mrs. Mary Stewart to nurse her first husband through a serious illness revealed her as a bigamist, and today she was sentenced to two months in prison. Mrs. Stewart married Robert Stewart of Baltimore in December, 1919, and lived with him until a year ago. Last April she married Sylvin Kahn without having obtained a divorce. Several months ago she heard of Stewart's illness and left Kahn to nurse him. Kahn then learned of the earlier marriage and brought charges against her.

the bantam car...smart as a new hat ...thrifty as a housewife

Women find Austin's smart lines appealing, but looking beyond, see something more... the essential good taste of its appropriateness to service.

They value the almost effortless handling that enables them to drive quickly yet without strain... the ease of parking in the tiny curb spaces of the shopping district, where others fear to tread... an economy of operation that saves two-thirds of their usual gasoline, oil, and tire expense.

For the Austin runs forty miles on a gallon of gasoline... costs less than three-quarters of a cent a mile for fuel and tires. So, many families use it as a second car... find that it actually pays for itself by sparing expensive mileage and wear and tear on the bigger car... find they can enjoy two cars at the cost of one.

The cost of the bantam Austin is but $445 at the factory. Let us show it to you at your convenience. Phone or call.

READ WHY ALWART COAL PRICES ARE LOWER

Excerpt of an article appearing in A LEADING COAL JOURNAL, September 20, 1930, as follows:

"COAL BEING SOLD BELOW COST"

"Everyone familiar with the marketing side of the coal business knows that during this entire summer, and, in fact, most of the year, large tonnages of the best grades of coal in the United States have been available to the consumer at ridiculously low prices, and in many cases hundreds of thousands of tons of the very highest quality of fuel were offered below the cost of production, and this condition still exists, although it is likely to be slightly bettered by the approach of fall weather."

MANY CHICAGO BUSINESS HEADS GO TO COLLEGE

U. of C. Night School Has Prominent Students.

A new trend in business has its expression in the increasing numbers of business men who are enrolling as students in the University of Chicago downtown college, which this fall is installed in new headquarters at 18 South Michigan avenue.

Among the students are $50,000 a year executives. Side by side, in some instances, sit executive and employé. Chicago bankers, bond house executives, highly paid advertising agency officials, lawyers, doctors, dentists, and society women are among the students who attend night classes at the college.

Many large industrial and commercial companies, including Montgomery Ward & Co., Western Electric company, and others have adopted the policy of urging their employés to attend the college, according to Dean C. F. Huth of the downtown college.

Should Not Stop Studying.

Bankers and other heads of big corporations in the city, in discussing the matter with Dean Huth, have stressed the fact that they wanted their men to keep on with a program of self-improvement. Employés who are college graduates should not stop studying when they complete their schooling and enter business, they said.

Employés who are not college graduates, reasoned their bosses, would get a good deal more out of life by a liberal education, according to Dean Huth. Whatever bearing their studies had on their practical workaday activity, the tendency seems to be to regard the cultural effect of such studies as beneficial to business, the dean said.

Some executives have said that the farther away from the immediate practical problems of a man's business are the subjects he studies, the better effect his studies will have upon him. It makes for contented employés, in the current belief of successful men.

"Aim to Balance Lives."

"To give an interest in life beyond the bread and butter problem, to balance their lives," was the way one man expressed his purpose in urging his employés to study in the college.

A highly paid advertising executive, prominent in North Shore society, confided in Dean Huth that he felt that a social stigma was placed against him because he did not have a university degree. This man, who had not had a high school training, arranged to be tutored by teachers in a North Shore suburban high school, and to take examinations from the school. The downtown college enrolled him on that qualification and he has almost completed his work for a degree.

Society Women Enroll.

One of the first students to enroll last week, when registration started, was Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, who, for the second year will take art courses. Last year she was a fellow art student with Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. John Paul Welling and Mrs. Howell B. Erminger of 199 Lake Shore drive. Not only society women, but doctors, lawyers, and one well known psychologist were art students last year.

The Chicago section of the American Chemical society has appointed a special educational committee to cooperate in encouraging its members to take advanced courses in the college.

Likewise, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Western Society of Electrical Engineers and affiliated organizations have appointed a committee, headed by Burke Smith of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, to confer with the college on courses desired by the engineers, a large number of whom are expected to enroll this year.

The downtown college staff this year will include the following professors of the university, among others: William Draper Harkins, who received the William Gibbs medal awarded by the American Chemical society in 1928; Robert Morse Lovett, writer and critic; Franz Alexander, visiting professor of psychoanalysis in the department of medicine; Ernest Watson Burgess, well known in Chicago as an authority on crime and its social treatment; William C. Bower, professor of religious education; Ellsworth Faris, sociologist; Dean Shailer Mathews, chairman of the department of systematic theology; H. F. MacNair, writer and professor of far eastern history, and H. H. Newman, author of "The Biology of Twins," and other works.

"Oski-Wow-Wow" uses Iron Fireman. Report of Iron Fireman performance from the installation at the University of Illinois Stadium, Urbana, Illinois, states: (1) Burning a cheaper grade of coal and getting better results; (2) Steady steam pressure with plenty of hot water at all times under all conditions; (3) Saving in labor.

Over $800 fuel saving in four months at North Center Theatre, Chicago, with Iron Fireman. "Iron Fireman cut our fuel costs from $1732 to $908 over a four month period," writes R. E. McIlrath of the Woodlawn Theatre Corporation. "Saving $2.50 a ton on coal, the difference between Pocahontas and screenings. We have steady, even pressure, and have eliminated the smoke nuisance."

Buy your Iron Fireman by the month

.. let it pay for itself!

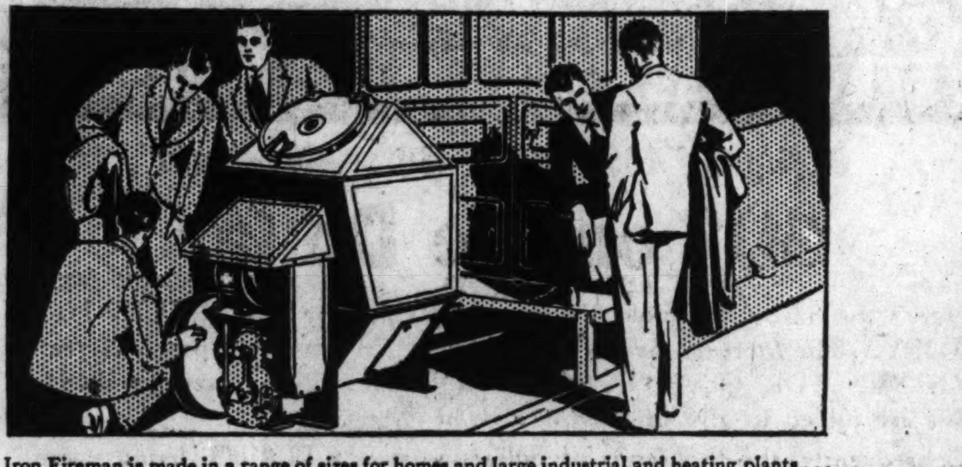
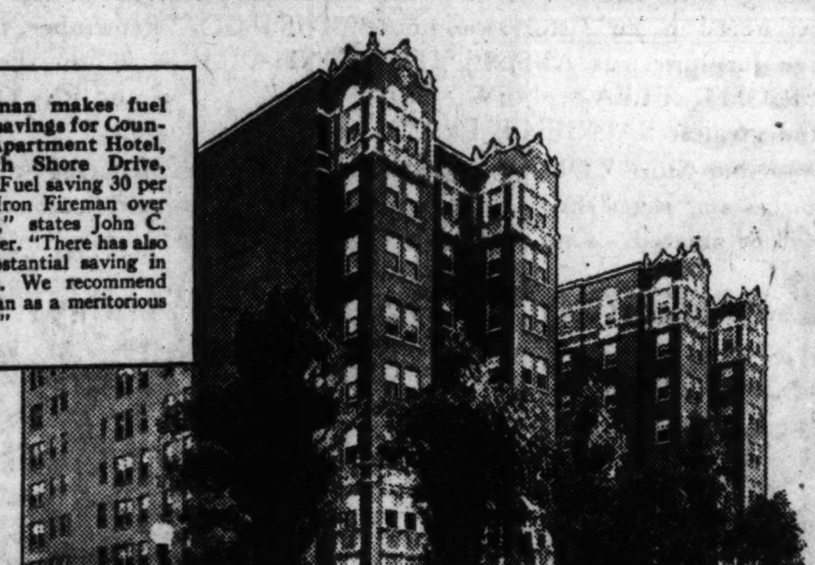
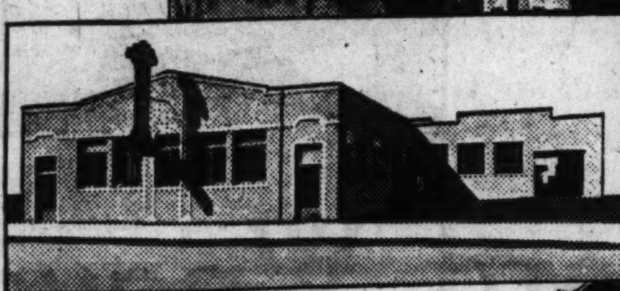
Iron Fireman pays for itself at Hotel Elms, 53rd Street and Cornell Avenue, Chicago. "Iron Fireman actually paid for itself in one season," reports F. K. Schuyler, Manager. "Due to the automatic feature of Iron Fireman we were able to eliminate two extra boiler room men. There has been a decided abatement of smoke."



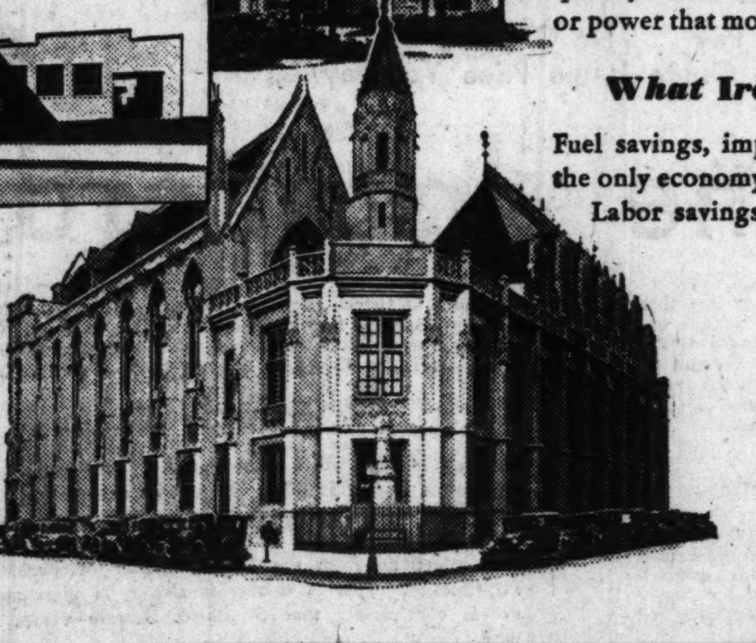
Iron Fireman is made in a range of sizes for homes and large industrial and heating plants... Sold on convenient terms.

Iron Fireman makes fuel and labor savings for Country Club Apartment Hotel, 6930 South Shore Drive, Chicago. "Fuel saving 30 per cent with Iron Fireman over hand firing," states John C. Ott, Manager. "There has also been a substantial saving in labor costs. We recommend Iron Fireman as a meritorious investment."





All American Laundry, 4242-46 Belmont Ave., Chicago, saves with Iron Fireman. "We have saved about $175.00 a month on coal and $25.00 a week in labor costs with Iron Fireman," reports A. C. Bensen, Secretary.



Quigley Preparatory Seminary, 103 E. Chestnut St., Chicago, pays for Iron Fireman from fuel and labor savings! "Have saved $3.50 a ton on coal, with Iron Fireman, burning screenings instead of Pocahontas," states Rt. Reverend Monsignor F. A. Purcell, D. D., Rector, "and we are making labor savings of $45.00 a week."

Do like "Oski-Wow-Wow" did! The University of Illinois Stadium installed an Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burner and let it pay for itself. Do like the North Center Theatre did. They cut their fuel costs over $800 in four months with Iron Fireman. Do like Hotel Elms did. They paid for Iron Fireman in one season from fuel and labor savings. Do like the All-American Laundry did; like the Country Club Apartments, like the Quigley Preparatory Seminary—like hundreds of Iron Fireman owners in Chicago and vicinity. Buy Iron Fireman, enjoy the superior heating and power service that it renders, and let it pay for itself from fuel savings alone.

No matter how prosperous your business, or how tough the times, you can stand more profits. Iron Fireman can help you make them, because Iron Fireman does these things:

(1) Reduces fuel costs from 15 to 50 per cent by burning small sized, inexpensive coal.
(2) Maintains steady, even heat or power.
(3) Eliminates the smoke nuisance.
(4) Cuts labor costs.
(5) Increases home or plant heating efficiency.
(6) Burns coal, the safe, dependable fuel, automatically.

Iron Fireman earns users 39.44 per cent per year

A recent survey of 392 users showed average yearly fuel savings with Iron Fireman of 31.62 per cent. These fuel savings represent a return of 39.44 per cent per year on the cost of Iron Fireman. In 102 homes, the average yearly fuel saving was 45.61 per cent—or an average fuel reduction of $90 per home per year.

Why continue inefficient hand firing, or the use of costly automatic fuels? Iron Fireman, from fuel savings alone, will quickly write itself off your books, and give you the finest heat or power that money can buy.

What Iron Fireman will do for you

Fuel savings, important as they are, by no means represent the only economy feature of Iron Fireman.

Labor savings always occur when Iron Fireman replaces hand firing, because Iron Fireman feeds coal to the fire automatically. In large plants one man easily does the work that formerly called for the full time of two firemen. In other cases, where one man formerly spent full time on firing, Iron Fireman gives him extra hours that can be devoted to other duties. Iron Fireman requires but a minimum of attention.

Iron Fireman increases plant production by furnishing steady, even heat or power regardless of weather or load conditions.

Iron Fireman ends the smoke nuisance, one of the great wastes of hand firing, and a civic problem of first importance. Iron Fireman creates a fire so hot that the volatile gases are completely consumed. All of the coal that can burn, does burn.

Don't expect Iron Fireman results from any other machine

The Iron Fireman Manufacturing Company is the pioneer and by far the largest manufacturer in its field, with a nation-wide sales and service organization and dealers throughout the United States and Canada. The finest engineering and research organization in the industry devotes its time to studying the science and mechanics of combustion. The result is Iron Fireman's outstanding leadership in operation and performance, in sales volume, in financial stability, and in the service to users which Iron Fireman's national dealer and service organization renders. Iron Fireman is a proved success, with thousands of installations from coast to coast. Don't expect Iron Fireman results from any other machine.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Hack Wilson, Gabby Hartnett, and Pat Malone yesterday afternoon appropriated the Cubs-Reds semi-final contest for personal record making purposes, the score, Cubs 13, Reds 8, being only incidental to the business at hand.

Hack knocked his 55th and 56th homers of the year, No. 55 off his starting mate, Ray Kolp, and No. 56 off Eppa Rixey. The new home run king drove in four runs to lift his major league record for runs batted in to 188, 13 above the old mark.

Gabby knocked his 36th and 37th homers in the second and third innings, and added a double in the fourth inning.

Pat Hits Homer, Too.

Pat won his 20th victory of the season and in addition smacked his fourth homer of the season and a single besides. Pat's victory was his 60th in the three years he has been a Cub.

There were several feats of strength by persons other than the trio of record setters, however. There was Clarence Blair again, for instance.

Friday Clarence undertook to show Manager Hornsby why he should be a bench manager by knocking a triple, a double, and a single. Yesterday he carried on this demonstration by knocking a triple, a double, and two singles, a net gain of one single for Saturday over Friday.

Bell, who, perhaps, hasn't cared for those which have said that he is to be the first 1930 Cub to be sent to the minor circuit, also said a few words with his bat. He had a triple and a double.

Woody English isn't after any records and he's reasonably sure of his job next year, so he played a waiting game and drew four bases on balls.

In all there were 17 Cub hits for 38 bases, which, to our notion, is some sort of proof as to what was the matter with the Cubs during the period of the big flop of 1930—the last road trip. Anyhow they weren't frightened yesterday, when there was nothing at stake.

It's Too Late Now.

It is a sorrowful reflection that the Cubs could hammer Cincinnati so ruthlessly but couldn't do a thing against the very same team in that long stretch during which the miserable Reds were taking the then pennant contenders for seven victories in a row—seven games that can be given as the key to the loss of the pennant without a bit of second guessing.

But do we seem to be moaning at this late date? Let us hastily turn to other matters.

The use of Malone in the game yesterday made him a virtual certainty for duty in the opener of the city

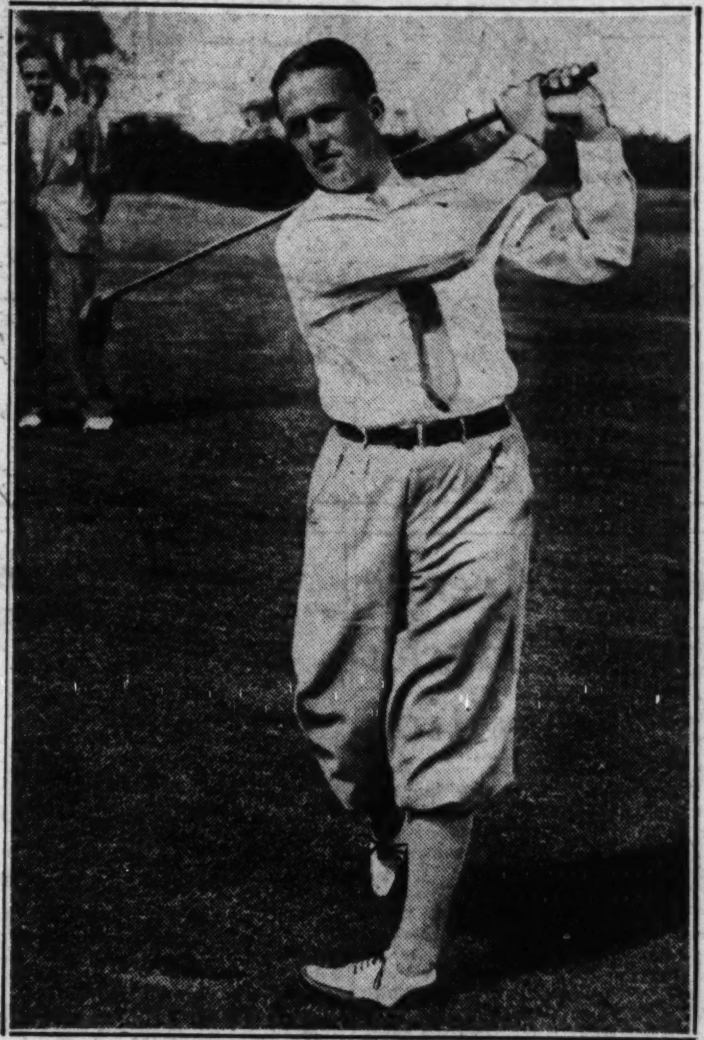
HOW CAMERA CAUGHT GREATEST OF GOLF CAREERS

Bobby at the age of 14 when he created a sensation by winning the Georgia state championship and going to the second round of the national amateur.
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

Bobby receives the plaudits of the home town folks upon his return from Minneapolis last June, when he won the national open. With him are his mother, his wife and his two children. Atlanta's welcome was all the more boisterous because the United States open had been one of Bobby's most formidable hurdles. In that tournament he beat the best of the pros and yesterday he disposed of the last of the amateurs.



Bobby Jones as the galleries know him today—the golf king who holds every major amateur and open title simultaneously. No other player in the history of the game ever has accomplished Bobby's feat.

Here's Hole by Hole Story of How Bobby Jones Won

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Following is the hole by hole story of how Bobby Jones defeated Eugene Homans for the national amateur golf championship at Merion Cricket club today:

First hole, 360 yards, par 4—Jones drove with a spoon from the first tee, but was slightly in front of Homans' long shot. Bob pitched on, 20 feet from the cup, after Gene put his second in a trap. Homans came out of the sand 35 feet from the cup. Gene's long putt for a 4 stayed out. Jones putted close and got his par. Jones 1 up.

Second hole, 523 yards, par 5—Jones drove into the rough and Homans into a trap at the long second. Gene came out to the rough and Bobby hit a long iron down the fairway. Jones was barely on the green with his third and Homans' was short. Jones' putt ran up the green knoll on which the pin was placed, but rolled back and each was a long way off in 4. It was a half in 6s. Jones 1 up.

Third hole, 195 yards, par 3—At the third Jones sent an iron to the green, but Homans' spoon shot was on top of a trap to the left. Homans chipped 8 feet from the cup. Jones putted short from 30 feet. Homans missed his putt for a three, but Jones holed his par and went 2 up.

Jones Wins Fourth.

Fourth hole, 595 yards, par 5—Jones drove to a trap at the long fourth. Homans was clear. Bob hit a spoon shot from the sand down the fairway, and Gene fired his into the rough, although nearer the green. Jones pitched on, 30 feet from the pin. Homans pitched on but was outside his rival's ball. Homans took three putts for a 6, while Jones holed his par 5. Jones 3 up.

Fifth hole, 435 yards, par 4—A stiff cross wind carried Jones' ball to a bad rough to the left. The same wind carried Homans' ball to a trap. Gene took a spoon from the trap but could not reach the green. Jones went from the rough to the green. Gene made a fine approach, ten feet from the pin. Jones putted within four feet. Homans missed his putt for a 4. Jones also missed and the hole was halved in 5s.

Sixth hole, 427 yards, par 4—The drives at the sixth were practically level. The two second shots just reached the green, with Homans slightly away. Gene's approach putt was short. So was Bobby's. They halved it at 4. Jones 3 up.

Homans Stymies Jones.

Seventh hole, 335 yards, par 4—Jones drove to the edge of a trap at the seventh and pitched on. Homans had a straight drive and sent a good second well on. Jones putted up close from 20 feet. Gene was within a foot

Bobby's Victory Gives Him 13th Major Golf Title

Bobby Jones' victory yesterday in the national amateur golf tournament give him his thirteenth major title. He has won the American amateur five times and the American open four times; the British amateur once and the British open three times.

Only one other player, John Ball, ever took both British titles in a single season—and he did it in 1890. Chick Evans is the only one to capture both American crowns at one swoop, having accomplished this in 1916. Bobby Jones has taken all four this season.

Jones' nearest rival for total victories is Walter Hagen, who has held eleven national titles. Bobby's record follows:

1923—Won the national open at Inwood, Long Island.
1924—Won the national amateur at Ardmore, Pa.
1925—Won the national amateur at Oakmont, Pa.
1926—Won United States open at Columbus, O., and British open at Lythan and St. Anne's.
1927—Won the British open at St. Andrews, Scotland, and United States amateur at Minneapolis.
1928—Won the national amateur at West Newton, Mass.
1929—Won the national open at Mamaroneck, N. Y.
1930—Won the British open at Hoylake, the British amateur at St. Andrews, Scotland; the United States open at Minneapolis, and the United States amateur at Ardmore, Pa.

Michigan Runs Over Denison; Beats Normal

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Michigan scored a double victory this afternoon, but failed to display anything which might lead partisans to predict a successful Big Ten season. Denison was crushed, 33 to 0, and then Michigan State Normal was routed, 7 to 0. Defects in line play caused the most disappointment.

Normal outplayed the Wolverines in the first and fourth quarters, but was unable to halt a third period passing attack. Lessmer tossed to Simrall and De Baker to put the ball within scoring distance and then a lateral pass, Lessmer to De Baker, brought the touchdown.

The men who will serve as substitutes helped to defeat Denison. Denison held the upper hand in the opening period, but Michigan had things all its own way after that. Lineup:

MICHIGAN [7].		NORMAL [0].
Hewitt	L. E.	Wood
Samuels	L. T.	Buckholz
Lajeunesse	L. G.	Bernhagen
Morrison	C.	Stover
Cornwell	R. G.	Vanyo
Purdum	R. T.	Shoemaker [C]
Daniels	R. E.	Muellich
Tessmer	Q. B.	Arnold
Heston	L. H.	Hawk
Simrall [C]	R. H.	Tuttle
Hudson	F. B.	Simmons

Touchdown—DeBaker. Point after touchdown—Tessmer. Substitutions—Michigan: Smith for Morrison, DeBaker for Heston, Newman for Tessmer, Morgan for Smith. Normal: Wilhelm for Arnold; Ashley for Muellich.

Handicap Title Won by Lady Broadcast

BY FRENCH LANE.

Lady Broadcast, that proud racing mare from Memphis owned by Rogers Caldwell, established herself as the best handicap horse in the west at Lincoln Fields yesterday when she won the Marquette handicap which carried a gross value of $12,020.

Equaling the track record when she ran the mile and a furlong in 1:50, she beat Pigeon Hole by two lengths. Pansy Walker, after the gamest kind of fight in which she hooked up with Lady Broadcast in a desperate duel at the head of the stretch, was two lengths back of the two leaders, but hung on to be third, finishing just ahead of My Dandy.

While Pigeon Hole split Lady Broadcast and Pansy Walker, it was the battle between the two fleet mares which brought a crowd of 15,000 up cheering when they hooked up at the head of the stretch and ran for a furlong only inches apart.

First Meeting Yesterday.

All season it has been evident in Chicago that among 3 year olds and upward there has not been a topnotcher on the male line. Lady Broadcast and Pansy Walker, the latter a daughter of Sir Gallahad III., and a little sister to Gallant Fox, have beaten their gentlemen friends so often it was evident the championship was to go to one of them.

In their previous engagements Lady Broadcast won when Pansy Walker was on the side line. If Pansy Walker was running Lady Broadcast found some excuse or another that would put her out of the battle.

The Marquette handicap marked their first meeting and the crowd

The city series, which will begin next Wednesday afternoon at Comiskey park, will be the seventeenth between the Cubs and White Sox since the interleague event was inaugurated 27 years ago.

At present the Cubs are city champions by virtue of four victories in seven games played between the two clubs two years ago in a series which on two days drew more customers than on corresponding days of the world series between the Yankees and Cardinals.

Since the intracity major league post-season competition was launched in 1903 the White Sox have been returned the winner ten times; the Cubs five times, while the first of the clashes ended in a draw, 7 games to 7.

In the opening game of the last series, Pat Malone, who probably will oppose Ted Lyons in the opener next Wednesday, shut out the Sox, 3 to 0, all the scores being made in the first half of the first inning off Red Faber.

Cubs Win 14 Inning Battle.

The second game also was a Cub victory, 5 to 3, in 14 innings, Art Nehf, Percy Jones, and Guy Bush pitching for the winners and Tommy Thomas for the losers. The score was a 2 to 2 tie until the Sox defense blew up in the fourteenth inning and the Cubs put over the three runs after they had been given life on an error by the Great Shires. The Sox came back for one run in the end of the fourteenth, to establish the score at 5 to 3.

In the third game the Sox traveled to the north side and won, 13 to 11, in a rough and tumble battle in which two great pitchers, then ending the worst years of their careers—Charley Root and Ted Lyons—were the starting pitchers. Neither lasted long, for the Sox made seven runs in their first three innings and the Cubs made eight runs in their first two innings. The Sox made five runs in the seventh for the splurge that gave them victory.

Sox Even Series.

Blake pitched the Cubs to 3 to 2 victory in the fourth game of the series, the Cub total being a second inning splurge against Faber.

Pat Malone and Tommy Thomas, the aces of the two teams, hooked up in the fifth game. The Sox got two runs off Malone in the first inning; then there was a thrilling pitchers' battle. Neither side scored after the

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mr. Connie Mack, that wily old leader who oft is spoken of as baseball's super-technician, undoubtedly views with alarm the impending struggle in which his Athletics will be summoned to defend their world title against the Cardinals, champions of the National league.

If the 67 year old Connie views with alarm he is not without reason for so doing. Mr. Mack must know that for the first time in a couple of years his men will be pitted against a team that can put a worthwhile pitcher on the mound for five straight days. Mr. Mack can muster only two in this class.

It's the endurance of a mound staff that decides short series. Hence the Cards, at least on dope, must be conceded a fair chance to snatch the big end of the purse from a team that probably is not as great as many believe.

Endowed with Fortitude.

The Cards, no doubt, are endowed with a bit of that something known as fortitude. In a race that apparently had gotten away from them with less than seven weeks of the season remaining, they found themselves. Three teams were leading them down the stretch. They caught and crushed not one but three contenders in a way that probably is unprecedented in baseball.

To do that it took more than mechanical ability. It required sustained courage. It is common for a team to surge up for a short stretch. The Robins did it twice during the year. The Cubs did it a couple of times. So did the Giants. But when the Cards started they never quit. They ripped through the opposition just as if it wasn't there.

The impetus that on Aug. 9 started to carry the Cardinals to first place from a point 12 games behind the leaders might carry them successfully through a world series. It did the Braves in 1914, and history frequently repeats.

Cards' Pitchers Hold Edge.

An analysis of the two teams slated to start the big fall fuss at Philadelphia on Wednesday can be made to prove almost anything. The Cards, of course, have their big edge in pitchers. The catching belongs to the Macks. The Cards infield as a whole operates more effectively than the one wearing Mack uniforms. The outfields are about even although the St. Louis entry has an advantage in center field where Douthit performs. There are few his equal.

That much covers the defensive skill. On attack the Macks retain their edge in catching. The Card infield can hit with Connie's quartet. For the hitting of their outfield the Cards must offer no apologies. Whatever shade the Philadelphians might deserve because of Al Simmons is offset by the superiority of Hafey and Douthit over Miller and Haas.

In the aggregate, it would seem that the layouts are about even, with Gabby Street's diversified pitching staff balancing whatever strength the presence of Mickey Cochrane behind the bat might mean to the American leaguers.

Steady Around Second Base.

Where the Cards have a mountain of steadiness, when it comes down to a matter of individuals, is around second base. Nobody ever has denied the class of Frankie Frisch, especially when money is at stake. The world hasn't realized it just yet, but Gelbert, working at short, is fast approaching the rank of the majors' outstanding shortstop. For defensive purposes this pair could not be equaled elsewhere in either league this season.

That the Cards topped their circuit with double plays, their total being about 50 in excess of those produced by the Macks, was due in no small measure to the steadiness with which the Gelbert-Frisch duo functioned. In speed on the bases the St. Louis pair also must be conceded to be superior to Bishop and Boley. It is not exaggerating to say that nobody accused these two Mackmen of even being

FLAG RACE OVER, CARDS RELAX AND BUCS WIN, 11-8

Pirates Score 5 in First Inning.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—(AP)—It was a day for relaxation at Sportsman's park today and while the St. Louis Cardinals were enjoying an afternoon without having to bear down, the Pittsburgh Pirates pounded Tony Kaufmann and Herman Bell for 16 hits and won, 11 to 8.

The Pirates took a commanding lead by scoring five runs in the first inning and had the game well in hand all the way. The Red Birds had the 1930 flag safely stowed and it was something of a reserve team that faced the Pirates.

Dugas opened the game with a double. Paul Waner and Grantham walked to fill the bases. Traynor hit a sacrifice fly, Comorosky singled, and Suhr hit a home run over the pavilion roof. The fans didn't make any ado over it, but cheered the Cardinals collectively and individually just as much as if they had seen a great ball game. Every one of the 14,000 fans stayed to the last.

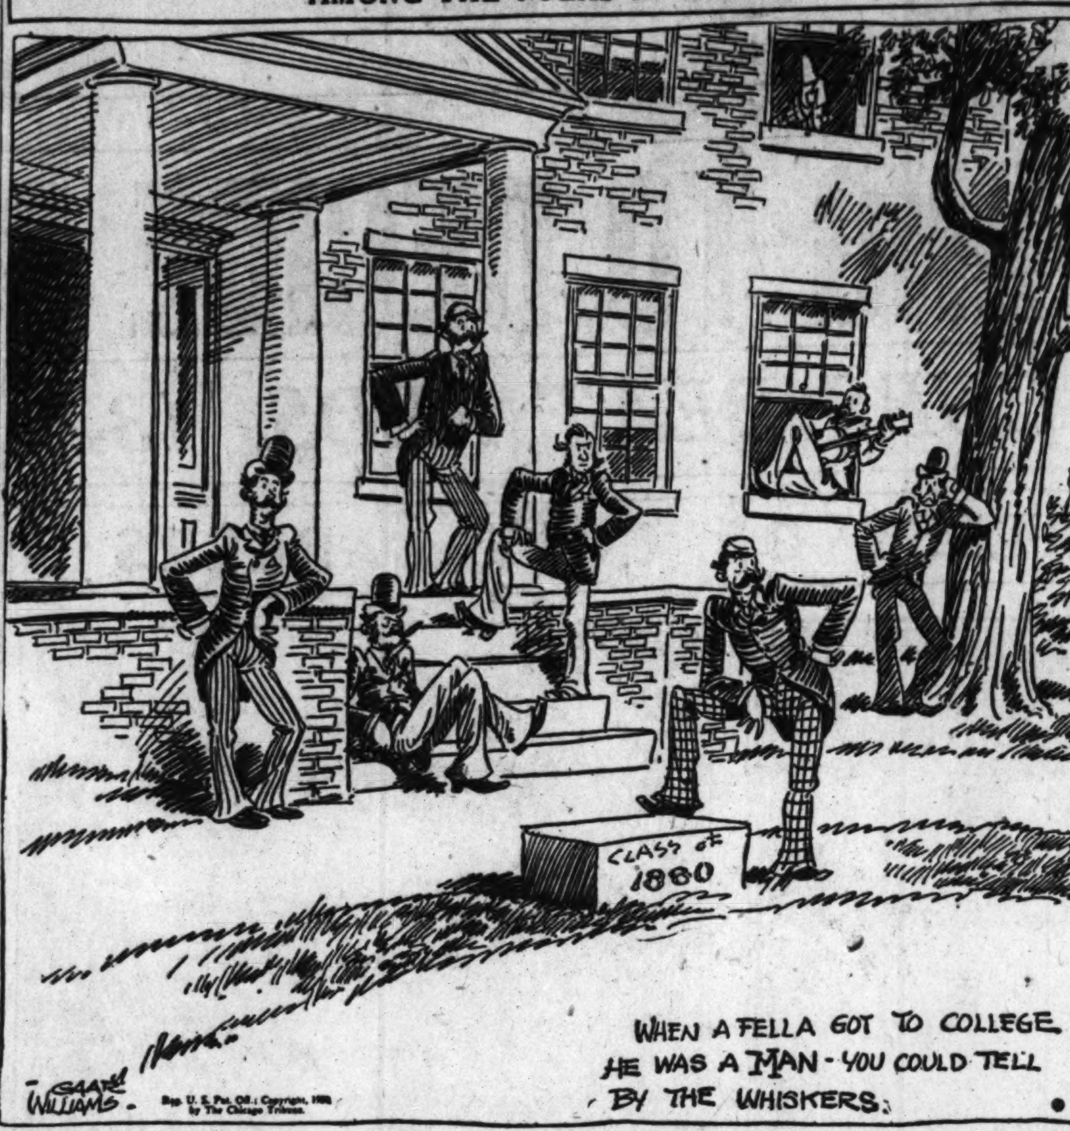
AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY



Wilson Avenue Reveals Hack's Superstition

You may have heard of Wilson avenue, but not THIS Wilson avenue. It's a private thoroughfare, nobody lives on it, and it is open to traffic only from April to October.

Where is it and what is it?

Why, it's a little narrow lane which has its western extremity a few feet behind third base and its opposite end in center field at Cubs' park.

It was built by the illustrious Hack Wilson, hence its name. All last season Hack, when going from the bench to the field or vice versa, followed this narrow footmade lane. When he returned last spring it had almost vanished, but a little of Hack's skill at surveying soon located it and he resumed his journeys. When he is coming in he always stops at the same spot and drops his glove.

If he should happen to make the last putout he doesn't start for the bench from the spot of the catch. He first goes to his private roadway and jogs in. That this has been going on for so long without being discovered is explained by the fact that the trail is not discernible from any place except the west end of the upper deck.

Hack always has laughed at superstitions, but that trail worn in the sod of Wrigley field makes it look as if Hack is no different than many other athletes.

first inning, the Sox winning, 2 to 0.

The series was evened on Oct. 8, when the Sox pounded Bush, Root, and Carlson for 14 hits to win behind Adkins, 7 to 1.

In the seventh and deciding game of the series the Cubs found the Sox without any pitching. They made six runs off Sarge Connally in the first inning and eventually won the series and city title, 13 to 2.

In the impending series the pitching assignments probably will fall on Malone, Bush, Blake, and Teachout, with Petty No. 1 for relief duty, on the Cub side, and for the Sox, Lyons, Caraway, McKain, and Faber, with Thomas and Moore alternates who may start any of the games after the first.

The Sox appear to have the advantage in the pitching department, but a man for man comparison gives the Cubs an advantage in every position except left field, where Reynolds should be much stronger than Danny Taylor.

Cards or Macks? Pitching Major Factor in Series

stars, but they have fitted into Mack's scheme of things because of the team's strength elsewhere.

If Street, the St. Louis boss, follows a logical course, he will name Burleigh Grimes to pitch the opener on Wednesday. Grimes is a veteran of baseball wars and tours. He probably more than any one other man started the St. Louis boys on their dazzling march from fourth place to a championship. When he showed how to win the other pitchers suddenly followed suit. It is only natural then that there is behind Grimes the team confidence that always counts for much in the first of an important series.

The real reason to think the Macks will have to look at Grimes on inaugural day is that Grimes is not only a star pitcher, but a spitballer as well. The Macks looked at only one of these hurlers all season. Red Faber was the fellow, and he bothered them considerably. A spitter is so different that the best of batters are dazzled by them. Grimes, before his thumb was broken last season, time and again made the Cubs pack up their bats and go home. The Cubs are a bunch of swing hitters. So are the Macks, at least the real hitters among them.

Mack's opening choice will remain his own and secret choice until game time, but at least he hasn't much leeway. Unless he takes another desperate chance—and it was a desperate chance when he sent Howard Ehmke against the Cubs in the opener last fall—Mack must kick off with either Grove or Earnshaw. Grove is a fidgety, temperamental fellow, and the glamor of an opener might awe him into feebleness. On the other hand, Earnshaw has been only spasmodically effective during the waning weeks of the race.

If Connie feels that a long shot is imperative because of the scarcity of pitchers, he might pull the unexpected and start with Rube Walberg. Rube is only fair. He is annoyed by little things. And in a crisis he never has been trustworthy. But before a home crowd he might be sufficiently buoyed up to carry himself through. Or Mack might open with a youngster and thus be assured of at least Grove or Earnshaw for the first of the games before a hostile crowd at St. Louis.

Relief Corps Strong.

If Street doesn't turn over the first assignment to Grimes he is almost sure to nominate Jess Haines, who curves, speeds and slows down. Haines is a cagey worker.

The real beauty of Street's position is that if it is a matter of relief he can summon first string pitchers. Hallahan, Rhem and Johnson all are good enough to start; hence are good enough to act as rescuers.

For rescuers, unless Grove and Earnshaw are properly rested, Mack has Rommel and Quinn. The latter probably will not appear unless to wind up a game already lost. Rommel, however, might prove the ideal man for such work. In fact, he's another who might unexpectedly be called upon to start a game—even the opening battle. Rommel is an old head and his knuckle ball can cause trouble on occasions.

Macks' League 5 Up in World Series Rivalry

Fifteen world's championships have been won by American league clubs. The National league has been victorious ten times.

The National league has won only one game in tho last three world series. That honor went to the Chicago Cubs last year when they took the fourth battle from the Philadelphia Athletics. In 1927 the Pittsburgh Pirates dropped four straight contests to the Yankees, and the St. Louis Cardinals received the same treatment from New York in 1928.

The following table shows the results of world series contests of the past:

CHAMPAIGN HIGH WINS.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Champaign High and Onarga Military school opened their football season this afternoon, the former winning, 6 to 3.

SOX LOSE FIRST TO DETROIT, 6-5; WIN SECOND, 10-5

Thomas Beaten, but Faber Is Victor.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The White Sox split a doubleheader with the Tigers here this afternoon, the Tigers taking the first game, 6 to 5, and the Sox the second, 10 to 5.

Chicago started off well in the first game. Ryan singled to right on the first ball pitched, went to second on Watwood's grounder to first, and scored ahead of Reynolds when the latter lifted the ball out of the park. There was no further scoring until the Tigers' half of the fourth, when Gehringer walked and McManus fouled to Kamm. Alexander forced Gehringer at second and when Mulleavy threw into the Chicago dugout trying for a double play Alexander took second. Doljack then walloped a long double that scored Alexander.

The Sox came back in the sixth. Watwood and Reynolds singled in succession. Jolley popped to first, but Clancy came through with a double that scored both Watwood and Carl. Tate tried hard with a long drive to center, but Doljack caught it after a hard run.

Tigers Get 2 in 7th.

The Tigers came up in the seventh to score two more runs. Johnson singled after Doljack had fanned. Watson struck out, but Hayworth came through with a hard drive to left, and when Smead Jolley let the ball get away from him both runners scored. Stone, batting for Sorrell, got a single to left, but Thomas braced up and caused Hughes to roll to Ryan.

However, the Tigers were out after the game and batted out a victory in the ninth. Gehringer opened with a single and advanced on Mulleavy's error. McManus singled and both runners scored on Alexander's drive. Frank Doljack forced Alexander at second and Johnson lined to Jolley in deep left. Watson got a short double to center that scored Doljack. Hayworth walked and Elon Hogsett singled to score Doljack and incidentally won his game.

Koenig Makes Debut.

The second game was marked by the first starting appearance of Mark Koenig, former Yankeet shortstop, as a pitcher for the Detroit outfit. The Sox lost no time in getting at Mr. Koenig, who started well by fanning Kerr. Watwood singled and scored on Carl Reynolds' double. Jolley singled to score Reynolds. Clancy and Mulleavy walked to fill the sacks and Smead and Bud scored on Kamm's single. Crouse singled and Faber ended the inning by grounding into a double play, Gehringer to Alexander to Watson.

There was some argument as to whether or not Kamm's run counted, but the umpire ruled it did. Faber rolled to Gehringer, who threw to Alexander, getting Red, Kamm scoring on the play. Crouse, who had started for second, was trapped and run down, but since there was no force play on the last out Kamm's run counted.

Detroit attempted to overcome this lead in their half of the first. Gehringer singled, advanced on a force and scored on Alexander's single, but that was all.

The Bengals broke loose again in the fourth when McManus doubled. Red Faber tightened a bit and whiffed both Alexander and Doljack. Funk then hit a long home run into the right field seats. Watson singled, but Wise rolled out. The Tigers scored again in the fifth, when Koenig hit a single to right and scored as Bob Fothergill kicked the ball about.

Kamm's Triple Scores 2.

The Sox, however, squelched the Tigers with another spree in the seventh. Watwood walked and Fothergill hit the scoreboard with a hard double that scored Watty. Jolley rolled out and Bud Clancy was safe on a fielder's choice. Mulleavy struck out, but Kamm tripled to score both Fothergill and Clancy. Crouse singled, scoring Kamm.

Mr. Bush's outfit failed to score after this inning, as Mr. Koenig went to third base and Tom Bridges took up the pitching task. The Tigers scored the last run in the eighth inning. With two gone Funk and Watson singled. Funk scored on Wise's smash, but Wise was out in an attempt to stretch the hit, Jolley to Kamm to Kerr.

RECORD CROWD SEES YALE BLANK MAINE, 38 TO 0

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Yale's 1930 opening football game today produced a 38 point score for the Blue and the fifth consecutive whitewash for the University of Maine. The Down Easterners never have crossed Yale's goal line since they were assigned the rôle of ringing up the curtain in the bowl. The series between the two institutions began in 1913.

Twenty thousand people, a new record for opening day, sat coatless and hatless, sweltering under a blistering sun which compelled the rival coaches, "Mal" Stevens and Fred Brice, to rapidly rush in replacement troops. Yale used three complete elevens and the visitors twenty-three players.

Cyclists Race Today in 47 Mile Handicap

The fifth annual Elgin to Chicago 47 mile handicap bicycle road race under the auspices of the Barrett Athletic club will be held today. All leading riders will compete.

The official starters will be Charles V. Barrett and Mayor Earle Kelley of Elgin, who will send the first riders away at 1 o'clock from Lord's park in Elgin. The finish will be at 21st place and Damen avenue about 2:30 p. m.

Perhaps Cubs of 1931 Will Correct Few Pompous Ideas

BY EDWARD BURNS.

You remember the illiterate, though philosophically sound, wisecrack: "It isn't what you used to was; it's what you is today."

That crack, brothers and sisters, is our text this morning—this morning of the last day of the 1930 major league baseball season.

The text is to remind the Cubs, if a reminder is necessary, that though they were National league champions in 1929 they are not in 1930 and that when 1931 rolls around they will have a chance to correct some of the pompous ideas that led them astray in the late lamented season.

One of the several troubles with the Cubs of 1930 was that they couldn't realize that it was 1930 and not 1929. They were National league champions, and it was inconceivable to almost all that anything could happen to snatch away the laurel leaves that were so verdant this time a year ago.

Still Confident Up to a Week Ago.

Until a week ago more than a half of the Cub personnel still was confident that some miracle would be wrought and that they would be returned the winners. As late as last Wednesday, on the train coming back from the sad and final eastern invasion, one of the greatest of the Wrigley stars seriously expressed the belief that the Cubs would win the pennant, his prophecy hanging on nothing less than that the Pirates would win four straight from the Cardinals while the Cubs were taking four straight from the Reds.

When requested to please quit his kidding, the young man became indignant and readily convinced his listeners that he, at least, believed the optimistic words he spoke.

Now there can be no objection to an abundant supply of confidence. Show us a reticent and modest ball player and we'll show you a ball player that's good only some days, if any.

But the Cubs of 1930 were confident, a confidence based on their 1929 attainments, to the point where they thought they were O, many times better than they really were. They were not distressed to find other teams popping in and out of first place.

"Let the poor chumps have a good time while they can, for when the proper time comes the papa bears will show their teeth and snarl, and the chumps will run away, trembling terribly," was the keynote. This was very shortsighted, and goodness knows the rest of the league gave them plenty of warning as to what they might expect.

A search of the archives has revealed that the Phillies, the Reds and Braves were the only clubs in the league that did not cuddle in the top berth of the National league at some time or other during the 1930 season, which should have shown the Chicagoans that there were others who had covetous eyes on the top spot.

First Place Changes Hands 22 Times.

First place changed hands 22 times during the season, one expert with a flair for research has discovered. This, too, should have flashed a hint to the Cubs that there wasn't anything steady about their claim on first place. But it didn't.

This switching business reached the heights the middle of this very month. The Cubs kissed first place good-by on Sept. 12. On Sept. 13, the Cardinals advanced and on Sept. 14 the Robins moved in, only to move out the next day. At this point the Cardinals decided that inasmuch as they had been winning pennants, in the even years, 1926 and 1928, it would be a good idea to continue the routine by winning in 1930.

In 1927 and again in 1929 the Cardinals were in much the same state of mind as the Cubs were this year. But they snapped out of it to come back in the even years.

Maybe the enlightened Cubs can now take an option on the odd years. And 1931 will be an odd year.

NAT'L HOCKEY BODY MAKES NEW PENALTY RULING

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A new rule was adopted by the National Hockey league today providing that, if two players of one team are off the ice serving penalties and a third man is penalized, a substitute will be allowed in the third man's place. As soon as one of the first penalties expires the third will begin.

As a result of the rule, no team will ever have more than two of its six men off the ice at one time on account of penalties.

YANKS BEAT A'S, 10 TO 8, AS RUTH HITS 2 HOMERS

Gehrig Passes Simmons in Batting Race.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 27.—[UP]—In the last American league game in Philadelphia this season the New York Yankees defeated the champion Athletics, 10 to 8.

Babe Ruth hit his 48th and 49th home runs of the season, besides batting in five runs. Lou Gehrig passed Al Simmons in the race for batting honors by getting two hits out of three times at bat. He leads Simmons .380 to .379.

Both starting pitchers failed to last. Earnshaw allowed seven runs in the five innings he pitched. Sherid was removed in the ninth when the A's made a belated rally, scoring 4 runs.

PICK WINNERS IN TRIBUNE KICKING, PASSING CONTEST

4 Victors Earn Tickets to Big Grid Tilts.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Four boys, from four sections of the city, survivors in a field of 500, won championship honors yesterday morning in THE TRIBUNE'S forward passing and drop kicking contests at Mills stadium. Yesterday's finals climaxed seven preliminary meets held a week ago which qualified 40 boys.

Hail the champions!

Ernest Kelly, 1533 East 67th place, junior forward passing.

Leon Wagner, 1534 Norwood avenue, junior drop kicking.

Sydney Weiner, 2816 Roosevelt road, senior forward passing.

Harry Barker, 3315 Fullerton avenue, senior drop kicking.

For more than an hour and a half these picked finalists passed and kicked, testing their accuracy which each hoped would bring a title and a trip to a college football game as THE TRIBUNE'S guest. Excellent marks were made in all four contests, but the tension of competition probably kept some of the lads from equaling the records they had established in practice.

Three Juniors Tie.

Three tied in the junior forward passing and two tied for the senior drop kicking titles necessitating playoffs.

Leon Wagner, a red headed youngster now in the eighth grade at the Sullivan Junior High school, carried away the title in the junior drop kicking. When he stepped to the mark, 20 yards from the goal posts, Ernest Kelly had established a high score of three goals in five attempts. Wagner's first effort was poorly timed. Then he sent four perfectly executed kicks, one after the other, tumbling over the cross bar to win the championship. His winning mark, four out of five, equaled his preliminary test last week at Loyola university field.

The drop kicking championship gone, Kelly was not discouraged. He had qualified in both contests in the Washington park sectional, but had considered his kicking superior to his passing. And well he might, for in his last practice he had scored 18 drop kicks in 21 trials.

Kelly Wins Passing.

Three times straight Kelly spiraled the ball through the hoop from a distance of 15 yards. Then he missed his remaining two attempts. This hoop, with a diameter of only 3 feet, isn't an easily hit target particularly on a chilly morning when one must warm stiffened fingers before taking his turn.

But Kelly saw his mark tied twice. William Lipp, one of the smallest boys reaching the finals, and John Cosgrove forced the contest into a playoff. Kelly won when he shot the ball through the hoop four times in five trials. Although an older brother, Spike Kelly, is a member of the University of Illinois track team, Ernest expressed a preference yesterday to attend the Notre Dame-Navy game at South Bend Oct. 11.

Sydney Weiner demonstrated the value of practice when he won the senior forward passing title at a distance of 20 yards. In the preliminary meet at Douglas park, Weiner won with only two perfect passes in five attempts. Yesterday he ran away with the field with four bullseyes. He scored twice, missed once, then came back with two more perfect tosses.

Barker Wins Playoff.

The senior drop kicking developed into a duel between Harry Barker of Schurz High school and Donald McGinty, full back on St. Patrick's eleven. McGinty led off with two goals, missed twice and scored again.

Young Barker was the last of the seniors to kick. His first three tries sailed over the bar, but needing only one more to win, he missed both remaining efforts. McGinty again kicked first in the playoff. Perhaps it was the pressure of competition, but at any rate he was successful in but one kick, his last.

Practically certain of victory, Barker easily scored twice in four attempts. He and Weiner will watch Notre Dame play the Annapolis midshipmen.

HOOSIERS WIN TWO TITLES IN HORSESHOE MEET

Jimmy Risk of Montpelier, Ind., yesterday won the national amateur horseshoe pitching championship at Lincoln park, and a pair of Hoosiers, Henry Pergal of Dugger, and Orville Harris of Saxonville took the doubles title back to Indiana.

Pergal also finished third in the singles, with Milton Pate of Moline, Ill., second. Bessie Schneider of Chicago, won the women's singles, and paired with Zite Schupan of Chicago, won the women's doubles. Otto Fulner of Chicago and R. L. Simonds of Wilmette, Ill., were runnersup in the men's doubles.

MUDGE VICTOR AT KNOLLWOOD HARVEST HOME

Knollwood's harvest home, the last tournament for members of the North Shore club, drew a big field yesterday. Burton Mudge Jr., former club champion won the harvest home cup, given for his low gross of 36—40—76, just three strokes under Frank Thompson.

The lion's share of the prizes, however, went to those who had not won anything this season. In the tail enders' division David Owen proved best with 97—22—75. J. L. Meloy Jr., 103—27—76, was second, and Tracey W. Buckingham took third with 88—10—78.

Tulane Whips Southwest Louisiana Institute, 84-0

New Orleans, La., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Tulane's green wave, champions of the Southern conference, ran rough shod over Southwestern Louisiana institute, burying the visitors under an 84 to 0 score. At no time did Southwestern menace the Tulane goal line.

ST. IGNATIUS LOSES.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Rolling up a score almot as large as the one by which it was defeated last week, St. Catherine's High school of Racine today defeated St. Ignatius of Chicago, 33 to 6.

SOUTH DAKOTA IS OVERWHELMED BY MINNESOTA, 48-0

25,000 Watch Deceptive Attack of Gophers.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Fritz Crisler's Minnesota football team today defeated South Dakota State, 48 to 0, before 25,000 spectators.

It took the Gophers 15 minutes to get accustomed to Crisler's open style of play, but from that point on a mixture of first, second, and thrid stringers scored at will with their deceptive attack.

WILDCATS, 64; FROSH, 0

Northwestern's Wildcats appeared ready to open the fall campaign when they rolled up an impressive 64 to 0 victory over the freshmen yesterday.

The game had all the trimmings of a regular contest except the crowd in the stands. John Schommer and Col. Hackett, Big Ten officials, conducted the game, which was played on the new blue grass turf at Dyche stadium. Even the Purple band was on hand to play a few varsity airs.

By mixing up running and passing plays the first string eleven scored five touchdowns in the first half, not giving the freshmen a chance to get the ball on the offense. Coach Dick Hanley tried out 35 men during the game.

Pug Rentner, sophomore full back, scored four of the ten touchdowns, and was on the hurling end of several passes which went for touchdowns. Capt. Hank Bruder played long enough to reel off runs of 45 and 30 yards.

MAROON PASSES CLICK

Passes let loose from all sorts of formations convinced the crowd at Chicago's scrimmage yesterday afternoon that the Maroon aerial offense should be as strong as it was against Washington last year.

A few running plays were sandwiched in, with Knudson and Temple, members of Coach Stagg's first back field, punching the line for good gains, but most of the yardage was picked up with either long or short passes.

Capt. Everett Van Nice still is unable to practice, but Dr. Molander, the team physician, said he will be out in a suit again by the middle of the week. However, the 200 pound half back will be kept out of the Ripon game next Saturday.

OHIO, 59; MOUNT UNION, 0

Columbus, O., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Ohio State routed Mount Union today, 59 to 0.

The Buckeyes made 35 first downs to the Mounts' none and gained 676 yards to 23. Fifty-nine Ohio players saw action. Lineup:

IOWA, 38; BRADLEY, 12

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—A versatile University of Iowa attack produced six touchdowns and a 38 to 12 victory over Bradley Tech today.

Iowa's back field gained 387 yards from scrimmage to Bradley's 82, but the Peorians gained 89 yards from three attempted passes, while the Hawks netted only 79 yards from 11 attempts. Golitz, Bradley end, ran 45 yards for a touchdown in the last period after pulling down a 14 yard pass.

HOOSIERS BEAT MIAMI

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—In a game lacking in punch and drive until the second half, Indiana defeated Miami university, 14 to 0, today. Ross was first to cross the Ohioans' goal line. He plunged through left tackle and over the goal line in the third quarter. Hughes place kicked the goal. Hughes skirted the Miami right end and plunged over for the other Indiana marker and kicked goal.

NOTRE DAME, 51; FROSH, 0

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's third, fourth and fifth teams today ran up a 51 to 0 score on the pick of the freshman squad in a regulation game in the new Notre Dame stadium today.

The first two teams, having scrimmaged yesterday, did not appear in uniform today, although Joe Savoldi played for about 10 minutes with the fourth string. He has been absent from practice for several days because of a cold.

The freshmen appeared much better organized than last week and held the varsity line plays, most of the scores coming on wide end runs and passes.

Bernie Leahy looked better at left half with the third team than he looked last week with the second. He made several spectacular runs, threw one pass 25 yards to Mahoney, who sprinted 50 more through a broken field for a touchdown, and tossed another to Cristman for 30 yards and a score. Leahy kicked two goals from placement in three tries for extra points.

Kaplan, right half for the third string, scored on the first play his team ran when he sprinted 52 yards around right end.

Here's Hole by Hole Story of How Bobby Jones Won

and stymied Jones. Bob could not get by his opponent's ball and took 5 to 4 for Homans. It was Homans' first hole. Jones 2 up.

Eighth hole, 350 yards, par 4—There was little to choose between the drives at the eighth and they pitched well on. Each putted close and it was a half in 4s. Jones 2 up.

Ninth hole, 170 yards, par 3—Jones pitched on from the tee at the short ninth while Gene drove in water and took a penalty stroke. Jones was down in par 3 to 4 for Homans. Jones 3 up.

Bobby Four Up at 10th.

Tenth hole, 335 yards, par 4—Homans hooked to the rough from the tee after Jones sent a long one down the fairway. Jones played safely to the middle of the green. Gene's ball rolled to a trap beyond the green. He exploded far past the pin and then putted close. Bob was down in two putts for his par 4 and went 4 up.

Eleventh hole, 378 yards, par 4—Preferring accuracy to distance Jones was driving with a spoon. The tee shots at the 11th were not far apart, but Homans was in front again. Bob played for the middle of the green and was 25 feet from the pin. Homans pitched within 8 feet. Jones holed the long putt for a birdie 3. Homans just missed his putt and took a par 4. Jones 5 up.

Twelfth hole, 415 yards, par 4—Jones had the longer ball at the 12th, but was not in the best position to approach the elevated green. Homans hit a low, rakish shot to the green. Jones pitched high and the balls were about equidistant from the cup, about 25 feet. Bob putted in close and Gene just missed. It was a half in par 4. Jones 5 up.

Thirteenth hole, 125 yards, par 3—Both tee shots on the short 13th were on the edge of the green near the cup. Homans putted from 12 feet two feet past the cup. Jones just missed from 10 feet. They holed par threes. Jones 5 up.

Fourteenth hole, 417 yards, par 4—The drives again at the 14th were close together, with Gene away. Homans hit a spoon second shot to the left of the green. Jones was on with a No. 3 iron, 15 feet from the cup, and putted to the lip. Homans was seven feet short in 3 and barely missed his four, taking five. Jones took par 4 and went 6 up.

Fifteenth hole, 270 yards, par 4—Jones' drive was away, but his second left him only six feet from the pin. Gene's second caught the side of the trap and rolled to the sand. Gene came out and missed his putt for a 4, conceding the hole. Jones knocked in his putt for the birdie 3. Jones 7 up.

Bobby 8 Up at the 16th.

Sixteenth hole, 435 yards, par 4—Again at the 16th, the "quarry hole," there was no appreciable advantage in the drives. Homans sent a high iron over the cavern to the green. Jones, with a No. 4 iron, was well inside from 60 feet. Gene putted four feet short. Jones' putt lipped the cup. Homans missed and took 5 to par 4 for Jones. Jones 8 up.

Seventeenth hole, 215 yards, par 3—Jones' tee shot at the 17th carried to thick rough at the left. Homans drove within seven feet of the cup. Jones approached to within 8 feet and missed the putt, taking 4 to a birdie 2 for Homans. Jones 4 up.

Eighteenth hole, 445 yards, par 4—Both drove to rough at the left at the home hole. Jones was slightly in front. Homans was over the green with a long iron. Jones pitched 18 feet from the pin. Gene's third was too strong and he was still away. He holed a 20 foot putt for the par 4. Jones just missed his third and it was a half in par 4. Jones 7 up.

Afternoon Round Begins.

Nineteenth hole, 360 yards, par 4—Jones again drove with a spoon and was a few yards behind Homans' tee shot, which reached a shallow trap. Bob was just short of the green with his second, while Homans was on. Jones ran up dead and Homans putted close. It was a half in par 4. Jones 7 up.

Twentieth hole, 523 yards, par 5—Gene's tee shot was in an adjoining fairway at the long 20th. Bob was in the clear. Both were short in two, but Jones put his third 10 feet from the pin. Homans' third went over and he putted short. Jones missed his putt and the hole was halved in par 5. Jones 7 up.

Twenty-first hole, 195 yards, par 3—Neither reached the short 21st from the tee. Jones almost holed out from a trap. Homans was just on the edge of the green. Gene slipped two feet past the cup on his first putt and left himself a partial stymie. He missed the putt and took 4 to 3 for Jones. Jones 8 up.

Jones' Lead Goes to 9 Up.

Twenty-second hale, 595 yards, par 5—Homans was trapped from the tee at the long 22d and Jones was in the rough. Homans was short of the green in 3 and on in 4, 40 feet from the pin. Jones pitched 12 feet from the cup in 3. Homans was down in 6. Jones holed his par 5 and went 9 up.

Twenty-third hole, 435 yards, par 4—The drives at the 23d were not far apart. Jones was in front twelve yards. Each second shot found a resting place on the green, Jones 50 feet from the cup, Homans 35. Jones' putt was four feet short. It was a half in par 4. Jones 9 up.

Twenty-fourth hole, 442 yards, par 4—The drives were close together. Homans used a spoon to get home in two. Jones took a No. 3 iron. Homans putted close from 50 feet. So did Jones. They halved it in par 4s. Jones 9 up.

Each One Over Par at 25th.

Twenty-fifth hole, 355 yards, par 4—Homans was in the fairway while Jones drove in to the rough. Their seconds rolled past the pin and each had good putts left for their pars. They missed and halved in 5s. Jones 9 up.

Twenty-sixth hole, 350 yards, par 4—Jones nearly drove the green and chipped to ten feet of the cup. Homans was too strong with his approach, but just missed sinking a 15 foot putt. It was a half in 4s. Jones 9 up.

3—Jones missed the green with his tee shot and went into a trap. Homans was 10 feet from the cup. Jones was 18 feet short in 2, and was down in 4, conceding Homans his putt and the hole. Jones 8 up.

Halve 28th in 6s.

Twenty-seventh hole, 170 yards, par 4—Jones drove a very long ball, but in rough. Homans was in the fairway 30 yards behind. Gene put his second in a trap to the left. Jones' second found the same trap. Bob failed to get out on his third and took 4 to reach the green, 15 feet from the pin. Gene went over the green to a trap on the other side in 4. They were about the same distance from the cup in 5. It was a half in 6s and Jones was dormie 8.

Twenty-ninth hole, 378 yards, par 4—The drives were long at the 29th, Homans on the right of the fairway and Jones on the left. Homans pitched on past the cup. Jones was short in 2 and each took 2 putts for a half in par 4, Jones winning, 8 up and 7 to play.

ROCKNE PLANS TO BE STOCK BROKER AT SOUTH BEND

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, has decided to embark in the stock brokerage business, it was announced here today. He has not planned to give up his duties as athletic director at Notre Dame university.

Effective Oct. 1, Rockne will become associated with R. H. Gibson & Co. of this city as a special partner. The firm is opening an office at South Bend, Ind., home of Notre Dame, and Rockne's brokerage activities will be carried on in connection with his coaching work.

Al Feeney, one time all-American center, will be associated with Rockne in the South Bend office of the brokerage firm. Since his football days, Feeney has been in business in Indianapolis.

ROSLYN BEATS GREENTREE FOR POLO CUP, 15 TO 6

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Roslyn captured the Monty Waterbury high goal handicap polo cup at Meadow Brook today with a one sided victory over Greentree, 15 to 6. Roslyn never needed its two goal handicap gift, having led overwhelmingly from the start.

As a consequence of the victory, two burly Texas cowboys, Cecil Smith, from Llano, and H. W. [Rube] Williams, will take back with them to the Lone Star state the individual tournament cups which represent the highest achievement which American high goal handicap polo affords.

McCarthy Gets Silver Collection from Cub Fans

Cub fans paid their farewell tribute to Joe McCarthy, retiring manager of the north side club, in the Board of Trade building yesterday morning, when he was presented with a collection of silver pieces, assembled by popular subscription among Cub followers.

P. A. Mollan,, representing the committee in charge of the testimonial, made the presentation in the office of Ray De Long. The majority of pieces in the collection came from Chicagoans, but there were also a number from admirers of McCarthy throughout the country. Cub players also were represented in the collection, although Charley Grimm was the only player present. Coach Jimmy Burke and Clarence Rowland also attended the presentation ceremony.

During the course of the presentation a wire for McCarthy arrived. It was from Connie Mack, his rival in the world series last year, and read as follows:

"I would rather lose a world series to you than play any one else."

JONES TROUNCES HOMANS, 8 AND 7, IN AMATEUR FINAL

Bobby Takes Early Lead as 15,000 Watch.

match finally did come to an end, the sound effects were so perfunctory that the customers in the movie houses probably will suspect some fake.

Incidentally, I am advised on unreliable authority that on two of the holes which Homans lost in the morning, he was disturbed by the mechanical sounds of the picture apparatus, but there was no protest and anyway, the same apparatus was shooting at Bobby.

Bobby Uncertain About Future.

Now young Mr. Jones, who is 28 years old, with a fleshy tendency denoted by a small frontal bulge in his sweater, is not quite decided whether to go on playing all four of the American and British championships or only some of them or none.

"I don't think I ought to commit myself to any announcement," said he, as he ran the comb through his sopping hair in the dressing room off the 19 hole while the crowd waited for the cup ceremonies on the clubhouse lawn.

"Golf isn't the pleasure to me now that it was up to 1922. Nowadays, if I mess up a hole or lose a match, it's important, and I don't think a man can enjoy golf under those circumstances. But I may want to play in some tournaments and not in others, and I will just pick them according to my feelings as they come along. Right now I feel as if I might not want to see another golf stick for a year, but I have felt that way before.

A Million Would Tempt Him.

"I have not made any moving picture contracts, either. There has been a report that some one offered me $250,000 for a picture or some pictures, but it must have been some other Jones. There are a lot of us Joneses. Still, you cannot expect me to say that if some one would offer me a fortune, say a million dollars, to make some movies I would refuse to listen. I think a man of my means ought to listen very respectfully to any offer of a million dollars, and while I am too smart to fancy myself as an actor, some producer might not be as smart as I am on the subject.

"Whatever else I may do, I will not move to New York. I can live twice as well on half as much money in Atlanta."

Travers Congratulates Jones.

Among the footsore thousands on the fairways today was Jerome Travers, who won the amateur championship four times himself in his tournament days. Mr. Jones tied this record in 1928 and today Mr. Travers came down from his home in the Jersey suburbs of New York to see it excelled. He allowed that said Bobby Jones could give him 2 strokes and beat him the best day he ever lived. He was among the first 10,000 to congratulate the winner.

George Von Elm of Los Angeles, who beat Bobby for the title one year and who has seemed to be his most challenging competitor, did not appear with the formal statement which he had promised to release after the tournament explaining his retirement from the national amateur. For some reason the boys in the upstairs room where the telegraph companies were hurling a vast amount of wordage across space, were anticipating something nippy or controversial from Mr. Von Elm, and it may be that he is timing his release to let it go on some dull morning when it will compel the maximum attention.

Pa Jones Gets a Bracer.

Bobby Jones' pa, an attorney at law down home, seemed a bit fagged when the tournament was over, and I trust that I will not be the means of setting the law and the W. C. T. U. on him when I quote him as saying: "What I need most right now is one damn good drink." Some one thereupon handed Bobby's pa a drink.

The son of Shep Homans, a noted Princeton football center, Gene, the victim in today's proceedings is a youth designed for lighter athletic duties. He is very tall and spare, with spectacles set upon a thin nose, and a casting director looking for a young school teacher might look further and find nobody truer to the studious type. He became more studious and somber as his misfortunes accumulated until, at the end, he indulged in a smile of relief and apparent admiration.

Cubs Hit Five Homers; Beat Reds, 13 to 8

series at Comiskey park next Wednesday, and since it was announced that Ted Lyons on Friday had wound up his championship season with his 2[illegible] victory of the season it now seems a safe bet that it will be Malone vs. Lyons Wednesday, a swell dish for the fans for at least one game of the series.

A single by Swanson, a double by Callaghan, a sacrifice by Crawford, a single by Cuccinnello, an error by Blair, and a double by Stripp gave the Reds their 4 to 0 handicap in the first inning of yesterday's game.

Blair Hits Triple.

It seemed, however, that the Cubs were going to catch up immediately, for Blair opened the Chicago offensive with a triple. But he died on third because English fanned; Cuyler flied to Durocher, Wilson walked and D. Taylor flied to Callaghan.

In the second inning Hartnett got his 36th homer. Kelly was thrown out by Durocher but Bell doubled and scored on Malone's single.

A double by Heilmann and a single by Stripp in the first of the third made the score 5 to 2 in favor of the Reds, but the count became 5 to 3 when Hartnett batted his No. 37 in the Cub half of the third.

Malone then settled down to do business and for five innings allowed only one hit, a single by Swanson in the seventh.

In the fourth the Cubs took the lead and never relinquished it. After Malone had flied out, Blair singled to right. The fourth ball to English was a passed ball and Blair went to third, whence he scored on Cuyler's sacrifice fly.

Hack Hits No. 55.

The Cubs went in front when Hack knocked No. 55 into the center field stand, driving in English ahead of him. After Rixey had relieved Kolp Dan Taylor singled to center and got to second on a delayed steal. He scored on Hartnett's double. The big inning ended when Rixey threw out Kelly.

In the sixth Cuyler singled and came home ahead of Wilson when Hack socked No. 56 into the right field bleachers.

Singles by Kelly and Blair and a pair of walks gave the Cubs two runs in the eighth and in the ninth the Reds made three runs when Malone did some loafing.

The final of the National league season will be played this afternoon between the same clubs.

HAWTHORNE'S 29 DAY MEETING TO CLOSE SEASON

Gold Cup Race Oct. 11 Tops Track's Program.

Chicago's racing season of six months will reach its final stages tomorrow when a fall meeting of 29 days opens at the Hawthorne track. This will be the last meeting of the year here and will wind up the turf sport, as far as Chicago and Illinois are concerned until next May 1.

The Hawthorne fall season always attracts unusual interest because it brings a renewal of the Hawthorne Gold cup, which will gross more than $30,000 this year. It will be decided on the afternoon of Oct. 11, and every good handicap and stake performer in the country will be here to take part in the struggle. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau will defend the laurels he won in the same race a year ago.

The Hawthorne season will be launched with the largest number of horses ever assembled at the rebuilt west side course. Many horses which have not raced in Chicago this season have been arriving from Canada, New York, and other racing centers. Quite a number of new jockeys also have come to Hawthorne to ride throughout the meeting.

The daily program will have no purse of less value than $1,200. On the first Saturday a handicap, with an endowment of $5,000, will be the attraction. This event, at one mile and a sixteenth, will be a tryout for the aspirants to the Hawthorne Gold cup.

The official roster, with two exceptions, will be similar to that of the summer meeting. Secretary Joe McLennan will be an absentee, due to the fact that he is engaged in Maryland. Herman Conkling also will be employed at Laurel. The first race will be called at 2 o'clock each afternoon.

COOPER REPLACES INJURED HAGEN IN MATCH TODAY

Harry Cooper, winner of the recent St. Paul and Medinah open golf championships, will team with Horton Smith against Al Espinosa and Frank Walsh at Bryn Mawr Country club today. Cooper will be substituting for Walter Hagen, who yesterday suffered an injury to his left hand in Detroit. Hagen was forced to cancel an exhibition in Rochester as well as the one here.

Cooper is the professional at Glen Oak Country club. He tied with Tommy Armour for the American open championship in Pittsburgh in 1927.

ELGIN HIGH GRID TEAM DEFEATS SCHURZ, 13 TO 6

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Elgin High took both ends of a football double header with Schurz of Chicago here today, defeating Schurz lights, 26 to 0, and the heavyweights, 13 to 6.

Elgin scored first on a 22 yard pass, Cahill to Born. On the next play Treece plunged over. Schurz scored on a 30 yard pass, Frankowski to Brennan.

Elgin's last score was made by Pilcher, substitute half back, on a wide end run.

Handicap Title Won by Lady Broadcast

thought Pansy Walker would be the winner, for she was backed so stoutly that she went to the post as the favorite. Lady Broadcast was the third choice, Plucky Play having come in for much backing right at post time.

Reveille Boy and Lady Broadcast caused a delay of 4 minutes at the post and finally Reveille Boy was taken to the outside of the gate. Morrissy got them away in good alignment and My Dandy was soon rushed to the front by Jockey M. Knight. He stayed there until they hit the lower bend when Pansy Walker moved into the lead with Lady Broadcast just an inch back of her.

Three Horses Spill.

Then came the struggle between the two fleet racing mares. They ran head and head. In one jump Pansy Walker was in front. In the next Lady Broadcast had taken the lead. Lady Broadcast proved the gamer of the two. She was out a length in front of Pansy Walker midway in the stretch. She kept on going and had no trouble holding Pigeon Hole safe as he came up with a final stubborn challenge. Pansy Walker was thoroughly whipped and had all she could do to save third money from My Dandy. Plucky Play, Golden Prince, Culloden, Karl Eitel and Reveille Boy trailed them home in the order named.

Three horses went down near the finish line of the first race, the most spectacular spill of the year here. Jockeys Eugene James and Buddy Hanford, two of the stars of the meeting, were injured. They went down on Devlin and Ragabald and Kit Carson, ridden by W. Moran, came along and fell over them.

James Breaks Jaw.

The spill came directly in front of the grand stand and was in full view of the crowd. James was reported to have suffered a broken jaw and other injuries. He was rushed to the Chicago Heights hospital for an X-ray to discover the extent of the injury. Hanford was shaken up and may have been hurt internally.

Devlin, ridden by Hanford, and The Dago, the favorite, had raced head and head down the stretch. The Dago took a slight lead on the outside within 20 strides of the finish line. As he leaped to the front Devlin went down and Ragabald and Kit Carson were also down a second later.

Rail Is Listed as a Game Bird, but Few Bother Him

BY BOB BECKER.

In the marshes where clouds of blackbirds float across the horizon as they fly from feeding grounds to roosting places, the outdoorsman at this time of the year will see a shy slender bird which hides its arrival and departure under cover of darkness. This odd little bird is the rail.

There are several species which come through the middle west in the fall. They are considered game birds, but as such make ideal game only for the tyro. Of all the marsh birds that one is apt to encounter during the autumn season, the rail easily gives the most pitiful exhibition of flying that we have ever seen.

There is speed in the flight of the jacksnipe, yellowleg, sandpiper, and the plover, but the rail rises reluctantly on feeble, fluttering wings, flies but a few feet, and then drops as if exhausted into the reeds again. So slow and straight is its flight that the poorest shot with a shotgun can hit one with his eyes closed.

In the east rail shooting is still on the sport program, although in the middle west few hunters pay any attention to them.

We flushed a sora rail [one of the smaller species in the family] a few days ago when we were in a marsh along the upper Illinois. It rose from the rushes and flew not more than 15 feet before diving into the vegetation again. Last fall one walked out of the reeds along the shore of a duck pond where we were hunting and calmly started to feed not five feet from us.

OAK PARK WINS 17TH GAME FROM AUSTIN, 14 TO 0

Rubini Scores Winners' Touchdowns.

Oak Park High gained its seventeenth victory from Austin High by defeating the Chicagoans, 14 to 0, in their nineteenth annual game at Oak Park yesterday. A crowd of 13,000 saw the game.

The Villagers' victory was due to their greater experience and powerful line. Austin, with only three letter men in the line and a back field of last year's subs, fought its seasoned opponents to a standstill in the first half.

Rubini, Oak Park's half back, was the individual star of the game. He hustled his 157 pounds through the line and off tackle for consistent gains.

In the closing seconds, Bollas, Austin half, caught a pass from Kerrigan and ran fifty yards to the Oak Park four yard line. One attempt to score was stopped, and then the gun sounded.

MORE SENATE CANDIDATES VOTE IN ROAD POLL

18 Now Have Indorsed Improvement Plan.

BY HAL FOUST.

Eight more replies have been received in THE TRIBUNE's poll of state senators and senatorial candidates in the larger metropolitan area on some important road problems that will confront the next session of the general assembly. They made a total of eighteen who have indicated their indorsement of a plan to appropriate funds to widen arterial highways for 100 or 150 miles from Chicago and to separate the grades at the intersections of important pavements.

The questions asked in the poll are:

1. Will you vote for a bill requiring the state highway department to give road improvements to the 37 senatorial districts of the metropolitan area in proportion to the revenue collected by the state from the motorists of this area?

2. Will you vote for grade separations and widening on arterial routes in preference to building new roads not on the bond issue systems?

3. Will you vote for a specific construction program such as the plan suggested by the Chicago Motor club?

39 Districts Benefited.

The additional eight to give affirmative answers are Roy C. Woods [Rep., 5th district], Charles E. Peace [Rep., 29th district], Peter P. Kielminski [Dem., 15th district], Joseph Kemmerling [Dem., 3d district], Irwin M. Howe [Dem., 41st district], George M. Maypole [Dem., 21st district], Frank J. Huckin Jr. [Dem., 25th district], and Francis A. Horrigan [Rep., 21st district].

Thirty-nine senatorial districts are directly benefited by a program of widening and grade separation to be submitted to the legislature next January by the Chicago Motor club. Twenty-six votes are a majority in the senate. The program calls for the construction of 450 miles of two lane pavement to complete the state bond issue systems, the widening of 870 miles of pavement, and the construction of 63 grade separations.

Summary to Be Printed.

A summary of THE TRIBUNE's poll will be published shortly before the senatorial elections in November for the information of the motorists visiting the polls. For the information of the voting motorists, THE TRIBUNE will also publish a list of those senatorial candidates who have declined to declare themselves in the poll on these highway problems of major importance to all who ride automobiles. The elections are being held this year in the odd numbered senatorial districts, which include Cook county's nineteen districts.

FLORIDA POLICE READY TO FIGHT HIKER MENACE

St. Petersburg, Fla., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Police authorities of a dozen Florida west coast cities are organizing to combat the invasion of a horde of unemployed, moving on this state in groups of from two to four.

Reports from city officials and motor club officers that the highways are crowded with walking vagrants who try to "thumb" rides to Florida and who grow abusive when motorists pass them by, have inspired police of St. Petersburg, Clearwater, Tampa and other cities in this section of the state to make ready their jails for the incarceration of those who decline to leave.

Seeking a cause for the exodus of unemployed to Florida, officials discovered that a rumor to the effect that orange pickers were being hired by the hundreds at $5 a day had been circulated through many northern sectors, particularly in the great lakes region.

One motorist arriving in Tampa last week said he saw "hundreds of bums trying to 'thumb' a ride to Florida." When he passed some of them by, they hurled stones at his automobile and used vile language.

Miss Billie Perrine, secretary of a local motor club, arrived home recently from a tour of the north. She said the roads were lined with "hitch hikers," some of whom were in tatters and rags. She said the horde included men, women and children.

UNEMPLOYED MAY GET ROAD WORK DURING WINTER

State Planning to Go Ahead.

Chicago's unemployed this winter could use jobs from the state's highway construction. Road work, heretofore, has been looked upon as a means to improve economic conditions, but most of the attention to this factor this summer was directed by Springfield toward relief to the farmers whose corn was burned by the drought.

With freezing weather due in a few weeks, paving and grading of rural roads will be suspended until spring. With the ground frozen, grading is difficult. Concrete must be closely guarded when it is laid with the thermometer below 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

Grade Separation Work.

"It isn't practical to try to carry on the bulk of the road work during winter," said State Highway Engineer Sheets. "However, in moderate winter weather certain types of bridge construction can be continued, although it involves some risks in setting the concrete. This would apply to grade separation work."

"In view of the unemployment in the metropolitan area," said Director Cleaveland of the state department of public works, "I think we will be justified this winter in taking more risks than we would ordinarily. I want to keep as many men as possible at work on bridges and grade separations this winter.

"The state this year has advanced the widening of pavements in the metropolitan area, keeping up with the proposals of the most optimistic planners. What the area needs now is grade separations at the intersections of the busy pavements.

Several Plans Prepared.

"We have the plans prepared for four or five grade separations, and we can get some more ready for work this winter. What we need is some coöperation from the county authorities in obtaining the rights of way."

A citizens' advisory committee, in drafting Cook county's 1930 road program, recommended that the county's $1,200,000 of 1927 gas tax be spent on grade separations. It has not been spent. Some of this fund could be used for right of way for the state to proceed with construction of grade separations this winter.

Pennsylvania Cuts Road Lights to Speed Traffic

The highway department of Pennsylvania has ordered all control lights removed from intersections at state highways with a peak load of less than 500 cars an hour and where fewer than 125 cars an hour approach the intersection from the side roads. The order will reduce to about 400 the total of potential red lights which can momentarily stop a motorist making a theoretical tour.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Production of automobiles in the United States during the month of August amounted to 223,046, of which 187,037 were passenger cars, 35,758 trucks, and 251 taxicabs. This is a reduction of 39,000 under July production, which was 262,363. It is less than 50 per cent of output for August last year when the output was 498,628 units.

During the first 10 days of September new car sales by Oakland-Pontiac dealers throughout the United States increased 51 per cent over sales during the corresponding period of August, while used car sales improved 9 per cent. These figures, released last week by W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales, tend to substantiate his recent assertion that the tide of business had seen its lowest ebb and that increased buying is bringing conditions back toward normal.

Peerless has announced three new lines of improved straight eights, including 14 body styles. All models are equipped for radio installation. The custom eight has a wheelbase of 138 inches; the master eight, 125 inches, and the standard eight, 118 inches. Four speed transmission is an additional feature.

"Willys-Overland's 30 per cent August increase over July in unit sales, accompanied as it is by the first general improvement in car loadings and steel tonnage, indicates to us a definite and encouraging upturn," L. A. Miller, president, said last week. "Statistics of saving deposits, coupled with some gain in employment generally, indicate an improvement in purchasing power, production, and sales."

Announcement is made by L. P. Fisher, president of Cadillac, that effective Jan. 1 the Campbell-Ewald company has been retained as advertising counsel. The announcement further states that W. W. Lewis, assistant general sales manager and director of advertising of Cadillac, is promoted to the advertising staff of General Motors. Trueman F. Campbell, assistant director of advertising of Cadillac, becomes advertising manager.

An important indication of business revival is reported by Marmon through announcement by George C. Tenney, general sales director, that September shipments of Marmon straight eights will not only exceed by more than 100 per cent the total of August this year, but will be larger than the total in September, 1929.

W. E. Butler, Hudson-Essex distributor, yesterday pointed out advantages of purchasing an automobile in the autumn—the saving of necessary maintenance bills on the old car, the new car performance during the strain of winter driving, and the lower prices and better terms that can be obtained during the dealers' busy months of spring and early summer.

Introduction of a new de luxe delivery car has been announced by Ford Motor. It is similar to the Tudor passenger car, but it is fourteen and a half inches longer.

COUNTY G.O.P. HAS ROAD PLANK IN ITS PLATFORM

Favors Construction Out of Gas Tax.

We favor the continued construction, out of proceeds of the gas tax, of radial highways in Chicago and the metropolitan area, and the application to them of the principle of grade separation.—The Republican party of Cook county.

A convention of the Cook county Republicans a few days ago adopted a platform that included a plank favoring improvement of the pavements radiating into the country from the heart of Chicago and the construction of grade separations to eliminate the hazards and delays caused by cross traffic.

This is said to be the first platform pronouncement of any party in a metropolitan area on the subject of expediting traffic with safety through the provision of modern pavement facilities. The initiative taken by the Republicans this fall marks a recognition of the importance of this problem.

The author of the plank was Ald. John A. Massen, committeeman of the 48th ward. He has been active in the council in promoting sentiment for new boulevards with continuous grade separation.

"The traffic problem," he said, "is one of the most important problems confronting the Chicago metropolitan area. Traffic congestion involves something more than the inconvenience of motorists. It increases costs of production and costs of distribution and thus the cost of living.

"Easy and rapid access to the city from the country and to the country from the city has become a practical necessity. The accomplishment of this will mean much to Chicago and perhaps even more to downstate.

"The value to Chicago and to Illinois of radial highways connecting the heart of Chicago with the hard roads which enter it at its edge and applying the principle of grade separation where and as feasible is beyond computation. The Republican party of Cook county, in embodying in its platform the plank calling for the construction of such radial highways, has taken a most constructive step."

CANADA TO KEEP ROADS OPEN FOR WINTER TOURISTS

MONTREAL — Automobile traffic will again be possible on a number of highways in the vicinity of Montreal and Quebec next winter, following a decision announced by the Hon. J. E. Perrault, minister of highways, following consultation with Col. Boulanger, his deputy, and A. Fraser, chief engineer.

"In view of the good results attained last winter by assuring the opening in winter of some of the highways in the province," stated Mr. Perrault, "I have decided again this year to adopt the same policy and at least 200 miles or so of highway will be kept in such condition next winter so as to allow motor vehicles to operate without difficulty. The experiment last year proved very satisfactory.

"In the district of Montreal the plans are to maintain open throughout the winter about 100 miles, as was the case last year. The roads affected are those leading to the United States border, so that our American friends will again have the advantage of calling on us even during the winter months, and also in other sections in the vicinity of the metropolis where needs are more pressing. There will be a few changes in the routes, but generally the same roads maintained last season will again be kept opened."

More Touring During 1930 Season than Ever Before

With the summer touring season drawing to a close there are indications that more motor miles have been reeled off in the United States during the last few months than ever before. Increase in the extent of good roads, favorable weather and the ever gaining urge for recreation outdoors are given as the principal causes for additional touring. Record breaking sales in motor fuel have been reported by the bureau of mines, United States department of commerce.

WOMEN'S WILES BEAT WOMEN'S SMILES IN AUTOS

Always Get Permission to Break the Law.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

Women's wiles count more than women's smiles with the traffic cop.

"Officer, can I turn here?" asked at a no-turn corner will get a gruff but friendly, "Well, you can do it this time," when no amount of smiling after the turn was made would have let the little woman off without at least a good bawling out.

"You can get your way in traffic more often," one woman driver said, "by using your brains beforehand than by using any amount of blandishments after the deed is done."

You Get What You Want.

"The safe rule," she continued, "when you want to get away with something that isn't quite Hoyle, is to drive right up to a cop and ask him whether or not you can do it. Maybe it's because he wants to get rid of you or because you're holding up traffic but you get what you want almost invariably."

I tried it out. The lights were red with no turns allowed on the red. So I drifted gently ahead to where the arm of the law was extended.

"Couldn't I turn on the red, officer?" I asked shyly.

"Can't be done," he answered promptly, and then, "Well, nothin' comin' the other way. Might let you do it this time."

So I swung swiftly off the avenue.

At the next corner I swung round on the red without making the cop my confidante. I'd almost accomplished my purpose, when—

"Who d'yuh think you are, any way. Pull over."

I pulled.

Now, Listen, Lady.

Lazily and scornfully he walked over to the car and rested his arm on the door.

"Now, listen, lady, maybe you're gonna say you didn't know you couldn't turn on the red. Well, I've said it for you so you don't need to."

I turned on my sweetest smile, but it didn't phase him.

"Now," he went on, "I'll just keep 'em quiet till you back up to where you started from. And you don't need to turn on the green, either. You can just go right ahead. Turn at somebody else's corner, not mine."

But with the speed cop the story is a little different. There a few smiles mixed in with a lot of good psychology work wonders. And when all else failed, tears have turned the trick for many a feminine violator.

A motorcycle cop who prefers to be nameless tells this story on himself:

Only Going 25.

"I chased a dame in a high powered car for more than a mile. She was doing about 52 when I stopped her and told her she was under arrest. She turned out to be gray haired and grandmotherly."

The ensuing conversation went like this:

"Why, officer, I don't mean to question your verity, but I couldn't have been going more than 25 miles an hour. I never drive faster than that."

The officer insisted and she politely but firmly tried to talk him out of it. Finally, he began to doubt his own senses. Maybe he was wrong. Maybe he had been following an entirely different car. But he was convinced enough to take her to the judge where she told the same story and would have convinced him if it hadn't been for the cop's record for telling the truth. After the fine was assessed she called the cop over to her.

"You know," she said, with an amused laugh, "that's the first time that hasn't worked in eight years."

"Since then," he footnoted his story, "women get no more breaks from me."

PAVING HONORS GO TO IOWA; HAS BUILT 700 MILES

This year's honors in first class pavement building go to Iowa, which has already this season constructed 700 miles of hard surfaced pavement of a program that embraces 1,025 miles. At the end of every working day Iowa road builders have turned out no less than four miles of concrete pavement.

This accomplishment of Iowa is regarded as a remarkable achievement for an agricultural state. Altogether some $33,000,000 will be spent this year in improving Iowa roads. The state has been able to foster such an extensive road program because of the widespread adoption among counties of the bond issue plan. So far seventy-nine counties have voted bonds totaling $102,000,000. This, in effect, constitutes a state plan, for the Iowa state highway commission has complete authority over all construction on primary roads. The money for financing the county bond issues is coming from the 3 cent gasoline tax and from the motor vehicle license fee receipts.

The effects of the paving program are noticeable. A recent traffic survey in Des Moines indicated that 17 per cent more motorists were coming into the city this year than did last year. General business conditions are better in Iowa than in most states and there is less unemployment.

Regulations Will Not Solve Traffic Problems—Experts

Regulations alone will not solve traffic problems, according to the national conference on street and highway safety, but long range planning is necessary to relieve existing conditions of congestion and prevent future ones.

BE CAREFUL WITH FIRE.

With the federal government now spending aproximately $19,000 per day for forest fire prevention work, thoughtful motorists will be careful with cigarets, cigars, pipe tobacco, campfires and other combustibles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Problems dealing with highway construction, material, maintenance, administration, finance, and traffic will be discussed by approximately 1,500 highway engineers and specialists representing more than 60 nations at the sixth International Road congress to be held in Washington from Oct. 6 to 11.

While similar conferences have been held previously in Paris, Brussels, London, Seville, and Milan, this is the first ever held in the western hemisphere. Invitations were extended by the United States government, and acceptances have been received from practically every civilized nation of the world.

The conference, which is held under the auspices of the Permanent International Association of Road Congresses, with headquarters in Paris, is under the direction of a commission appointed by President Hoover and headed by Roy D. Chapin of Detroit, a nationally known leader in highway and transportation affairs.

Divided Into Two Sections.

Other active members of the commission are Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads; Wilbur J. Carr of the state department, Thomas R. Taylor of the department of commerce, A. J. Brousseau, vice president of the United States chamber of commerce; Dr. H. G. Shirley, Virginia highway commissioner; H. H. Rice of Detroit, Robert Hooper of the American Automobile association, and Charles M. Upham of the American Road Builders' association.

An honorary committee, consisting of the President and his cabinet, as well as leaders of congressional committees dealing with highway affairs, has also been designated.

The congress will be divided into two sections, one dealing with construction and maintenance of highways, the other with traffic and administration. Section one will discuss the use of cement, bricks, and other paving materials, the use of tar and asphalt in road construction, and the construction of roads in new countries, while the second section will consider ways and means of financing highways, coördination of highway transport with other forms of communication, and city traffic regulation. Coincidental with the road congress the American Road Builders' association will stage an exposition of latest highway equipment and material.

Conditions Getting Better.

Discussing plans for the conference, Chairman Chapin today asserted that the large prospective attendance indicates that economic conditions throughout the world are on the upgrade.

"The direct public reaction to the congress will be the impression that world affairs are getting back to their normal course," Mr. Chapin said. "The sessions will serve to rivet public attention to the question of highway transportation and thus help to turn the world's thought toward more fruitful channels.

"It is well known that transportation is one of the most important keys to economic progress, and inasmuch as highways are built at comparatively small cost and are built quickly we can look for an expansion of highway systems all over the world within the comparatively near future."

Among the speakers who will be heard by the congress are Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer for Illinois, who will submit a paper on the use of cement in road construction, and Dr. Miller McClintock, director of the Albert Russel Erskine bureau for street traffic research, Harvard university, whose paper will deal with traffic regulations and parking problems. Dr. McClintock was in charge of the Chicago traffic survey made by the Chicago Association of Commerce three years ago.

Four Official Languages.

Seventy-six papers have been submitted by the various delegates and are being translated into English, German, Spanish, and French, the four official languages of the conference. The topics for these papers were assigned more than a year ago, and the results represent the studied opinion of 170 of the world's foremost authorities on highway construction and associated subjects.

Following the congress three tours of the country will be conducted by the highway education board for the purpose of studying at first hand highway transportation conditions in the various parts of the United States. Invitations have been extended to 300 of the leading highway engineers and administrators in the world, according to the announcement of the board, and an effort will be made to include at least one of the representatives of every country attending the congress.

In an effort to acquaint the delegates with conditions in a latitude relatively comparable to their own, the tours will be divided into three sections. The first will go northeast as far as Boston, the second will go to Florida, and the third will proceed to the middle west as far as Minneapolis and Des Moines.

The mid-western tour will spend some time in Chicago studying traffic and highway conditions there. It will also proceed through Jacksonville, Springfield, La Salle, and Rockford. The party is scheduled to leave Chicago Friday, Oct. 24.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

MASHERS.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—It is a question as to whether the particular type of nuisance I am about to complain about comes within your particular province or not. The vermin I mean are those who ogle women, usually in the parks. They will see a female sitting or strolling along and will slow up or stop their car, making signs to her inviting her to come into their car.

They invariably cause some slowing up of traffic, or will make cars following them turn out. They are an obnoxious nuisance on the park roads. The park police should not arrest them, but take them behind the shrubbery somewhere and beat them up thoroughly.

No doubt this is just what the cops yearn to do. This type of nuisance is usually driving a car of such poor quality that a woman must be starved for a ride to accept their invitation.

ROADS WHERE NEEDED.

Nauvoo, Ill., Sept. 20.—The editorial, "Roads Where Roads Are Needed," which was evidently prompted by your discovery that heavy traffic lanes need wider roads, has my approval.

If you men in Chicago who are interested in 40 foot pavement for the roads that carry heavy traffic would use your influence with the state department of public works money might be saved from scenic highways and used for service highways.

To illustrate my point of view, let me cite one case on No. 96, between Nauvoo and Hamilton.

A small part of the people of that vicinity are urging a scenic drive along the river which would cost approximately three times the amount of a good straight service road, three miles east of the river, and would save 4½ miles for through traffic.

ALBERT G. WEBER.

UNLIGHTED CARS.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—One way to make a strong heart grow weak is to be driving along some car line or boulevard at about 25 miles an hour and have some car without lights come out of a side street. Now here is an idea that might work out. Why couldn't the police stop all drivers who have no lights and, instead of giving them a ticket to be fixed or torn up, give them a receipt for the keys of their car? Forbid them to drive any more that night, and they can call for their keys only after daylight the following day.

Many people do not drive without lights intentionally, but any driver who would start away from the curb without lights is no driver. A two weeks' drive on these devils of death and accident might stop it. Of course the well meaning fellow would have to suffer with the fellow who knowingly breaks the law.

I am a public chauffeur and make my bread and butter that way. I have driven nights only for three years, and many a time when I have called a person's attention to no lights they only thumb their nose at me or call some insult.

NIGHT DRIVER.

AN ACCOMMODATING POLICE CAR.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—I have listened in on the daily razzing of our Chicago police for some time. I agree with 75 per cent of it. However, here is an item in their favor.

We were driving south on Jeffery avenue recently and noticed a car stalled at 76th street. It was apparent that the trouble was in the starter. A yellow flivver squad passed them, hesitated long enough to see the trouble, then turned around and went back.

Being naturally curious, we slowed down to watch, expecting the officers to bawl out the poor devil for riding in a car with a bum starter. Imagine our surprise when they obligingly gave the car a push until the motor caught.

How could I have thought so ill of the police department?

S.

COUNTY'S SECONDARY ROUTES.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Will you kindly advise me what the small rectangular marking signs having two large black letters on a gray background are for? I have noticed these all along the highways and they have various combinations of letters—QH, PS, QE, etc. Your answer will be appreciated by several of my motorist friends, as well as myself.

MISS ALICE B. PROCHAKSA.

SENTIMENT FOR CHANGE IN ROAD POLICY GROWING

Want State to Acquire Land for Improvements.

A sentiment is growing in all parts of Illinois for the state highway department to change its policy regarding the acquisition of rights of way. At present, the state requires the local authorities, counties, or municipalities to furnish the ground for road improvements. It is proposed that this policy should be retained in the building of new roads but that the state should assume the burden of buying right of way for improvements of existing pavements, such as widening, flattening curves, bettering alignments.

The change would be particularly satisfactory to the metropolitan area where the land is so expensive that the site for additional pavement is frequently more expensive than the pavement itself. However, less thickly populated counties are also favoring the proposal because they are finding that farmers already served with slab road do not care to dedicate more of their land for improvements aiding through traffic but of little local benefit.

Established in 1918.

The state established its present policy when the $60,000,000 bond issue was voted in 1918. It was founded on the theory that construction of a concrete road compensated for the right of way by enhancing the value of abutting real estate.

The theory was sound, in so far as farm lands were concerned, because almost all of the rights of way were dedicated gratis by land owners. Even in the built up areas, where the higher value of the land made owners reluctant to surrender property, the benefits of the hard road reduced appreciably the price paid by counties and municipalities for rights of way for state highways.

With a hard road in front of their property, the owners, generally speaking, are no longer interested in its further improvement. Its widening, its better alignment, and its separation of grades will bring more traffic and faster traffic onto the road, and the only abutting property owners who care for that are gasoline station proprietors.

Hurts Homesite Values.

The additional traffic, as a matter of fact, decreases the value of the roadside for residential purposes, just as would the location of a railroad near front doors of country homes.

It's the motoring public that wants the widening, the improved alignments, and the separation of grades. And the motorists are willing to pay for what they want, through the gasoline tax and registration fees.

In the building of new roads, however, right of way can generally be obtained at little or no cost. In the metropolitan area, real estate subdividers give land for pavements because a state highway opens additional property for the sale of lots. Outside the metropolitan area, farmers will give right of way in return for a highway that will cut the distance from their farm to a hard road.

ESTIMATE AUTOS TAKES 100 LIVES IN U. S. EACH DAY

Deaths as the result of automobile accidents in the United States during 1930 will reach the appalling total of 36,000, or approximately 100 a day, according to estimates just made by the American Motorists' association.

The estimates are based on a preliminary survey for the first six months of this year, which shows that there has been an increase of 9 per cent in automobile fatalities over the corresponding period of 1929.

"At the same rate of increase for the entire year of 1930 it will mean that a total of 36,035 persons will meet their death as the result of automobile accidents, representing an increase of 2,975 over the 1929 traffic toll, which was 33,060," declared J. Borton Weeks, president of the A. M. A.

SKIDDING ON GRAVEL ROADS.

Motorists accustomed to driving on concrete highways should make the turns on gravel roads at greatly reduced speed, as the danger of skidding on gravel turns is far greater than on concrete.

AVIATION

ENGINEERS FIND CAUSE OF MANY ENGINE FAILURES

BY ROBERT WOOD.

While the man who now drives an automobile awaits with interest the successful development of a plane for amateur flyers, notable progress is being made in the work of eliminating one by one the dangers points of aircraft.

Recently the Detroit Aircraft corporation completed the development of a parachute for airplanes which enables a pilot to pull a lever freeing a large "chute" and float slowly to the ground in case trouble develops aloft. Those who watched the first demonstration of the new plane parachute at Detroit recently stated that the chute when finally perfected will be a great safety accessory for flying.

Blame Fuel Arrangements.

The parachute, however, is no protection against accidents in landing and taking off, when failure often occurs. Two New York experts, Prof. Alexander Klemin of the Guggenheim school and Maj. G. L. Lloyd, vice president of Barder & Baldwin, Inc., aviation insurance underwriters, investigating the fatal crashes and forced landings, due to motor failure during the initial climb of planes, recently issued a report laying the blame for such failure at the door of fuel arrangements.

When planes are stopped by shutting off the fuel at the base of the storage tanks the lines become empty, the report said. The first turn of the valve preparatory to starting again fills the bowl of the carburetor by sending a slow trickle down the side of the line, which does not force all the air out of the line. It forms a seal on the lower end, precluding the escape of the remaining air. There is sufficient fuel for starting and warming the motor.

Available Fuel Soon Used.

As soon as the plane is wheeled to the runway and taken off at full throttle, however, the fuel present in the carburetor is used up before the necessity for full throttle operation is passed. The air bound fuel lines refuse to feed gasoline fast enough to keep the mixture to capacity, and the manifolds fill with more air through the carburetor air intakes.

Motors which stall from this cause are hard to start again, as the air binding soon extends through the valve chambers, manifolds, and cylinder heads, so that even though the pilot realizes his position with the first sign of faltering he becomes helpless to remedy the condition. The limit of his resourcefulness is usually taxed in the imperative endeavor to land the plane safely, and he has little time to bother with the engine.

Accounts for Accidents.

The investigators said in a report submitted to the industry and to the department of commerce:

"We are satisfied that this condition can and does exist, and probably accounts for many unexplained accidents with competent pilots at the controls. In one of our tests it took more than five minutes before a full flow of gasoline was achieved following an air lock in the lines—the air bubbling out through the carburetor instead of exhausting itself through the vents in the tank. In another test the air in the line restricted the flow to 50 per cent for a period of four minutes. In some tests no air locks occurred; in others the flow was full for several minutes, when it would become intermittent as sections of air were forced through the lines. When all the air was exhausted the flow again became normal."

American Bankers Assoc. May Revise Branch Banking Policy

BATTER DOWN WHEAT PRICES TO 24 YEAR LOW

Market Liquidation Rages Unchecked.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Hysterical liquidation by holders of wheat and other grains in the world's markets continued unabated yesterday, with all deliveries of wheat and rye selling at a new low for the season and for many years, as did December, March, and May oats and May corn. No attention was paid to constructive news.

While there was aggressive buying at times, it was unable to stem the tide, and September wheat dropped to 74⅛c, the lowest figure since September, 1906, when it was down to 69⅛c, and the close was at the bottom. Net losses were 2@2⅜c, with September, 74⅛@74¾c; December, 78@78¼c; March, 81⅞@82⅛c, and May, 84⅝@84⅞c.

Semi-demoralization was reported in the Liverpool wheat market, which dropped 2@2½d to the lowest figures in many years, with persistent free offers from Russia a factor, and general liquidation developed. October there closed at 86¾c. According to mail reports Russia sold October wheat in Liverpool freely on Sept. 15 as a hedge against cash wheat, although the latter was of such quality that it could not be delivered on contracts.

Winnipeg Market.

Winnipeg failed to fully reflect the break in Chicago and was off 1⅞@2¼c, reports of export sales of 600,000 to 700,000 bu and a lack of hedging pressure being factors. Buenos Aires closed ⅜@⅞c lower.

While the general attitude of the trade was to ignore developments of a constructive character comments heard on the exchange floor and messages from outside markets suggested that a change in sentiment was under way. Minneapolis reported millers heavy buyers of futures there, and it was understood large flour sales were put through during the day.

A prediction that grain markets of the United States will be on a purely domestic basis long before another crop is harvested was made by President George S. Milnor of the Grain Stabilization corporation and general manager of the Farmers National Grain corporation. Mr. Milnor asserted that investigations made for the corporations' agents throughout the country indicated that millions of bushels of wheat are being fed to live stock, that mills in all parts of the country are grinding wheat for feed and that in many instances farmers having grain in storage since early in the season are returning it to farms to be used in the feed lots.

Liquidation in Grains.

A wave of liquidation engulfed the grain markets during the last week and at no time was there any great rallying power disclosed. Final trades showed net losses of 6⅛@7c on wheat as compared with the previous week, while corn was 6⅜@7¼c, oats 3@3⅛c, and rye 7¼@9c lower for the week. Lard dropped 80@90c, and bellies 20@80c for the week.

Buying against daily and weekly bids was a factor in checking the decline in corn, but both large and small holders were active in liquidating their holdings and the finish was 1⅞@2⅜c lower. September closed at 82¼@82½c; December, 78¼@78⅜c; March, 79½@79⅝c, and May, 81⅝@81⅞c. Forecast for frost over the greater part of the belt over the weekend had comparatively little effect, nor did the active shipping demand with sales of 150,000 bu.

Shorts furnished the bulk of the support in rye, but the weakness in wheat and general liquidation carried prices off sharply to a new low for the season and the close was 1⅛@1⅝c lower, with September 43⅜c; December, 47⅛c, and May, 53⅛c.

RAIL, UTILITY ISSUES GAIN IN BOND MART

New York, Sept. 27.—(AP)— High grade obligations of domestic railroad and utility companies forged into new high ground in a very active half day session of the bond market.

The session developed considerable irregularity, due to the unsettling effect of the stock market upon stock privilege bonds and low grade liens that are influenced by general business conditions. The movement of foreign bonds was again mixed, further selling forcing German bonds back towards the lows established earlier in the week. United States governments were firm and active.

Says Raybestos-Manhattan to Pay Next Full Dividend

Sumner Simpson, president of Raybestos-Manhattan company, asserts there is no question that directors will declare the full dividend for the fourth quarter in November. He said that although operations and earnings in July and August declined to unsatisfactory levels the company at no time lost money.

American Can to Build $1,600,000 Honolulu Plant

New York, Sept. 27.—The American Can company is to erect a new combined can factory and warehouse at Honolulu at a cost of $1,600,000. The 1930 output of cans for the pineapple industry is estimated at 206,000,000, an increase of 60,000,000 over last year.

Farm Income Outlook Now Is Improving

BY SCRUTATOR.

Spreading of gloom about farmers' prospects for income in the next year may have been overdone.

It is unfortunate that wheat, the political grain, has received undue attention and its troubles taken as indicative of the whole farm situation. Experts who deal with figures in the mass now are beginning to take prediction standings that in the stock and grain markets would be regarded as at least mildly bullish.

Economists meeting at Iowa State college for the central states' agricultural outlook conference announced yesterday their optimism about hog and cattle prices in 1931. Higher hogs are expected next fall and better prices for beef in the fall of 1931. Egg and possibly poultry prices are expected to be better after the first of the coming year.

May Be Delayed.

Recovery in sheep prices is expected to be delayed a longer time. The economists felt that dairy prices were unlikely to rise above the present levels, as the tendency in the central states is to increase the number of cows in order to maintain production cut down by the drought.

Disaster to farmers in the seventh federal reserve district seems to be pretty far off, on the basis of the Sept. 1 forecast of the bureau of agricultural economics, reprinted by the federal reserve bank. The corn crop is short. It totals in the districts a little less than 679 million bushels, or about 202 million bushels less than the actual crop of 1929. But oats, wheat, rye, and barley appear to be in larger quantity than last year in this section.

The dairy industry in the central states, according to available figures, has changed its status completely since last spring. Then there was the largest surplus of such products in history. Now it is said consumption has caught up, less than normal supplies are in sight. If this be correct, the economists' view at Iowa City could be taken as, if not optimistic, at least indicative of a firm market with no particular advantages held by buyers.

Feeding of Wheat.

George S. Milnor, general manager of the Farmers National Grain corporation, yesterday asserted that the corporation's agents had found many millions of bushels of wheat being fed to animals and wheat that was placed in storage early going back to farms for use in feed lots. He added the opinion that it is not improbable wheat will be on a domestic basis before another crop comes in. That would mean no wheat for export and United States farmers selling in a market that was fixed without consideration for depressed foreign grains.

Some men in the grain trade—they may be visionary—assert that the feeding of wheat has been more extensive even than government estimates have painted it and that substituting it and rye, oats and barley for corn carry-overs next ummer will be at normal or less.

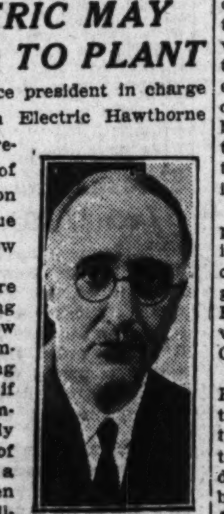
Fear to Step In.

Such views indicate that demand could easily catch up with supply before next summer. If they are correct there is a setting for a bull market in grains, particularly in wheat. But speculators have been so browbeaten in recent years and are so fearful of what the government agencies could do with their sixty million bushels that they fear to step in.

At any rate, the outlook for farm income in the coming year does not appear to be gloomier. It seems to be getting brighter.

SAYS WESTERN ELECTRIC MAY ADD TO PLANT

C. L. Rice, vice president in charge of the Western Electric Hawthorne works, has revealed plans of his organization to test the value of present low building costs.



C. L. RICE.

Although there is no pressing need for a new building, the company is asking for bids and if the costs compare favorably with the cost of construction at a later date, when building conditions may be more nearly normal, the work will be ordered done immediately.

In disclosing this idea Mr. Rice said:

"Numerous reports, which have been received of prevailing low cost of building construction have prompted us to ask bids on a building to be located at Twenty-sixth street and Forty-eighth avenue, which would add an area of about 200,000 square feet.

"Alhough this building is not needed at the present time, the decision as to whether Western Electric will proceed with it in order to provide for future needs will depend upon the cost of building it now as indicated by the bids submitted, as compared with the cost of constructing it at a later date when building conditions may be more nearly normal."

Weekly Debits Increase, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended Sept. 24, by 234 banks in thirty-eight leading clearing house cities in the Seventh Federal Reserve district, aggregate $1,473,515,000, an increase of 5.1 per cent compared with a week ago ($1,402,349,000). Compared with the corresponding week of last year ($2,091,117,000), a decrease of 29.5 per cent was shown.

HOOVER'S TALK TO BE HIGH SPOT OF CONVENTION

Members Will Meet at Cleveland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 27.—Several hundred bankers from New York City and the metropolitan district left tonight for the convention of the American Bankers' association, which opens tomorrow in Cleveland. Additional delegates from the local banking institutions are expected to depart tonight on special sections attached to trains of the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Erie and Lackawanna railroads.

The gathering, which is the fifty-seventh annual convention of the association, is expected to attract an unusually large attendance this year because of the fact that President Hoover will address the bankers and because a number of important subjects will come up for discussion.

President Hoover's address, which will be delivered next Thursday evening before a general convention of the bankers, held in the Cleveland public auditorium, is anticipated with keen interest because of the possibility that the chief executive will discuss the current disturbance in the business situation.

Fundamental Changes.

"Fundamental changes in the financial and industrial outlook have occurred since the President made his last public declaration of business conditions," The American Bankers' Association Journal remarks, in discussing the forthcoming convention: "The new traiff has begun to work itself out, appointments have been made to the tariff commission, commodity prices have continued downward, the drought has given the farmer another burden, the census has given the country figures instead of guesswork, concerning unemployment, new problems of production, distribution and transportation have arisen, the federal reserve board has changed heads and the whole system and theory of banking in the United States is in the course of being investigated by three different governmental bodies."

The associaton's official organ also notes that it is particularly appropriate that the first President of the United States to address the delegates at an annual meeting of the American Bankers' association should be the one whose whole career has been identified with economics and whose official acts bear the impress of his keen understanding of economics.

Three Main Subjects.

Apart from the President's address, interest in the convention centers strongly upon three main subjects of discussion: Branch banking, bank taxes, and bank earnings. According to a number of bankers there is a strong likelihood that the association will this year reverse its long maintained stand in opposition to the extension of national branch banking. Such a change of policy has been already forecast in the report of the association's economic policy commission for this year.

Under the subject of bank taxation the delegates will be called upon to consider proposals to liberalize section 5,219 of the United States revised statutes concerning the taxation of national banks by state governments. A mass of research work on the subject of bank earnings has been done by the association during the last year, and a large part of the program is to be given to this important subject.

The entertainment program prepared for delegates to the convention includes a boxing exhibition, a musical fashion revue, polo matches, a grand ball, and a golf tournament. For those who have reached the convention city already a motor tour of Cleveland has been arranged today.

The golf tournament will be held Friday all day at the Westwood Country club. For those who do not enter the golf match a trip to Akron, O., to visit the plants of the rubber industry and the Zeppelin hangar has been planned.

VISITING BANKERS

Chicago bankers were hosts last nghit to 500 middle west bankers en route to the annual convention of the American Bankers association at Cleveland, O., which convenes tomorrow. Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company and a former president of the national association, welcomed the delegates to Chicago at a dinner-dance at the Medinah Athletic club. Rome C. Stephensons, president of the St. Joseph Land and Trust company, South Bend, Ind., who is slated to become president of the association, responded to Mr. Reynolds' greeting. John G. Lonsdale, president of the association, was unable to be present.

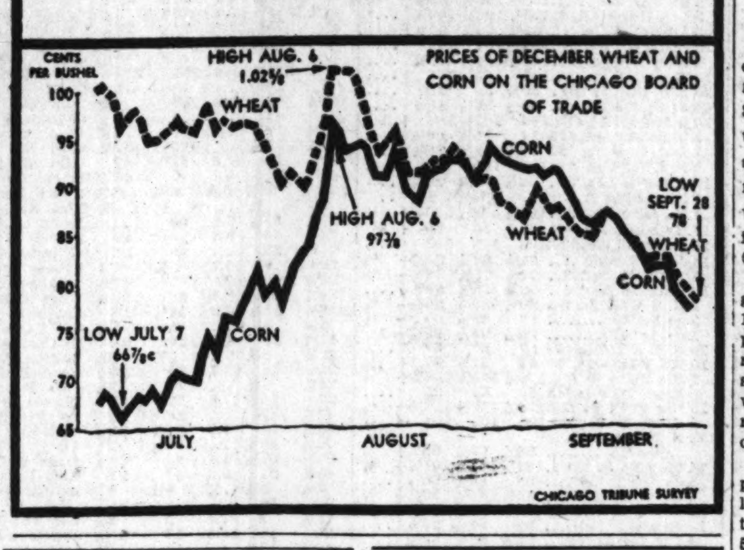
IN DECLINING GRAIN PRICES WHEAT IS AGAIN HIGHER THAN CORN



CHICAGO STOCK PRICES STEADY; TRADING IDLES

Traders Show Caution in Short Session.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Closing a week of steady decline the Chicago stock market idled yesterday furnishing little of consequence in the way of further changes.

With no hint of what may develop over the week-end traders were cautious in making commitments. A few showed a willingness to gamble on a technical upturn early next week, but the majority of speculators were definitely on the side lines.

The closing prices failed to show any decided trend in the day's dealings. A good many of the popular issues finished the session in exactly the same position that they started the day. Among these were Grigsby, Insull Utility, Borg Warner, Corporation Securities, Chicago Corporation common, and preferred and Electric Household.

Cities Service Improves.

There were few changes of more than a point elsewhere in the list. Fractional recessions in Middle West and Missouri-Kansas and a slight gain in Cities Service marked the dealings among the utility issues. In the motor section Bendix slipped another fraction and Borg steadied. Specialties were mixed.

The only conspicuous weakness which showed up among the specialties was in Lion Oil. The stock broke 3 points to finish 1⅛ under its previous 1930 low. The weakness was a reflection of the bearish situation existing in the oil industry. Oil stocks in New York have been among the hardest hit in the decline last week. The decline in Lion Oil here places it more in line with present market position of other oil shares.

The feature of the week's decline in the stock market has been the complete lack of excitement and disorder to which we are accustomed in such a market. The extent of the weakness cannot be denied. At the close of the week a great number of stocks were selling around or below the lows established in the big break last fall. This was brought about, however, not by any spectacular crash but by a series of declines covering a period of two weeks or more.

The declines did not make news in the sense that the spectacular breaks of last spring and last fall did. Consequently the publicity given the stock market recently has not been of the front page variety.

Explain Trend.

Market observers have given various reasons for the downward trend. The continued weakness in the commodities, particularly wheat, and the agitation which followed the revelation that the soviet government was selling wheat short were blamed in part. In addition the uneasiness over the general foreign situation was regarded as partially responsible. Other basic causes which have not received so much attention were the third quarter railroad earnings statements and the many dividend reductions recently announced.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS DOWN IN SYMPATHY WITH LISTED MARTS

Chicago bank stocks followed the trend of the listed markets last week, easing off as much as 15 points in some instances. Continental Illinois Bank and Trust closed 600 bid, 604 asked, off 12 points. Foreman State National, at 600 to 605, was down 15 points. First National, ex-dividend, at 602 to 606, was 15 points lower. National Bank of the Republic lost some 7 points at 110 to 112. The rights were traded in between 1½ and 1¾.

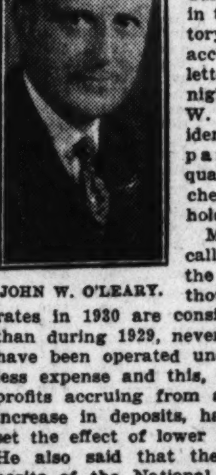
Central Trust Company of Illinois, ex the Oct. 1 dividend, was fairly inactive until the latter part of the week, when it sold down sharply to low sales of 352. At this level buying demand set in to force the stock up to high and last sales of 360, at which price additional stock was wanted, with limited offerings at 365. Offerings of Guardian National at 68 failed to attract buyers—off 4 points. Harris Trust and Savings was unchanged at 710 bid.

Terminal National lost 2 points at 61 bid, 63 asked, while Chicago Bank of Commerce, after a period of inactivity, was traded in at 125—off 10 points. Northern Trust declined 10 points to last transactions at 535. Union Bank of Chicago continued in supply, being offered down 5 points to 250, with no interest displayed on the buying side.

In the miscellaneous group Chicago Title and Trust receded 25 points to 448 bid, 453 asked. Northwestern Yeast showed a point improvement at 104 to 106. Chicago Daily News common, after early sales at 25, was offered at this price, with best bids at 23½. The preferred continued in demand at 93, with offerings at 94½.

O'LEARY FINDS BOON IN LARGER BANK DEPOSITS

Estimates just completed by the National Bank of the Republic indicate that 1930 earnings of the institution will be larger than during any year in the bank's history except 1929, according to a letter mailed last night by John W. O'Leary, president, accompanying the quarterly dividend checks to stockholders.



JOHN W. O'LEARY.

Mr. O'Leary calls attention to the fact that, although interest rates in 1930 are considerably lower than during 1929, nevertheless banks have been operated under somewhat less expense and this, together with profits accruing from a considerable increase in deposits, has largely offset the effect of lower interest rates. He also said that the average deposits of the National Bank of the Republic have been running approximately twenty per cent above those of a year ago.

Mr. O'Leary also reviews the business outlook, calling attention to the fact that customers of the bank have been reporting increases in business activity since Sept. 1 and that further improvement is expected as the weather turns cold.

Utility Owners! Get This Editorial

THE market value of Public Utilities listed on the New York Stock Exchange (including both holding and operating companies) September 2 totaled $14,395,219,690. Utilities on the New York Curb and other exchanges add perhaps several billion more to the total. Shall these vast properties owned by the people be permitted to become the football of politics?

It is true regulation, due to political influences and to unfortunate antagonism on both sides, has broken down in spots. Also, in some instances, the Utilities themselves have been partly to blame for a hostile public attitude, through failure to adopt the same policy of service and good-will that any other successful business would employ.

Read the editorial "A Modest Request", from The Wall Street Journal, discussing the growing threat of competition from municipalities which Public Utility Corporations are facing. Here lie possibilities adversely affecting companies, stockholders and taxpayers. The editorial reprint sent free on request, emphasizes the importance of keeping posted on all factors affecting security values, through a recognized authority like THE WALL STREET JOURNAL. Offerings of Bond Issues Up Sharply

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—New offerings of bonds and notes this week aggregated $133,346,307, compared with $80,771,000 last week and $142,606,000 two weeks ago. During the corresponding week last year such new financing totaled but $26,331,000. This week's financing comprised eighteen issues, ranging in size from $50,000,000 to $136,500.

The issue of $50,000,000 Argentine government 5 per cent notes, due Oct. 1, 1931, constituted the largest single piece of financing. This issue was marketed to refund a like amount of six months' notes, due Oct. 1, 1930, which was marketed last April, and represented the only foreign financing of the week.

Five public utility issues were placed on the market this week, the largest being that of $16,000,000 Continental Gas and Electric corporation 5s of 1958, priced to yield 5.53 per cent. Two issues for the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation, formerly the State Line Generating company, one of $15,000,000 first mortgage 4½s, priced at 95, and the other, $8,000,000 5½ per cent debentures, due 1935, priced at par. Both of these issues were quickly sold.

The long awaited $12,000,000 Cincinnati Union Terminal company first 4½s were marketed this week at a price of 102¼. The issue was quickly sold and immediately moved up a point in price when traded on the stock exchange. The issue represented the initial bond financing of the terminal. The other railroad financing was an issue of $2,820,000 Merchants Dispatch equipment trust certificates.

The market for high grade domestic bonds continued active and strong this week, but second and third grade issues remained dull so that investment bankers are chiefly confining their new offerings to issues which fall in the first category.

The fact that the Argentine government sold an issue of notes rather than long term bonds seemed to indicate that the market is not yet in shape for any considerable amount of new foreign financing.

Business Failures for Week Show a Decline

Moderate improvement in the commercial failure record as reported by R. G. Dun & Co this week. The total for the week was 488, which, although well above the average for the season, is 9 less than the 497 insolvencies reported last week. The total was 60 more than reported in the corresponding week last year, compared with a rise of 137 reported last week. The Pacific coast showed fewer failures this week than during the corresponding period of 1929.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

New York, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The first fifty-seven railroads to report the result of August operations showed net operating income aggregating $77,907,000, a decrease of 31.6 per cent from a total of $114,021,000 in August last year and a decrease of 22.8 per cent from $100,932,000 reported in August, 1928. Net operating income reported by the same railroads in July this year totaled $66,741,000.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 27.—The bear crowd made another Roman holiday of it in the stock exchange today, bludgeoning numerous additional issues and most of their old "victims" afresh to new price levels for the year or longer.

Some of the overzealous club wielders got to thinking they were overdoing it a bit along toward the last, however, and started some rather frantic covering operations. This served to turn the list upward and resulted in pretty substantial recoveries in spots. The rally, moderate as it was, left the week-end list looking pretty ragged as a whole with losses of from a fraction to 3 points or more the rule.

Find Ammunition Handy.

The new break in which the prices, a further decline in cotton, reports of an impending fresh cut in copper metal prices and a grist of items of less importance provided the bears with ammunition for their new attack. The rails were singled out as special targets today and selling of leading issues of this group served to unsettle the market in the early trading quite as effectually as did that attack on the motors yesterday. BUILDERS SEE FAIRLY ACTIVE FALL PROGRAM

Spring Construction May Be on Larger Scale.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Reports from builders in approximately one hundred and seventy-five cities in the United States and Canada indicate a fairly active construction program for early fall and winter months, while the consensus embodied in the compilation of building activities forecasts a spring resumption of construction on a larger plane.

E. M. CRAIG.

This statement was made by E. M. Craig, the executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, after he had made an analysis of the international building survey which was compiled by the builders' research department.

One factor intended to help the nation's building industry emerge from its depression of the last fifteen months will be the official approval of the new Board of Trade claims by the convention of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor in Boston on Oct. 3. This tribunal has been established to adjudicate jurisdictional disputes between the building trades. Its inauguration was urged by President Hoover, who termed the action a constructive one and said it would stimulate building activities.

Potential Demand Seen.

Mr. Craig stated the building contractors of the United States and Canada believe the building depression will begin to toss aside its dormant condition shortly after Jan. 1, but points out, however, that their reports indicate the upgrade will not become very noticeable until spring.

In the survey of international construction activities Mr. Craig asserted the builders reveal a potential demand for building, which they claim has been retarded by general business conditions. It is said the transition from a dormant to an active state must be steady to be healthy and most beneficial.

The consensus of builders' opinion on the period of transition angle develops the fact that they believe a speedier recovery of normal building conditions would be accomplished if speculative construction were reduced to a minimum.

Mr. Craig states the reports from the builders are agreed that in virtually all sections of the nation ample funds for home building purposes are available at average interest rates of 6 and 7 per cent.

Some Have Good Prospects.

The survey of the National Association of Building Trades Employers shows a 50-50 division fair, fairly good, good and poor building conditions in the cities furnishing the data. Here and there, says the survey, one finds a city reporting excellent fall and early winter prospects.

Mr. Craig said Boston builders report that construction will begin to show renewed signs of activity in early spring. They report that 45 per cent of resident building trades mechanics are now employed. Approximately the same reports come from Lowell, Lynn, and New Bedford, Mass.

Secretary William G. Wheeler of the New York Building Trades Employers' association sees little prospect of active building construction until the spring of 1931. He finds between 40 and 50 per cent of resident mechanics employed, as against 70 and 80 per cent in the fall of 1929.

Other employment registrations are as follows: Newark, N. J., 40 per cent; Buffalo, 50; Albany, 40; Baltimore, 60; Washington, 40; Pittsburgh, 50, and in Youngstown, O., 40 per cent.

No Labor Trouble.

Secretary G. S. Stuart of the Philadelphia Builders' exchange reports that builders there are confident of a spring revival, and similar optimism is expressed by contractors in Harrisburg, Reading, and Scranton, Pa. None of the reports show any labor trouble.

Chicago builders are hopeful that a spring revival will develop with street car extensions and construction of World's Fair buildings. Plans have been advanced by the Building Construction Employers' association to stimulate building and relieve unemployment among the building trades workers. The campaign of the American construction council to eradicate tenement neighborhoods in large American cities has been taken up by the local builders.

Springfield, Ill., reports a fair sized building program; Danville, a poor schedule.

Indianapolis builders are employing mechanics on three and four day week basis. Des Moines, Ia., reports good; Sioux City, fair; Cincinnati builders report a large program; Cleveland, fair; Toledo, poor; St. Paul, good; St. Louis, excellent; Dallas, Tex., fair; New Orelans, fair; Beaumont, Tex., a 50 per cent decrease as compared with 1929.

A large volume of public work proposals featured activity in the nation's heavy construction and engineering field during the week, Construction Daily reports. The total for the period was $20,907,000 for public works, a major portion of the jobs being for projected waterworks and sewers. The total for all classes, except highways, was $46,510,000, compared with $33,930,000 in the preceding week and $166,304,000 for the corresponding week last year.

"About to Be Listed."

Promoters peddling stock of doubtful value frequently clinch a sale by assuring the buyer that this stock is soon to be listed on some exchange.

Such promises mean nothing at all. Any stock exchange in good standing has certain definite restrictions which must be satified before a company's stock can be admitted to list. A company desiring to have its stock listed makes a petition. This petition is considered by the listing committee of the exchange. An investigation is made of the company's standing and its past record.

If, after a thorough investigation, the officers of the exchange are satisfied that the company has complied with the restrictions imposed by the exchange its stock may then be admitted to list.

But this is not the end of the road. It is merely a beginning. It does not follow that because a stock is listed it will go up in price. Nor will it necessarily have a more active market.

Occasionally an inquirer will write to this department saying something like this: "A salesman for Gadget Bond and Share company offers me common stock at ten dollars per share. He says it is to be listed on the New York curb within a few weeks and that the price will then go up to twenty dollars."

A statement of this kind is either a deliberate lie or an overenthusiastic salesman's dream.

A company can make application to have its stock listed on the New York curb, but it cannot be certain that the stock will be so listed until the officers of the exchange have voted on it. The prediction that the market price will bound upward is sales talk.

If a stock is good it is good whether it is listed or not. Admission to trading means that the company will have to make periodical reports on its earnings and financial condition. In some cases it may mean that the stock will have a market price which can be more easily ascertained.

The mere fact that its stock is listed, however, does not enable a shoe company to sell more shoes, nor does it mean that it will get more for each pair or that its raw material will cost less, or even that the management will operate the business more efficiently and economically.

One year ago	12.00@12.75

Top yesterday, $7.75; average, $7.20. Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday, 8,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs and 30,000 sheep.

Trading in hogs on the week-end session was erratic, prices ranging from steady to 50c lower, with medium and weighty stock off most. Light weights ruled steady to 25c lower and others 25@50c lower, packing sows coming down mostly 50c.

Fancy 175@200 lb light weights topped the market for load lots at $10.00, although a few head of medium weights reached $10.15, and most butchers that have been bringing top prices on recent sessions were held off the market on unsatisfactory bids.

September Heavy at $10.75.

Contracts for four carloads of September heavy hogs were sold at $10.75 on the futures market yesterday, the feature sale of the day. Trading in other months was slow and generally lower. November mediums opened at $9.25, but finished at $9.00. Offers for mediums for Monday's delivery were made at $10.75 on the "to arrive" market, but no bids were posted.

The seasonal increase in the number of new crop hogs proved too much for the market last week and light weights came down 65@85c. Medium and weighty stock, however, was scarce and in demand during the first few days at only 25c loss. Stock averaging under 225 lbs comprised the largest share of arrivals. The week's estimate average weight at 238 lbs was the lightest since early last June and compares with 246 lbs a week ago and 244 lbs a year ago.

A mild upturn in wholesale prices of pork loins brought an oversupply to the market and gains were erased. Light weight loins are selling 10@11c a pound lower than a month ago, while heavy kinds are 3@5c lower. Eastern demand has been narrow. During the last two weeks shippers took only 13 per cent of Chicago receipts. A year ago 23 per cent went to shippers. Big local packers, however, slaughtered the largest numbers of the year last week.

A temporary letup in the marketing of cattle, the result of a sharp break some ten days ago, reversed the trend of the market last week. The general average price at $11.05 was the highest since the week ending ..., but compared with $13.60 a year ago and with $15.60 two years ago.

Nearly 1,000 steers sold at $12.75 and above during the last week, the top $13.00 buying 989 lb yearlings. Wholesale markets for dressed beef were slow, but no additional losses were reported. Cattle receipts at principal markets were smaller than any corresponding period in many years.

Lambs Average $7.55.

Lamb prices were pounded to new low levels during the past week. The general average went down to the lowest since September, 1914. This compares with $12.75 a year ago and with $13.45 two years ago. The ten year average of corresponding week is $13.65.

A break in the market for feeding lambs and lower wholesale prices for dressed lamb added to the depression. ... sales were lowest of the ... movement from range territory ... at the peak. Since June ... has handled 1,021,000 western lambs, a gain of 115,000 over a year ...

NEW LOW ON COTTON

Cotton values continued on the downgrade yesterday with scattered liquidation and hedging pressure more than offsetting favorable reports from the textile trade, and the finish was near the bottom and at a new low for the season with net losses of 8@15 points in Chicago, 12@14 points in New York, and 7@13 points in New Orleans ...

FARM AND GARDEN

LOCAL MUSEUM WILL PORTRAY FARM PROGRESS

Curator Scouring World for Rare Materials.

Agriculture and forestry the world over will have a proper place in the historical sun in a graphic manner when the plans for the Museum of Science and Industry have been completed.

DR. RUSSELL ANDERSON.

Housed with other economic developments in the Fine Arts building, the old Columbian exposition building in Jackson park, which the south parks commission is reconstructing at a cost of over $5,000,000, will be some of the most unique collections of farming and allotted about one-eighth of the total food operations ever put together, according to Dr. Russell Anderson, curator of agriculture and forestry for the museum.

This is being made possible through donations from Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist, and the people of Chicago. When completed it will be valued at more than $30,000,000.

Rare Plow on the Way.

Dr. Anderson, schooled at the University of Illinois, has his ear to the ground for some of the rarest of old time farming appliances. Just now he is awaiting shipment of several plows from Palestine gathered up by a reconnoitering collector. One plow, the Judean "disher," in use over 3,000 years ago, is still being used on Jewish farms with only an iron-pointed plowshare as the improvement of all that time.

This collection of agricultural industry, as with each other division of the museum, will be different from any existing in the world. Its closest existing type is that in the Deutsches museum at Munich, Germany, which first started Mr. Rosenwald on the trail to something similar in North America. The Chicago collections will go farther than historical portrayal of industry's developments, however, and attempt to show the effect they have had on social progress.

Agriculture and forestry have been museum area of about eight acres. Here the major developments in agriculture will be placed in logical sequence and in workable form so that the general public or the technically informed may learn the why and how of it all.

On miniature stages a group of dioramas will give a quick survey of world agriculture from early times. Man as an agriculturist in the pastoral stage, with flocks and herds, the medieval farm of self-sufficing agriculture, its peasant life and three field system, will be followed by the American colonial farm in contrast to the European of the middle ages, after which comes the modern farm. Six such groups of dioramas are contemplated.

"Having secured this view," Dr. Anderson explains, "the visitor will enter that portion of the exhibit in which presentation is partly systematic and partly historical within each division. Here he will see plant structures and their functions, plant foods and processes, principles and practices of breeding, soils, weather factors, microbiology, etc.

"From Sickle to Combine."

"He will then follow through the improvements in plowing, sowing and harvesting. Here he will see the plows of all ages from the stick plow to the modern tractor plow, arranged to show evolution of the principles involved. Likewise, the sequence of harvesting machines will show the principles employed from the hand sickle and Gallic stripper to the modern combine. Here as elsewhere the visitor will be able to see the important steps in development without an unnecessary collection of unessential materials."

After one has seen the fundamental factors of the industry and the usual farm operations, he will view a sequence covering forage and fiber crops, economic entomology, horticulture, drainage, erosion, dry farming, irrigation, farm homes and scenes, and the large subject of live stock, with historical and present day methods of breeding, feeding, and equipment, as well as dairying methods in detail.

Trace Food Production.

A logical sequence, for instance, will take one through foods, showing their sources, preservation, chemistry and manufacture. The important food manufacturing divisions, such as milling and baking, packing, sugar making and refining will be displayed. Fibers will be traced from field to making into cloth, rope, etc.

Another unique feature of the museum, Dr. Anderson declares, will be the set of models being cast from typical and actual animals in each breed of dairy and beef cattle, horses, sheep and swine, to be compared with models of early day breeds to show progress in animal husbandry.

Individuals with rare objects which fit into the museum plan have been invited to submit photos of their materials. Such donations will be fitted into the sequences, be permanently preserved, and bear a card showing the name and address of the donor. Among the materials the museum is now seeking are:

Jethro wood plow, prairie plow, double harpoon hay fork, spiral hay fork with drum, grain muller, saddle stone and hand quern, one horse grain drill, early bread mixing bowls, hand corn sheller, double and single shovel plows, husking pegs, Cooley cream can, hoe type and 2 rows hand corn planters, cheese making outfit, water dilution cream separator, long blade grass scythe, hay knife, early butchering or sheep shearing equipment, wood turning lathe, vertically reciprocating saws, axes before 1850, and crank

Agricultural Questions

Farm and garden questions of general interest will be answered to the limit of space in this department. Individual answers will be made to specific questions if stamped, self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address letter to Agricultural Editor, Chicago Tribune.

KARAKUL SHEEP.

What is a karakul sheep and why is the breed desirable; or, in other words, are there any special demands for them? My farm is said to be adapted to sheep raising and feeding.
J. W. C.

REPLY.

The Karakul is a breed chiefly for the production of lambskins suitable for fur. Only a limited number of them are in this country because they are comparatively new and recent importations have been prohibited from their native country which is Bokhara. The fur classes of which the Karakul is a source are broad-tail, Persian, and caracul.

FRENCH CAPITAL REPORTED DRAWN FROM GERMANY

Action Is Aftermath of Recent Elections.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 27.—It is reported that following the German elections there have been heavy withdrawals of French capital recently invested in Germany. According to rumors which are current in some circles more than $8,000,000 was withdrawn by French banking interests. It is also rumored that an important conference of international bankers to boycott further German demands for credit may take place here.

Although the rumors so far are unconfirmed it is believed the move is aimed to cool down Hitler's Fascists and to impress Germany that its financial situation is too weak to be opposed by France's powerful position in European finance. The fact that the Reischbank has shipped more than $16,660,000 to Paris in the last few days is considered as indirect confirmation.

Following the huge gold exports of Germany to Paris the dollar and pound rose on the Paris market, while the mark fell sharply at the beginning of the week.

Bourse Feels Uncertainty.

The uncertainty as regards the international outlook following the results of the German election is still affecting the Paris bourse. The resignation of Emile Moreau, governor of the Bank of France, has also had a depressing effect—though slighter than expected—on the market for Bank of France shares, which closed $10.53 lower.

The proposal to organize a bankers conference in New York with the governors of the Bank of France, the Bank of England, and the Reischbank aroused considerable comment in French circles. It is generally declared that the fostering of a large acceptance on the market by Paris is desirable but consequently the Bank of England will have to take measures to come forward with a more liberal policy in discount rates.

The opinion prevailing in financial circles here is that as long as the rates in London are kept lower than continental levels it will be difficult to expand the demands for French banking accommodations.

A certain resentment against England has been aroused in political and financial circles here following the British government's demand that British subscribers to French rentes issued during and soon after the war should have both interest and redemption paid to British bondholders in gold francs. French economists point out that recognition of such claims would entail the complete ruin of French finance, as if the British claim was admitted French, American, and other holders would be entitled to similar claims.

LONDON MART DREARY

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The stock market this week was like the weather, damp and dreary, with "the outlook very unsettled." Public interest was conspicuous by its absence, while professional interests were getting somewhat tired at their well planned schemes being upset by unexpected outside developments.

Wall street's renewed disturbances left a decided mark on Throgmorton street's habitues, who are now determining to bite hard and sit tight.

The present atmosphere is obviously a reflection of the unsettled political, economic, and business conditions. Germany's fresh political developments produced something of a scare among investors here, resulting in German stocks of all kinds, government and municipal, being offered freely with a resultant marked effect in quotations.

Sterling Loans Suffer.

Sterling loans were badly hit. German five and one-half per cents and seven per cents notably showed a loss of several points. Potash bonds were similarly weak, from which they have not recovered, while various city loans show losses of three to six points. Hamburg state bonds and Hamburg waterworks bonds are down five points.

Opinions regarding Wall street's business outlook, generally summed up as disappointing, tend also to be one of the main influences of the London markets, as in many quarters there is still a disposition to look to New York for the lead in the absence of incentives elsewhere.

BUTTER AND EGGS

Butter and egg futures slumped on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday, all deliveries losing fractionally. Statistical news in both commodities was more or less neutral, with a possible shade toward the bear side. Selling and buying were both present in fair volume, but the first had the most influence. November butter closed at 38¼@38⅛c, off ⅛@⅜c. December closing at 38⅜c, off ⅜c. November eggs were off ⅜@½c at 24⅝@24¼c, and December eggs were off ½c at 24⅝c.

November eggs gained a ¼c at the opening, buying orders carrying the delivery forward. This support was of short duration, however, and a selling drive started, carrying the price lower rapidly. Butter trading was nervous, prices moving quickly when selling or buying appeared in any appreciable amount. Sales—Butter: November, 103 cars; December, 16 cars. Eggs: November, 143 cars; December, 6 cars. Receipts—Butter, 7,393 tubs; eggs, 5,349 cases. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Was quiet and easy today in sympathy with the weakness in other markets. The latter, however, failed to bring out much selling and only small losses were recorded on actual sales. The closing was easy with old contracts 1 to 25 points lower and new unchanged to 12 points lower. Total sales were 1,350 bbls, including 300 in old contracts and 1,060 in new. Prime crude, 6.12½@6.25c; prime summer yellow old spot, 8.00c; October, 7.50c; November, 7.35c; December, 7.64c; new—Dec., 7.30c; January, 7.50c; March, 7.51c.

LARD PRICES DECLINE

Liquidation by tired longs was under way in lard yesterday in sympathy with the decline in other commodities and found support lacking, the best buying being by shorts. Lard finished about the bottom with net losses of 22½@35c with September leading. Bellies were neglected and closed nominally unchanged. Deliveries on September contracts were 100,000 lbs lard and 400,000 lbs bellies. Liverpool lard was 1 shilling lower to 9 pence higher. Prices follow:

Unusual Opportunity

An inactive proprietorship in a safe, sound and immediate income-producing business can be bought for $1,200. No purchase of real estate, stocks or bonds involved. Ample proof of national success. Earnings average from 2 to 5% monthly. For complete information address N C 524, Tribune.

Mr. President—Personal

PROFIT is the golden apple of all commercial effort.
LOSS is the nightmare of things that might have been, the dark alley of ignorance, the gamble and the guess.
COMPETITION compels new ideas, better methods, greater efficiency.

Knowledge of your business is power to win. Application of sound methods establish the basis of fair profit. They reveal inefficiency, weakness and waste.
If your business is faced with vital problems of finance, management, etc., you may wish to discuss conditions confidentially with some one whose past performances and extensive experience in Manufacturing, Public Accounting, Installment Mercantile and Chain Stores, enables him to act in a constructive capacity.
Available November 15th.
Strict investigation as to experience, references and character invited.
A conference will entail no obligation.

Address K E 323, Tribune

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

While there seems to be a growing demand for North American cash wheat from foreign countries the call is almost entirely for Manitobas. Sales in all positions for the day were placed at 600,000 to 700,000 bu, mainly Canadian, and included two cargoes to China. This makes around 2,500,000 bu taken by the orient last week. No. 1 hard winter at the gulf was quoted at 1½c over Chicago December for first half October loading.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 7 cars; corn, 119 cars; oats, 19 cars; rye, 5 cars, and barley, 13 cars.

Range of cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

STOCK LOSSES CUT AS SHORTS HUNT FOR COVER

Bears Single Out Rails as Special Target.

cago and North Western, Missouri Pacific, Pere Marquette, and others broke to new bottoms, the losses of some of them being quite sharp.

Liquidation spread apace, with the volume being augmented from time to time with large blocks of some time bull favorites. Radio Corporation, for instance, was dumped by the bundle and broke to a new minimum of 27¾. Bendix, American Locomotive, American Rolling Mill, Electric Autolite, Allis Chalmers, Republic Steel, Phelps-Dodge, and many others went into tail spins for new lows with the old leader.

Offer Stout Resistance.

Pivotal stocks as in Friday's session offered stout resistance to the selling in the main and one or two of them, including American Can, managed to merge on top of things. General Electric broke even on the day and U. S. Steel was off only a small fraction.

Wall street, it would appear, has grossly overestimated the strength of the market's technical position for some weeks past. It has been insisted in most quarters that a tremendous short interest was being built up in stocks on the current decline. But for more than a fortnight now the market has been sliding rather rapidly downward with little in the way of rally to interrupt the decline.

Such rallies as have developed certainly have not been sufficiently brisk to indicate any rush of "shorts" to cover. In consequence it is possible to draw only one of two conclusions—either the bear element now operating in stocks is most confident of its position, or, and perhaps more plausible, liquidation of long holders has been sufficiently voluminous to permit these sellers to cover without difficulty on occasion. At any rate the market continues on the "run."

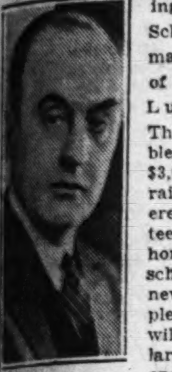
ILLNESS COST TO BE CUT 50% AT ST. LUKE'S

$3,000,000 Home for Nurses Is Planned.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

For the person of moderate means the cost of illness is to be cut fifty per cent, according to Charles H. Schweppe, chairman of the board of trustees of St. Luke's hospital. This will be possible, he says, when $3,000,000 has been raised for the erection of a sixteen story nurses' home and training school. When this new unit is completed St. Luke's will become the largest privately operated hospital in the United States, Mr. Schweppe states.



CHARLES H. SCHWEPPE.

The site for the new building at 1452-1500 Indiana avenue was acquired for $270,000 through Albert H. Wetten & Co. W. H. Bowers & Co. and J. C. Sayres were brokers for some of the eight sellers.

Construction of the new unit will at once release space on the third, fourth, and fifth floors of the main hospital building on Indiana avenue now used as living quarters for student nurses, for the establishment of an eighty-one bed unit for persons of moderate means and a fifty bed unit for crippled children.

This proposed eighty-one bed unit will make possible nearly 28,000 additional days of treatment for approximately 2,400 patients yearly and reduce the total cost of illness to patients occupying these rooms by fifty per cent.

Will Abolish Waiting List.

By providing fifty additional beds for crippled children St. Luke's can care for 600 more youngsters each year and the waiting list at the hospital, which has resulted from lack of beds, will be abolished.

"The most urgent need of St. Luke's hospital today is additional accommodations for persons of moderate means and crippled children and the provision of adequate housing and educational facilities for student nurses," said Mr. Schweppe. "Unless these conditions are immediately remedied St. Luke's cannot continue to supply the best medical care it is possible to give.

"Investigations made by the board of trustees have shown that these three most pressing needs may best be met by the construction of a new, separate and modern nurses' home and training school. A recent study indicated that St. Luke's was dangerously near the limit of its capacity for giving certain types of medical service."

Rooms for 443 Nurses.

The new nurses' home has been designed by Schmidt, Garden & Erikson and will be 200 feet in height. The first two stories will be of Indiana limestone and the upper floors of red brick. On the first floor will be reception rooms, a combination gymnasium and assembly hall, a library and training school offices. The second will contain class rooms, laboratories and demonstration rooms of the educational department.

There'll be lounge and living rooms, the dining room and a large open air terrace overlooking the lake on the third floor. The upper floors will contain 443 sleeping rooms for nurses. One floor will contain a fifteen bed infirmary. There'll be a swimming pool on the ground floor.

The new unit will be connected with the present main structure on Indiana avenue, to the north, by a tunnel passing behind Grace church.

"Construction of a modern nurses' home and training school on the site acquired by St. Luke's," said Mr. Schweppe, "will add considerably to the present plans for lake front development, which are understood to include improvements of the Illinois Central terminal, removal of the baggage and delivery station and complete electrification, as well as the railroad's development of air rights."

GET FIFTY SITES FOR AUTOHAVENS IN CHICAGOLAND

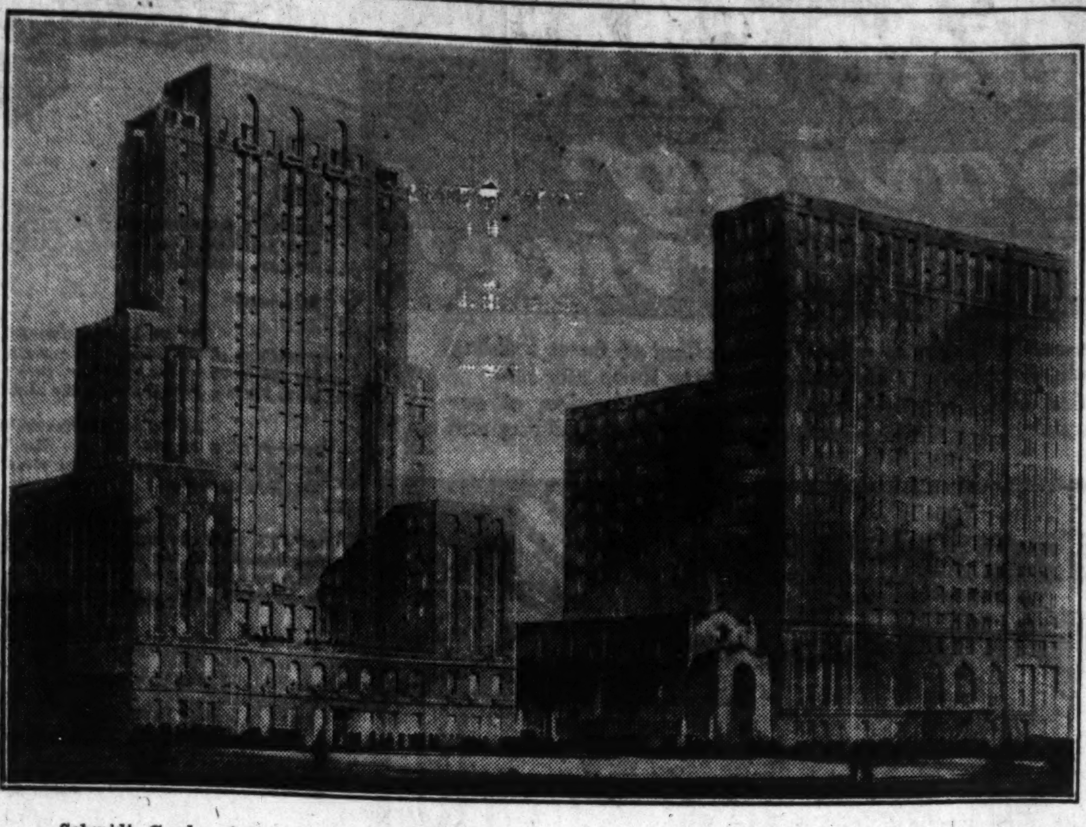
The location of the first ten units in the proposed 100 autohavens announced recently for Chicagoland by the National Autohaven company, were made public yesterday. They are: Waukegan road, south of Deerfield road; Waukegan road, near Golf road; Sheridan road and Keith avenue, Waukegan; Milwaukee avenue, north of Dundee road, Wheeling; Mannheim road and Irving Park boulevard; Lake street, west of Elmhurst avenue, Elmhurst; Lincoln highway, west of Main street, Geneva; Ogden avenue, west of Main street, Downers Grove; North avenue and Bloomingdale road, north of Glen Ellyn; Dunes highway, east of Tremont.

These "autohavens," as shown in the nearby picture, will be two story structures, containing fourteen bedrooms on the second floor. On the first floor will be a hotel lobby, dining room, lunch counter, kitchen, auto accessories store, gasoline station, etc. At the rear of the building will be a service station.

The buildings will be fireproof and will be open day and night throughout the year. All buses will stop at the autohavens. An arrangement already has been made with one of the biggest bus lines to give passengers tickets with stopover privileges at the autohavens.

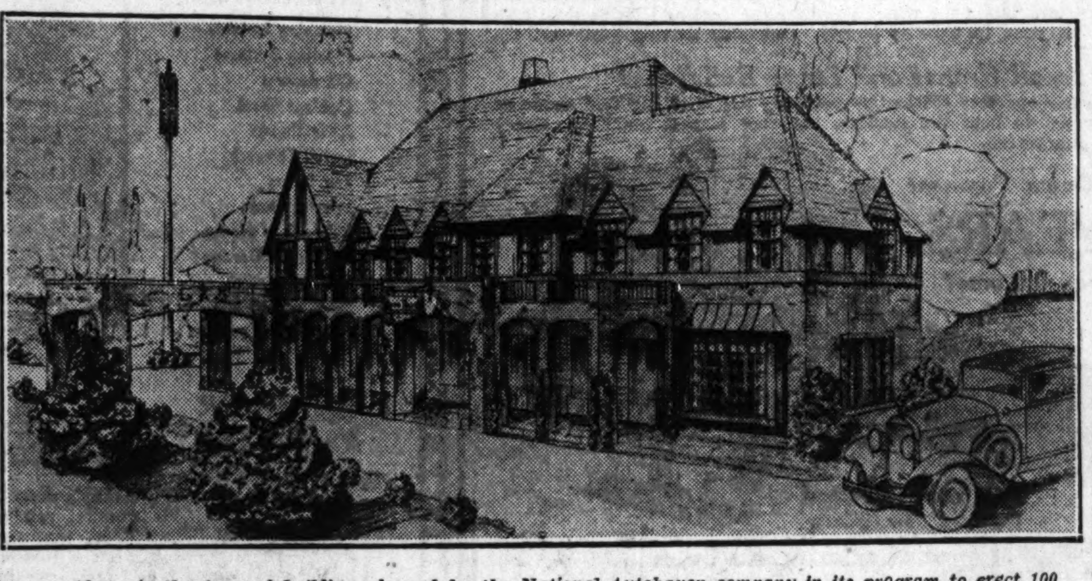
The National Autohaven company, according to A. J. Williams, general manager, has contracted thus far for more than fifty sites within fifty miles of the loop. Mr. Williams adds that autohavens will be built on all the principal roads in this country and Canada, thereby creating an International chain of not less than 1,000 before Jan. 1, 1933. The company's headquarters are in the One La Salle Street building.

MAKING ST. LUKE'S LARGEST OF ITS KIND IN U.S.



Schmidt, Garden & Erikson are architects of the new $3,000,000 nurses' home and training school planned by St. Luke's hospital for erection at 1452-1500 Indiana avenue, shown on your left in the above picture. Grace church is seen between the new unit and the present main building to the north. The hospital trustees believe hospital bills for persons of moderate means can be cut 50 per cent through this expansion.

HIGHWAY HOTELS FOR MOTORISTS



Above is the type of building planned by the National Autohaven company in its program to erect 100 combination hotel service, station restaurant units on main state highways within 100 miles of the loop. Details of this project were first announced in this department on Friday, Sept. 19. A list of the first ten sites is given in another column on this page.

STEAMFITTERS AND PLUMBERS REACH A TRUCE

Hope to End Struggle of 30 Years.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Following a series of round table discussions last week at Washington, Chicago builders have been notified that an amicable understanding has been reached between the local unions of steamfitters and journeymen plumbers. Spokesmen for both units of building trades state the truce marks the commencement of the end of a struggle which has existed between both crafts for the last three decades, and which became pronounced during the last two years. The battle between the pipe trades has always centered about the claims of each union to perform certain classes of work.

JOHN COEFIELD.

The controversy has halted many large construction projects in the last two years, and builders last night hailed the understanding between the steamfitters and plumbers as the dawn of labor tranquillity in the Chicago building industry.

The Washington meetings were held before the executive board of the United Association of Steam Fitters and Plumbers, and John Coefield, international president, presided over the conferences. The plumbers were represented by Bernard Cruice, secretary, and Steve Bailey, business representative. Charles M. Rau and Martin Durkin represented the steamfitters.

It was said the agreement will not take any work from either the plumbers or the steamfitters. Its terms, which will be worked out over a three months' period, specify that in the event of jurisdictional trouble the claimant will submit his case before a joint conference of plumbers and steamfitters for adjustment.

It was said the plumbers' officialdom will meet tomorrow and consider all phases of the Washington conferences.

Then will follow a general mass meeting of the plumbers, at which the entire situation will be explained. Similar action will be taken by the steamfitters. Both trades plan to retrieve some of the work which was lost through turbulent conditions.

BAIRD & WARNER REPORT CO-OPS NEARLY FILLED

Baird & Warner report that their latest 100 per cent coöperative building, at 3240 Sheridan road, is now more than 85 per cent occupied. The following have taken suites during the last thirty days: George C. Wieland of Wieland Dairy company; Arthur F. Adams, chairman of the board of Theodore Gary & Co.; George K. Gann, Alice and Ethel Barry, Cecil Dixon, president of Domestic Finance corporation, and Edwin J. Stubbs.

They also state that 1448 Lake Shore drive is now all filled but one apartment. The following are recent sales: Herbert Kennedy, John R. Dean, C. C. Youngren, and Frank Walter.

Rialto to Have New Type Restaurant: An Oyster Inn

Chicago's rialto is to have a new addition to its eating places, a restaurant specializing in oysters. The Oyster Inn corporation of Louisville, Ky., has leased space in the Ashland block from the R. B. Clothing company for a term of years. Willoughby & Co. and Mark Levy & Bro. were brokers.

ALFRED GRANGER TO SPEND YEAR IN FOREIGN TOUR

One hundred members of the Architects' Club of Chicago gave a farewell dinner on Friday evening at the clubhouse to Alfred Granger who sails on Oct. 10 for Europe, where he will spend a year studying modern architecture. A solid gold cigaret case was presented to Mr. Granger by the club members through H. L. Palmer, financial secretary of the Illinois Society of Architects. John C. Bollanbacher, Mr. Granger's partner in the firm of Granger & Bollenbacher, has just returned from a European trip.

CRAIG SURVEY SEES BUILDING WAKE UP IN 1931

Expects Activity in the Early Spring.

Reports from builders in approximately 175 cities in the United States and Canada indicate a fairly active construction program for fall and early winter, while the consensus embodied in the compilation of building activities forecasts a spring resumption of construction on an effective scale.

This statement was made by E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, after he had made an analysis of the international survey of construction compiled by the builders' research department.

Mr. Craig said that building contractors of both the United States and Canada believe the building depression will begin to change from its dormant condition shortly after Jan. 1, but points out, however, that their reports indicate the upgrade will not become very noticeable until spring.

Mr. Craig states the reports from builders are agreed that in virtually all sections of the country ample funds are available at the average interest rates of 6 and 7 per cent for persons desiring to build homes.

Chicago builders are hopeful of a spring revival with further development of street car extensions and construction of world's fair buildings. Plans have been advanced by the Building Construction Employers' association in this city to stimulate employment for resident tradesmen by having home modernizing done at this time of the year. The campaign of the American Construction council to eradicate tenement neighborhoods in large American cities has been taken up by the local builders.

201 North Wells Building Is More than 72% Rented

The 201 North Wells building is now more than 72 per cent rented, according to the management. Among recent leases is one made to the Italian consulate. Radio station WCHI has rented four thousand feet of space on the 22d floor for its studios and executive offices. The Shaunessy company, Watertown, N. Y., has leased space on the 14th floor for its new midwestern offices now being established in Chicago. All these leases are for five year terms.

James Carroll Says Real Estate Market Is Better

James J. Carroll, president of Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke, at the regular monthly meeting of the sales department, stated that conditions in the real estate market have materially improved as evidenced by the fact that approximately forty-five pieces of property recently have been sold by the company, aggregating in the neighborhood of $2,560,000.

The Walgreen company has leased the corner store in the new Schoenhofen hall building now being erected at the southwest corner of Milwaukee and Ashland, for ten years from Dec. 1, through Cerf & Ehrenhalt.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

MODERN KITCHEN CABINET TAKES ROLE OF SERVANT

Saves Mistress of House Steps and Work.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

(Next week will appear an article on "Bathroom Equipment.")

Because the old fashioned pantry has proven itself the parent of so many needless steps, the modern kitchen cabinet has been its logical offspring. Indeed so complete are the storage facilities of this cabinet that it has rendered the pantry unnecessary in many homes and building costs have been consequently reduced in many cases.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Hutchinson Photo.]

The kitchen cabinet of today caters to an infinite variety of individual tastes, but whatever its type, its popularity is primarily due to the fact that it has speeded and eased kitchen tasks, permitting the housewife more hours a week for recreation and sociability.

Since it is estimated that about 6 or 7 per cent of the country's some 28 million homes have servants, the equipment of the kitchen—the home laboratory—is of big importance.

Certainly the cabinet is one of the outstanding features of the kitchen. Because its units are flexible and may be used separately or assembled into groups, it is an adjustable piece of equipment.

Can Fit Any Kitchen.

In modernizing work this cabinet, with its various units, can be made to fit into the idiosyncrasies of any mature and even old fashioned kitchen. In the building of new homes many times these cabinets are wisely included in the plans and installed at the time of the building.

Since there are so many types of cabinets one's selection depends on family needs, kitchen layout and the family purse.

Cabinets may be of wood or of steel. They can be mounted on castors as portable cabinets. They can be entirely in one piece or in sections of units which can be assembled or divided as space permits.

The kitchen cabinet proper includes, of course, much drawer and storage space and shelf extenders to be used as a working base, flour bins, bread box and so on. There are cabinets made with automatic shelf extenders, with handsome glassware sets, with special jars on individual racks. Some models have an egg timer, clock, mirror, food chopper block. Others are electrically wired so that the housewife may have more electrical outlets for her electrical equipment if she desires. They may be had again with electric shade and fixture at the top.

Utility Closets Convenient.

Where wall space permits utility closet units may be seen on either side of the cabinet. These closets, with their abundant space for dishes, pans, brooms, vacuum and working utensils of all kinds, furnish added valuable storage space. Or they may be placed in off corners if necessary.

Indeed a housewife can often manage to use every inch of available space in the kitchen by deft placement of the cabinet and perhaps extra units. These units come in various sizes. There are units which may be assembled on arrival much like a sectional bookcase, fitting together like the drawers in a desk.

Where a kitchen has not enough wall space to permit of a cabinet of ordinary size there are smaller units manufactured which can fit under a window or perhaps under a built-in or hanging cupboard.

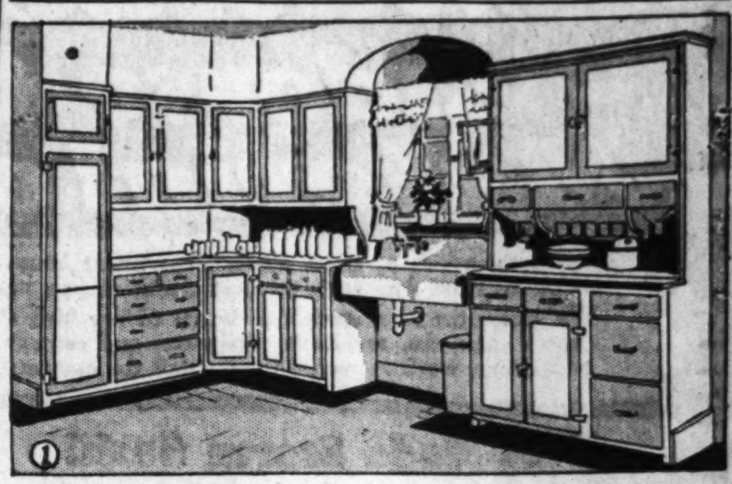
Come in any Color.

An auxiliary cupboard in connection with a cabinet or in a separate corner is another popular piece of kitchen or breakfast room equipment. These may be had in closed or open styles, in many forms; period, Colonial, in colors to match the cabinet and other units.

Manufacturers finish and decorate complete cabinet sets to harmonize with the kitchen colors, whatever they are. They even offer suggestions for color schemes in the kitchen to harmonize with their various cabinets.

Needless to say, whatever shade or combination of shade the home owner may wish—the kitchen cabinet can be secured of that hue, and although primarily its object is to serve, it is distinctly decorative as well.

TIME AND STEP SAVER



The modern kitchen cabinet is the logical offspring of the old fashioned, step wasting pantry, and in its many styles and sizes and units adapts itself to the idiosyncrasies of any kitchen, whether that kitchen be young or middle aged or old.

CLOTHES DRYER REAL COMFORT IN WINTER DAYS

The season of year approaches when the clothes dryer in the home is more than ever a valuable piece of domestic equipment.

The modern clothes dryer may contain either a gas or an electric heating element. It comes in large or medium or small sizes and where a proper degree of heat is combined with a good method of ventilation and air circulation, garments are dried with the natural freshness of outdoor drying under ideal conditions.

Automatic heat control eliminates scorching danger and thorough insulation prevents escape of heat into rooms.

A good dryer may be depended upon to dry satisfactorily all kinds of fabrics safely and perfectly. In choosing a dryer one should make sure that all exposed interior parts are smooth and nonrusting.

Where there is no provision for laundry work in the basement, as sometimes happens in bungalows and small houses, there are dryers of much smaller capacity which may be installed in the kitchen or other convenient location. These are particularly useful in families where the larger part of the laundry is sent out, but where the finer smaller articles are laundered at home.

1930 NATIONAL AIR RACES CHICAGO

September 17, 1930

Harris Brothers Company,
1349 West 35th Street,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:-

Before leaving Chicago, I want to express to you, the appreciation of the Board of Directors, as well as my personal gratitude, for the co-operation which you gave to us in the construction of the plant for the 1930 National Air Races.

In the many different cities that we have worked, we have never found a concern who were able to give the service your company gave us, or any one company who could do so many things in the construction line so well.

As you well know, our plant is built for a ten day show and it is very necessary that everything we use, we buy as cheaply as possible, due to the fact that it is used such a short time, and our construction costs this year, in a great many cases, were considerably less because of the arrangements we were able to work out with you.

With Kindest personal regards,

Sincerely,

Phil Henderson

MOON MULLINS
WHADDAYA MEAN UNCLE WILLIE GOT THE "SAME AS USUAL" ON HIS NEW JOB?
HE GOT CANNED!
HERE'S THE PLACE WHICH ADVERTISED FOR A HANDY HOUSE-MAN— I THINK I'LL TAKE YOU IN WITH ME KAYO. A FELLER WITH A CHILD ALWAYS GETS MORE SYMPATHY WHEN HE'S LOOKING FOR WORK—
YEH— I'LL GET YOU IN GOOD WITH THE OLD GUY, UNCLE WILLIE.
NOW, MY MAN, IF I HIRE YOU, ARE YOU SURE THAT YOU WILL SETTLE DOWN AND WORK STEADILY?
OH CERTAINLY, SIR, CERTAINLY
HUMM— YOU SEEM TO HAVE LEFT A GREAT MANY SITUATIONS IN THE PAST, MULLINS.
SURE, BUT HE DIDN'T LEAVE ANY OF 'EM BECAUSE HE WANTED TO.
NOW YOU GO ON HOME BEFORE YOU SUCCEED IN TALKING ME OUT OF THIS FINE POSITION. TSK-TSK-TSK, YOU GOT A MOUTH AS BIG AS A BARN DOOR—
WELL, THAT AIN'T ANY KEYHOLE IN THE FRONT OF YOUR FACE EITHER—WILL YOU GET OUT OF HERE?
OW!
POP!
POP!
OH, MY POOR TOE! OH, OH, OH!
SAY, COLONEL, WHAT'S THAT STATUE OF THE KID TOOTIN' A WHISTLE WORTH?
I PAID $2,800.00 FOR THAT.
WELL, WHAT'D YOU DO IF SOME OF YOUR HELP BUSTED IT?
WHY I SHOULD TAKE A CERTAIN AMOUNT OUT OF THEIR WAGES EVERY WEEK UNTIL IT WAS PAID FOR. SAY WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING SO PLEASED ABOUT?
I WAS JUST THINKIN' THAT UNCLE WILLIE'S GONNA HAVE A STEADY JOB FOR A GOOD LONG TIME AT LAST.

'LO, DOC! HOW'S TH' PATIENT?
WELL, HER FEVER'S A TRIFLE LOWER THIS MORNING AND SHE'S GETTING A LITTLE SLEEP- POOR LITTLE LAMB-POOR ANNIE!
RAIN- RAIN- RAIN- THE TROPICS ARE NO PLACE FOR WHITE FOLKS IN THE RAINY SEASON- BUT HERE WE ARE AND HERE WE HAVE TO STAY, SEEMS LIKE, RAIN OR NO RAIN-
ONE THING- WE SAVED THE MEDICINE CHEST FROM THE BOAT- ALL THAT CAN BE DONE FOR HER IS BEING DONE- GOOD OLD SANDY- I KNOW YOU WANT TO HELP BUT THERE'S MIGHTY LITTLE ANY OF US CAN DO-
YOU NEVER KNOW WHEN SICKNESS IS GOING TO STRIKE- YOU SELDOM NOTICE ANY WARNIN' SIGNS- MOST GENERALLY YOU'RE FEELIN' YER BEST JUST BEFORE YOU RUN SMACK INTO IT-
WHEN YER WELL YOU NEVER FIGGER ON GETTIN' SICK, EITHER- THAT'S WHY FOLKS MOST GENERALLY ARE SO UN-PREPARED-
STILL ASLEEP- THAT'S GOOD- THE MORE REST SHE GETS THE BETTER- HER FEVER'LL BE STARTIN' UP AGAIN IN AN HOUR-
NO MATTER HOW PURE WATER IS IN THE TROPICS IT'S BEST TO BILE IT FUST OFF-
WELL, AS LONG AS ANNIE GETS HER MEDICINE REGULAR SHE'S GOT A FIGHTIN' CHANCE- HM-M-M- THAT BOTTLE'S PLUMB EMPTY- BEEN USING IT PRETTY FAST THIS LAST WEEK-
BUT THAT'S ALL RIGHT- GOT PLENTY MORE IN THE MEDICINE CHEST- THERE'S ANOTHER FULL BOTTLE IN HERE- ENOUGH TO LAST HER A MONTH-
SHE'LL MOST LIKELY BE WELL AGAIN 'FORE IT'S ANYWHERE NEAR USED UP- WITHOUT MEDICINE NOW SHE'D BE A GONER IN NO TIME- BUT OLD SPIKE NEVER FORGETS TO KEEP A FULL STORE OF MEDICINES-
GREAT SONS O' NEPTUNE!!! IT'S NEARLY EMPTY- I REMEMBER NOW- I FORGOT TO FILL THAT BOTTLE LAST TIME I WAS IN PORT-
ONLY ENOUGH TO LAST A COUPLE OF DAYS, AT THE RATE WE'VE BEEN GOING- THE TURNING POINT MUST COME SOON OR WE'LL BE HELPLESS, SANDY- HELPLESS!

SMITTY.
THAY WHERE ITH THE "LOOP-THE-LOOP"?
KIDS RIDE
BETTER NOT GO ON THAT RIDE, HERBY- YOU'LL BE FRIGHTENED AW-HE'S A BRAVE GUY, AINTCHA, HERB?
YETH
HA' HA! I WANTED HIM TO GO ON THIS RIDE! HE'LL BE SCARED SILLY"!
LOOK! LOOK!
AW, YOU AINT SEEN NOTHIN' YET
THMITTY THMITTY
SMATTER
YOU'RE NOT SCARED, ARE YA?
OOOH
SHH! KEEP QUIET
OOOH
THMITTY THMITTY WE'RE FALLING!
THOP HIM, THMITTY!
SCREECH

A STUDY IN NATIONALISTIC TYPES: THE CAMERA ENCOUNTERS BEAUTY VARIANTS AMONG HOLLYWOOD'S STARS

Mrs. Alister McCormick

LOVELY AS THE FLOWERS

IN HER CALIFORNIA GARDEN

"Gay Shasta daisies lift their smiling faces..."

GOLDEN California sunshine in a Santa Barbara garden . . . a patio with a Moorish tiled fountain . . . aviaries bright with love-birds and parakeets . . . orangery, grape arbors, a palm jungle . . . desert cacti, eucalyptus, calla lilies, heliotrope, roses.

Enchanting setting for the blonde loveliness of Mrs. Alister McCormick . . . her hair like pale new gold, eyes of forget-me-not blue and exquisite skin like hawthorn blossom!

English by birth, Mrs. McCormick owes to America a precious secret of beauty care. To an English friend she writes:

"My dear, American women are wonderful! So clever and attractive, always smartly dressed and perfectly groomed. They taught me how to keep my skin nice even in this climate.

"Pond's is their secret . . . four simple preparations, quick and easy to use. The wonderful Cold Cream cleanses divinely . . . the Cleansing Tissues are better than anything to remove cream . . . the Skin Freshener tones and tightens the skin . . . the Vanishing Cream is the perfect powder base for face, neck, arms . . . and keeps hands smooth and white."

KEEP YOUR SKIN EXQUISITE by Pond's simple, sure Method:

During the day—First, for thorough cleansing, lavishly apply Pond's Cold Cream several times a day, always after exposure, letting the fine oils sink deep into the pores and float dirt to surface.

Second, wipe away with Pond's Cleansing Tissues, soft, super-absorbent, economical.

Third, pat cleansed skin briskly with Pond's Skin Freshener to banish oiliness, close and reduce pores.

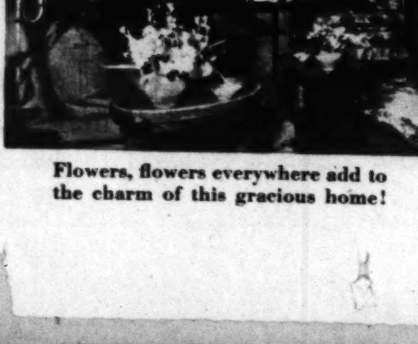
Last, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream for powder base, protection and exquisite finish.

At bedtime—cleanse your skin thoroughly with Cold Cream and wipe away with Tissues.

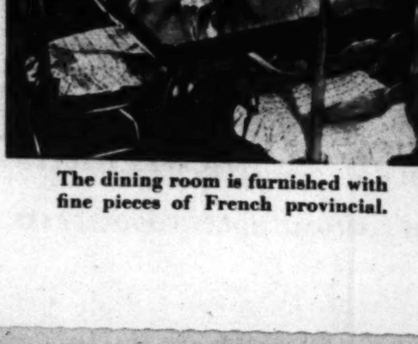
Tall spikes of blue and mauve delphinium and flame-colored gladioli in a Spanish faience pot make a gorgeous spot of color in Mrs. McCormick's living room.

Charming young MRS. ALISTER MCCORMICK is an English gentlewoman, to the manner born, descendant of the royal house of Plantagenet . . . and now by marriage a member of this distinguished Chicago family . . . ! Blonde and beautiful, she guards her matchless English complexion with Pond's four famous preparations . . . "so quick and easy to use," she says.

Pond's four delightful preparations . . . Two Creams, Cleansing Tissues, Skin Freshener



Flowers, flowers everywhere add to the charm of this gracious home!



The dining room is furnished with fine pieces of French provincial.

Mrs. McCormick's dressing table is in French carved walnut.

SEND 10¢ for Pond's four famous preparations for the exquisite care of the complexion (a dainty trial box) with generous samples of Cold Cream, Cleansing Tissues, Skin Freshener and Vanishing Cream.

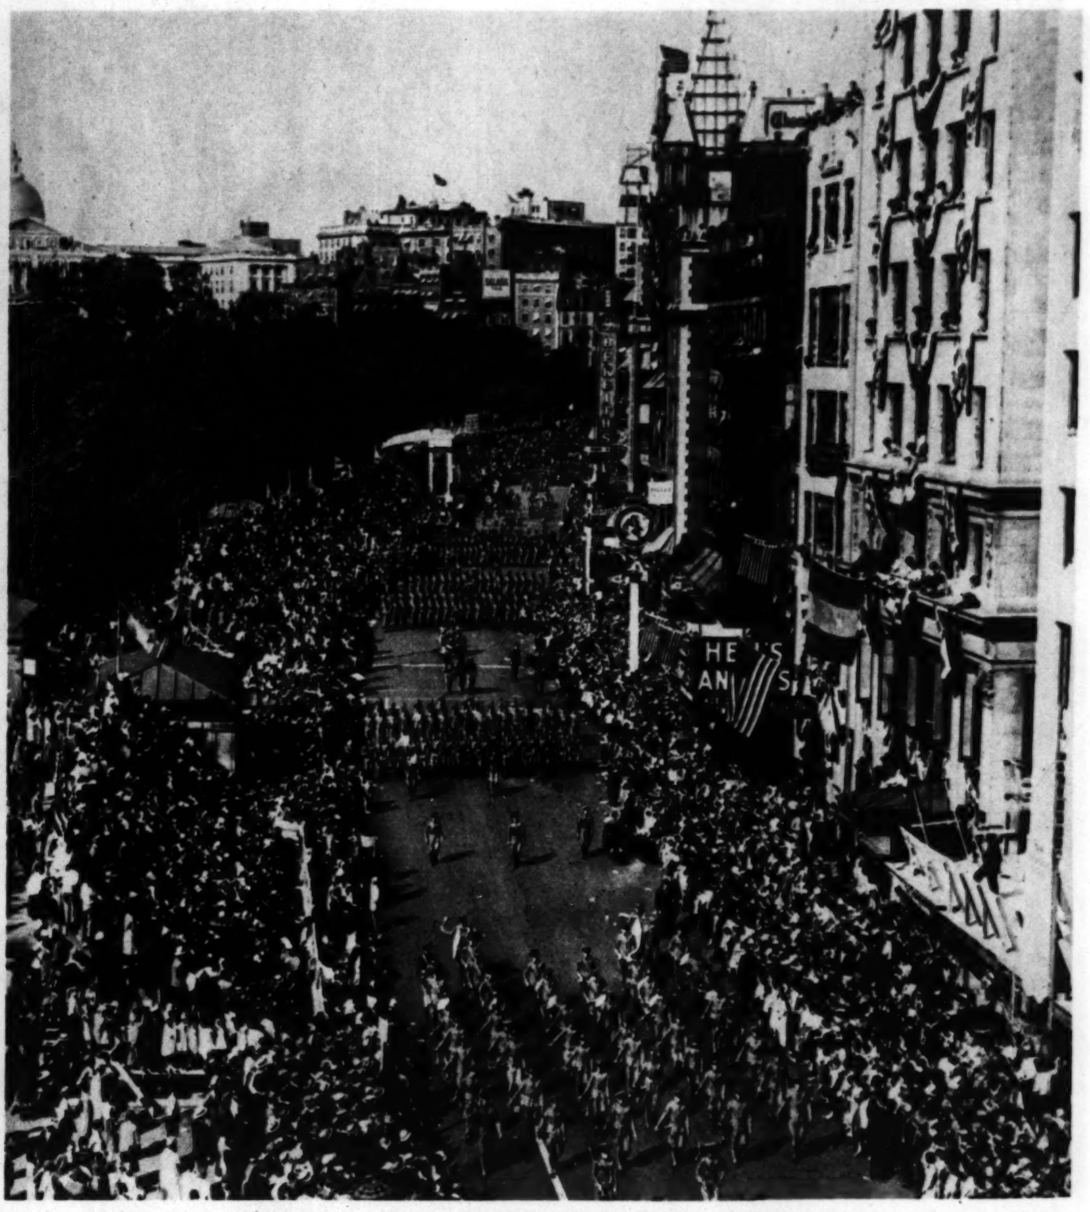
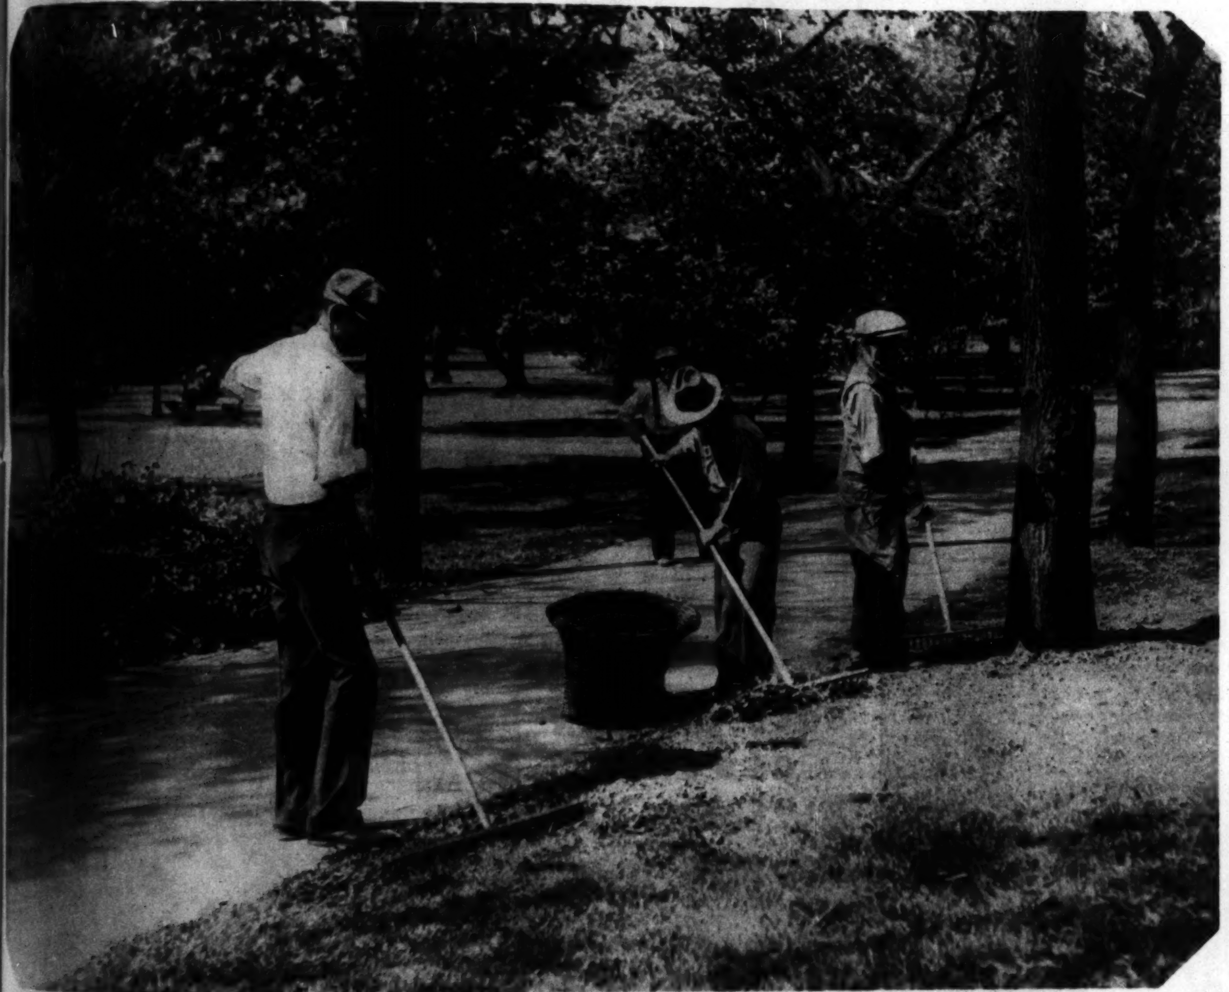
A HUNDRED YEARS OF ILLINOIS HISTORY PASSES IN REVIEW—An aerial view of Dixon, where the events of a century were recalled during the week with ceremonial and pageantry. Dedication by former Gov. Lowden of Memorial bridge, commemorating Dixon's services in the world war, was one of the high points of the week. It is the bridge spanning Rock river here. (Photo by Swain Scalf of The Tribune staff.)



AND THREE CENTURIES WALK THE STAGE IN BOSTON—The greatest parade ever witnessed in the Hub city, winding through the streets for seven hours, adds a spectacular climax to tercentenary celebrations in the historic capital of Massachusetts. (Underwood & Underwood photo.)



GOOD-BY TO SUMMER—Among signs of the times are pumpkins, reopening theaters, red apples, school books, football, autumn fashions, and—the annual harvest of falling leaves in Lincoln park. (Photo by Tom Johnson of The Tribune staff.)

THE LAKES-TO-GULF WATERWAY IN THE MAKING—The ancient limestone of the Illinois river valley gives way before dynamite and is dredged away near Utica in the making of the great new traffic artery. (Tribune photo.)

WORLD SERIES AHOY! Connie Mack's Athletics, the American league's entry in the big show whose curtain rises at Philadelphia next Wednesday. PERSHANA
America's FINEST
Oriental Reproduction
FROM out of the East came the inspiration for this glorious new rug—the prized Pershana. Lay it side by side with any Oriental, regardless how precious, and you will marvel at the striking similarity. You will see the same enchanting loveliness, the same Oriental richness; vivid colors that only an artist inspired could have produced; a texture so rich, so deep, it is a joy to walk on; a sheen so lustrous, it sparkles in the light and shadow. ''' Expect of the Pershana the same long wear of hand-woven Orientals, for it is made of the same long-fibred wool yarns especially imported from the Near East and China. It is a rug you will be proud of for years. Made right here in Chicago in our own $1,000,000 daylight factories. Back of every Pershana are the vast resources and 56 year old reputation of the Olson Rug Co. ''' Here at last is rug luxury within the means of everyone. See this new creation! Compare it with any $200 Oriental reproduction made. ''' The Pershana is made in all popular sizes. It is sold only in our five Chicago stores.

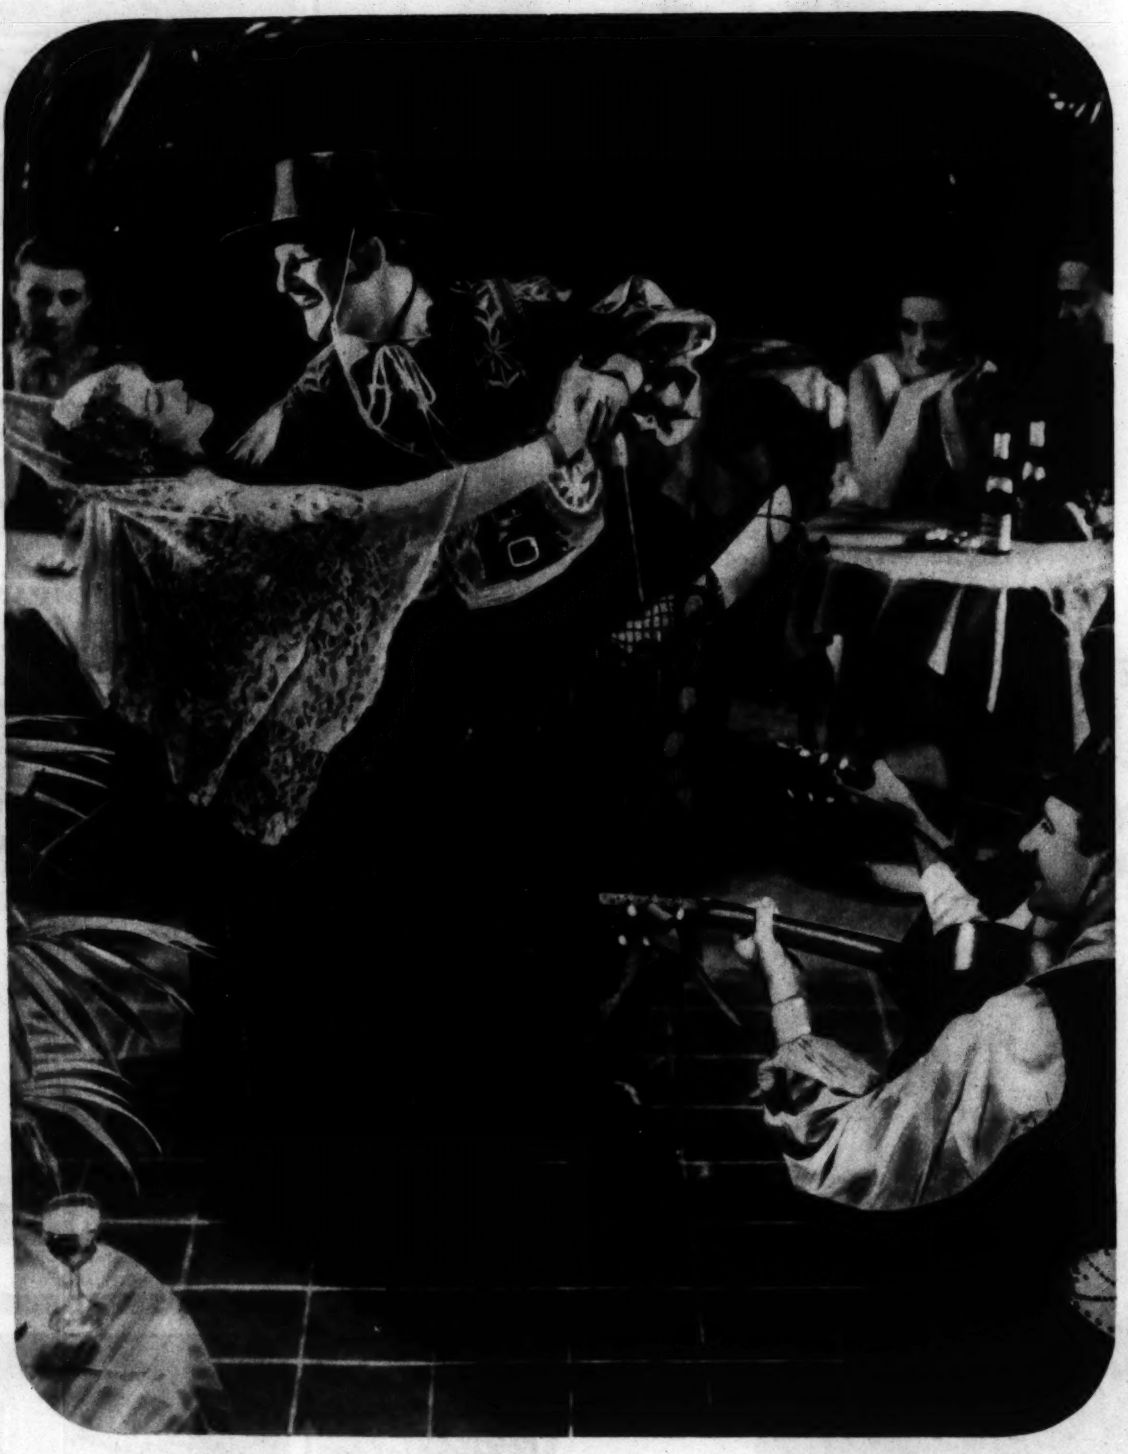
O Magic Nights beneath the Moon

where Eyes meet Eyes beneath the Southern Cross



WHILE MUTED STRINGS are plucked, the tap of heels move to a Spanish rhythm . . . skirts swirl and bangles glitter in the light, as eyes meet eyes. . . . Romance is eery as the moonlight and the stars of the Southern Cross look down.

Intriguing as the glance of eyes . . . and subtle as romance . . . thrilling the senses as the measure of a South American dance . . . this is something of the quality, the exhilaration, the unusual zest of "Canada Dry."

Here is a remarkable ginger ale, distinctive, stimulating, delightful. It has its definite quality because it has basic excellence. The very foundation of "Canada Dry" is "Liquid Ginger"—which we make from selected Jamaica ginger root by a special process. This process is exclusively controlled by us and, unlike any other method, retains for "Canada Dry" all of the original aroma, flavor and natural essence of the ginger root. Rigid laboratory control assures uniformity, purity and highest quality. A special process of carbonation enables "Canada Dry" to retain its sparkle long after the bottle is opened.

And as a result this fine old ginger ale is served the wide world over. It has won the connoisseur's nod of approval. At famous hotels and clubs . . . at the Houses of Parliament at Ottawa . . . on transatlantic liners . . . in London . . . in Paris . . . "Canada Dry" is the beverage which has first call. And in countless homes throughout this country its unforgettable flavor, its delightfully subtle aroma are known and cherished.

"Canada Dry" will bring the prestige, the romance, the distinction to your dinner table that it does to famous places the world over. Know the marvelous flavor of this fine old ginger ale. Order it today in the Hostess Package.

HAVE YOU TRIED—?

Canada Dry's Sparkling Orange. A remarkable new carbonated orange drink. Made from pure fresh orange juice, and containing the natural fruit pulp—a true orange beverage. Ask for it where you buy "Canada Dry."

Canada Dry's new Sparkling Lime. This wonderfully refreshing beverage brings you the lure and romance of the tropics. Let it win you with its keen, cooling lime taste as it is winning countless others daily. Buy it where you buy "Canada Dry."

The White Liars

By W. E. Hill

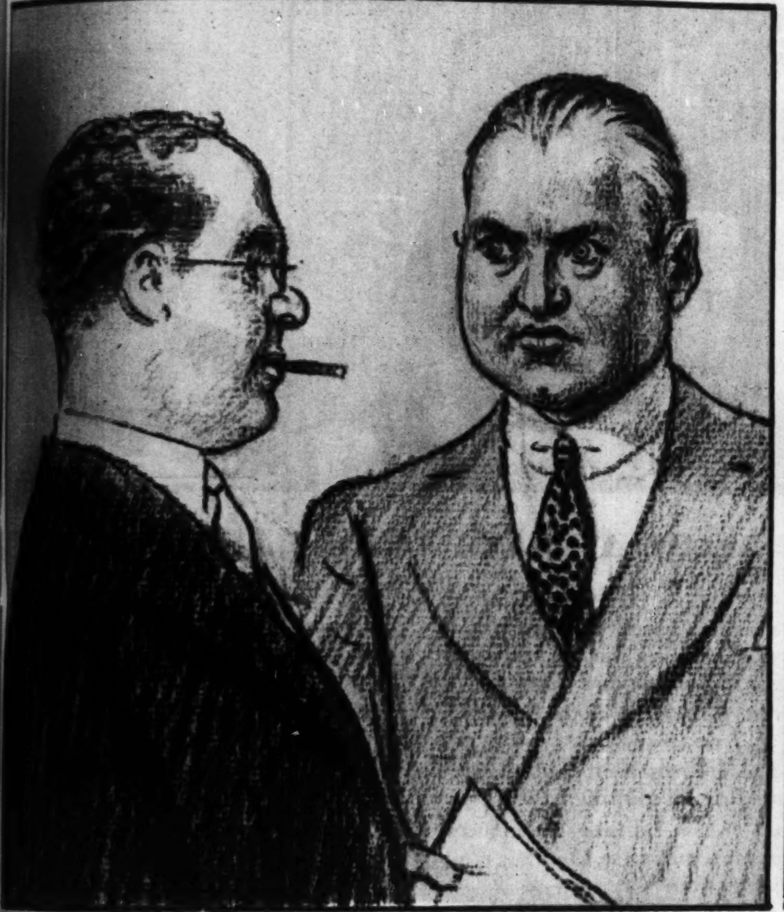
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"You must give me your phone number and your home address. I'll give you a ring the first of the week and we'll have lunch together. I want to hear all about your kiddies."

"Most men mean nothing to me, but you, you big, glorious boy, you're so wonderful, so noble, so strong!"

"Dear Aunt Ida: I thought of you every minute today when we visited some quaint old ruins near here. How I wish you were with us. If Dorothy knew I were writing, she would send you a big kiss."

"My dear, you're just flattering me! I'm as homely as a mud fence, and every one thinks so."



"Ben, I'd lend you every cent I've got—nothing would please me more, only, you see, I was nicked pretty badly in the stock market."

"Bob and I trust each other implicitly. We're really frightfully Victorian and staid."

"O, don't shut your radio off, Mrs. Groljan; we always love to hear the Bedtime Bears!"

"It's been too divine seeing you both here in America, and you must promise you'll look us up the very moment you arrive in London!"

"Listen, Phil, I can't see you this morning, because I'm this minute starting out to keep an appointment with my lawyer."

"I simply adore your apartment, Mrs. Grub—it's so homey, and I think you have the darlingest little boy!"

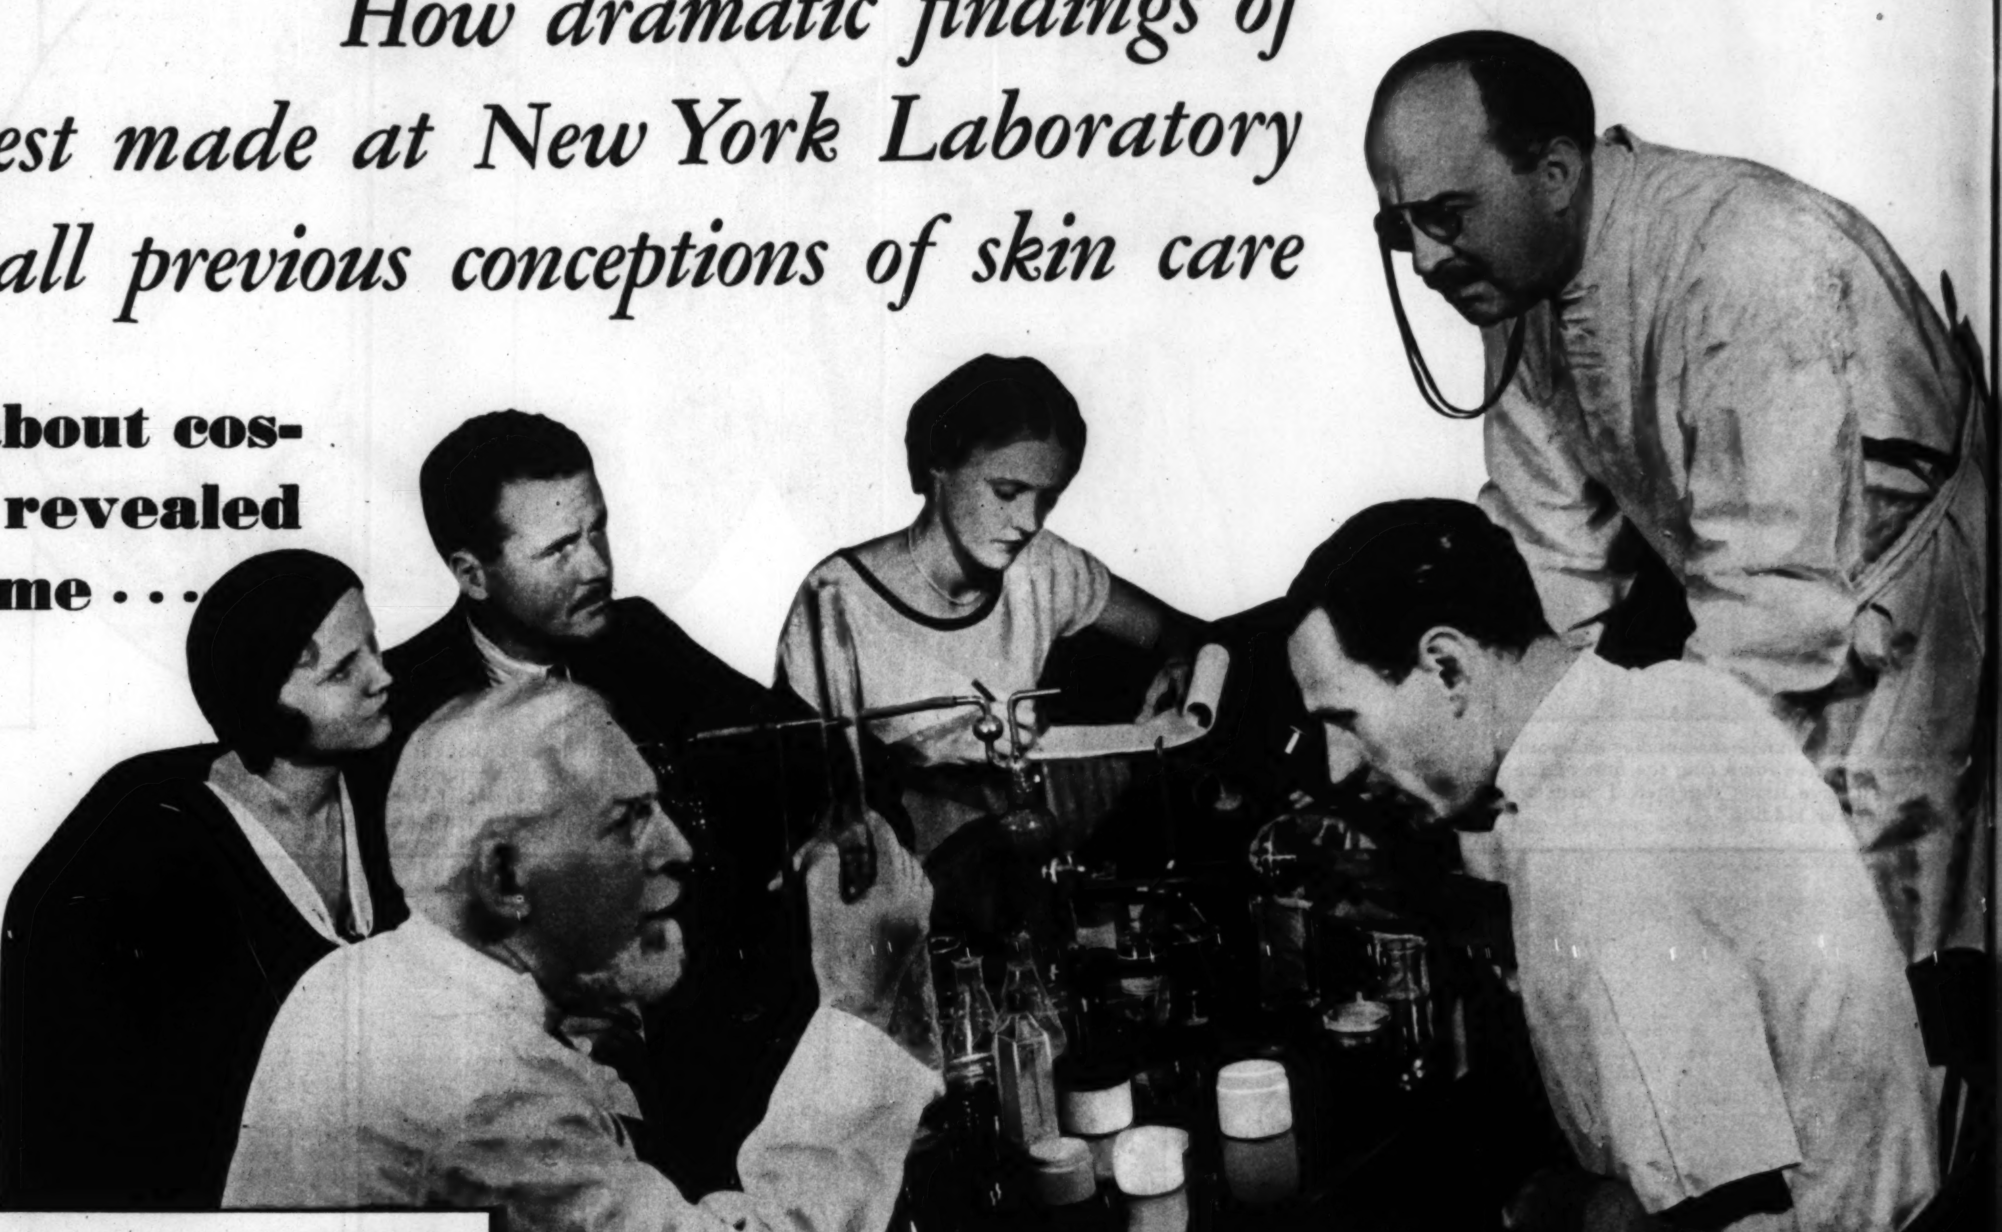
IT'S A NEW WAY OF SKIN CARE

How dramatic findings of now-famous test made at New York Laboratory are changing all previous conceptions of skin care



Startling facts about cosmetic industry revealed here for first time . . .

". . . we have tested these three products in direct comparison with similar products of the expensive lines bearing famous 'individual' names.

"We find them equal and in three cases superior in quality to these famous 'individual' name products which sell at prices from 2 to 8 times more than they do."

(Signed) HENRY W. BANKS, 3d.
Loomis, Stump & Banks,
Consulting Chemists.

THUS for the first time in the history of the cosmetic industry you are able to buy products of salon quality or better at the same price you now pay for ordinary creams and lotions. Products actually certified by high authority.

It sounds unbelievable. Many women will doubt this statement. We expect this. But the proof is in the products.

They are two creams and a liquid compounded on an utterly new plan. A plan which eliminates all inferior elements in old type creams and lotions and brings you the benefits of present day science in skin care.

Here is a brief statement on each product.

Diagram shows how old-type "solid" cleansing cream remains on surface of skin when first applied. Thus requires strenuous rubbing to penetrate. This may stretch pores.

Diagram shows how Hinds Cleansing Cream melts instant it touches skin. How it penetrates immediately, cleansing pores of dirt, dust, make-up.

UNIQUE COMPARATIVE TEST MADE AT NEW YORK LABORATORY

Hinds Cleansing Cream

A remarkable cream that actually changes from a solid to a liquid on contact with skin heat.

The moment you apply, Hinds Cleansing Cream melts, penetrates and cleanses pores of dirt, dust, make-up.

This new cleansing cream liquefies from 2 to 7 times faster than any other popular priced liquefying or so-called "liquefying" cream. Chemists have proved this.

Until today the only possible way you could secure a cream like this was by paying from $1.00 to $2.50 for it.

Does it not seem utter folly to continue with old-type cleansing creams that merely skim the surface of your skin when first applied? That require vigorous massaging which may stretch pores to penetrate?

Is it not folly of the worst kind when a far-sighted price policy on the part of the manufacturers gives you this remarkable expensive-type cream at actually the cost of ordinary creams? Consider what this means.

Hinds Toning Cleanser

Toning Cleanser brings you a new way of pore refining scientists have been working on for five years.

It's a way that not only refines pore texture but does so in a remarkably short time.

You accomplish this by means of a liquid which is both a cleanser and a solvent. It is called Hinds Toning Cleanser.

Utterly unlike many skin tonics and fresheners, Hinds Toning Cleanser positively will not dry skin.

YOU JUDGE.

Place a little cleansing cream you now use on arm. Then a little Hinds Cleansing Cream. If the cream you now use melts immediately like Hinds, it is a fine liquefying cream. You're safe in using it.

Used after cleansing cream, it removes all traces of grease. Dissolves out all lingering particles of dirt, oil, pore residue. Relieved of this residue, pores shrink back to normal size.

Use during day to cleanse skin when removing make-up. Make-up then applied gives you the lustrous look of glowing health.

Note, please, the new delicate skin texture, the vivid cleanness regular use of Hinds Toning Cleanser brings you.

Hinds Texture Cream

Hinds Texture Cream is a new type of skin softener.

A light, delicate cream you apply at night . . . it is utterly unlike the old-type "greasy" softening creams. Hence you retire with face smooth and lovely.

No need to smooth towel over pillow for fear of grease on linen.

No need to be uncomfortable with grease on face . . . in hair.

Absorbed rapidly by the skin, this scientifically compounded cream works through the night, eliminating tight, drawn feeling of skin, scaliness, dryness.

All that dry scaly condition that makes skin look old vanishes. Oil content of sebaceous glands is aided so skin regains smooth, dewy texture of youth.

Notice to Women

Do not expect to find this new way of skin care in ordinary creams and cleansers. These three products, certified by high authority, are scientifically compounded to supplement each other.

Remember, these facts do not come to you from some unknown manufacturer. They come from the makers of Hinds Honey and Almond Cream, known and trusted by American women for over fifty years.

Insist on the genuine Hinds Cleansing Cream, Hinds Texture Cream (in 40¢ and 65¢ sizes) and Hinds Toning Cleanser, 65¢. At all druggists. A. S. Hinds Company, Bloomfield, N. J.

Looks Lovely -:- What Makes Large Pores? Compare, Please -:- Ready Here Now

GOODBY GREASY CREAMS!—Now no need to go to bed with face greasy and uncomfortable. New Hinds Texture Cream for softening skin is greaseless. Absorbed rapidly by skin. You look lovely as if ready to go out. Works through night, counteracting dryness, tight drawn feeling of skin.

ON A SECTION OF SKIN size of dime there are 578 pores growing larger every year because of pore residue they are forced to carry. Get rid of pore residue and you get rid of large pores. Hinds Toning Cleanser dissolves out pore residue. Thus pores shrink back to normal size.

IT'S THE OLD WAY AND THE NEW . . . Girl on left has old-type cleansing cream on face. Note "lard-like" appearance. Girl on right has new Hinds Cleansing Cream on face. At once it melts, gently penetrates pores, washes out dirt, dust, make-up. Skin feels fresh and clean as baby's.

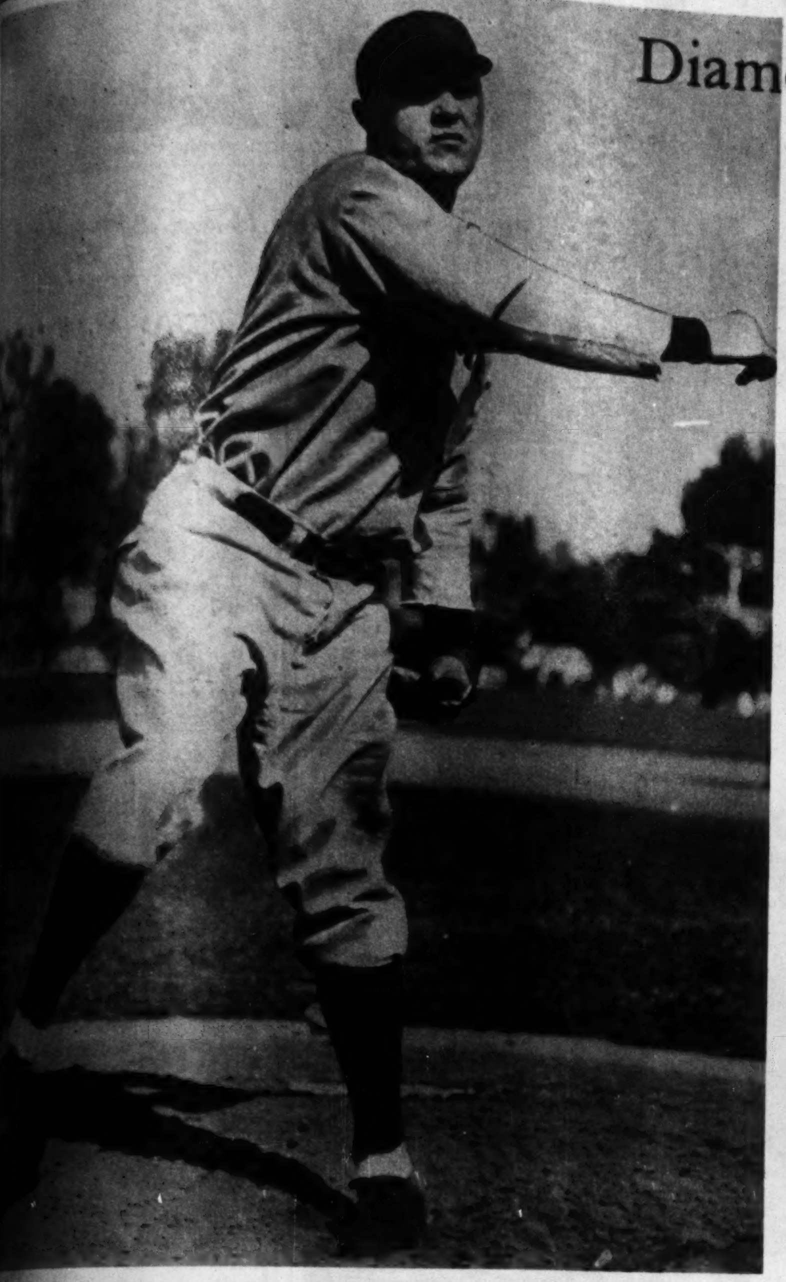
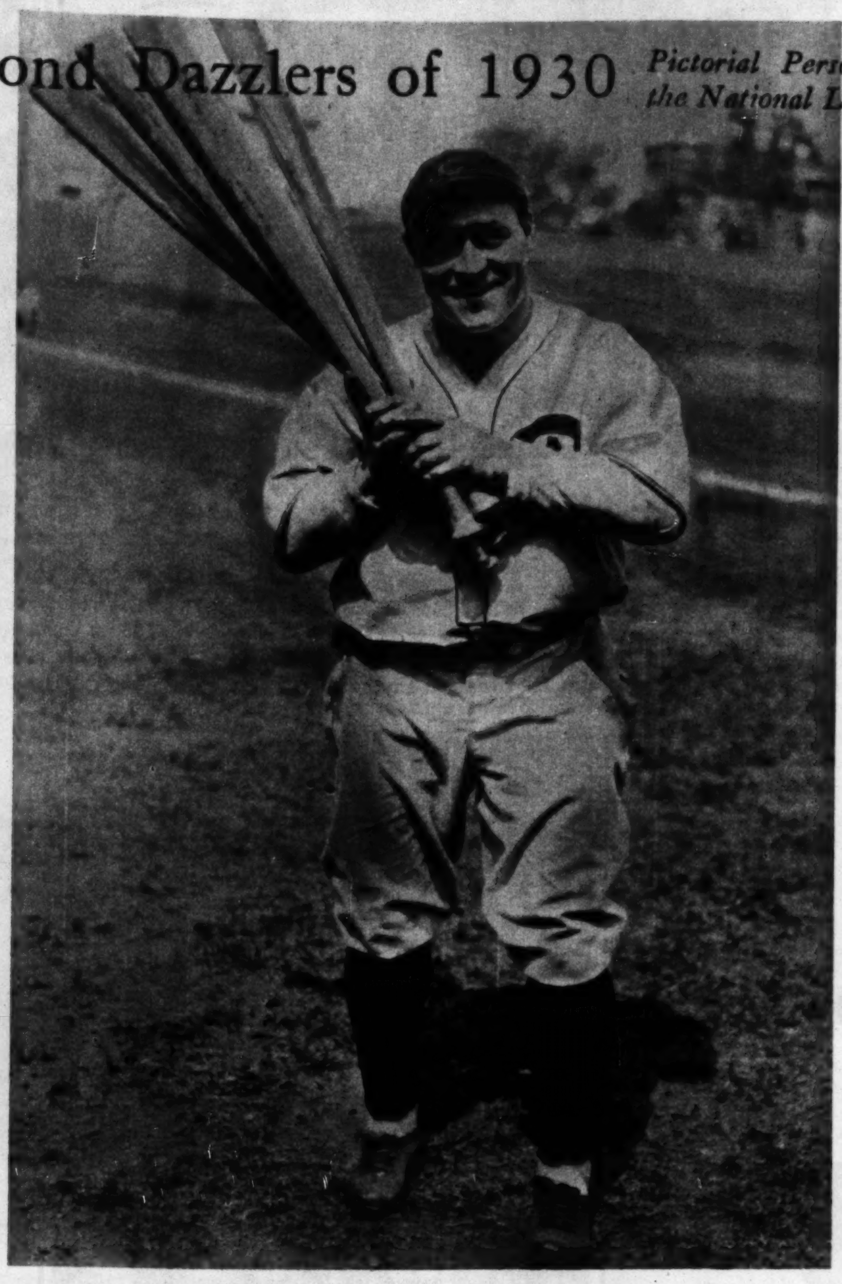
Diamond Dazzlers of 1930

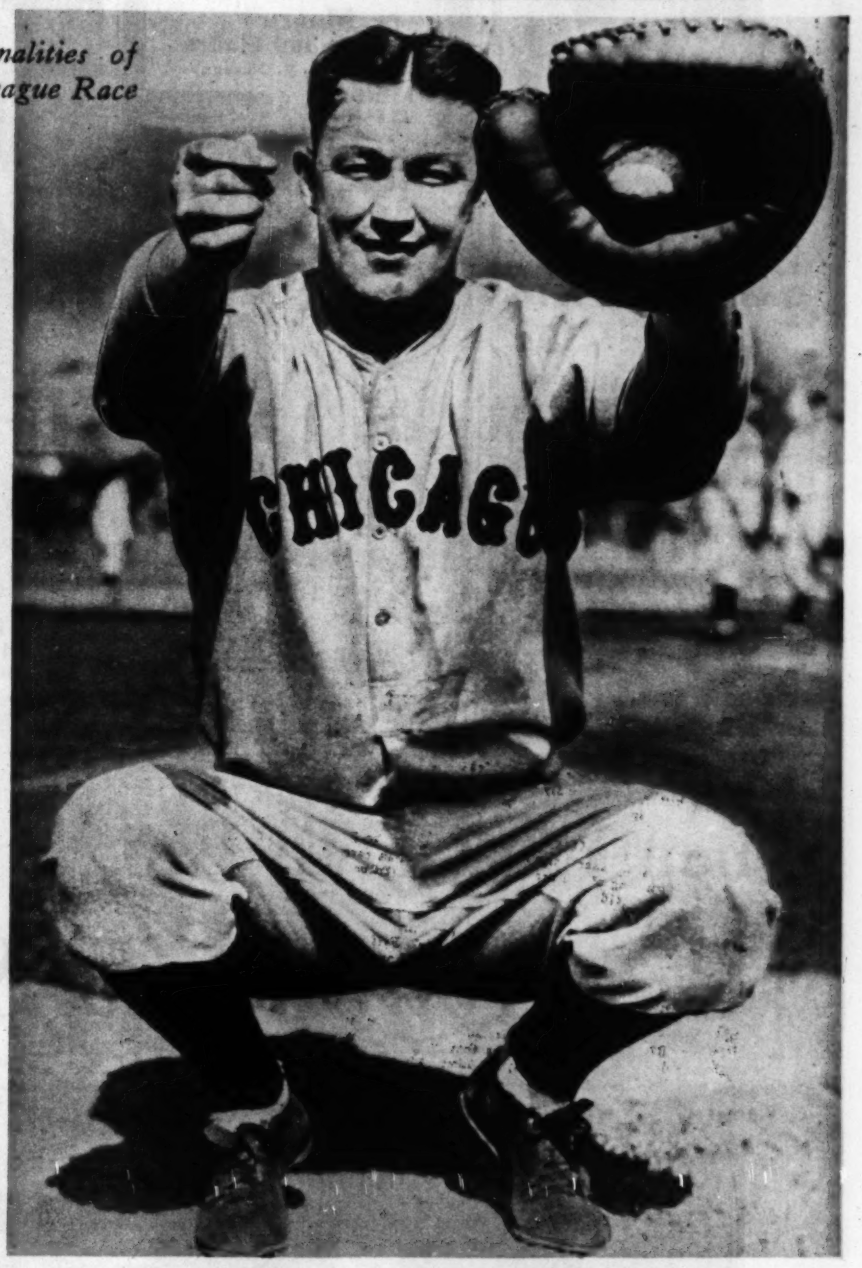
Pictorial Personalities of the National League Race



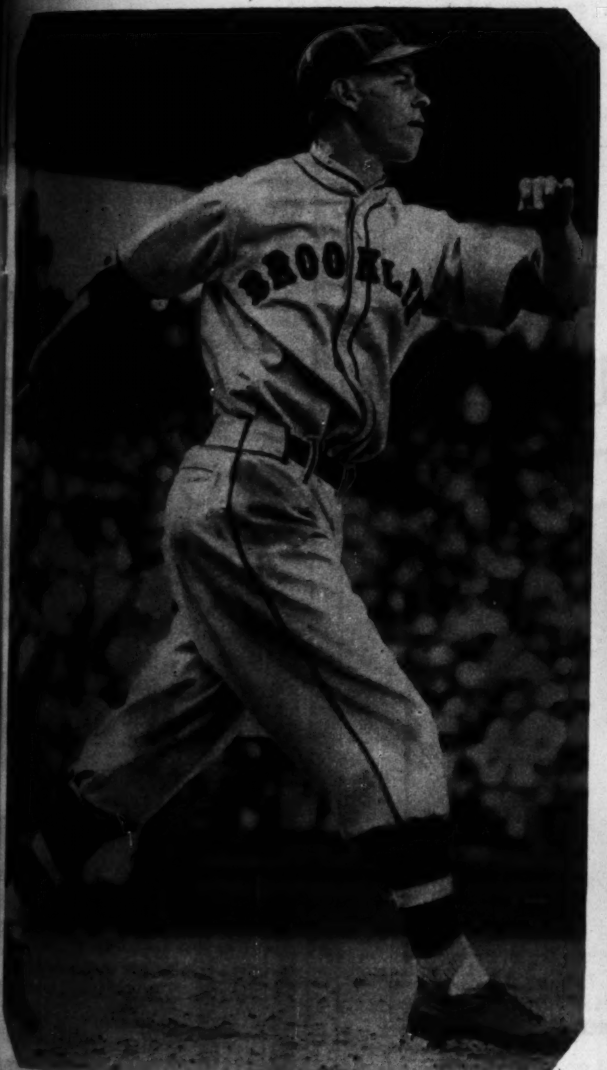
A MAGICIAN OF THE MOUND—Pat Malone, the big right hander, won 22 games for the Cubs last year, topping all league twirlers. See the sports section today, as the Cubs ring down the curtain for the season, for his 1930 performance.
(Tribune photo.)



KEPT A PROMISE—Hack Wilson said he would set a National league home run record. And made good at Wrigley field on Aug. 26, when he hit his 44th homer against Pittsburgh. His other hits, as well as his added homers, played no little part in keeping the Cubs up the ladder.
(Tribune photo.)



GOOD AND GARRULOUS—Out virtually all of last season with a lame arm, Gabby Hartnett came back stronger than ever this year; at bat and behind it he has been one of Mr. Wrigley's most powerful potentates. Here's a picture of Gabby you ought to like.
(Tribune photo.)



BABE JUNIOR—Herman, Brooklyn's slugging outfielder, probably remembers that his right front name is Floyd. Does anybody else? Lived up to the "Babe" all season as one of the league's leading ten hitters.

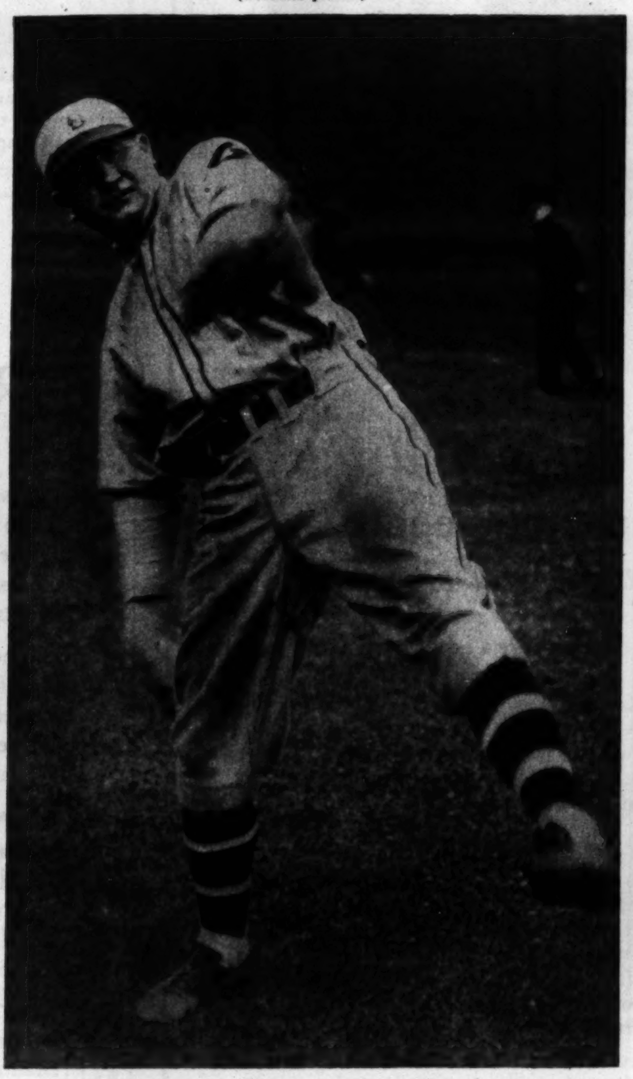
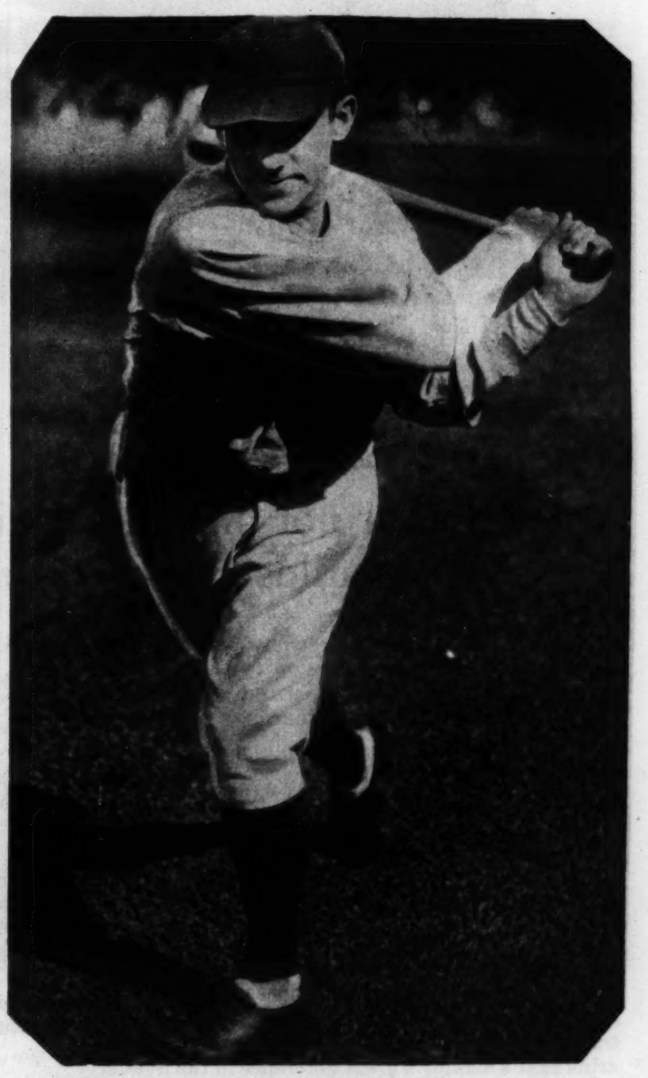
THE FORDHAM FLASH (one-time baseball and football luminary at Fordham), Frank Frisch has been playing second and third base with St. Louis since 1927. Helped put the punch in the Cards' seasonal drive.
(Tribune photo.)

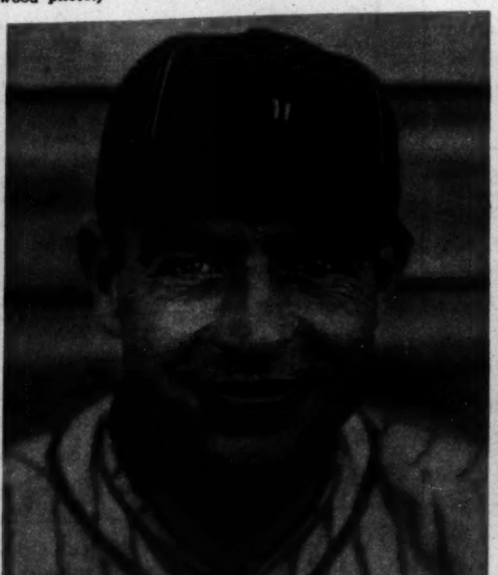


DAZZLER HIMSELF—Dazzy Vance, nemesis of pennant contenders, signed for a year with the Robins at the beginning of the season at a salary said to be $20,000. And for an elderly man of 37 he has more than earned it.
(Tribune photo.)

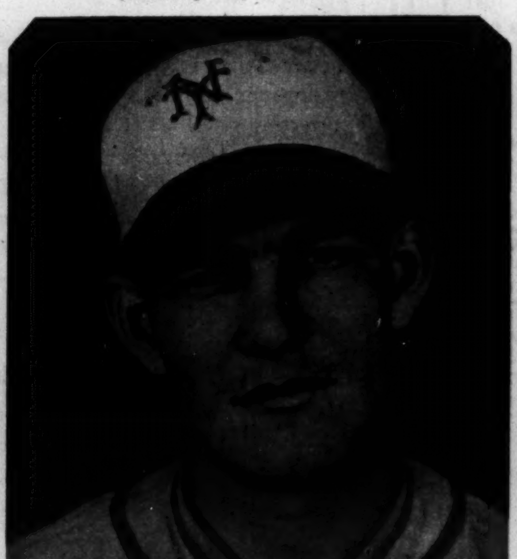


SAD CASE OF KLEPTOMANIA—The most notorious base stealer in the major leagues, Kiki Cuyler is a .300 hitter, has a deadly throwing arm, and has been one of the mainstays of the Cubs' offensive.
(Tribune photo.)

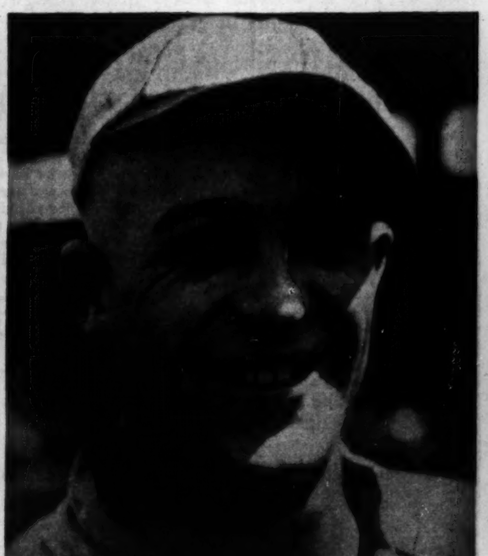
A BOON TO MR. McGRAW—Bill Terry slugged the ball at a .400 clip most of the season while playing at first for the Giants. Again, see sports pages.



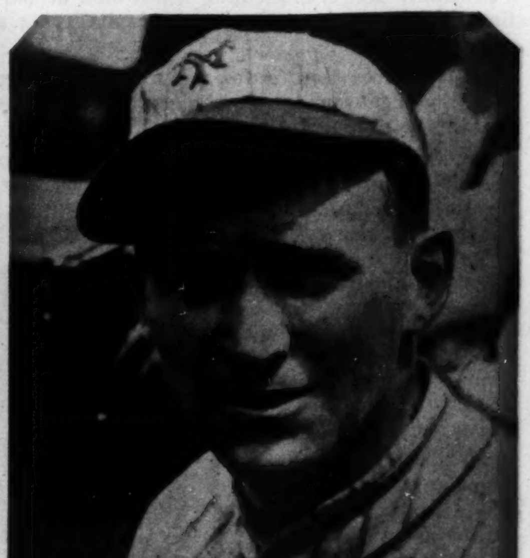
BIG HELP TO UNCLE ROBBY—Glenn Wright of Brooklyn, the kind of shortstop managers pray for, was kept idle by injury most of 1929. But this year—man!
(Pacific and Atlantic photo.)



ANOTHER REASON why the Giants have been up there all season—Melvin Ott of the outfield. Born in 1909, and just out of knickers when he joined up in 1925.



SUNNY JIM—One of the series heroes of 1926, when the Cards won their first flag, and the league's "most valuable player" of 1928—Mr. Bottomley, the first sacker.



A CHICAGO BOY who made good in New York, Freddy Lindstrom, Giants' regular third baseman, and one of the most dangerous hitters in the league.

VISUALIZING INTERESTING LETTERS—Examples of this primitive means of travel are still seen occasionally in Tientsin, China, the source of today's missive. Tientsin has figured in the news many times. When You Go To Bed
Can You Go To Sleep?

Now there's a way without drugs
—that not only brings instant sleep; but builds new energy while you sleep!

WHEN you go to bed do you have trouble going to sleep? Do you wake up in the morning feeling dragged out—nervous, irritable, unable to concentrate—your vitality drained by afternoon?

This, authorities say, keeps thousands of people below par. Never capable of their best.

Now modern medical science has found a natural way to combat this. A way without drugs. A way that usually brings instant, restful sleep and creates new vitality in mind and body while you sleep!

Morning finds you a new man—fresh, clear-eyed, buoyant. You have the vitality to carry you right through the day and into the evening.

A remarkable Swiss food-drink does this for you, as it has for thousands already. A simple food-concentrate that you mix with milk. A super-delicious drink that's making a great difference in the lives of thousands of nervous, sleep-starved people.

What It Is

This scientific food-concentrate is called Ovaltine. You simply take it in a cup of warm milk at bedtime; it brings you both sleep and vitality in a natural way.

First, it induces sleep. A few minutes after you go to bed, you get sound, natural sleep. For Ovaltine contains no drugs—as every doctor knows.

Then, while you sleep, its peculiar dietetic properties re-supply your system with the vitality lost during the busy day. For it contains, in easily digested form, practically EVERY building element necessary to vital energy. And thus you not only enjoy sleep as soon as you go to bed; you get the kind of sleep that rebuilds and rejuvenates.

You can take it night after night and not only not form a habit, as with drugs, but build up your health as well. You feel like a new person all the next day!

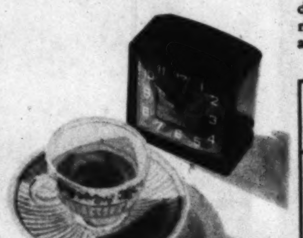
Do you wonder then, that people are flocking to its use? New to America, Ovaltine is being recommended by over 20,000 doctors. Used for 30 years in Europe, its use has spread to over 54 different nations. It marks one of the most important scientific findings of its time.

Try It Tonight

Doctors urge it not only for sleeplessness, but for all nervous and run-down conditions. They recommend it, too, for nervous, underweight children. Thousands of busy people take it during the day to relieve fatigue and restore vitality. Widely different from powdered, sugary, chocolate, malt or cocoa "mixtures," its scientific standing is unquestioned.

A few weeks' use will make an amazing difference in the way you feel. Your whole appearance will show the result of restful sleep and vitality restored this natural way.

Believe or not what people claim for Ovaltine—but try it. Try it without delay. Start tonight. Just 'phone your druggist or grocer now—ask for a can of Ovaltine.



IMPORTANT NOTICE

Many people have asked us, "Does Ovaltine contain any drugs?" It is such a wonderful "night-cap" they feel it "simply must" contain something in the nature of a drug. In short, it works so well they sometimes "wonder" about it. So we wish to go on record here in public print, that Ovaltine has never at any time contained any sleep-producing drug of any kind whatsoever. It is made entirely from food and nothing but food. The government would not permit us to make such a statement in public print unless it could be proved beyond a doubt.

You made him what he is today—

What Will He Be Next Year?

That boy of yours—you hold him in the hollow of your hand. How he grows from year to year—how he gains in energy and manhood—all depend on how you feed him. Even the way he thinks and looks upon life is controlled largely by his food.

Make him robust and hearty. Give him the energy and ambition to win a place in life. Give him food that builds strong bones, sturdy muscles, firm flesh—food that digests readily and that does not make him logy.

Have you ever tried Thompson's Chocolate Malted Milk? Authorities agree that it contains all the food elements growing children need. In fact, that very Principle-of-Growth—butterfat—is present in its most easily digested form. Small wonder Thompson fed children have made famous progress.

Serve at Home

Thompson's now prepare a special "Double Malted" Malted Milk already mixed with powdered chocolate in most appetizing proportions. In a jiffy you can mix a delicious chocolate malted milk right at home. Two teaspoonsful in a glass of milk—just a moment of shaking—that's all.

Your druggist or grocer will be glad to deliver right now—today—a 1 lb. can of Thompson's Chocolate "Double Malted." Telephone him now. Give your children a home treat for luncheon or dinner. Watch their happy smiles when they taste the food that's best for them. Get Thompson's now.

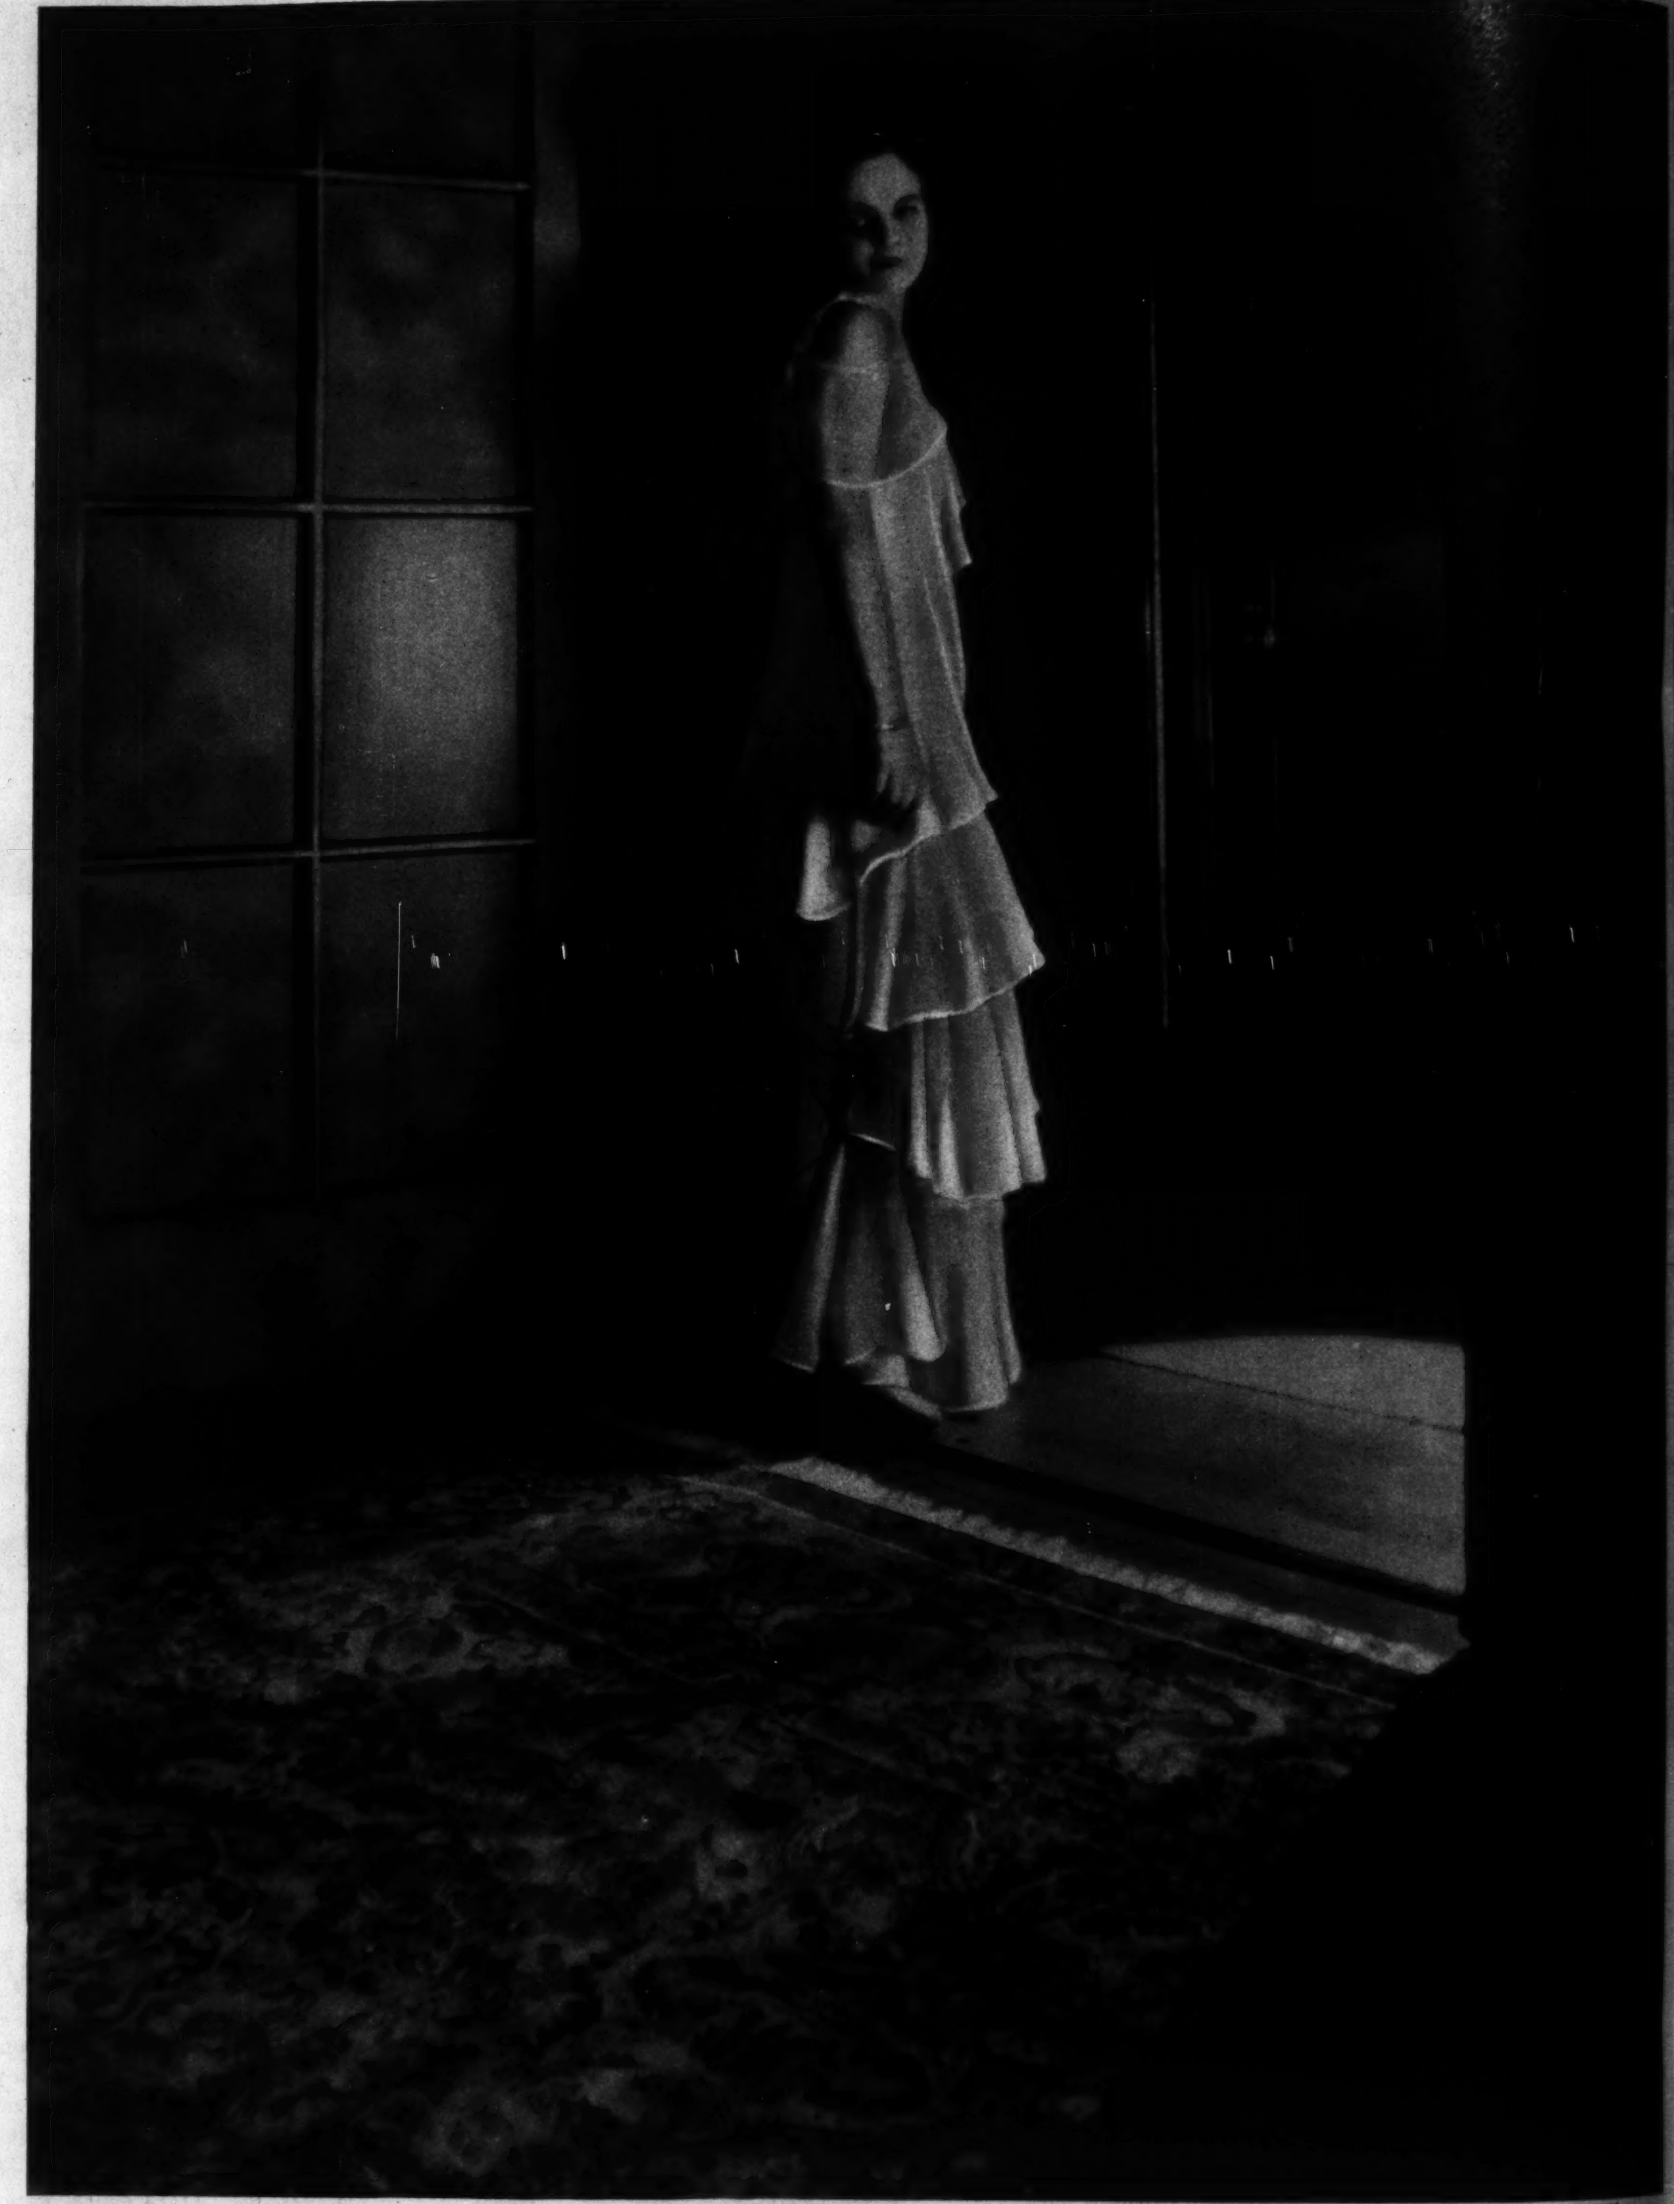
"I can't believe it!

that Oriental design I admired in the museum: $150!"

for the 9 by 12 foot size: other sizes in proportion (prices higher in Canada)



When Gulistan was placed on the market two years ago, a revolution in rug values took place.

The House of Karagheusian had produced in America the silky beauty of an Oriental Rug! The same shimmering sheen! The jewel-like colors! The luxurious deep pile!

Even experts hesitated to tell the difference!

Today, new Gulistans are in the stores. They reveal another amazing development.

Gulistan now places Old Masters of Oriental Rug Art within your reach!

Masterpieces of design originally created for the palaces and mosques of old Persia!

Rugs so cherished by museums that they are really the sentimental property of whole peoples and cannot be purchased even by multi-millionaires!

Moreover, rugs so intricate in design that even reproductions of them in imported Orientals are seldom found!

Does beauty such as this transform a home, a room? One glance gives the answer. Little wonder that rugs this Fall come ahead of other demands upon the family purse!

But to know exactly what you are getting when you go shopping for rugs, remember these plain facts.

Gulistan is the American product of Karagheusian, the largest makers of Oriental Rugs.

Only Karagheusian can make Gulistan. All rugs so marked come from this famous House.

In Gulistan you have the same sturdy Oriental wool yarns, the finest dyes, the very same finishing process as you get in their expensive Persian and Chinese rugs.

Naturally, all the best stores have Gulistans. Many of them have arranged art gallery displays to show these beautiful rugs appropriately.

Look on the back of the rug for the silken label pictured below. That is your guarantee of authenticity. No Gulistan Rug has been O. K.'d by Karagheusian without it.

There are many designs and color combinations. Sizes from 22½ by 36 inches ($10) to 11 feet 3 inches by 21 feet ($435). Also Stair Carpets and Hall Runners.

This historic design, woven 400 years ago, is known to experts all over the world. "The finest of its kind," says Bode, the great European authority. This Gulistan in your home will create as much comment among your friends as its famous original has among connoisseurs. The design reveals the influence of Chinese art in Persia. You will be able to distinguish the sacrificial vase, the cloud-band border which signifies long and happy life, and many other fascinating symbols. Five different color combinations.

LUXURY NOTE SOUNDED IN PARIS MODES

Afternoon and Evening Fashions Go in Heavily for Velvets, Brocades, Embroideries and Costly Furs

Ardanse has introduced the ermine suit for afternoon wear. This one is purest white and the blouse is black chiffon velvet.

Paris Snapshots

¶ 1880 back movement, hip drapery and peplums to replace bustles, are Chanel and Worth features for fall.

¶ Fashions are all buttoned up this season. Blouses and jackets button up the front or back. Coats cross and button. Chanel uses ruby crystal buttons to trim evening dresses and gold and silver buttons to decorate wool ones. Other houses use crystal, wood and bone buttons.

¶ Schiaparelli's bright sashes that are wound round and around the waist and tucked in like French workmen wear them are making a big hit with buyers.

¶ Fans are back in fashion for evening, and they are tailored looking fans, not fluffy ones. Worth has square fans of velvet, and Irene Dana has jet fans.

¶ Madeleine Vionnet puts beaded belts around the waistlines of evening frocks and beaded hems on the skirts.

This velvet evening coat from Jane Regny is wrapped around like a surpliced frock and tied on at the waist. The collar and fur loop around the left armhole are silver fox and so is the hem.

This Jane Regny suit of dark red velvet has the new tunic jacket that looks like a blouse and buttons under the left arm. The collar and spiral fur band are of mink, and the blouse is of georgette. The velvet skirt flares in circular gores below the hipline.

Redingotes invade the evening mode, and this ruby red velvet redingote from Irene Dana has a collar and revers of white fox fur.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—(Special.)—Stock market crashes, drought, floods and volcanic eruptions apparently mean nothing in the creative lives of Paris dressmakers. Hard times is something they don't believe in any more than they do in Santa Claus, if you can judge by the new fall fashions, which are richer, more elegant and more expensive than ever before. And, maybe they're right. We must have our luxuries, whether or no. They say that elegance and femininity are rampant in women's fashions because the men of the world want their womenfolk to be luxurious ladies once again, and since it is the man who pays, and pays and pays, who are we to object to these rich fashion rations? Anyway, whether this be true or false reasoning on the part of Paris, fall fashions for afternoon and evening are full of opulently feminine mystery and allure, translated into velvets, brocades, embroideries and luxury furs and feathers.

The couturiers oscillate between making fashionable females into mysterious, swathed Venuses and quaintly, picturesquely, modest maidens out of history books. This, of course, only for afternoon and evening. Morning styles are still modern, practical and simple, but as day grows into night we are supposed to become pictures of eternal womanhood with all its fascinations and fancy feathers.

Afternoon clothes that have coats like tunics or blouses, fastened in strange and mysterious ways, skirts that drape feminine hiplines and fall in intricate folds to anywhere from mid-calf to ankles, and blouses of sparkling brocade or velvet, are extensively be-furred. At times they are made of fur. Real Alaskan and Hudson seal come back in glory for these fashions. Ermine stays, and is either white or gray or black. Mole is dyed black to look like ermine. Sable, stone martin, mink and beaver are used without stint. Chinchilla comes on the scene, and astrakhan, Persian lamb, caracul, broadtail and galliac are rampant. Gray squirrel and golden kolinsky are part of the afternoon and evening mode picture; and lynx vies with fox among the long haired breeds of fur trimming.

The suit is highly important for afternoon and informal evening. It is not the suit as we ordinarily think of it, for, as I said before, jackets look like everything else but jackets, and blouses are rich as Midas. Velvet and velveteen blouses supply a new note to the afternoon suit-ensemble, and they even invade the practical daytime mode to enrich it, from time to time. The kind of velvet used for these isn't fixed, but pile velvet is a favorite. You can, however, have your blouse in transparent chiffon or panne velvet, if you like.

The fact that these blouses are almost always in dark, rich colors increases their effect of opulence. Metal brocade blouses, usually cut like tunics, and worn over the skirt, or like waistcoats, are also most fashionable. Copies of ancient Persian brocades make many of these blouses. Blouses of heavy satin are, naturally, among the most popular suit details, and there are a good many embroidered georgette blouses and blouses of lace or lace-encrusted. The blouse may match the skirt in color but often doesn't. It's usually much darker or far lighter in tone, and if neither of these, it is very bright.

Afternoon suits are sometimes made of Persian brocade. They're quite frequently fashioned of metal-printed stuff, and quantities of them are made of velvet or velveteen. Broadcloth and suede-surfaced woolens, too, are chic choices for the suit, and jazzed up by blouses of gold or other metal brocade, or velvet, and by lots of fur trimming these suits look to me like the coming favorites for afternoon wear, generally.

In supplement to the afternoon suits there are hundreds of different kinds of ensembles for afternoon Comers are the velvet, brocade or satin afternoon dress worn with a fur jacket, fur coat, either medium or long, and the fur trimmed cloth coat. Fur capes and scarfs, or fur-trimmed capes and scarfs, that are removable and may be worn with coat or dress or both, are Patou, Chanel and Molyneux afternoon ideas.

Chanel has a long cape afternoon ensemble that is making quite a stir in Paris, and Schiaparelli's three-quarters cape of black monkey fur with a black silk frock is another sensation.

Wraps and dresses needn't match in color or material. Many of them differ wildly, and are smarter because they do. A short yellow kolinsky jacket with a dark red satin afternoon dress seen chez Louiseboulanger is an example of the fashionable color and material variations that abound in Paris. This difference is paramount in the evening, more than in the afternoon. Dark evening dresses worn with light colored or white evening coats are stars of the new season, and so are costumes in the reverse scheme.

Most evening coats are made of velvet or metal brocade. The smartest ones are long and draped closely around the column of the body, with magnificent fur trappings. Like the Jane Regny evening coat shown in one of the sketches today. This coat ties around the waist with a velvet sash. It is made of deep wine-red velvet of the Lyons variety, and is trimmed with silver fox fur. A new way of applying fox to the neckline and shoulders is shown in this model. A double fox skin is thrown around the shoulders and then looped around the left armhole, concealing the fastening of the coat.

The skirt of this coat touches the floor at the sides and trails in the back. Its hem is silver fox. Looks just like a dress, doesn't it? That's the way the newest Paris evening coats try to look.

Jackets, too, do their best to ape something they ain't, as I have said elsewhere. Look at the Jane Regny afternoon suit shown in another sketch and it will tell you more eloquently than I can how these jackets have forsaken the classic mold. This one is made of dark brownish-red velvet, and it buttons on the left shoulder and directly under the arm. Its tunic lower portion dips in a point on the left side, just as dress skirt tunics have done in times past, but something jackets have not done.

This jacket is trimmed with darkest mink, which makes the big collar that fastens on the left shoulder instead of in front, as usually happens. A mink band makes a spiral across the upper back of the jacket, diagonally around the waist and down the back of the tunic.

The smaller figure shows the skirt of this suit, which is flared below the hipline and made of dark red velvet, and the blouse that is of brown georgette to match the mink fur. This also buttons on the left shoulder and is an over-blouse with a bolero.

One of the striking Paris novelties for afternoon is the white ermine suit from Ardanse shown in another sketch. This suit has a fitted jacket with a flaring peplum, a white fox collar and sleeves with flaring cuffs. The skirt is gently flared from the hipline and has a crossed belt of ermine below the skirt top. The blouse is a perfectly plain one with long fitted sleeves, made of black chiffon velvet. The whole outfit is a perfect example of the striking richness of afternoon fashions.

The redingote done into a gorgeous evening wrap is another Paris novelty, created by Irene Dana, and is shown in another sketch. Its ruby red velvet, and the collar and revers are white fox. The double breasted closing is achieved with square red buttons. There is a little pointed trail at the back.

The Two-Job Wife

By Doris Blake

Does the Wage Earning Woman Get a Helping Hand with the Dishes? Or Is Husband Too Proud to Wipe?

WAGE earning wives are divided into two classes, as I see them—the class that can afford domestic help and the class that cannot. Where trained servants can be afforded, the problem in mind for discussion today does not enter. The problem is whether a wife who puts in a full day's work and who, under most circumstances, has a two day job on her hands, is or is not justified in asking or expecting a helping hand in certain household duties which the man is as well qualified to perform as is the woman. The two jobs are the business duties expected of her in return for the weekly stipend, and the household job that constitutes for nonwage earning wives a complete enough vocation in itself.

In spite of arguments to the contrary, there is no just case against the woman who takes on remunerative work outside the home. A verdict clearing her of motives foreign to the perfectly human desire to improve her living conditions, to gain better educational advantages for her children and to permit a few of the pleasures without which life would be dull living, indeed, was given in a comparatively recent governmental survey of working wives. The wage earning wife was, except for an infinitesimal minority, exonerated of the sometimes heard charge of employing her time away from home for the acquiring of superficial comforts. The average working wife of the average salaried working man works for the reasons already outlined, good, decent and perfectly justifiable reasons.

Bringing up the question of whether husband should be expected to lend a hand at the dishes or running the vacuum or peeling the potatoes inspires a certain levity, which is not at all consistent with the position in which the two-job wife is found today.

The Case of Mrs. J.

We can take Mrs. J. as a case to present our point. She is not a fictional character. She is a conscientious job holder, both at home and away from home. She earns in the neighborhood of $30 a week; her husband earns $40. Her one baby died a couple of weeks after its birth. She wants more family and she wants to save money for a little place in the country. She is an all 'round right sort of girl, about 25 years of age.

She arises mornings ahead of her husband, gets breakfast, and a good one, as she has ideas about the relation of food to efficiency, physical and mental. She makes the beds, tidies the house and gets herself ready for work. She and her husband get home about the same hour, expecting that she has to stop and pick up the groceries and meat and salad materials.

She prepares the dinner, a good meal, too, serves it attractively and clears the table, washes the dishes, and tidies up the kitchen again. The dinner duties extend her working day at least two hours beyond that of the husky young fellow fed at her table.

Her Saturday afternoons are a house cleaning orgy and include such washing of clothes as are not sent to the laundry.

Sunday the young man wants company. He invites friends for dinner almost every Sunday, which, as every housewife knows, means a fairly full day of preparation. Saturday afternoons and Sundays until time for the company's arrival, the big boy of the house is out playing.

The girl is getting rather fed up on it all. The man's play hours take money, of course. The savings account is not growing as fast as the wife would like to see it, but that she would not mind if Charlie "were a bit more understanding about the duties that go with keeping up an attractive apartment." Charlie believes that it is beneath the dignity of a man to be seen with a dish mop or towel in his hands. Still, it is not beneath the dignity of the same strong young man to let the wife's earnings go into the joint savings account, nor, for that matter, to let her buy a number of household things which he, according to his manly code, should be the sole provider of.

The Husband's Attitude.

Men, as a class, with the usual exceptions generalities must provide for, simply do not face squarely the two-job wife issue. Frequently they will not look at the money disposition of the two-wage household fairly, either. They are slow to accept the economic change that has come over women, a change not of the individual woman's making, either. They harbor the out of date desire to be the recognized head with privileges that were accorded when man was the sole earner.

I find that women who start out with every intention of being the willing little housekeeper, women who want a home and are willing to work to get a few of the things that make living agreeable, get frightfully burned up over the lack of coöperation [as they, the wives see it] from the male halves of the bargain. They pause frequently in the middle of a Saturday afternoon's cleaning to ask what they are getting out of it. If they are left too much to themselves they sour on the household job and then discord rises aplenty.

Sharing Household Tasks.

Household tasks shared may be downright fun. A young husband and wife getting the dishes out of the way together and quickly, with the day's doings being chatted over during the performance certainly cannot be construed as a form of punishment. Other household tasks can be shared with similar unity. The suggestion does not apply at all in cases of nonworking wives, although I have known a couple of remarkably jolly households where the husband's dignity was not disturbed by being caught with a kitchen apron wound around him.

It's the other type of woman, however, for whom we plead a hand from the better half, if for no other reason than to keep her courage up. Nor do we plead it so much for the sake of releasing the woman from some of the physical labor involved as for the cementing of the tie that binds two people closer and closer with common interests, common ambitions, common duties, common pleasures, and a generous minded understanding of the need of adjustment to current conditions.

In the Feminine Realm

Mrs. Sarah Thornton of Amarillo, Tex., wife of one of the best known oil well fire shooter in the world, is engaged in one of the most dangerous occupations ever followed by a woman. She drives one of her husband's trucks which transports nitroglycerin to all parts of the United States—wherever Thornton goes to extinguish a fire.

Although millions of rubles pass through her hands daily, Mme. Barbara Nikolaevna Yakovleva, commissar of finance of the Soviet government of Russia, receives a salary of $150 a month. She is the only woman member of the soviet cabinet and holds one of the world's biggest jobs, employing 15,000 men and 2,000 women.

Miss Grace Roberts of Omaha, Neb., is vice president of a large dairy which serves Omaha, Sioux City, and Lincoln. She hires and fires the force of 200 salesmen, plans their sales talks, checks up on them, and directs the entire sales policy of the milk company.

Leota, Mary, Mona, and Roberta Keyes of Hollis, Okla., who recently celebrated their twelfth birthday, are said to be the only living quadruplets in the world. All are in perfect health.

A portrait of Agnes Mosjaukin, member of a poor family, will be used on a series of new bank notes of Russia. Artists who made the selection for the model said that she has "a beauty with struggle in her eyes."

The women of Poland are making a concerted fight to get women on court juries.

Mrs. F. W. Taylor of Westfield, N. J., keeps her radio set going on an average of sixteen hours daily. Besides her listening ability, she reports that she writes at least a thousand letters a year to radio artists and stations.

HER MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENT

Needlework

By Clotilde

This Pretty Little Angora Yarn Beret Will Prove as Practical as It Is Becoming.

THE smart little beret shown today is made of flesh colored Angora yarn. No trip is complete without one of those woolly caps tucked away in the luggage. Angora yarn comes in all the pastel shadings, and can also be obtained in the deeper tones such as black, navy blue, and the deeper browns and greens. It can be bought in the fancy goods section of any of the large stores.

Three large balls of yarn are required. Use a medium size bone crochet hook. Make a chain of three stitches of the yarn and join. Into this circle crochet seven stitches. [Do not put the yarn over the hook to make a double crochet, as single crochet is used entirely.]

In the second row put two stitches in each stitch, which will make 14 stitches. For the third row start with two stitches in one stitch, one stitch in the next stitch, and again two stitches in one stitch. Perhaps it will make it clear to the readers if I say put two stitches in every other stitch.

There are now twenty-one stitches in the third row. Crochet around until you have fifteen rows like this. There are seven corners or points formed by making the two in one stitch. This size is large enough for the top of cap, and it is time to begin to narrow down by crocheting two rows around plain.

Then in the eighteenth row skip the double stitch in each of the seven corners. In the nineteenth row skip a stitch between the corners until you have narrowed down to sixty-two stitches.

Get a piece of narrow, round elastic a few inches longer than needed for headsize, crochet over this into the last row and knot it in the back of cap. You can always adjust the head size better this way.

When soiled wash in soapy suds and rinse well in warm water. "The more wool, the more wear."

Illinois Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition mother can easily correct.

Take the experience of Mrs. T. V. Frankquist, 4619 N. Keating Ave., Chicago, who says: "Nothing seemed to please Betty Jane. She was fretful, feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.

"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it for two years now for all Betty Jane's upsets, and heartily recommend it to all parents."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. Doctors recommend its gentle aid to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided. Weak bowels and stomach are strengthened. It helps listless, weak children to become strong and energetic again.

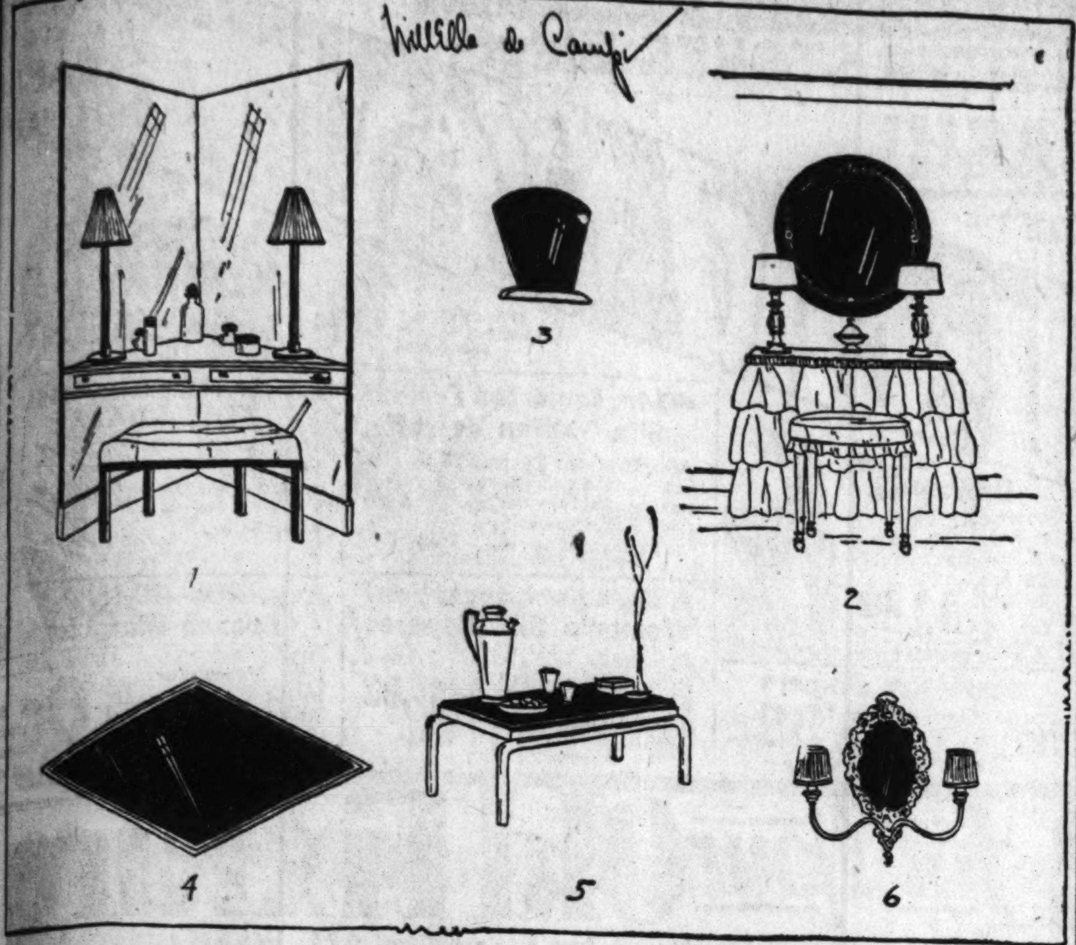
Mirrors in Decoration

—By WillElla de Campi—



Placed at the Right Vantage Point, a Looking Glass May Serve to Enlarge a Room and to Bring Color Into It.

> WillElla de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problem pertaining to home furnishings. Address your letters to WillElla de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

It is often with a deal of surprise that we realize that mirrors may be introduced into a room for decorative as well as for utilitarian purposes. Cleverly placed at a vantage point, a good mirror may reflect a bit of sunlit window, imparting life to a wall which would otherwise seem dark and uninteresting. The cramped space of a small room, too, may be given a sense of spacious freedom by means of mirrors on walls which ordinarily would bind the area unmercifully.

Draperies of colorful chintz with illusive shadows in their folds, softly glowing candles with their changeable, flickering light, rare old vases, intricately patterned, and filled with glorious flowers—any of these reflected in the depths of a lovely mirror assumes a new, mysterious life of its own, giving us a ravishing glimpse of strange things and gorgeous colors, if we will but pause to view them.

For rooms furnished in period styles there are old mirrors and reproductions of old mirrors which may be fittingly used to bring life and interest to a blank space. In addition to the well known designs, there are many novelty mirrors and decorative objects made of mirror which may be used most effectively. Panels of mirror, too, are extensively employed in the decoration of rooms done in contemporary style, with unusual and interesting results.

Today's illustration shows several delightful innovations which have been created by means of ingenious mirror treatments. Figure 1 pictures a clever scheme for use in the corner of a modern bedroom. Two long panels of mirror, running from baseboard to ceiling, are set into the corner of the room. The dressing table is made of a triangular shelf with two drawers. Tall lamps of quicksilver glass have ivory shades bound in red, and the crystal bottles have red glass stoppers. A little stool used in conjunction with the dressing table is upholstered in heavy ivory colored rayon satin, and the legs are painted bright red. The whole scheme is exceptionally efficient and may be easily achieved.

Less expensive to execute is the arrangement shown in figure 2. Here, a round mirror, unframed, with a delicate floral design etched in the glass, is attached directly to the wall above the little draped dressing table. The four screws holding the mirror in place are hidden by tiny glass rosettes, which seem to be part of the design on the mirror. Venetian glass candlesticks are electrically equipped and fitted with peach colored silk shades edged in soft green. The dressing table drapery is in three flounces of soft green silk rep.

Figure 3 portrays a small mirror cut in an interesting shape. It is unframed and is set in a simple wooden stand which may be painted to match the decorations of any room. These little mirrors, measuring about ten inches in height, are amazingly inexpensive. Standing on a glass shelf in the bathroom, they add a pleasing and sophisticated note of decoration.

Geometrically shaped mirrors in narrow wooden frames are rapidly gaining favor, as they fill many needs. These may be had in squares, oblongs, circles, triangles, and diamond shapes, like the one shown in figure 4. This one has its frame painted jade green. Mirrors of this type are equally effective in frames painted black, Chinese red, yellow, or any other bright color.

The little table, figure 5, is decorative as well as useful. The top is of heavy plate glass mirror, and the frame is of chromium plated metal. Being impervious to stains it makes an excellent repository for cocktail shaker and glasses.

For the charmingly feminine bedroom, sidelights, like the one shown in figure 6, are especially well suited. Two lights branch out from the base of a little mirror which is set in a delicately proportioned gilded frame. Shades for the lights are of apple blossom pink taffeta, finished with a dull gilt braid.

Answers to Queries.

F. P.: With furniture painted soft green in your breakfast room, a set of china in jade pink would be most pleasing. Complete breakfast sets, in solid colors like this, are surprisingly low in cost.

Have the walls painted a deep cream, and the woodwork green to match the furniture. At the windows use glass curtains of cream colored rayon voile. Roller shades of glazed chintz with a floral design on a jade pink ground would add immeasurably to the decorative effect of the room.

A. M. R.: In your bedroom you might have the walls tinted a soft salmon pink. Woodwork, including the doors, could be painted old blue. Glass curtains of salmon pink marquisette with overdraperies of old blue drapery taffeta would be effective.

Bed covers could be made of the drapery material, piped and bound with salmon pink. Use dull silver sidelights, with deep salmon pink silk shades. Have the floor painted deep blue, and use a silver gray chenille rug.

A Friend in Need

—By Sally Joy Brown—

Won't You Pass on a Few of Your Baby's Discarded Garments to Distressed Mothers Who Are Unable to Make Any Provision for Their Infants?

In the last several weeks there has been a marked increase in the number of letters to this department from mothers to be who are experiencing the unhappy condition of unpreparedness. These additions to the family, in some cases already large, are due to arrive in a few days, a week, or a month and the distracted mothers are confronted with the baffling problem of assembling the tiny layettes and other necessities which should be on hand for the event.

Just at the time when these women should be given the greatest care, should be having every comfort and should be free from worry, the pinch of poverty is developing a mental and physical condition dangerous to both mother and her expected child.

It is, however, a condition that we can help to improve. In every household where there are babies one is sure to find tiny garments that are no longer being used. Their youthful owners have outgrown them but examination will prove that there is much wear left in them.

Doesn't it seem selfish and even a bit ridiculous to have them lying about, potential victims of mildew, moths, and other forms of decay, when children are being born whose mothers cannot clothe them?

When such an event is expected in the homes of people we know, preparation is begun months before. Stitching on the finest of linens, the sewing of dainty laces, selecting of handsome bassinets and shopping assembles in a model nursery all the items that precede the joyous occasion. Medical attention for the mother, a strict adherence to proper diet and the best of care for her are part of this preparation which seldom figure in the schedule of less fortunate women.

I know you'll want to be of some assistance to one of them—and their number is surprisingly large—but perhaps you don't know just how to go about it, or perhaps you think your bit is too small to make any impression in this great sea of misery. Remember that each tiny garment you have to give will help to relieve some of the burdens and worry in one of those households and make the time of waiting less terrfying to the mother.

The following letters will give you a small idea of the conditions in some of the families awaiting the arrival of a new member. Read them and perhaps you'll find that you can help a bit.

> I want to be the medium through which the friends in need and the friends in deed may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.
> When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Clothing for Twin Babies.

"I have twins, 2½ months old, and we have had so much trouble I can't afford to buy any clothing for them, and had very little when they were born. If you can get me some baby clothes for them, some things for my 2½ year old boy, and aprons, size 39, for me I will be so thankful to you.

"MRS. E. B."

The father of this family is out of work, and with an addition of two to provide for he has much to worry about. Can you relieve him of one burden by giving the clothing which is so urgently needed?

No Provision for Baby.

"My husband has been out of work for five months and we are behind in our rent and owe other bills. I am expecting a baby next month and have no shirts, diapers or blankets for it. I also need clothing for myself, size 38 or 40, and I'll be so grateful for anything you can get me.

"MRS. H. T."

The prospect of having a new baby in the family cannot be such a happy one when the father is out of work and the mother hasn't been able to make the necessary preparation for it. Perhaps you have some of the tiny garments she can use.

Place for Baby's Garments.

"I am an expectant mother and am in need of night dresses for myself, clothing for the baby, and some bedding. My husband has been out of work for six months and it is hard for me to buy anything. H. G."

Babies outgrow their first garments so quickly that the things are usually in almost perfect condition when they are ready to be discarded. Have you any of these for this expectant mother who cannot afford to buy a layette?

Furniture for the Bedroom

—By Edith Weigle—

Both Early American and French Provincial Are Popular This Fall and Each Stresses the Charm of Simple Lines and Good Woods.

A city-wide exhibition of the newest and finest articles for household furnishing is now being held in the leading department and furniture stores and will continue through Oct. 4. Single pieces, groups, and model rooms and apartments have been arranged especially for this interesting event.

Simple Directoire furniture is ideal for the small room.

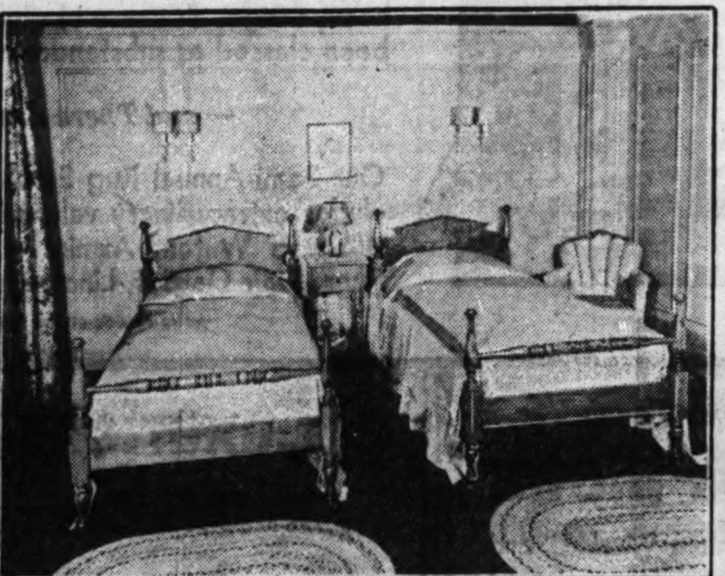
SEVERAL weeks ago when I mentioned that a New York store was advertising a most attractive set of bedroom furniture for less than one hundred dollars I also stated that right here in Chicago you could find equally reasonable prices and today I am showing some pictures of this amazingly inexpensive furniture. I saw it at the American Furniture mart and it is now being distributed by Chicago furniture and department stores. It is identical in wood and workmanship with the one sold in the New York store, and is winning a tremendous popularity.

This bedroom set, because of its simple lines and pleasing color, will stand the test of time. You'll like it just as much after you've lived with it five or ten years as you do now. The wood is maple and the style early American. In one picture you see the beds with their low posters and arched heads. Between them is a small night stand with one drawer and a shelf below. The bedspreads are moire to match the covering of the little barrel style chair at the right, but the new patchwork quilts, imitating quaint old patterns, or glazed chintz with a small flower design would be even more appropriate for these beds and would continue the old fashioned note begun by the oval rag rugs. Hooked rugs would be charming in a room like this.

Another photograph shows the chest of drawers that goes with this set. It is absolutely plain and is most appealing, with its metal drop drawer pulls. The dressing table is not shown, but is of the desk or table type, with a separate mirror, maple framed, hanging above it. A maple bench accompanies it.

French furniture of the sturdier, provincial type is about as popular this fall as early American. It also is a pleasure to live with, for you never tire of it. And it is just a little different.

One Chicago furniture store shows an entire model house done in French provincial style, and it has an unmistakable air of indivuality about it that is most refreshing. Another large Chicago store, a department store, recently showed a fascinating dining room in this same period, a picture of which will appear later. One of its chief assets was its rubber composition floor, which cleverly imitated an old marble checkerboard floor.



Twin beds of maple are always in good taste.

Chest of drawers in maple.

The third picture shown today shows a corner of a bedroom in a model apartment exhibited by this same store. The furniture is sturdy, but delicate in character, to scale with the small room it decorates. The style is Directoire, that period which marches down the ages of interior decoration, although its life in France was only four short years, 1795-1799. Its eternal youth is due to its classic simplicity and grace of line. Beech, fruit wood and walnut were favorite woods.

The little rush seated chair shown in the picture is typical of French provincial furniture. At the right is a commode with one long top drawer and a cabinet below. The mirror hanging above it has a center ornament of Roman figures dancing.

A lovely wall paper of toile de Jouy pattern is effective, as are the window hangings of beige glazed chintz with green box plaited edging. They hang over hand tied filet net curtains. Carpeting is honey color and the bedspread is a soft green linen.

Notice the artificial tulips in a tile box on the little French table by the window.

COINCIDENCES

"Your strange coincidence will be printed if you will submit it to "Strange Coincidences," Chicago Tribune.

Recognized Gait.

One day while walking home a lady was following me. Finally she overtook me and asked if I could direct her to Mrs. H——'s home. I was surprised as I answered, "Why, yes, come with me, as I am Mrs. H——'s daughter."

She talked all the way home. She was my mother's girlhood chum and had recognized me because I walked just like my mother. M. H. B.

Lovers Reunited.

My sister and her sweetheart lived many miles apart. They had had a row and hadn't heard from each other for many months. She took her vacation about 100 miles from his home town and decided to drive over to see him unannounced. She drove over and was going into the postoffice and met her friend, coming out. He had just mailed her a letter, the first one in many months. P. H.

Soldier Sweetie.

During the war I was engaged to a boy from home whom I loved very dearly, but whom I suspected of being fickle. My jealousy was fanned by the often interminable intervals at which the soldiers' mail was delivered. Each time after waiting so long, though, I was rewarded by many letters, which in themselves reproached me for my doubtings and made me surer of my lover. After the armistice, however, the letters became fewer and more unsatisfactory. I decided to wait no longer but to give him up and go in training as a nurse. The day before I left home I received a card from him written several weeks previously and mailed in Switzerland. The next morning when I went to the early morning train I stood on the platform waiting for the passengers to alight, and the first one off was my sweetheart. We were both dumfounded. When I told him my plans he immediately got back on the train and rode to the nearest city with me in order to make me abandon this plan for our original one. J. M. G.

Lost Boy Friend.

A boy and myself were very much in love, but on account of two distinct ways of looking at life we decided it best not to see each other. He went to school in another state; I continued to live at home. His home was in another part of the city, and when he returned for week-ends he, of course, did not let me know. But this is the odd thing: Our city was over 300,000, but nearly every time he came home I would be standing downtown on a street corner, waiting for a street car or for the traffic signal to change, when he would pass in an automobile. Twice we were in the same show and caught each other's eyes across a theater audience. Just before he enrolled for school I met him on the street with a strange girl. I met her next week in a university extension class. During the winter I stayed with an old friend while I worked in another city. She gave me a drawer for some of my clothes. In the drawer were a number of letters addressed to her in my ex-boy friend's handwriting. I learned later she had met him only a short time before. Now I am living in Chicago, and, to my surprise, I can find no news of him, even by combing my home town papers. H. H.

Prof. Her Uncle.

My father died four months before my birth and my mother died at my birth. I was adopted by a fine family and reared and educated in fine schools. In one of my mathematics classes I had a professor who happened to have the same name that my own name was before I was adopted. I seldom ever referred to my adoption, as it occurred when I was but six days old and seemed but a fairy story to me, and for this reason never did mention to this professor that I once had the same name.

When I became 21 years of age my own father's estate was to be divided, as his will stipulated it should be when the youngest heir should become of age. I went to that little Arkansas town and, to my surprise, among the scant few of the remaining relatives sat my old beloved math. prof. He was my father's brother—my own, real uncle. F. M. I.

PRESCRIPTION for Constipation tested by 47 YEARS' PRACTICE

THERE'S one way to help the bowels that is safe, and sure. It empties them of all the poisonous waste without doing any harm. Its action is thorough but so gentle that it never causes the least discomfort.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin always does the work, and it leaves you feeling fine. You can take it freely, reducing the amount as the bowels grow stronger.

If you feel sluggish, can't eat, have dull headaches, feel tired, weak and run-down, this famous doctor's prescription will help get rid of the waste that is probably clogging your system. If the children have coated tongue or bad breath; if they seem bilious, fretful, upset, give them a little Syrup Pepsin, too. It tastes so good they'll like it, and it can't hurt them. Its gentle aid is ideal for women.

By taking a little at those times when they are most likely to be constipated, they can avoid much discomfort. Its mild but thorough action commends it to older men and women, too.

Dr. Caldwell specialized on the bowels. His prescription of laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other ingredients has been tested by 47 years' practice. Get a bottle from your drugstore. Take some next time you feel the need. Then you'll know why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is the family laxative of millions.

Maiden Meditations

—By Sara Moore—

SOUR GRAPES.

She broke her neck to win the chap;
With wiles and tricks she sought him.
Her rivals stared with envy while
To heel, at last, she brought him.
She whisked him off; from those who'd snatch,
She caught him.

Though now to other girls she seems
To hate to introduce him,
And hints she'd slap the lass who dared
By charm to re-seduce him. . . .
She acts that way because she wants
To lose him.

Tips for Slim Silhouettes

—By Antoinette Donnelly—

Diet and Exercise Fall Into Line Before Fashion's Order for a Long and Slinky Figure.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—One of the red letter days NOT due for early celebration by us poor, suffering women is the Feast of the Overflowing Dinner Plate. Every little while we get to thinking maybe we can hazard a look at the platter of baked ice cream topped with whipped cream. Then some one springs another season on us with frocks still calling for the slim silhouettes. Such are the vagaries of existence—what with figures balancing this way and that!

Look at the new fall styles! Contemplate those new, stiff velvets that make the mouth water but the figure, if plump, mourn! Look at the svelte young things parading the new coats and suits. Then ask if there is going to be any peace for girl or woman who has been fattening on a lazy summer diet.

Don't ask. It's losing good time inquiring about it when the answer is so obvious.

Energy for the Attack.

One grand thing about the fall figure remodeling is that one is better equipped with energy power for the attack. Summer, the one we've been through, anyway, makes melted butter out of good intentions. They're running all over the place—but getting nowhere.

A few crisp mornings—and we're up and at the old ogre again! Anyway, that's what we have to be doing or we won't qualify for the fall figure order—long and slinky, if you please, madame!

The colors, of course, are going to help. Black, always a reducer, is with us. Browns and blues of darkish tones are more agreeably disposed toward rounding lines than the figured, light materials we're just stepping out of. But this is not a fashion story. It's more important, for what good is an import from the best house if there isn't the long and slinky contribution to be made it?

Short women needn't worry about how to get long. If they're slim enough the length will be achieved by the frock itself.

Exercise Helpful.

But those hips and that waistline that you have been taking on of late have to be gone after with the chisel and disposed of for sweet slink's sake. Get out the exercise pamphlets already sent to you and go after them mornings before you go to work. If you've lost them, send for duplicates, whether you got them from me or some other source of exercise supply. You can take off fat without the exercises, as you know, but if you want to be fashionably yielding of form you've got to have in your silhouette the resiliency of pliant muscle.

Taking fat off by diet alone does not give you that, unless you are young and would be natural heir to the suppleness belonging to your years. Concentrate on hip and waist work for a month. Be assured that while you're taking the pounds off the midsection, none of the rest of you is escaping a change for the better. But you can't look long, neither can you slink along without that unweighted waist and unpadded hips the new styles are crying out loud for.

Do your mile a morning—one mile going and one coming back. Walk at top speed. Two miles is a good starting ambition. But only as a starter. You're not a walker until you can do three without panting or being tired. And you're not a real, honest to goodness walker until you can do five without recognizing a park bench as a place to rest on.

Will Produce Results.

If it is convenient for you, which it will be if you make up your mind that way, pu on heavy woolens and a "sweat shirt" and walk fast, taking a few running spurts from time to time. You may not look as handsome in this outfit as in another, but just wait a few weeks and see how much handsomer you will look in the other. When you get back home, jump in the tub, take a shower, a good rub and lie down for a few minutes.

Now for the food helps to better figures. No diets today but just a few tips of value:

Salt encourages overeating. Reducing the salt intake to the smallest amount is advisable in weight reduction.

It is not the main courses only that must be watched at meal time, as meat, vegetables, and dessert, but the so-called lesser items. Bread or rolls and butter munched while awaiting other foods makes a weight contribution to fat statistics.

Buttered toast proves fattening because generaly more butter is consumed and one is tempted to eat more toast than plain bread.

Potatoes, despite common suspicion, are not so fattening as believed, unless taken in large amounts and dressed with butter, milk, gravy or cheese. They contain seventy-five per cent water. They are less fattening than bread, rice, macaroni, or other starches.

Butter on bread and in vegetable dressings and in cooking generally is an item to be viewed with alarm.

Cocktails and Calories.

Alcohol is a likely weight increaser. That late afternoon cocktail habit is bad. Go temperance until you repair the figure damages. Alcohol, on the word of a noted authority, has more calories, weight for weight, than any of the food elements—protein, carbohydrates and fat. And as every one who has had a cocktail knows, they sharpen the appetite.

Olive oil is fattening, but a small amount is found desirable in salad dressings because of its lubricating value.

And here's a particular point I would urge women to recognize: Reducing foods are reducing only to the extent that they replace other foods. You cannot overeat of the breads, say, that qualify as least fattening, gluten and whole wheat, and so on. Their value lies in the manner in which they are used to replace other foods of higher caloric value.

Fat presupposes an excess of starches and sugars and fats, with a minimum consumption of fruits and vegetables and foods of high residue. Almost always there is a general colonic lethargy, intestinal toxemia, and liver sluggishness. In reducing this feature of constipation is of utmost importance. The retention of waste adds weight, unhealthy weight. The liquid diet preface to a reducing program is paticularly valuable in such instances. It gives the system a thorough cleaning out and at the same time gives you anywhere from a three to five pound loss as a reducing start.

Dandruff All Goes Sure Pop!

If you have dandruff, no matter how much, you probably have tried shampoos and head washes without success, just try this simple method once and you will surely agree that "Dandruff all goes sure pop." Get from any toilet goods counter a few ounces of liquid Calonite, apply it just once to the scalp and notice results. Just one application and every particle of dandruff and other pore accumulations will be gone. Liquid Calonite just dissolves away these scalp pore impurities entirely. After you have gotten rid of these, use liquid Calonite just once a week to keep scalp pores free and clean.

Heartaches and Tallness

—By Gladys Huntington Bevans—

A booklet on "Sex Education" will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

FOR physical reasons the child who is large for his years needs wise guiding. As the writer said recently, girls take this harder than boys, but for both boys and girls one of the greatest helps is plenty of physical exercise, outdoor interests and sports.

And this applies to both types of children who are large for their age—the type which shoots up, tall and slender, often outgrowing his strength, and the type which is not only tall but well developed, seeming more mature than his years. For the girls, rhythmic dancing added to their other forms of exercise is wonderful. It gives poise and tends to make too tall girls lose the self-consciousness which is the bane of their existence.

All this physical activity helps the general development of the body to keep place with the lengthening out process. It helps, too, in posture—one direction in which the tall boy and girl suffer.

Familiar Stooping Posture.

The stooping posture of children that have grown too fast is familiar to all of us. And while the physical activity suggested tends to correct that, children need to become conscious themselves of the need to stand erect.

Too often parents, with the best intentions in the world, try to make children conscious of this by constant nagging and reminding—which often defeats its own end. Of course some reminding is necessary but primarily a child should be made to understand the reasons for the reminders—that his bones are still growing and that a bad stooping posture cannot be corrected after he is full grown. He should not only be made to see that he does not look well stooped over but also that his lung capacity is diminished by it and that it has a cramping effect upon the whole upper torso.

If he understands he is apt to try to remember himself, and not to resent occasional and friendly reminders—but they should only be occasional and always be friendly.

I know this is a practical approach. I saw a similar method work out with a boy in regard to his teeth, about a year ago. Those two big front teeth were coming in badly and the dentist, after looking them over, told the boy to try to keep his mouth closed and when he was reading or doing some of his lessons to press his finger gentle against the front teeth. Then his mother explained more fully to him about the arch of the mouth, etc.

That gay and rather happy-go-lucky youngster remembered about the pressure, and accepted reminders about closing his mouth with the most casual good nature. Of course, in public the request was always veiled—they used to say it softly in French. Already there is a marked improvement in the position of those teeth. It goes to show what can be done if the spirit of the doing is right—children will coöperate.

Conserve Their Strength.

Before leaving the physical side, I want to add one more suggestion. The boy and girl, growing excessively tall, need to have their strength conserved by plenty of rest, sleep and the most nourishing of foods. Keep milk in their diet, too, if possible.

There is no doubt that being very tall is harder for a girl than for a boy. She feels more conspicuous. If she is at the party age she finds herself taller than many of the boys she dances with. In school, although she is in the class with girls of her own age, she is often head and shoulders above them. So she needs, as my young correspondent of yesterday said, sympathy and wise counsel at home beides physical care.

In this connection, one of the most important things to do is not to let your tall boy or girl try to withdraw from the society of other boys and girls during this growing period. Children frequently develop a shyness and escape from the difficulties the world presents by constant reading. While the teens are the great reading age a wise mother will not allow this to develop to the exclusion of plenty of wholesome companionship. And physically, excessive reading is bad for the posture. A "scholarly stoop" may sound interesting, but it really isn't.

It is not well, either, to allow a mental retreat gained by the too frequent seeing of movies. The most wholesome thing for any one—boy or girl, man or woman—is to meet situations, not to escape them. There are various ways in which parents can help these children to face and deal with their exceptional height.

Examples from Mythology.

Casual remarks admiring tall men or women, and how they carry themselves, or drawing attention to interesting people who are tall, will have their effect even if no response is called forth. If your children are studying mythology you can point out, in the copies of old friezes or designs on vases or in statues, the length of body that was considered a part of beauty by the ancients. A girl might be more interested than a boy in a visit to the museum of art, where the classic sculptures show that length of limb usually was noticeable in the figures of women.

You can give your girls the feeling that while being very tall may have some disadvantages, it may have many advantages, too. The girls who are old enough for Maurice Hewlett, who holds his own so well as a novelist, will enjoy his description of his heroines as "long limbed goddesses." They can even be made to see how much more charming the new styles are for tall women than for short. Skirts to the knees and straight lines were chic for the short girl and woman, while the tall ones just had to endure them. But now the tables are turned.

The point of all this—or whether other compensating ideas you can present to your tall son or daughter—is that you let them know that you understand their feelings. Then they can talk to you and you to them, and it will be unnecessary for them to bear their discomfort or try to solve their difficulties in silence. There are some serene, happy-go-lucky youngsters who find little to disturb them—who can accept their extra length and joke over it. Lucky youngsters! They don't need help—but the others do.

The First Night By Cosmo Hamilton

A Temperamental Leading Lady Quit the Show "Cold"; Disaster Was Around the Corner but for the Author, Who Had the Idea Another Could Do the Part as Well; She Did—After Love Stirred Her Heart.

ILLUSTRATION BY P. T. JENSEN.

"That's enough," she said. "You, the show, London, and every single creature on the face of this blessed earth can go to hell. I'm out."

THAT dry, strident, and nerve racked voice came from the circle again. Its raucous note was exaggerated, because the lips of Basil Winch, the famous producer of musical comedies, were placed against the mouthpiece of a small, and, to the company, terrifying megaphone.

"Miss Doyne. Listen and stand still. For the last time I remind you that this is the final dress rehearsal of the piece which, by your colossal conceit and disloyalty, you have done your best to smash. You've just killed a very good scene and cut the throat of your song."

Miss Doyne, the beautiful Stella, the highest paid artiste on the London stage, made her violet eyes into two long, narrow slits. "Say anything more like that," she cried, sweeping down to the footlights, "and I'll walk straight out of this theater and leave you flat. Do you hear? As God's my judge I will. I've had enough of you. . . ."

"Miss Doyne."

Once more the voice of the god in the circle rang through that echoing theater, causing shudders to run down the spines of that army of people whose future was wrapped up in the play. It was three o'clock in the morning and they were mostly sitting in the stalls and boxes in deathlike attitudes.

"Miss Doyne. The opening performance of this production takes place tomorrow—or rather tonight, at eight. Your acting is worse and your singing more dreadful than when we tried it out. You speak your lines without meaning and never once have you been anything but two points off the key. Because you're engaged to a rich man and come down late to rehearsals in a car as big as a train, bringing your damned little dog with you which wants to be treated as you do, like a spoilt girl, you think you can play the devil with me and jeopardize a concern which has cost a fortune to build." The voice became shrill with indignation and rage. "I tell you finally, Miss Stella Doyne, that if you continue to jib at my direction I shall thank God on my knees to see the last of you. . . . Make your entrance again. Let me hear what you say and do what you can for the first time to sing your number in tune. No further words from you."

Defiance

Oliver Frant, the young and nervous author, whose first attempt this was and who had already spent his advance royalties in laying out his garden and in the purchase of rose trees, turned as white as a sheet. Kew, who had composed the song in question—it was an obvious hit—leaned forward in an agony of apprehension and spoke to Wellow, Tumby, and Sneath, whose names were on the program with his as the concocters of other tunes. They were, as he was, breathless and fearful, although they were in complete agreement with all that Winch had said. Christmas lurked behind the thick fog of those December days, and the presents they were so anxious to give to their wives and eager children depended entirely upon the successful flotation of that unwieldy ship. It had been tossed about the provinces, repatched again and again during the course of a stormy try out, and was all ready to be launched upon a London audience. The hearts of these men stood still.

"Now what?" asked Kew. "Will she take it or will she go? If she goes we're licked."

Bertram Rossett, the manager, whose books showed a debit balance of twenty-five thousand pounds, put a shaking hand to his hot and exhausted head. "If Stella goes I sink. If she stays, fractious and disagreeable as she is, I float, because the public will accept her, never mind what she does."

Every member of the company, those willing and hungry workers, hung upon Stella now. They might have been turned to stone. Even to the most casual onlooker it must have appeared that, at that moment of quivering suspense, some mischievous and all too whimsical fairy had waved a wand in the gallery of that distracted theater and stopped the breathing capacity of every one concerned.

Once more that awful voice.

"Do you hear what I say? Make your entrance again." A foot was stamped and two hands beat an imperious tattoo on the back of a wooden seat.

Hardly able to speak through her anger Miss Doyne moved nearer to the footlights, raised her eyes to the dress circle and spoke. "That's enough," she said. "You, the show, London, and every single creature on the face of this blessed earth can go to hell. I'm out."

She turned, marched through the static group of her fellow actors and, with the echo of her high heels ringing in their brains, threw open the door of the Hotel Splendide, in which the scene was laid, and walked through the mimic sunshine of two enormous lamps.

A murmur like a sudden wind in leaves spread all over the house. It ran from the principal actors who were gathered on the stage to the members of the large and exhausted chorus, some of whom at that moment were lying on the floor of the boxes and sitting back to back in the wings. It was caught up not only by the author, the lyric writers and composers, but also by the dressmakers, the shoemakers, the designers and builders of the scenery, the peer's daughter, who earned a precarious livelihood by interior decoration; the two smart girls who sat in the box office and hoped to sit there again for very many months, and Charlie, the alert and snub nosed call boy, who intended to follow in the footsteps of Noel Coward, and would.

A Bluff?

Rossett didn't merely murmur. He uttered a shout in which there was horror, and, not caring whether he barked his shins against the turned down seats in the stalls, made a dash for the stairs which led to the dress circle, where, standing erect behind a little box with a lamp in it and his copy of the play, was Winch, the tall, thin, round shouldered, autocratic, capable Winch.

"What on earth have you done, man? If she does walk out and leave us I may as well cut my throat. Her understudy's ill—don't you know that?—and, in any case, isn't the slightest use, and it simply means that without Stella the opening can't take place. The theater will be dark for at least two weeks, with dead rent and salaries added to the already frightful sum. . . ."

Winch stroked his tyrannical but expert megaphone with an affectionate hand. "Bluff," he said, with the confidence of one who had dealt with similar crises and other ladies of artistic temperament during his career. "You can make up your mind to the fact that after breaking something in her dressing room and being nasty to her dog she will reappear in a better mood and kiss again with tears." He raised the megaphone and the boom of his voice brought silence everywhere.

"Charlie! Charlie! Nip round at once to Miss Doyne. Tell her that she can take ten minutes for deep and silent prayer, after which she will come back and carry on. Do you get me? Give my love to her dog. Stand easy, you on the stage."

"Righto, Chief," said Charlie, his optimism reviving and with a gasper behind his ear.

"I hope you're right," said Rossett, "but I have a hunch that you're not." He was a fat man and a soft one and he wore a moustache with points. His hair had become conspicuously thinner during those trying and expensive weeks. He wouldn't have been a bit surprised if he were to look in a glass presently and discover that he was bald. As bald as a billiard ball. A man asked for trouble and invariably got it who put on musical shows. Not for the first time he told himself that he would rather be breaking stones. "The house was sold out"—he was unable to restrain his tears—"and all the critics were coming and one of the royal dukes. A postponement will give us a frightful black eye, and there'll be paragraphs in the papers which we shall never live down. I know you're a very great man, Winch, and I'm proud to work with you, but you've gone too far this time. Stella won't come back."

"Don't you believe it," said Winch, with one of his queer half smiles. "Hasn't she signed a contract for the run of the piece? You can bring an action against her for everything you've spent."

"What's the good of that? It'll cost as much to win it, and what about the Christmas puddings for the crowd?"

Charlie returned to the stage—a Charlie ten years older than the one who had obeyed the orders of the man with the megaphone. His face was mottled and there was a tremble in his knees. He stumbled as he made for the footlights, and, in his agitation, crumbled his gasper to bits. In a high, shrill voice he called out: "Chief, Miss Doyne's gorn. She's left the theater in her makeup and taken her little dawg."

"Wh—at?"

"It's true, sir, s'welp me bob. I saw the tail light of her car as it went off down the street."

Desperation

The murmur rose again, higher and higher, not like wind in trees, but like a gale which tosses high waves on a beach. Heads appeared from the strangest places. People rose to their feet. A conglomeration of bodies appeared suddenly on the stage. Carpenters, stage hands, chorus, comedians, and the leading juvenile down whose careful makeup perspiration rolled. Tubby Rood, the dancing master, a brilliant little person, whose mother must have been Terpsichore herself, fell on to the drum in the orchestra pit and bounced. This raised one short hysterical laugh, which came from an oldish person in gold rimmed spectacles who played the piccolo.

"There you are," said Rossert with a sort of perverted triumph. "I told you how it would be." He struggled to his bandy legs, mopped his forehead with a handkerchief whose slashing colors would have caused the most ardent chameleon to wish that he were dead, and turned his face towards the staircase which led to his private room. "I'm going to look for a razor," he said. "If I never see you again, Winch, I wish you better luck."

It must be said that Winch, even Winch, was winded, but with the last remains of a tired voice he tried to crack a joke. "Look here, old man, it's all right. We'll ring up the curtain tonight if I play the part myself."

Yes, Rossett had to laugh. It probably saved his life. But as he headed for his office something fell at his feet.

It was Frant, young Frant, the author, who in his wild excitement and terror had missed his footing at the top of the stairs and had fallen all the way down. He might have broken his neck. But there are angels who look after authors, especially when they are young.

"Give Her a Chance"

"O, my hat!" yelled Rossett, whose nerves, as you may imagine, were exposed.

"You may go and buy a new one, a couple, and let one of 'em be silk. If you'll do what I tell you we shall ring up tonight." The boy who loved his roses and a girl by name of Bunty in the back row of the chorus, who was to him, though to no one else, the most beautiful rose in the world, clutched the lapels of Rossett's coat and hauled himself to his feet. There was a bump as big as a plover's egg on the side of his head. A nice small head with fair hair in which there was a kink.

"Mad," said Rossett. "Nutty. And I'm not a bit surprised. Frant, old thing, we're sunk."

"What do you mean, Mr. What's-Your-Name?" asked Winch. "If you've got a brain wave, shoot. We can do with it."

"I've got a colossal brain wave—the greatest inspiration this world has ever known. Give the part to Miss Miller. She's learnt the lines, I know. And her voice, by gum, comes straight from heaven itself."

"You're right," said Winch. "He's mad. The poor young chap's gone balmy. Miller! That Bunty Miller thing? An inspiration? But she's the girl who's given Tubby more trouble than every other girl in the chorus rolled into a heap. Why, good Lord, man, only this morning he came and told me that notwithstanding Christmas he'd have to turn her out. Sing? Her voice is no better than an escape of gas through a little hole in a pipe."

"Perfectly Asinine"

Frant waved his arms about. It was extraordinary. All through those rehearsals he had kept his hands in his pockets, had played the part of a mere author, that accidental person who had happened to write the book. The creature who, where a musical comedy is concerned, is of no account at all.

"Let me tell you," he said, in a voice of Mussolini, "that I never was so sane. I'm not forcing her on you because she's a friend of mine. I haven't said one word to her and she may not know me by sight. But at the back of the stage at Southsea I heard her sing that number when she thought that she was alone, and I assure you—really, I assure you—she can put Stella Doyne to bed. It was a revelation. It thrilled me, and I made a mental note that if anything happened to Stella we were safe. Rossett, why don't you try her? Why not give her a chance? She can only fail, but if she wins—O God!"

To Rossett twenty-five thousand pounds was almost all he had and most of that had come from an angel who was in cotton and who, if the play went over, could be touched again. "It's silly," he said; "it's hopeless; it's perfectly asinine. But anything's better than nothing. We'll try your inspiration and see how much it's worth. Winch, put that deadly thing in your mouth and give that girl a call."

There was a scoff from Winch. "Insanity seems to be catching," he said. "However, I don't care. My brain's gone and I'm so confoundedly doggo that I don't know where I am." He put his hand on the megaphone, rocking to and fro.

"No. Wait a second," said Frant. "If you call that girl without warning and encouragement she'll shrivel up and die. I ask you to leave it to me. Will you, please—this time? I'll never ask you again."

"Yes," said Winch, "I will. But it's utterly absurd." For the first time in his theatrical life he crumpled into a seat with a groan. Rossett sat beside him and, because he needed sympathy, held the producer's hand. What a pity it was that Rodin had missed those two. They would have provided him with something more despairing than even he had seen.

An Amazing Moment

Frant ran off like a rabbit that was chased by a sharp-toothed dog. Up those stairs, along passages, down further stairs, and through the iron door. This he hit with his forehead and acquired another bump. What did he care? Why, nothing. He was only the blooming author, but, by the grace of God and good angels, he might save the show even now. Yes! and give a happy Christmas to all those willing people who had worked so well, and lift a poor little struggling chorus girl to the top of the tree. Bumps? He would make a vast collection in order to achieve such things!

Every one in the building had watched his excited interview with the two important men. Although they had not been able to catch a word that had been said they sensed the fact, highly keyed as they were, that the youthful author, that quiet and amenable young man who had never counted until now, was suggesting, urging, and even pleading as to some way out of what appeared to be this tragic end of things. Every eye followed his rapid progress from the circle to the stage and as he made an unconsciously dramatic entrance through the great door of the Splendide they instinctively stood up and met him with vibrations of the most wistful encouragement and eager helpfulness.

"It's all very well," said the heavy and pompous lady who played the inevitable aunt, "but as Stella's gone and chucked us and her understudy's ill, what's the solution, I should like to know? I don't see any way out."

"Well, authors do sometimes have ideas," replied the little comedian. "Wait and see."

Frant nosed about like a terrier looking for a stick, and, as he darted from the group and cried out the words "Miss Miller! Miss Miller!" in a voice which shook with excitement they were taken up with the most complete astonishment and incredulity by every one everywhere.

"Miss Miller, Miss Miller, who the deuce was she? Miller? Miller? Never heard the name."

With heavy sarcasm some one said: "Here she is—the miller's daughter, who lives beside the mill; very deep runs the water, but she runs deeper still."

Yes, there was Bunty Miller, little Bunty Miller, looking like a nymph. She had heard her name called by Frant and taken up by the company, and she sat on the edge of what was supposed to be a bed of geraniums with her mouth open and her eyes wide and her heart astonishingly still. "But, good heavens," she managed to say to herself; "what's he want with me? Is this some awful joke?"

Frant pounced and said: "Miss Miller, Miss Miller, will you do something for me—not only for me but for the company, Winch, Mr. Rossett, and the whole of the English stage?"

"I—I don't know what you mean. I'd do anything for you because I heard you put in a good word for me when I blundered with my feet."

"Very well, then. Take your courage in both hands—I don't know how one does—pick up the scene where Miss Doyne dropped it, and have a shot at the song."

There was an extraordinary little cry. There was eagerness in it, stultification, and fear. "I couldn't. O, I couldn't. With everybody watching I should simply peter out."

That voice once more, that awe-inspiring voice. "Get on with it, Frant, can't you? Show us what you mean."

In utter desperation Frant put his hand under Bunty's elbow and led her beneath a pergola covered with what appeared to him even at that moment to be the most appropriate flower. Wisteria it was, a mixture of wistfulness and hysteria, with which his heart was full. "Miss Miller," he said; "dear Miss Miller, if you'll allow me to speak personally, let me tell you that this is my first book. My whole future as a dramatist depends upon tonight. I've spent every farthing of my money in advance on rose trees for my garden, small but very nice. They tell me that your memory is wonderful and that you know not only Miss Doyne's lines, but almost every line in the play. Miss Miller, is that true?"

"Louder! Louder!"

"Yes," said Bunty, only faintly aware at that amazing moment that the boy was hurting her arm. His grip was convulsive and he possessed a tennis hand. "I don't know why, but I can remember everything I hear. Sometimes I wish I couldn't, but I do." Obviously she was referring to a nasty remark of Tubby's with regard to her having once or twice broken the tempo of an elaborate dance of his.

"On top of that," said Frant, "I heard you sing the love song one afternoon at Southsea in that dirty and draughty passage in which I caught a cold. And on top of that I love you—I'm sorry to be abrupt, but I repeat again that I love you and want you to seize this chance. Before that frightful megaphone is used again come out and take up the scene. I'll will you to succeed. If I've never prayed in my life I'll say a prayer for you and me, the company, Mr. Rossett and Winch, which simply shall be heard. O, come!"

Before she could twist her arm away, make a dash for the stage door, and disappear round the corner of the building into Shaftesbury avenue, she felt herself drawn into the glare of the footlights and placed dead center among the principals. Vaguely, as though the boy's voice were coming from another planet, she heard him speak to the leading people with the most infinite appeal.

"Ladies and gentlemen, Miss Miller, Miss Bunty Miller is going to save the show. I beg of you to help her so that we may raise the curtain tonight."

There were ejaculations, fired rapidly. "Hot stuff!" "Good little sportsman!" "Give her ten!" "Hooray!"

The cheer was taken up by every one on the stage, as well as by Kew, Wellow, Temby, Sneath, and all those people in the auditorium who had been working for the piece.

The stage manager gave an order. "Clear, please, everybody not concerned with this scene. Now, Mr. Fortescue, commence on the line 'Ever since I saw you first I've not been able to eat.'"

In an attitude of musical comedy ecstasy Mr. Fortescue jumped in and perpetrated that excessively popular line. To which Bunty replied, as though in a dream: "Then you're saving money at last."

Came the voice through the megaphone, "Louder, louder, please! Smile and show your teeth. You've got some teeth, I suppose? Carry on from there."

That Helpless Kid

The glistening Mr. Fortescue, whose hair was as black as a seal's back and who had a waist like a wasp, duly carried on, and Bunty, quite unaware of the fact that her feet were on the earth, replied duly to the infantile dialogue over which Oliver Frant had sweated in that little room in his cottage into which, whatever happened, the scent from all his rose trees must inevitably come.

These lines led up to the love song, the great hit number to be repeated ad nauseam after its several encores during the remainder of the play. It was the foundation, as well as the topmost peak of what had been called, with astounding originality, "The Girl on the Motor Bike." The song itself, after much deep thought, was to be published as "On My Pillion Seat with You."

"Gracious goodness! Deary me! O my!" gasped Rossett up in the circle, utterly unable to remember any of the stronger and more descriptive expletives to which he habitually gave way. "That girl's all right. She can do it. That is, well enough for a time. Winch, by gum, we're saved."

"Wait a bit," said Winch, although he had to confess to himself that he was surprised and pleased. Apart from her natural nervousness "that Bunty thing" spoke those lines with far more meaning and naive earnestness than ever Stella had. "What about the song? That requires a voice. I'm betting she'll let us down."

"O, don't," said Rossett; "don't." And he wiped his head again—that large, round head on which he felt that at least one or two hairs had begun to sprout once more.

The orchestra leader raised his baton and waited for his cue. Every man in the orchestra pit grasped his instrument. By Jove, that helpless kid, never mind where she came from, never mind who she was. Every man and woman, and even Charlie, who was neither, waited for Bunty's first note in very agony. From every part of the building a sort of prayer went up. Was it possible that under those circumstances there was any angel in heaven who wouldn't help her now?

Out swept the prelude in which there was a harp. Fortescue began the number in a nice round baritone. His voice was filled with tremolo, because the girl whom he had taken in his arms was shaking in every limb. He sang the first six lines to her and while he did so soothed and encouraged her shoulders with the most sympathetic hand. He was very fond of this song. He was perfectly certain that with a good partner he could make it run through the country like a tidal wave. Like Frant, who had backed into the wings and there was standing with his hands clasped and with a smile of the most blissful confidence on his charmingly sensitive mouth, Fortescue willed this girl to sing as no one had ever sung.

Willing was going on from every part of the theater, and even Charlie, who took life lightly as though it were a spree—it is the privilege of youth—had made himself into one small lump of concentration for the first time in his life. One could almost feel the crackling of his sympathy, so electrical it was. The conductor gazed at Bunty with an almost fatherly smile and Tubby Rood buried his slight antagonism under a pile of autumn leaves. There was no moment in the whole of that piece, or, for the matter of that, in any other in which that company had been concerned, half as dramatic as this one, or which would approach within a thousand miles the suspense and human interest, or, if that little girl failed, the utter tragedy.

"Sing, sing, sing! Let it go. Do it justice. Put yourself into electrics. Save the show."

But when it came to the moment when this Joan of Arc from the second row of the chorus, this little dark horse, who had been brought out of obscurity, was to open her mouth and sing the rather lovely refrain with which Kew had been inspired—nothing came, not a sound.

One Deep Groan

With a moment's hesitation and fully aware of the huge ordeal into which Bunty had been placed, the conductor tapped his music stand sharply, brought his orchestra to a full stop, and cried out, with his left hand suspended in midair, "Begin the song again."

Drawing in a deep breath Fortescue took his cue:

"Out on the road, as the sun shines,
My little pillion girl . . ."

"Sing! Sing! O, Baby, let it go!"

But when, once more, the moment came for Bunty to join in—nothing, not a note.

One deep groan rose up to the indifferent ceiling of that famous theater, in which who knows how many mimic as well as actual dramas have happened since it was built.

And there, under the white glare of a spotlight, wearing the skimpy frock and the white apron of a musical comedy maid, stood poor little Bunty Miller, the girl who had missed her chance. O, what had become of the kind angels upon whom every one, yes, every one, had called? Was it conceivable that with cruel deliberation they had turned away their heads? With dry eyes and a thumping heart Bunty asked herself these questions. She could sing this song. She could. She had sung it over and over again—in draughty passages, in a deserted dressing room, and standing in front of the cracked looking glass of her room in Hammersmith. She loved the song, and in her numerous dreams had placed herself on the pillion seat of the motor bike with her arms round Oliver Frant, the only boy in that company who had been kind to her. Fear had gripped her throat and closed it, so that, in spite of her whole-hearted effort to succeed, nothing came, not a note. Angels, O sweet angels, where have you hidden yourselves?

The conductor threw up his hands and one by one the members of that large, competent, and sympathetic orchestra put their instruments down.

The stout lady with the white wig uttered a little sob. The small comedian with the ingenious feet became a tragedian. Every member of the chorus, jealous though they were, fluttered about like birds. Kew, Wellow, Tumby, and Sneath wriggled in their seats, and Tubby Rood, who was really tubby, gave an alarming imitation of a dying hen. Charlie, even Charlie, that gorgeous optimist, collapsed.

A Pain in His Back

"There you are," said Winch hoarsely. "Dismiss the company. Tell the story to the papers. Try and find a leading lady and let's stagger home to bed. I'm absolutely done."

Rossett couldn't speak. Every word of his large and proficient vocabulary trickled out of his brain like a huge shower of small coal from the back of a cart. In the middle of his numbed mind he saw the ghastly figures which represented roundly twenty-five thousand pounds. He saw a cold white slip pasted over the vivid announcement for all those people, some of them famous, who would have attended the theater that night. Hunched in his seat like a sack of damp wool he put his hands to his face, and even in the diamond in the ring on his little finger there wasn't one atom of glint.

There was a movement on the stage. "Wait a second, darling, I'll see what I can do."

It was the lady with the white hair, the large and motherly lady who had children of her own—real children, living children, and a little house at Putney at the bottom of the hill. She made a dash for her dressing room, and before anybody could say "Knife," though why anybody should, came back with a little bottle of throat tonic and a small and curious brush. "Infallible," she said, quoting from the Scotch wizard and his admirable P. C.

Winch, from his place in the circle, stood with an overcoat half on and a green dump hat in his hand. He had watched this rapid action and uttered another scoff. "What's the good of a throat tonic? What she needs is a throat. Pull yourself together, Rossett. Make up your mind that we're beaten, come to my rooms in a taxi, and let's gargle a bottle of Scotch."

Although this was a temptation Rossett made no move. He was looking through his fingers at the stage. He couldn't say, "Wait a second, give the girl a chance." All his words had gone. By this time, without any doubt, they were piled into a corner of a dark cellar among beetles and other things.

"All right then. Stay where you are. At any rate I shall go home and fall flat on my bed. There must be a competent actress somewhere on this earth."

A Sob, a Laugh, a Cheer

Winch got into the remainder of his overcoat and went slowly up the stairs. There was an awful pain in his back and a vacuum in the neighborhood of his solar plexus, and a sort of crick in his neck. It must be remembered that he and his megaphone, that awful instrument through which he so frequently barked, had been standing in the circle from eleven o'clock that morning on exactly three cheese sandwiches and two cold cups of tea. Mentally and physically even Winch, that Mussolini of musical plays, had become a wreck.

DREAMS

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you care to see it in print address "Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

Another Dream Comes True.

After our marriage, which took place recently, I had been working, but had a nervous breakdown and had to stay at home to recuperate. Of course, we missed the "other" pay envelope and it was necessary to be more economical on only one salary. Last Easter I wanted a new hat so badly, but was debating, in view of the above circumstances, whether I could afford to get one. I thought of it all day. That night I dreamed I found three crisp, new bills—two tens and a five. I was thrilled [in my dream] and spent some of it on a new hat. I awoke saddened to find it only a dream, but it was so vivid I couldn't help thinking of it and couldn't get it out of my mind.

The next day, it being moving season, mother called me to ask whether she could take a chifforette to complete her bedroom suite [I am using some of her furniture] when she moved into new quarters. I set to work immediately emptying drawers and putting the contents into every available drawer and on every shelf not as yet used, but just as I took the last towel from the last drawer and shook it before a refolding, to my amazement I saw those crisp new bills—two tens and a five—fall to the floor! I probably had put them them there months ago when I went to work, and had completely forgotten about it. Needless to say, it was a "big lad" and I am still thrilled about it. We went out the same evening to buy the hat. J. W. S.

Dream Husband Materializes.

One night while I was visiting a schoolmate I had a most vivid dream. The dream was the scene of a church wedding and everything was as clear as day, even the minister's words. As the married couple turned to leave the altar I recognized the bride as myself, but the groom was a man I had never seen. The next morning as I left my room to go down to breakfast I came face to face with a man that I immediately recognized as my dream husband. I screamed and ran back into my room.

Later my girl friend explained that her brother had come home unexpectedly the night before. A year later my dream husband became my real husband and the scene of my real wedding was similar to the one of my dreams, even down to the minister's bald head. S. A. H.

An Unusual Coincidence.

Last night I dreamed I was in the assembly hall of my home town high school. Seated all around me were the members of the class with whom I was graduated exactly ten years ago. I visited with each and every one and had the loveliest time. When I awoke I was positively homesick.

Then the mailman brought me a card and a package on the first delivery. The card was an invitation to my home town alumni banquet and the package was my home town paper containing in its "ten years ago" column an account of our 1920 graduation and giving the name of each and every graduate—as I dreamed of them last night. Writes Club Papers.

I was formerly a teacher in a high school. I now have a home of my own, where I have a nice private library of reference books and literature. The past three or four years I have made extra money at home by helping members of literary clubs of our city write their various "papers." I have helped write on many and varied subjects, including numerous papers on authors of the classics; many "reviews" of books, plays, and periodicals, together with papers on subjects of general literary interest, such as "Libraries," "Christian Art," "Reading for the Young," etc.

I charge a standard price for each paper, regardless of the time or work spent on it, so that no member may feel she is being charged more than another. I find this work is most interesting, and it is of special educational and cultural value to both the club members and myself. MRS. M. M. C.

Doughnuts Prove Profitable.

"They've cut my pay again," my husband told me as he gloomily ate his supper. It had been hard enough before to make ends meet with two robust boys to feed and clothe. I almost pulled my hair trying to think of a way of helping. Finally I resolved to make some greaseless doughnuts (which my family rave about) and endeavor to sell them. I passed out samples to my friends, gave out a few samples to the neighborhood restaurants, leaving my telephone number for orders.

The next day I received two orders from the smaller restaurants and also from a number of my friends. The two boys deliver the doughnuts steaming hot and take orders for the future. Later I lined up a couple of grocery stores. My doughnut business has flourished and more than makes up for the cut in my husband's salary. E. B. S.

HARLEY AND JOAN by ROLAND PERTWEE

THE STORY IN RESUME.

Harley Trevelyan, spending the last night of his leave from the front in London, dines with Paula Drayton, whose younger brother, David Drayton, through Trevelyan's influence, has been assigned to his own battery. Paula tells him she loves him. Harley is walking the streets when the Zeppelins raid London, and, being used to gunfire, does not run to cover. A young woman in a window sends her brother to bring him into the house, and he discovers that the boy is Freddie Miller, an old schoolmate, and the girl is Joan. With Joan he goes up on the roof to watch the air raid, and they see an airplane shoot down one of the Zeps. Harley realizes he is in love with this girl. Freddie and he leave for the front, and when Harley rejoins his battery he discovers that Paula's brother, a second lieutenant, already is on hand. Maj. Fawlk, Harley's commanding officer, writes a letter to Joan's father intimating that Harley is in love with Paula, and Joan, wondering, talks with Paula. Joan and Harley become engaged. Young Drayton is killed. Harley is reported killed, but Joan receives a letter from him from a German prison camp, and with it confounds Maj. Fawlk. Harley escapes from prison in Germany, and gets home in time to take part in the armistice celebration. Fawlk tells Paula that Trevelyan's cowardice caused her brother's death. She goes to kill Trevelyan, but fails to do so. Fawlk manages to have Trevelyan accused of cheating at cards. Freddie commits suicide. Paula confesses that she and Fawlk marked the cards. Joan refuses to see Harley.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

Pursuit.

IN the mental torment of the hours that followed, Harley was aware of only one clear thought—Evan Fawlk. In face of the tragic development of last night's affair it was no longer thinkable or possible to cast upon Paula's shoulders the burden of responsibility. With a quixotic gesture Harley dismissed any further thought of clearing himself at the expense of a confession from Paula.

Mindful of what Paula had said he had verified the sailing of S.S. Pierrette and has ascertained by telephone to the shipping office that she would call at Taranto. By going overland the following morning it would be possible, even in the present disordered state of transcontinental railroads, to intercept the boat at Taranto in the heel of Italy. He would compel Fawlk to speak the truth even though it were tortured out of him.

Driven by a restlessness that would not allow him to keep still Harley hired a taxi and drove to Staines.

A curious crowd was clustered on the bridge looking wide-eyed at the gap in the parapet through which Sherlock's car had ploughed its way.

In the river below a barge with a derrick was fumbling with grappling irons beneath the water's surface.

Harley drove back, gray with wretchedness.

Arrived at his rooms Harley began to pack. He would travel light. Just a suit case.

From a nail in the hall he took an old African sjambok—buffalo hide—heavy but whippy. The feel of it in his hand was good. It made him think of those hunched up shoulders of Fawlk's. Yes, it was very good—so good that he was barely conscious of the sound of knocking at the hall door.

The train left Victoria at ten the next morning—then Folkestone, the channel, across France and south—south.

"What is it?" he shouted, and threw open the door.

The blue expanse of a policeman filled the entrance.

"Captain Harley Trevelyan?"

"Well?"

The policeman produced a paper and handed it.

"What's this?"

"A summons to appear at Staines Coroner's court at 11 p. m. tomorrow."

"But—that's impossible. I'm going abroad at 10 o'clock."

The policeman shook his head.

"You can't," he said laconically.

An intolerable sense of being trapped possessed Harley with a sudden panic.

"It's vital—I must—Heaven's alive—there's a man—"

"You be there," said the policeman. "You be there or they'll ask why."

"Let 'em ask."

"The law takes priority over other businesses," said the policeman rhetorically. "An' you'll find yourself arrested if you try any running away tricks."

Running away! Yes, it would look like that. Another lump of mud. But—but everything—the whole future depended on reaching Taranto in time.

He was cutting the aid with the sjambok when the policeman retreated down the stairs.

Evidence

Harley was driven to Staines in a fast car—a hired car. His suitcase was aboard.

"As soon as I'm through here, we get under weigh," he said to the young man at the wheel. "Stand by."

He had rung up Paula's house before leaving town. But Paula had gone.

"She left yesterday afternoon, sir."

Where? The maid didn't know. Abroad perhaps—a Continental Bradshaw was open on the table. Her mistress had seemed very strange. Dazed. Packed a few things and went without a word.

A number of cars were parked before the little courthouse. Joan's among them.

As Harley crossed the road Sherlock and Mayduke crooned up to the door in an open car.

Harley entered the witnesses room. Regan was there and nodded a greeting.

Collier, staring at his finger nails and tighter lipped than usual, avoided seeing him.

Hammersley blundered out a "Hullo, Trevelyan," and added, "O," as though he had remembered something—remembered that he oughtn't to have spoken—that the man was beyond the pale.

Harley found a seat in a corner. Between the heads of two unhelmeted constables he had a glimpse of Joan's profile. It was emotionless. Whatever her thoughts may have been she revealed none of them.

Lady Miller was not present. Next to Joan was Aunt Maud Beechcroft, immense, purple, persiring.

The proceedings started with formal evidence of indentification and the recovery of the body from the river. Followed the deposition of a constable who had been on duty on the Surrey side by Egham gas works. He had flashed his lantern at the car in an unavailing effort to make the driver stop. A moment later, he heard the crash—ran to the spot and found the broken parapet.

The next witness was a gentleman who had actually seen the catastrophe. The gentleman had been returning late from an affair of some conviviality. It would not be unjust to say that in spite of the passage of nearly two days he was still rather drunk. His chief concern was thankfulness at his own escape.

"Did the deceased apply his brakes?"

"Take a look at the 'ole he made," was his reply.

Joan was called. She entered the box without a tremor. At the beauty of her a little sigh whispered through the crowded court.

"Miss Miller, you have identified the body of the deceased as that of your brother, Frederick Sefton Miller?"

"I have."

"You were, I believe, so far as we are able to ascertain, the last person to have conversation with him."

"Perhaps—probably."

"Will you describe the circumstances?"

"I was staying with relations at Watch house, Camberley."

"That would be the night of the fifteenth instant?"

"Yes. I was in bed. It must have been, I suppose, about 1 o'clock. I heard the car. My brother came to my bedroom window and climbed over the sill." Then, forestalling the inevitable. "The house was a bungalow. He had often stayed there and knew where I should be sleeping."

"Perfectly. What was the object of this visit?"

"He wanted to see me."

A man near to Harley whispered:

"Who wouldn't?"

"I must ask you to be a little more explicit, Miss Miller. The hour was late. Did it not strike you as unusual that your brother should make this appearance in the middle of the night?"

"No," Joan repeated, "No," and fixed her eyes on Sherlock as though daring him now or later to deny the absolute naturalness of Freddie's conduct. "My brother was very impulsive. He did things like that." She added: "During the war my brother was wounded in the head. Since then he has been more impulsive than ever. He couldn't bear delay or prevention. If he wanted to see me he'd have come if—if I had been in the moon."

"Miss Miller, in the conversation that took place was anything said or suggested that might give rise to the impression that your brother intended taking his own life?"

Joan did not answer at once, and when she spoke the answer was oblique.

"If he had meant to take his life the last thing he would have done would be to talk about it."

"Thank you," said the coroner. "I may have to put further questions later in the proceedings."

Big Stuff!

The next witness was the man from the garage in Wardour street. He said the gentleman had been very excited when he borrowed the colonel's car.

"That will do."

Colonel Sherlock took the stand with the air of a man who intends valiantly to perform an unpleasant duty.

No. most emphatically he had not lent the car—wouldn't dream of exposing shareholders' property to such a risk. The borrowing of the car was a piece of piracy following events of an even more distressing kind.

"Please avoid general observations, Colonel Sherlock, and address your remarks to the jury. To what events do you refer?"

Colonel Sherlock tugged at his mustache and came to a resolution. Big stuff!

"Sir, in company with my partner, Major Mayduke, and other gentlemen here present in court I had spent that evening in Captain Trevelyan's chambers, which he shared with Miller. In the course of a game of poker (a pause) I discovered (pause) that—er—the gentlemanly precedents of the game were not being observed." (A tremendous pause—very big stuff.)

A member of the jury said he did not understand.

Sherlock drew himself up, gave his waistcoat a smart downward tug and delivered himself of the biggest stuff of all.

"We were being cheated," he said.

The word "cad," spoken by Joan, might have been fired from a pistol into the hush that followed this announcement.

"Order. Order!" exclaimed an official.

Sherlock's face assumed an angry and protesting scarlet.

"Am I to be subjected——" he began.

The coroner cut him short with an eyebrow and addressed Joan.

"Making allowances for your natural feelings, Miss Miller, I must warn you that observations of that kind may involve you in a charge for contempt."

"I have it," she answered, "but not for the court."

"Silence. This is most improper."

ILLUSTRATION BY W. H. WISNER.

He saw something so startling that he stepped into a recess between two shops.

Then to Sherlock, "Please proceed with your evidence."

Sherlock made an impressive attempt to recover his prestige. He said that if he could have withheld his evidence he would gladly have done so. But things had gone too far. By now it was widely known that Miller and Trevelyan had been united in a conspiracy against their guests. He was willing and anxious to believe that Miller's moral senses had been deranged, if not by a wound in the head then by the influence of the company he kept. In his opinion Miller, with a full realization of the depths to which he had fallen, had taken his own life as a gallant, yes, and a gentlemanly way out.

Big stuff to the last.

Then Regan.

Regan wasted no time.

"The kindest and the truest thing that I can say of a boy who in France earned my admiration and affection is that at the end he was unbalanced."

"What do you mean by unbalanced?"

"That he was paying the proice thousands like him are paying for years of plucky sarvice. Phwat happened that noight had no more substance than a puff of shmoke."

"Do you support the statement made by Colonel Sherlock?"

"I am not shupportin' iny statement but mi own. The boy's mind was a see-saw with a bogey at one ind, a gintleman at the other, and Hiven knows phwat kind of a hell in betwane."

"Call Captain Trevelyan," said the coroner.

Harley on the Stand

A spasm of resentment shook Joan all through. Now, when she wanted him so terribly, when he was the only person in the world with whom she could have shared her true feelings, he had deserted her and passed by.

For an instant their eyes met but his held no pleading, no message of sympathy, no demand for forgiveness. There was barely recognition. He had deserted her as surely and as utterly as she had forsaken him.

Dimly she became aware that the coroner was making an address to Harley.

"—in the circumstances with the possibility of inculpating yourself—unwilling to press you to give evidence."

"It is my wish to do so," said Harley firmly.

He did not attempt to spare himself in describing the events prior to Freddie's death. With the minutest attention to detail he recounted exactly what had happened.

"In regard to the state of his mind I can only repeat what I was saying to those men after the missing cards had been traced to Miller. It was during the expression of my opinion that one of my guests found out that the cards had been marked and assumed that I was responsible for marking them."

"There is no occasion to go into that."

"With respect, sir, I submit that there is. But for that discovery I do not believe the tragedy would have occurred."

"I don't follow you, Captain Trevelyan."

"I mean, sir, that I do not believe Miller would have driven his car through the bridge."

"That is an expression of opinion."

"No, sir. A statement of fact. Miller and I were friends. The discovery—or if I may say it—the belief that I had been guilty of cheating shocked him out of all reasonable control."

"Surely that is a very loose statement. You may have been friends—he may have been shocked—but not to the extent of taking his own life."

"Sir," said Harley, "just before Miller left my flat that night he threw me a loaded revolver."

Joan's lips parted and she leaned forward.

A rustle of whispers breezed through the courthouse.

"Order! Silence!"

"You mean that he gave you the revolver in order that you——"

"I mean, sir, after what had happened neither he nor I, in his view, had much to look forward to."

"I see—I see," said the coroner, his mouth screwed into a cynical, wondering expression. He was thinking that the better sportsman had gone out by the better way.

But Joan was thinking.

"He let the pistol lie—why? Why?"

There was nothing in Harley's eyes to explain that mystery. Tense, yet passive, he stood with all his energies in suspense. Like a runner he looked—poised, balanced, waiting for the flag to drop.

"That will be all—you may stand down."

The coroner's address did not take long. The jury were absent less than five minutes.

A verdict of suicide while of unsound mind was returned.

"I should like to add," said the foreman, "that we have concluded that the deceased's mind had become unhinged as a result of wounds received in active service and that he was in no sense responsible or to blame for anything that had transpired."

The coroner consented to record the expression of this opinion in the proper place.

"Next case, please."

As Harley was passing out of court a wag remarked:

"Button up your pockets, boys. 'Ere comes the pincher."

Boos and hisses followed him across the road to where his car waited.

Paris Bound

How different to the departure of Sherlock and Mayduke, to their sympathetic bows to Joan and her aunt—the dignified salute accorded them by the constable on duty at the door—the grave smile they bestowed upon the waiting crowds and the incomparable perfection with which Mayduke trickled through the gears of his car and sent it crooning down the street in a rising crescendo of power under control. Here was a passing with all the qualities of pageant. Here were gentlemen going by. Why wonder, then, if women turned their heads to watch—if men nodded and small boys gaped? After all—big stuff!

Harley arrived at the government aerodrome at Lympne at 3 o'clock and found a man he knew two minutes after passing the sentry.

The man's name was Liverstock.

"I want to get to Paris," said Harley. "Paris and the Rome express by 6 o'clock tonight."

Liverstock held up his hands.

"Kamerad! Why must every one conspire to lose me my job? It's a nice job, too. If the bus crashed and a dead civvy was found in the wreckage look at the mess I'd be in."

"Liverstock," Harley began.

"Honestly, old cheese, no can do!"

"But you will all the same."

"Why will I?"

"Because I'm going to break a man's neck," said Harley.

The unexpected sincerity of this promise resounded with the force of an order from G. H. Q. It was, of course, contrary to all regulations to fly civilians, but a BE 2.6 happened to be flipping across to Abbeville that afternoon, and as any flying man knows, there's precious little air between Abbeville and Le Bouget. Besides flying men are justly famed for doing what is forbidden and not telling on each other afterwards.

The pilot, a young man named Pink—in which condition he appeared to be—welcomed Harley and stowed him away in the observer's "pew" with the fastidious nicety of George Robey at his best. As a quid pro quo he persuaded Liverstock to let him take the night off in Paris (there were always dispatches in which to wrap up these irregularities) and report to Abbeville the following morning. To this Liverstock readily consented.

Torture

Over the fringes of France the BE 2.6 drilled through a cloud bank. Beyond it spread a checkered landscape of fields, villages, hutments, and dumps of discarded war material. Like gray threads tightly drawn ran roads and railways, vanishing into the measureless arc of the horizon.

A glow from the falling sun—clouds that blotted out the world with billows of spongy gray—stinging beads of rain—then the sun again setting fire to the roofs and spires of a city and casting spectral shadows over the surrounding fields.

"Abbeville. Abbeville," yelled Mr. Pink.

Harley nodded vaguely.

. . . . .

Thanks to Mr. Pink and the elasticity with which official embargoes are translated by those blithe spirits who patrol the air, a car was forthcoming at the aerodrome on the outskirts of Paris, into which Harley and a number of young men in pursuit of an artificial paradise crammed themselves.

After the rush to Paris by car and air and car again the monotony of railway travel irked Harley beyond endurance.

The train was crowded with all classes and conditions of men, women, and children. Even the communicating corridors were camping grounds.

In that jostle of tight packed humanity thought was impossible. The atmosphere was heavy and thick with the reek of tobacco smoke, leather accoutrements, cheap perfumes, breath, bodies, garlic, hair oil, and boots. A suffocating atmosphere!

Harley and a stout uniformed American were united in a strongly opposed attempt to have a window down.

A compromise was effected by ventilating the carriage during the incessant and interminable stops for which the journey was remarkable.

They stopped at stations and between stations, they stopped on sidings to allow specials to go by. They stopped to correct mechanical defects or to hit the grease boxes with inquisitive hammers. Even at level crossings they reversed the usual order and stopped to give passage to the road traffic. Never, Harley felt, had there been a journey so meticulously tortured by punctuation.

Harley did not sleep.

As halt succeeded halt and the human sands about him changed and shifted, he sat motionless, his eyes seeming to pierce the gritty darkness of focus on the future.

In the Blackness

Lady Miller was still knitting a Balaclava helmet. She had acquired the habit during the war and peace had failed to break it. And, as on the first night Harley had come to the house, she was knitting it with rainbow wool.

In the blackness which had so suddenly descended upon them, the bright prismatic colors afforded a false sense of relief.

Lady Miller was not crying. For the last four years she had schooled herself to be ready for the misery which had now befallen them. She had never truly believed such a madcap fellow as her boy would come safely through. The manner of his dying was of little consequence. The slur against his honor, which the jury in their verdict had sought to mitigate, meant nothing to her. She had read the newspaper reports unmoved. All this talk about cheating. How silly she had thought—how silly! A boy like that! Of course he would get into scrapes. Nobody could suppose he was in his right senses. Why, it meant no more than if he had broken a window pane. Chuckling stones. How fond he used to be of chucking stones and how well he chucked them.

"Mother."

Joan spoke from a dark recess in the room where, chin on knees and hands embracing her ankles, she had sat a full hour in silence.

"Dear."

"I feel——" said Joan, and her voice was all over the place, "I feel I'm going to crack—going to jack up."

Lady Miller's needles stopped clicking.

"I know," she nodded. "It's sitting here—with nothing to do and you're not old enough."

"What do you mean?"

"I can remember, but you can only think, and that makes all the difference."

"If there was something one could do."

Lady Miller dropped the rainbow Balaclava into her lap.

"But isn't there? You could join your father—that would be something."

"In British East?" There was sudden excitement in Joan's voice.

"Why not?"

Joan shook her head.

"And leave you alone?"

Lady Miller smiled.

"I am never alone," she answered. "I don't have to have company not to be alone. You wouldn't understand that, but it isn't what's happening to me that matters, but what has happened."

Joan shook her head.

"You just say so."

"I mean it. And think what a lovely surprise for the baron. Look, there's a sailing list on that table."

Joan moved toward the table tentatively. The morning paper half covered its surface. On the front page Harley's name showed blackly. A scarifying phrase about him caught her eye. Joan thrust at it with her forefinger.

"Why—why do I mind what they say?" she cried wildly. "Haven't I thought all these things myself and shut him out? Doesn't he deserve them—every one of them? Then why should I mind?"

"Do you mind?"

Joan bit her lip and nodded.

"Yes—yes—yes. O, I'm contemptible!"

Lady Miller shook her head.

"Contemptible," Joan repeated. what else is it when one knows and yet refuses to believe? I can see him standing there in court—without a tremor—denying nothing—practically admitting what he'd done and in spite of that cheating me—fooling me."

"Why didn't you ask him yourself?"

"Explanations—between us? After what Freddie had told me. O, no! And wouldn't he have come to me?"

"Perhaps he couldn't, Joan—couldn't—yet."

"Ah, don't," cried Joan savagely. "It's cruel to try to make me believe, when all the time I'm drumming into myself—he was no good—no good."

Lady Miller picked up her knitting with a sigh.

"Facts and hearts!" she murmured. "O, dear, oh dear, what a muddle of life they make."

Crucifixion

From a distant part of the house came the sound of the telephone bell.

A moment later the extension on the writing table purred softly.

"Shall I?"

"I will," said Joan, and picked up the receiver.

Rogers voice announced:

"A trunk call for you, miss, from Southampton."

Harley, thought Joan, then made a movement as if to return the receiver to its bracket—stiffened, nodded and said:

"Very well."

The line hummed on a different key—a mutter of voices—the faint jar of a buzzer and then clearly:

"You're through to Grosvenor, Southampton."

Click! And a woman speaking Crazily—torrentially.

"Who? Talk slower, I can't hear you. Paula Drayton? Well."

Joan's voice was dull—resentful—disinterested.

"Well?"

From where she sat Lady Miller could hear a flow of words slurred into an insect hum—into the rustle of grasshopper legs—the swish of waves running over sand.

Then from Joan a startled cry—savage, yet exultant.

"You—you. Go on."

And now a wind was sweeping through pines—gusty—stormy—a gale of words.

Paula Drayton did not spare herself. From the telephone booth in Southampton docks she laid bare her soul and crucified it over seventy miles of thrilling, quivering line.

Joan's cry, "Harley—where's Harley?" was lost.

Paula had dropped the receiver and run—run to where the steamship waited at the quay.

"Harley," Joan cried again, but the line was dead.

"Southampton has cut off now," lilted Grosvenor.

Joan did not speak. Breathless—panting—she was hammering the receiver bracket with the heel of her hand.

"Yes, yes, yes. Number, please?" came protestingly.

Joan shouted the number.

The exchange clerk in Harley's chambers at Duke street put back a pert:

"Who do you want?"

"Captain Trevelyan?"

"Not here," a sniff; "gorn abroad, I believe."

Joan turned to her mother with panic in her eyes.

"Can't tell you now—but it's all right—no all wrong—he's gone—gone." The last word was a cry.

"Gone where?"

Illumination came.

"To follow him, of course—to follow Fawlk."

Half crying, half laughing she ran toward the door—stopped and turned.

"Mother—if you meant that about going abroad—yes, yes, I will—I want to—must."

"Surely it's too late to start this afternoon," said Lady Miller.

"But not too late to find out where he's gone," said Joan over her shoulder, and fled.

A Letter

Evan Fawlk had finished a letter to Joan and was reading it for the third time to the accompaniment of a cigar.

It was a singularly perfect letter—frank, subtle, and interspersed with some admirable but not too apparent spade work.

She might be surprised that he knew about the unfortunate card party. He had heard of it by chance an hour before sailing. From intimate knowledge of both Trevelyan and her brother it was his duty to offer assurance that the latter was in no way to blame.

"I am confident," he wrote, "that your brother, out of a sense of misguided loyalty, took the burden on his own shoulders to save his friend. Had I not been leaving England I should have made a point of calling on every individual member of that card party and putting before them facts about Treveylan which must inevitably have made them accept my view of the case. I was once rash enough to suggest to you that Trevelyan was not the man you believed him to be. I regret that the truth of my words should have been brought home to you at such cost and pain. I say now—without a fear of contradiction—that he is a liar, a cheat, and a coward. Equally sincerely, I say that your brother is one of the straightest men I have had the privilege of knowing."

There was more couched in the vein of 'I must be cruel to be kind.' The letter ended forcefully with—

"When I return from Africa in a few months time I intend to call on you and disclose certain facts which hitherto I have kept to myself."

Over the Wireless

Evan Fawlk rolled the cigar appreciatively in his mouth and nodded.

A clean smacking letter—look at it how you would. An honest downright letter—no humbug about it.

That Joan's brother should have become mixed up in the affair was unfortunate, but even so Fawlk felt he had contrived to turn this startling denouement to advantage. No doubt the boy would wriggle out of it somehow, especially if a rumor was spread that he had been the scapegoat of an older man.

He was reading the letter for the fourth time when the smokeroom steward laid a Marconigram on the table before him.

Mildly wondering he broke the folded sheet and read:

"F. M. has killed himself. Return to England and explain. You must. P. D. Great Western hotel, Southampton."

F. M.? Frederick Miller. P. D.? Paula Drayton.

Evan Fawlk stared at the paper and licked his lips.

Here was an unforeseen development—awkward—disastrous, perhaps.

Why should she ask him to return? Panic? Lost her nerve? Scared out of her wits?

He nodded. Yes. She would be. A woman like that—all temperament and emotions. Suffering the tortures of the damned, no doubt.

His cigar went out but he did not relight it.

After all there was nothing to worry about so far as Paula was concerned. There was no danger that she would give herself away—or him.

He caressed his cheek where a few days before she had struck him. In imagination it tingled resentfully. Let her suffer. Why not?

Return to England? Not yet. Certainly not yet.

He took a Marconigram from the rack and wrote in his neat finicky characters:

"Paula Drayton, Great Western hotel, Southampton. No. E. F."

Then to the steward.

"Have that radioed at once, please."

The letter to Joan lay before him on the blotting pad.

It was no use now. A pity. Such a good letter.

He tore it into confetti. An uncongenial task. He hated to destroy anything of his own creation.

A passenger breezed in and called for a drink.

"What about you?" he queried.

Evan Fawlk smiled a sour refusal.

"Heard the latest? Not stopping at Taranto after all. Some trouble with the Italian naval authorities. Putting in to Naples instead."

Evan Fawlk went on tearing up the letter.

"There is nothing in the world to do at Naples but buy pink coral or gloves—refuse the importunities of guides. What is there in that to tempt me to go ashore," asked Evan Fawlk.

To Taranto

But after the main body of passengers had gone down the companion ladder, the smell of fish, the snorting of donkey engines, the jangle of derrick chains and an ever settling pall of coal dust drove him from the ship in disgust.

The few fiacres by the quay had already been absorbed by the first to disembark and the tram cars seethed with unsavory passengers.

Evan Fawlk had no choice but to walk. This was, at least, more tolerable than ship board.

But what to do? There were four hours to kill and no weapon other than a prolonged lunch at Bertolini's wherewith to kill them.

A guide, witnessing his hesitation, stepped up with in inviting program.

Evan Fawlk was framing an appropriate reply when he saw something so startling that he stepped into a recess between two shops.

"Get away," he barked, with such venom that the guide had no choice but to obey.

In doing so he collided violently with a tall man carrying a suitcase, who was raking down the street in a hurry. The tall man swore and strode on.

"Begga pardon, but you wanta guide."

"No," said the tall man without turning, then stopped suddenly and said, "Yes. Where can I hire a car—a fast car?

"You wanta to see Vesuvius—goa Pompeii?"

"I want a car to take me to Taranto."

"Taranto very long way. Naval base, nothing to see Taranto. Now I a showa to you somping very a nice."

But the tall man did not wait. He started off down the street again with long devouring strides.

Evan Fawlk's breath escaped with a hiss.

"Trevelyan, and he wants a car to take him to Taranto. That could only mean——"

One thing. Paula Drayton had told the truth. This was pursuit. A fool he had been, a fool to work with a woman. How much had she told? To Loads of fun for everybody—a real treasure hunt, mysterious messages, baffling clues, lots of excitement!

Just Follow These Simple Directions:

In the want ad columns of today's Tribune there has been inserted a number of mysterious want ads. These want ads look exactly like regular want ads, except the wording is different. All together there are between 10 and 15 of these Hidden Want Ads. You are invited to hunt for the Hidden Want Ads and try for the $100 in cash prizes which the Tribune will pay.

The game starts with the picture on this page. This picture represents one of the main classifications of Tribune Want Ads. Study the picture and decide which classification you think the artist had in mind. Then turn to that classification in today's want ad section and look through the want ads under that heading until you find the first Hidden Want Ad. You can't possibly miss it.

Each Hidden Want Ad Leads to the Next

After you have found this first Hidden Want Ad, read it over carefully. THE WORDING OF EACH HIDDEN WANT AD GIVES A HINT OR CLUE TO THE HIDING PLACE OF THE NEXT ONE. It's just like a treasure hunt. You don't have to search through the entire want ad section to find the Hidden Want Ads if you will just keep your wits about you. The Hidden Want Ads all tie up with each other. The picture helps you find the first one. The first one helps you find the second one. The second helps you find the third, and so on.

Remember, there are no less than 10 Hidden Want Ads and no more than 15. It's up to you to decide when you have found them all.

Awards will be made to the persons who send in the most nearly complete sets of Hidden Want Ads arranged in the most nearly correct order in accordance with these rules. Neatness and ingenuity of presenting them will count. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. You may indicate what you believe to be their proper order or sequence by numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc.

You may clip the Hidden Want Ads from the paper and paste them on the handy blank provided at the right, or you may copy them down on separate sheets of paper.

This offer is open to all—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

Entries should be mailed to "HIDDEN WANT ADS 'A'", the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice box 1718, Chicago, Ill. All entries for today's game must be received in the Tribune office not later than 6:00 P. M. on Thursday, October 2nd, 1930.

You need not purchase the Tribune to compete. Copies of the Tribune may be examined at the Tribune office or at public libraries free of charge.

No entries will be returned, nor can the Tribune engage in correspondence on this subject. The prize winners of today's game will be announced two weeks from today.

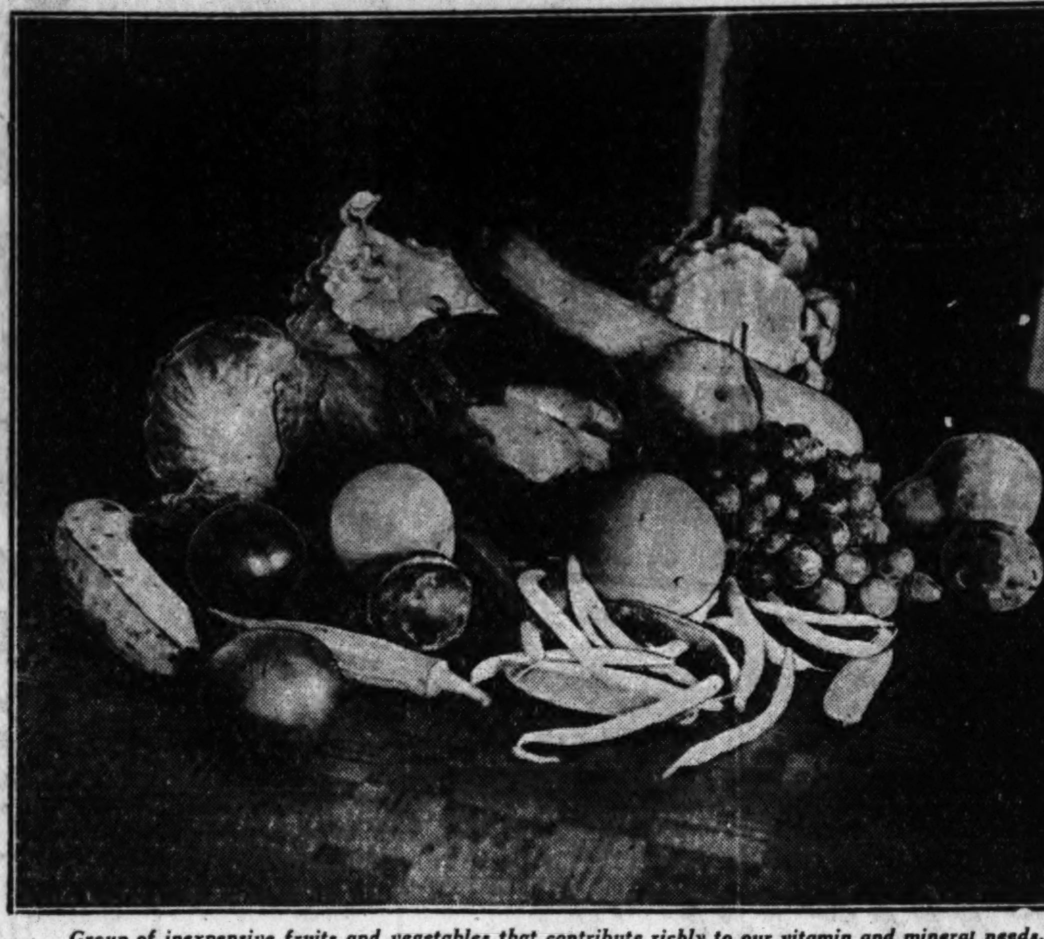
A Knowledge of Food Values and the Nourishment Needs of the Body Are Required to Achieve an Adequate Diet.

HAVEN'T you seen people who just love to boast of the things they can afford to eat? Their indulgence in anchovies and caviar, lobster and porterhouse, French artichokes and avocado, is one way of radiating their prosperity.

It is a fine thing to be able to enjoy these rare and expensive foods, but it is better to have an appreciation of the humbler ones that make valuable contribution to the diet. It is perfectly legitimate for folks to spend on food any amount of money their purses will permit, provided they are purchasing abundant health. But here is the crux of this matter of food selection. Not every individual is wise enough to choose the food which his body really needs.

One person may spend ten dollars a day for food and yet be slowly dying with some deficiency disease resulting from an inadequate diet. Another may spend fifty cents and be well fed—fit as a fiddle, nutritionally. It is not what food costs, but it is the kind and the amount necessary to make a balanced ration that counts in nutrition. Just because a food is costly is no sign it has a high food value. The most abundant and least expensive ones are often most valuable. This explains why those who indulge in rare and expensive foods are often sufferers from malnutrition while other families subsisting on plain yet nutritious food show a high percentage of physical fitness.



Group of inexpensive fruits and vegetables that contribute richly to our vitamin and mineral needs.

The Food Budget.

There is no dietetic reason [there may be social ones] why the food budget of well to do families should be so much more than those with small incomes. It does not follow that a man with an increased capacity for making money has an expansion in his appetite, a larger capacity for food, and a stronger mechanism for handling it. Body needs remain practically the same in varying financial situations. But an increase in salary has often worked havoc with the health of many people. Perhaps budget makers are to blame for this. Budgets usually provide that more money be spent on food as the income increases. And usually, the more money we spend for food and the more reckless we become in eating, the more money we are required to spend on mending our health.

Have you ever thought about the great variety of curious and new fangled ailments in which the more prosperous invest these days? How many afflictions may be traced to dietary sins! Diabetes is a rather expensive and inconvenient luxury. So is nephritis, dyspepsia, appendicitis. Our forbears did not suffer much from such complaints. It was a generation that produced hardy old men and women who lived close to a hundred and then died with their boots on. They were giants in those days, I think, because they ate the right kind and the proper amount of food, and they were forced into physical activity.

A Sad Lesson.

The status of nutrition of this present generation was revealed to us in no proud way during the world war. The enlistment for service in our American army showed that we had many patriots, but that a large percentage of them were punctured before they were exposed to guns of the enemy. Many of our men sacrificed their lives because of a defective physical being—decayed teeth, angel wings, flat feet, poor stomachs. But that experience has not taught all of us a lesson.

There are many individuals who do themselves harm by eating and drinking too much. Then they blame the harmless quality rather than the harmful quantity. Perhaps men are the greatest diet offenders in this class. As a rule, women go to the other extreme in eating. Eschewing one or more good foods that are essential in the balanced diet is one of their weaknesses. They have fears of getting fat and they go out of the bounds of reason to acquire thinness.

Often women are sufferers from deficiency diseases. We are not able to calculate the extent of the damage women are doing to themselves and to future generations, but in two or three decades hence the world will know the price that has been paid for such folly.

Man's Own Debt.

Man owes it to himself and to his country to feed himself intelligently. An adequate diet, a sufficient quantity of the right kind of food is essential to health and happiness, and health and happiness are the foundations of efficiency and good citizenship. Heredity and a family name are not much of a comfort without a well nourished body.

The best engine in the best make of automobile is useless without good gasoline. Play tricks with your gasoline and your engine will be out of business in no time. It is necessary to take an intelligent interest in the provender with which one intends to stoke the human furnace. One cannot start an engine going on sawdust and rubbish anymore than one can maintain efficiency and preserve one's health on poorly selected and badly cooked food, which is neither palatable nor nutritious.

What is an adequate diet is a question that every individual should ask himself. Food is not only fuel but also repair and regulating material for our bodies, which are working machines. The value of food depends largely on its chemical composition. Food supplies the elements that enter into the structure of the body; it affords energy for the activities of the body and regulates vital processes in such a way as to result in a harmonious interaction, which means health.

The chief elements found in the body and which the food must furnish are carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, sulphur, phosphorus, iron, potassium, calcium, magnesium, chlorine, iodine, and silicon. Food which supplies all these elements that the body needs for a harmonious existence constitutes an adequate diet.

Animal foods that furnish valuable protein and fat. Meat is rich in phosphorus and iron. Butter is rich in vitamin A. Eggs are rich in phosphorous, iron, vitamins A and D. Milk (in all forms) is rich in calcium and phosphorus and vitamins A, B and D. Cheese has a food value similar to milk, but much more concentrated.

Six Classifications.

The six chemical classifications of food which afford all the materials for an adequate diet are proteins, fats, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins and water.

1. Proteins, the chemical substances needed for growth and repair of tissue, are found abundantly in such foods as meat, fish, milk, cheese, eggs and legumes [beans and peas].

2. Minerals; sufficient to regulate body processes, build and maintain tissues. Milk, eggs, fruit, and vegetables of all kinds are excellent mineral foods.

3. Vitamins; sufficient to regulate body processes. Milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables also supply the vitamins.

4. Water and bulky foods; to cleanse the system.

5. Energy foods; sufficient to complete the amount of calories needed daily. Such foods as fats, starches and sugars supply us with energy.

The calories that each adult needs are dependent upon his size, sex and occupation. Every one knows that an office worker does not need to have as much food to eat as an excavator. The reason behind this is that every motion we make takes a certain amount of energy and wears down a part of the body. Then the amount of rebuilding material must vary directly with the amount destroyed.

Food Requirements.

By experimental methods, investigators have been able to determine the general requirements for the average person. These computations are based upon many tests. The following figures should help one to decide what his food requirement is:

A man doing:

	Calories daily.
Light exercise requires	2,500-2,700
Moderate exercise requires	2,700-3,200
Heavy exercise requires	3,200-4,100
Very heavy [excavating]	4,100-5,000

A woman doing:

	Calories daily.
Sedentary [office] work, requires	1,800-2,100
Moderate exercise [household work] requires	2,300-2,900
Hard labor [washwoman] requires	2,600-3,400

(Adults require from 15 to 20 calories per pound per day, depending upon the activity. For example, if there is no physical activity, take the lowest figure, 15, and multiply 15 by your weight—what your weight should be according to the height, age scale—say 150 pounds. This would mean that you need 15 times 150 or 2,250 calories.)

Children:

	Calories daily.
2 to 6 years require	1,000-1,600
6 to 10 years require	1,600-2,000
Girls 10 to 13 require	2,000-2,400
Boys 10 to 13 require	2,300-3,000
Girls 13 to 17 require	2,200-2,600
Boys 13 to 17 require	2,800-4,000

(Remember that in general the adolescent girl needs as much as her mother and the adolescent boy as much as his father.)

Body Needs.

In addition to calories adults need about 1 gram of protein for each kilogram of body weight (a kilogram is 2.2 pounds). This means that a man weighing 154 pounds will require about 70 grams of protein. An adult requires .68 gram of calcium, 1.32 grams of phosphorus, and .015 gram of iron daily. Children and adolescents need 1 gram of calcium, 1 gram of phosphorus. Small children need .00750 gram of iron, while adolescents need .015 gram. Both adults and children need an abundance of all the vitamins. The children need them for growth and resistance to disease. Adults need them to resist disease and maintain a state of well-being.

A well balanced daily diet for adults should contain:

1. At least a pint of milk.
2. Two generous servings of nonstarchy vegetables such as carrots, lettuce, spinach, string beans, cabbage, beets. At least one of these should be eaten raw, whenever possible.
3. Two servings of fruit, one raw, if possible.
4. Meat or other high protein food such as fish, cheese, or eggs.
5. To make up the energy requirements for the day add breads (include whole wheat), starchy vegetables such as potatoes, rice, macaroni, breakfast cereals, desserts, butter, and cream.

American dietaries are not usually lacking in energy and protein food. But they are often woefully lacking in the minerals, calcium, phosphorus, and iron and in all the vitamins.

For the convenience of those who wish to improve their diets in this particular we are giving a list of mineral and vitamin rich foods. The mineral foods appear in the order of their importance in relation to their energy value:

CALCIUM.	PHOSPHORUS.	IRON.
Cheese	Beef	Spinach
Milk	Cheese	Cabbage
Cauliflower	Beans	All lean beef
Turnips	Milk	String beans
Cabbage	Eggs	Egg yolk
Carrots	Egg yolk	Dried beans
Oranges	Entire wheat	Eggs
Beets	Turnips	Med. fat beef
Beans	Carrots	Entire wheat
Eggs		Potatoes

The following foods are an especially rich source of the different vitamins:

Vitamin A.	Vitamins B, G.	Vitamin C.
Butter	Asparagus	Cabbage
Cheese	String beans	Grapefruit
Cream	Brussels sprouts	Lemons
Cod liver oil	Cabbage	Lettuce
Egg yolk	Spinach	Oranges
Liver	Yeast	Rutabagas
Whole milk		Tomatoes, canned, fresh
Spinach, cook'd or canned

Our richest source of vitamin D is in cod liver oil and egg yolk. It occurs, however, in small quantities in milk and green vegetables.

The First Night

By Cosmo Hamilton

to the stage he would have seen something which caused an emotional sensation among every one else in the place.

Leaving horror behind him as though it was yesterday's shirt, Frant made a dart and waved the mother aside. He was alight, yes, blazing with another brain wave, another and far more beautiful inspiration which comes once into the heart of every decent man.

Putting his hands on Bunty's shoulders and his lips quite close to her ear he said, "Bunty, O, Bunty, I love you. You didn't know it, but I bought those rose trees for you. Win or fail—it doesn't matter. They're yours. I'm yours, and the pillion seat on my motorbike, even if I have to pawn it, as I probably shall, belongs to you. Bunty, O, Bunty, I love you!" And before everybody in that theater he kissed her on the lips.

The utter silence was broken by a sob, a laugh, a broken cheer, a sort of giggle from Charlie, and a growing murmur which spread from the stage to the stalls.

Winch turned and stood on the stairs with his hat rammed over his ears. He was in time to see the most moving thing that he had ever seen in his life—even he, the producer of musical comedies, whose life was spent among people who were so easily moved. Why not? Behind the laughing mask which is worn by actors there are mostly serious faces from the very stern grind of life.

He saw to his amazement that Bunty seemed to bloom: that the small, tight leaves of her budlike body opened like those of a rose. He saw her, with an amazing smile, touch Frant's dead-white face. He saw her straighten her shoulders, stand firmly on her feet, wave her hand at the orchestra leader with a sudden flash of her teeth. He heard her say in a sweet, firm voice, "Take it again, if you please."

O, my hat, that cheer!

Rossett leapt to his feet. Doing the most extraordinary things his heart wound up in his mouth.

Once more came the prelude. Once more Fortescue sang. And when the moment arrived for Bunty's voice to be heard in the refrain which was inevitably destined to sweep all over the earth, it encircled that theater like the perfume that comes from roses after a shower of rain.

Once more that voice through the megaphone at the finish of the song. It cut through the roar, the spontaneous and grateful outburst of applause. "Very good, indeed. Rossett, we open tonight. Put the name of Bunty Miller on the programs and the bills. When you need a best man, Frant. . . ."

"Thanks most awfully," said Oliver, holding Bunty's hand. "Tomorrow morning then."

PET RECIPES

Do you have a favorite recipe that you'd like to pass on for others to enjoy? Address it to "Pet Recipes," Chicago Tribune, and it will be published.

Veal Steak.

Cut 2 pounds veal steak in portions. Dip in beaten egg, then flour, brown in plenty of butter, salt, and pepper. Then place in a roaster and pour 1½ cups milk around the meat. Bake in a slow oven without a cover for 45 minutes to an hour. Add more milk as needed.

When done make a milk gravy. This is as good as any spring chicken.

K. K.

Halibut a la Creole.

Place about a pound of halibut in a baking dish. Cut up a large green pepper and a few onions. Add salt and pepper and a can of tomato soup and pour this over the halibut.

Bake about 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

Patterns and How to Use Them

By Clotilde

The Flattering Lines of These Modish Frocks—So Easily Made by the Home Dressmaker—Lend Distinctive Charm to the Wearer.

A NEW silhouette with flattering lines, equally suited to the youthful type or the woman with a mature figure is shown in pattern No. 3033. The shirring through the bodice is responsible for making it becoming, by detracting from the width. The collarless V shaped neckline, with a bow tied through a bound opening at the end of the V, creating a sunburst effect, is a smart detail.

The close fitting sleeves are cut to flare slightly towards the wrists, and the low placed circular fulness of the skirt gives a smart flare to the hemline without detracting from the snug fit through the hips.

The shirring must be done on clearly marked lines and the stitches must be short and evenly taken. After the several rows have been put in, pull the gathers up close, then slowly let them out to make the shirring the right length. It shouldn't be difficult to space the fulness evenly. A "stay" is set underneath the shirring to keep it in place.

Silk crêpe will make up effectively in this design.

The circular flaring skirt and the belted higher waistline of the smart little frock made by pattern No. 3217 closely follows the mode of the grown-up frocks. The light weight woolens, linen, piqué prints, cotton broadcloth shantung, and crêpe de chine are smart materials for this model.

The front of the waist is slashed in from both armholes and the lower edge is smocked and joined to the upper. If you prefer, this lower edge may be gathered. The front is slashed down from the neck, and this opening finished for closing. Then the neck is prettily finished with a flat, round collar of a contrasting color.

The full length sleeves are gathered at the wrists into narrow, fitted bands, and of course the waist and skirt are joined under the narrow, separate belt.

Navy blue crêpe de chine, using a bright shade of red for the collar and cuff bands, and having the belt of red suede, would make a charming dress for many occasions.

The pretty collar on the dress made by pattern No. 3372 is a chic lingerie detail that is most becoming. The collar is cut in front and back sections, the back being narrow and simply following the line of the neck. In the front the collar ends in a deep point at the center and ripples in a graceful manner. The bodice is a molded, long waisted one, having a gracefully shaped line across the front. To this is attached the fitted circular skirt, with low placed fullness, measuring at the bottom for size 36 about 3⅝ yards.

The sleeves are long and close fitting and finished at the wrists with narrow turnback cuffs. A narrow belt marks the normal waistline.

It will be attractive if the collar and cuffs are made of a contrasting color. Black and white printed silk crêpe with white for the contrasting color, black silk crêpe with an asparagus shade of green; brown with turquoise blue, and parrot green chiffon with the collar and cuffs of the dress material would be lovely. Chiffon voile, shantung, and wool crêpe are also suitable for this model.

Be sure and see that your hip and waist measures correspond with those of the pattern, and if any change has to be made mark the pattern clearly so it won't be forgotten. Chiffon or crêpe would be pretty picoted at the bottom of the skirt and the collar. Otherwise a narrow bias binding will make the best finish.

The picture chart that comes with this pattern shows plainly the correct method for putting the various parts together.

3033—Woman's or miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

3372—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

3217—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 3 inch contrasting.

Harley and Joan

By Roland Pertwee

whom had she spoken? Harley Trevelyan had lost no time. Something in his face showed that he meant business.

For one moment Evan Fawlk was afraid. The next he broke into a fit of uncontrolled laughter. For wasn't fate clearly at work on his side.

Trevelyan didn't know — couldn't know that the steamer's port of call had been changed.

Funny! It was hugely funny!

A desire to see the joke through took possession of him. He hired a fiacre and drove to the outskirts of the town. Here he instructed the driver to wait, seated himself at a café table on the pavement and called for a bottle of Chianti.

Defeat

He did not have long to wait before a gray scarred old soldier of a car came whirling along in a cloud of dust. Harley Trevelyan was beside the driver, his eyes on the road ahead, his mouth set grimly.

Evan Fawlk waved at the vanishing dust cloud.

At a village under the broad shoulders of Vesuvius, the driver of the hired car ventured a question.

"Does the signor visit Taranto on business connected with the fleet?"

Harley shook his head and muttered something about a liner—La Pierrette.

"But, signor! La Pierrette put into Naples this morning."

Harley did not appear to be listening. The words had failed to penetrate the isolation in which he had lost himself.

"A cousin of mine, Antonio, is cook on La Pierrette and rang me on the telephone from the docks."

"What's that?"

The driver repeated what he had said and added:

"Some little difficulty with the naval authorities—wherefore they berthed at Napoli in place of Taranto."

"Turn around—go back," said Harley. "And drive."

With a smashed back spring cobbled up with lashings of iron wire and a wooden block, the gray car lurched through the dock gates as the La Pierrette cast her mooring and thrashed out into the bay.

Evan Fawlk had won the second heat.

MY PET ECONOMY

Would you care to pass on to some one else your pet economy? If so, address Pet Economy, Chicago Tribune.

Double Economy.

Prolonging the life of my marcels by the use of discarded hair nets is my double barreled pet economy. When preparing to retire at night I protect my wave by slipping on two old torn nets, arranging them so the holes do not come in the same place. The marcel will last almost twice as long this way and I get also an unusual amount of use from a hair net.

M. V.

Hemstitching Hint.

When hemstitching coarse material in colors I save the threads that are drawn and use them to do the hemstitching, thus insuring a perfect match as to color and saving the price of new thread.

D. A. K.

Forty-five Dollars in Pennies.

My pet economy is saving Indian head pennies and foreign coins. Among my collection are ten different Canadian coins. There are coins from England, France and Spain. The most interesting to me are the Indian head pennies. I have forty-five dollars in Indian head pennies, dated back as far as 1850. I am still adding to the collection, and I hope to have coins from every foreign country.

I. W.

Reduces Shoe Bill.

A pet economy of my sister's is to keep two or three pairs of shoes in use. One pair for nice, one pair for next best, and one pair for work. In this way she doesn't wear one pair continually and saves having her shoes half-soled and heeled so often. In the long run she has variety and saves money, also.

Mrs. Jack Clemens
(Photograph taken 1923)

In 1923 On October 8, Mrs. Jack Clemens of 57 East Fifth Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, wrote us:

About 4 years ago I had a nervous breakdown. I would tremble from head to foot and was weak all over. Sometimes when I tried to sweep, the broom would fall from my hands. I suffered such nervous headaches, my mind would actually wander. My food would bloat, my heart palpitated, and and I got so dizzy I would nearly drop. Sometimes I was attacked with such spells of numbness I thought I was going to die. Then a friend told me of Tanlac. In dollars and cents I could never determine the help Tanlac gave me. Under its use I steadily regained my health. And all my ailments completely left me and I feel as peppy and vigorous as a school girl!

7 Years Ago This Woman Almost Died From a Nervous Breakdown—Tanlac Made Her Well Then and Has Kept Her Well Ever Since

In 1930 7 years later, on August 4th, 1930, this same woman wrote:

Just about a year ago I had to have an operation for appendicitis. Correct Dress for Men

By Helen Bartlett

Immaculate Grooming and Garb Appropriate to Time and Place Distinguish the Well Dressed Sterner Sex.

Miss Bartlett's two booklets, "Table Setting and Service for Luncheon" and "Table Setting and Service for Dinner," may be obtained by sending two stamped, addressed envelopes to this department. Address Helen Bartlett, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.

WE rise to boast that we have men readers, which is something of an achievement for a column in the women's section. A recent article on correct dress for women brought forth a surprising number of letters from men asking "How about us?" From these letters and from the daily telephone calls that come to this department we are reminded again that men are as eager as women to observe conventionalities, trivial and otherwise.

The men can be grateful that their dress is so little affected by the whims of fashion. Despite the news items appearing from time to time, particularly after a tailor's convention, declaring that big changes are due, if not already present, men's dress remains pretty much the same—a kind of uniform with just a few variations.

To be well dressed a man is first immaculately groomed, second, garbed appropriately for the time and place.

Grooming Never Obvious.

The grooming is important, but it is never obvious, never challenging. His hat and shoes and ties are faultless; his linens immaculate, but he does not reek of cologne nor flaunt a high polish on his nails. He looks as though his hair cut and shave had been events neither too recent nor too long past. In other words, he looks well dressed and well groomed with no particular impression of trying too hard to look either.

Business clothes are conservative—by which we mean that materials are dark and good and the cut is simple. The accompanying ties and shirts are equally well made and selected. Loud shirts and ties are simply OUT if a man would be considered well dressed. Up until recently only the all white shirt was considered correct but this season the best shops are showing shirtings with pin stripes or even in solid pastel colors. In this a man may follow his fancy. But anxious wives and mothers will probably hope that it's not too gay.

In no variation of men's dress is tailoring so important as in formal clothes. Business suits and sports clothes may be indifferently tailored without too great a sacrifice of good looks but full evening dress and formal daytime dress must be faultlessly made and fitted. A first rate tailor should be consulted about fit, line and material.

Full Evening Dress.

Full evening dress is worn at the opera, at evening weddings, at formal dinners, debut balls or any decidedly formal evening entertainment.

It consists of the swallowtail coat, with black cuffless trousers, a plain white waistcoat, stiff-bosomed white shirt, and white bow tie of lawn. Handkerchief and gloves are white, and a muffler is all white or black with touches of white. A silk hat, black patent leather shoes, and black silk socks always accompany this costume.

The tuxedo, strictly speaking, is an informal costume and, according to the etiquette books, is worn only on informal occasions. But, like so many etiquette edicts, popular custom indicates that this is not taken too seriously. It is quite possible, we think, that the tuxedo will take the place of full dress in America, excepting on the most important formal occasions. It is worn now to the theater, to dances, to dinners, and even to the opera, and what are we going to do about it?

Dinner Jacket Accompaniments.

The dinner jacket is worn with a white waistcoat occasionally, but more often with a plain black one. A stiff shirt is worn with, of course, wing collar and bow tie of black. The accompanying hat is, depending on the season, of straw or felt.

In this country, where even the moguls of big business put in an eight hour day, formal afternoon dress for men is in demand only on occasions of pronounced formality. Men in wedding parties, the parents of the debutante making her bow at an afternoon reception, and the pallbearers at important funerals are usually called upon to wear this outfit, which consists of cutaway or frock coat, with white piqué or black waistcoat, gray and black striped trousers, and black and white or black and gray four-in-hand tie. Shoes are black patent leather or calfskin, with or without spats, and the hat should be a high silk one.

Answers to Etiquette Questions.

"When the host carves and passes [there is no maid] should the first plate be given to the guest of honor or to the hostess? Mrs. E. W."

It is customary to serve the hostess first then the guest of honor.

"At an evening church wedding does the groom wear full evening dress? May the other men of the party wear Tuxedoes? Is the bride's mother escorted to her place at any special time? F. Z."

All of the men of the wedding party—groom, best man, ushers and the bride's father—are obliged to wear full dress at an evening wedding. Tuxedoes are never permissable for weddings.

The bride's mother is the last person seated in the center aisle. About three minutes before the start of the ceremony, the groom's mother is brought to her place in a front pew on the right; then the bride's mother is brought up to a front pew on the left, the ribbons are drawn and the processional begins.

"1. Is a fork or spoon used to eat fruit cocktail? 2. Are gloves worn without a hat? 3. Is ice cream ever eaten with a fork? J. N."

1. Because the pieces are so small and there is so much fruit juice a spoon is generally used for fruit cocktail. 2. Excepting with evening dress gloves are not worn when one is hatless. 3. It is perfectly proper to eat ice cream with an ice cream fork if one is provided.

"Is it customary for a girl to give her fiancé an engagement gift? "H. G."

There's no reason why she shouldn't if she wants to, but it is not customary.

"Is it necessary for the groom, best man and ushers to wear gloves at a morning church wedding? Also, who pays for the wedding pictures? "U. N."

The ushers wear gloves but the groom and best man do not wear theirs during the ceremony; they make handling the ring too risky. The bride or her family pays for the pictures.

"Are bandeaux preferable to hats for the maid of honor and bridesmaids at a daytime wedding? "W. B."

Hats appear to be preferred. Most of them are off the face, with a soft brim turning down in the back.

"Who issues invitations or announcements at the marriage of a girl whose parents are divorced? C. K."

The parent with whom she is living or the parent with whom she is most friendly if there has been a division of affections, or, under some circumstances, both, if the parents are agreeable to the plan. This point must necessarily be settled by sensible and amicable agreement.

"If a woman meets an acquaintance on a train should she permit him to pay for her meals? L. N."

No, she should not.

About Jack Frost

By Eleanor Jewett.

Jack Frost is asleep,
But I think very soon,
Perhaps on the night of
The next clear moon,

Last summer's flowers
Will tickle his chin
With their soft petals
And the thorn's pin.

Then up sleeping Jack
Will jump from his nap,
Look for his paint box
And brushes and cap.

And before I can wake
In the morning in bed
He'll have painted our maples
All orange and red!

Answers to Love Queries

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Age Quandary.

"Dear Miss Blake: My fellow is 29. I am 18. Is he too old for me? PAT."

It is exceptional to find a man of 29 interested in the things a girl of 19 delights in. Congenialty is essential.

Unfair to Him.

"Dear Miss Blake. I am going with a fellow who loves me but I don't love him. Should I continue going with him? HOMEY."

Inasmuch as you do not return his love it hardly seems fair to lead him on.

Peace Settles on Italian Rule in South Tyrol

Tension Removed After Years of Trouble.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on Italy's new provinces and the Adriatic problem by a Tribune correspondent who has just completed a 1,000 mile trip along the Dalmatian coast and through Italian Tyrol.)

By David Darrah.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Pictures in Rotogravure Section.)

BOLZANO. — [Special Correspondence.]—The shipping and economic situation of Triest is unsatisfactory. Before the war Austria poured money into the city, developing big shipping lines and the port. Great docks and warehouses were built. Triest was then the outlet for the Danube valley. Now it is cut off from this region with which it was formerly an economic, administrative, and political unity, and besides it now meets the competition of Genoa, which forms part of the great economic triangle, with Milan and Turin, on the other side of Italy. This rivalry in a way resembles the rivalry of Venice and Genoa of the middle ages.

The problem is to industrialize Triest and its district and make its port of service again to the Danube hinterland. Customs barriers, political and racial animosities, and differing administrations stand in the way of that, as well as the fact that business and trade gravitates to the other side of the peninsula now.

Various projects, however, are being considered, including the construction of a new railroad from the Danube to the Adriatic. A company for carrying out this project has been formed and it was discussed between Chancellor Schober and Mussolini on the occasion of the former's visit to Rome. On the success of these measures and Italy's ability to penetrate the Balkans and near east commercially seems to depend the future of Triest. That is behind all the present political maneuvering.

Ship Builders Busy.

There appears now to be a feeling of disappointment among the Triestini over what Rome is doing for them. The reply is, however, that all these measures take time to complete. The chief element in favor of Triest is the fact of the regular sailings to all ports of the world, and the Adriatic tariff, which reduce transport cost. The Lloyd Triest and the Cosulich have excellent steamers and have a monopoly of first class passenger traffic to the Levant.

The other bright spot in the picture for Triest is the shipbuilding industry. The yards at Pola, Monfalone, San Rocco, and the Stabilimento Tecnico at Triest have orders for three years, it is claimed. These orders include construction of some of the new warships on the Italian naval program. But besides that the Italians are building a tanker for the Standard Oil company and they have various orders for submarines and other ships from Turkey, Brazil and other foreign governments. Since 1919, the Triest shipbuilders have turned out 560,000 tons of vessels. At present they claim that 12,000 men are employed in the yards, with the indication that Monfalcone is being favored in the placing of orders.

The shipbuilding industry for the moment, however, is in suspense pending the amalgamation of all the concerns here and near here under one concern, to be called the Victory Shipbuilding company. Each yard is to continue to operate separately under that scheme, but there will be a central administration. The question is, however, if it will not be found later on more efficient to concentrate all the business in one or two yards, and thus the others would go.

Trade Is Shot.

In other respects trade is said to be bad in Triest. Before the war Triest was center for transit trade and middlemen. Now all these have gone. The coffee and sugar trade which flourished before the war is shot. The Italians claim the port has about got back to its pre-war tonnage of five million tons, but all appearances belie it. Hamburg has taken the business of Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. Shipping has slumped to the ghost of former days, but there is still considerable passenger traffic, although hardly enough to justify all the many ship callings that are maintained, and I was told there is now talk of abolishing the Adriatic stop of one of the big trans-Atlantic lines, which would make its final call from New York at Naples and thus economize the three days' run from Naples to Triest.

Attempts to industrialize the region have not made great progress so far, but they are being pushed with vigor by the Rome government. A vegetable oil plant here has been operated with only indifferent success and some 800 men were recently laid off. The brewing industry appears satisfactory considering the general economic depression.

Tourist travel has been avoiding the Istrian resorts and going to Ragusa or Spalato because of the cheaper prices down there. Besides that the big liners now make a stop at Venice with the visitors for the Lido in summer. The government is doing all it can to encourage agriculture, but the land is arid and rocky and requires extensive improvement projects and capital. Ford has a small assembly plant in Triest and General Motors has recently established an office.

On to Bolzano.

In addition to the local problem the situation is complicated by the effort of the new council of corporations to overhaul the general economic system of the country. At a recent meeting of one section of that council here it was pointed out that before much of a beginning at recuperation can be effected there must be a more cordial feeling and less friction between the agriculturalists and the other branches of production. That means broadly between the Slavs and the Italians.

From Triest, the center of Italy's

THE recent trend of musical comedy films makes credible the rumor that Broadway producers who were laid low by the popularity of the talkers are expecting their business to revive in the near future. With all due credit to the marvels of the audible movies, it is apparent that film directors cannot compete with the impresarios who put on "flesh" shows, as Variety calls them, for the entertainment of the tired business man.

That the movie magnates are beginning to realize this seems evident. The theme song is dying an early death and song writers are said to be leaving Hollywood by the score. Now that the novelty has worn off there are fewer song and dance extravaganzas being manufactured on the western coasts; musical productions are being simplified by the omission of hordes of fantastically costumed girls dancing against elaborate backgrounds.

Pale by Comparison.

Films made from former Broadway musical successes inevitably pale by comparison with the originals. The trouble lies in the fact that the movie version stresses the plot which on the stage was only an excuse for the exploitation of the comedian's gags or the songs and dances of the chorus.

If the movies treat the shows exactly as they were treated on the stage—by making the plot just a slim thread that weaves together the songs, dances, and wise cracks—they run into greater difficulties. WHY? BECAUSE the chorus, which is the backbone of a musical show in the flesh, is only a blur of acrobatics on the screen. The second girl from the left looks exactly like the girl at the right center and the girl at the end of the second row.

All of which is a well intentioned introduction to a review of the movie version of "Good News," to be seen this week at the Chicago theater. Considering the physical impossibility of making it the same riot of entertainment it was on the stage the producers have done fairly well by "Good News" in the films.

If you saw it on the stage, you'll be disappointed; if not, your verdict may be that it's a nice little program picture. A few new tunes have been added to the ones that are still good, if a bit ancient; there's plenty of the varsity drag brought out by the original show; there's a cast of likeable young people and some good direction, photography and dialogue.

Comedy of Campus Life.

The plot is a comic picture of campus life, with a little Cinderella who worships a gridiron hero; a goofy boy who tries to resist the determined wooing of the school hoyden, a sarcastic coach, a pessimistic trainer, and a last minute football victory.

Bessie Love does a sprightly piece of work in the principal comedy rôle. Gus Shy, playing opposite her, misses a lot of opportunities for laughs. Cliff Edwards (Ukelele Ike), as the trainer who just can't see the bright side of any situation, provides the best comedy in the picture. But Mr. Edwards is always a likeable comedian, and I should think he'd find lots of work in Hollywood.

Also in the cast are Mary Lawlor, formerly of the stage, and Dorothy McNulty, who was in the stage pro-

OLD IDEAS DRESSED UP IN NEW CLOTHES

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It's grand to be back among the old plays. I've seen six of the new season's offerings this week and they are like so many aging and aged friends come out to greet me.

But there is always hope. Keep up the search long enough and the season's inspiration will appear. Always has. Never a theater year that has not produced a few things you are glad to have lived long enough to see.

Nothing I have seen so far, however, has proved either artistically satisfying or emotionally stirring.

The most ambitious of the week's efforts was staged by Arthur Hammerstein. It is a musical version of "The Bird of Paradise," called "Luana," and it is full of shaking haycocks and brown-skinned maidens. It is also full of the Hawaiian lure that kept "The Bird" playing in the theaters for twenty years and in the courts for eighteen. Not quite so concentrated a lure, and grown fearfully, even frightfully trite and pigeon-Englishy. But still enough to give the opera a chance if it can overcome the handicap of a poor start.

Based on Hawaiian Airs.

Mr. Hammerstein's chief dependence is placed on Rudolf Friml's score. This is based, reasonably, upon several of the more popular Hawaiian melodies. They are good melodies, as you have not been given much chance to forget since the radio came in. The hymn-singing missionaries who taught the simple Kanakas their first songs never dreamed they were creating music that fifty years later would be twanged around the world on ukuleles.

Mr. Hammerstein has also placed considerable dependence upon the haycocks and the hula. This hip-tossing diversion was for many years barred to the sight of the more refined and less adventurous playgoers. Either they had to go slumming in the burlesque theaters, or take surreptitious peeks under the canvas, so to speak at street carnivals if they were to become familiar with the muscular possibilities of the female torso.

Return of the Hula.

Recently, variously disguised as a native dance of this or that tropical center, the hula has been frequently featured in the better musical entertainments. Now, with the excuse offered by the "Luana" background, the stage is literally alive with wriggling demoiselles, powdered brown to the licensed limits, and covered with brown tulle from there on. They wriggle in at every conceivable excuse, wriggle rythmically to the best of the particular tune being played, and wriggle out again. I think probably we are going to be fearfully fed up on wriggles before another season passes.

Triangle Theme.

Mr. Hammerstein's background is thick with bright green, tropical folliage and his principals include Ruth Altman, playing the princess who marries the white doctor and casts herself into the lava when he deserts her; Robert Chisholm, a singing favorite, as the beach comber; Joseph MacAuley as the unfortunate doctor who goes native, and Lillian Bond a lissome brown skin from England.

It is a bit difficult to believe today that no less a trio than Laurette Taylor, Lewis Stone and Guy Bates Post once played the three principal rôles in "The Bird of Paradise" and played them quite seriously. But they did. And Lenore Ulric was one of Miss Taylor's better known successors.

It was, if I recall the circumstances correctly, when she was playing "Luana" that Miss Taylor, frightened by a series of blackhand letters she had received in New York, ran away to Los Angeles to escape them. And stayed there until she played "Peg O' My Heart" and began her new career.

Symphony in Two Flats.

The nearest thing we have to a novelty in the new list of plays is a comedy called "Symphony in Two Flats." It was brought over from London by its author-actor, Ivor Novello.

Mr. Novello is one of England's

Symphony Eyes Future; Sees Brilliant Season

Everything Is Promising for Orchestra.

By Edward Moore.

RETURNING to the desk after a vacation spent in nonmusical pursuits always involves a few interesting first hours of picking up the threads from where they had been laid down before departure. Generally there is a quite a bit of variance in their arrangement. Some have extended themselves, some have turned in an unexpected direction, some seem even to have turned around and gone back from where they came.

So it is quite as well to begin a new series of musical musings this morning with a note of optimism and good cheer radiated from the Chicago Symphony orchestra, soon to begin its fortieth season. Being financially as well as artistically optimistic, it is in fairly striking contrast with what one picks up in his wanderings down other thoroughfares of melody.

In effect it says that on the opening day of the season ticket sale for the orchestral season the receipts were $74,900, as compared with $55,300 on the corresponding day a year ago.

Music Taken More Seriously.

Henry E. Voegeli, resourceful manager of the orchestra, whose years of service with the organization are only nine less than its own age, analyses the situation and finds what he believes to be the answer. He says, "In times of business depression serious music is taken more seriously by the public and the orchestral concerts are better patronized."

One hardly feels like going so far as to recommend a period of business depression as a tonic for the health of the heavenly maid. Furthermore, one entertains serious doubt whether Mr. Voegeli's words of cheer will find a very distinct echo in the heart of Mr. Eckstein, who has just completed an opera season at Ravinia, or of Mr. Insull, who is about to start one at the Civic Opera house.

But there is more musical optimism, approaching the problem from a different angle, out of the mouth of the famous band leader, John Philip Sousa, who will be a Chicago visitor Oct. 12. He finds that radio and talking pictures, those bitterly abused stepchildren of music, are not going to do any harm to their step-parent, but sooner or later are going to help conditions.

Gain in Popularity.

"Radio and talking pictures will not work to the ultimate detriment of music any more than has the talking machine," says Mr. Sousa. "In the nineties it was believed that mechanical music would deprave American musical taste. Undoubtedly it did spell the ruin of countless small town teachers of violin and piano, which may have been a blessing in disguise. But the phonograph more than made recompense for this disaster by bringing fine music or some approximation of fine music to the hundreds of thousands. Now, with the radio and, to a minor extent, the talking picture, which after all is but a talking machine record which adds sight to sound, the audiences for fine concerts are greater than ever before. A crowd of 20,000 is not unusual at a symphony orchestra concert in the Lewisohn stadium in New York in sum-

Open Season for Talk About Bernard Shaw

Statistics on Famous Wag of Forty Plays.

By Charles Collins.

THE season for praise or derision of a certain George Bernard Shaw, the drama's long distance talker, may now be declared open. As a matter of fact, it is never closed, for this man Shaw has a chemical affinity for printer's ink which, so far as men of letters are concerned, establishes a world's all time record. His latest play, or satirical conversation, "The Apple Cart," however, will come to Chicago nine days hence; and so now is the time for every one who follows the theater to start talking about the quintessence of Bernard, who has passed for a philosopher, lo, these many years, because he never has taken anything seriously.

On this occasion I prefer the statistical approach to Mr. Shaw. He has become a gigantic figure; he looms up among the playwrights of the world like Gulliver among the Lilliputians. He is a Great Pyramid of wit, or a Grand Canyon of Boredom, as you prefer. At any rate, he is huge; therefore, with the American passion for bigness, let us measure him. Get out your pencils and be ready to jot down the statistics concerning the British Aristophanes.

Mr. Shaw is now 74 years old, his writing career covers fifty-two years, and "The Apple Cart" is his fortieth play.

He began to write for a living in 1879—and if you think that he isn't still doing it, try to produce one of his plays without paying him royalties through the nose.

His first writing job was one which would now be called press agentry. He was employed by a London firm to exploit the possibilities of the Edison telephone, but being a cantankerous Socialist he soon broke step with the march of capitalism—only to become a capitalist himself through the profits on his jibes at that economic system. He has remained a press agent, however—with himself as his theme. But he describes his work to advertise the telephone as his "last sin against nature."

He won his spurs as a humorist with some flippant fictions, miscalled novels, among them "An Unsocial Socialist" and "Cashel Byron's Profession"—the latter easily remembered because it dealt with a gentleman pugilist and in a sense forecast the career of Gene Tunney. [He fancies himself as an expert on prize fighting, and foretold that Georges Carpentier would spear Jack Dempsey with his long overhand right and knock him for a row of his favorite box cars.]

Food for Book Worms.

The libraries contain some seventy printed works that bear his signature. About ninety magazine articles from his pen have been card indexed. Forty-five books have been written about him in English; and no doubt the Germans, who are fond of him, have exceeded that number. In his plays he has created more than 500 characters—no two alike, although they all talk in paradoxes. When accused of being unable to invent a character that wasn't a wit, he answered with the beautiful cockney dumbbell, acted by Mrs. Patrick Campbell and her lessers, in "Pygmalion."

Here is a complete list of Mr. Shaw's plays, with dates of publication and stage production for the major works:

Lyric Ladies.

If the average playgoer wants to know where the attractive Hall sisters, Natalie and Bettina, of "Three Little Girls" have been all of his life, he should ask the first music critic whom he finds leaping from concert to concert along Michigan avenue of a Sunday afternoon. For Natalie and Bettina have been almost as popular among my confrères of the sharps and flats and open tones as Mary Garden, these last few years. They come from the grand opera belt—and especially from that sacred grove which is called "opera in English."

Last year, and the year before that, they were the bright particular sirens of the American Opera company, when Rosing and St. Leger were carrying the torch for that gifted band of hope which seemed to be trying to teach the Civic opera the fine points of modern stagecraft. Natalie, the elder, employed her regulation soprano voice as Marguerite in "Faust" and in the

Tension Removed After Years of Trouble.

By David Darrah.

half million Slav minority problem, you reach Bolzano, or Bozen, the new German province, in about eight hours. Austrian Innsbruck is four hours further north over the Brenner pass. Before reaching Bolzano you pass through Trento, the capital of the province which lies just over the old pre-war Italian boundary.

In the middle ages Trento was a bishopric; for twenty years in the sixteenth century the council which effected the counter reformation of the Catholic church was held there. It has always had a mixed Italian and German population. It now appears Italian and for years the Italian element, even during Austrian days, was predominent; a statue of Dante adorns the main public square and another link with the south is the magnificent Romanesque cathedral, in which the council of Trent was held. Trent was the center of the Irredentist movement. Cesar Battisti and other Irredentist patriots were shot there by the Austrians. They are now exalted as national heroes throughout the new provinces.

When you reach San Michele or Salorno, just north of Trento, the country becomes thoroughly German, and there, according to the Austrians, the frontier between Italy and Tyrol should begin, if strategic security reasons had not placed it fifty miles further north to the Brenner pass.

From Salorno past Bolzano and Bressansone to the Brenner, the country was and remains distinctly Gothic and the only thing that changes its appearance from that of the other side of the Brenner is the changed nomenclature of the towns. Klausen has become Chiuso. The "Bahnhof" is now a "stazione."

At the Border Line.

Between Bolzano and Innsbruck lies a magnificently picturesque country, perhaps the prettiest in all Europe, with snowcrested mountains above and black pine forests below and little villages and red topped houses and spires scattered all about the valleys. At the Brenner frontier you proceed into Austria without knowing it till the German signs replace the Italian ones. That difference appears to be less marked than does the difference, say, between Fiume and Sussak, or between Modane and Bardonecchia. Near the Parish church at the Brenner pass stands a boundary stone erected by the Italian in 1921, with a characteristic Latin inscription. The Italian flag flies there and Italian carabinieri and customs officers are stationed nearby. There is no Austrian flag and few officials. That is one hint that the Tyrolese have not yet accepted the Brenner as a frontier.

Photography is forbidden by the Italians all about the Brenner and the entire frontier; in fact, it is not permissible to attempt to pass or to climb any of the mountain peaks along the frointier line even for a pleasure excursion. The Brenner pass is speckled with Italian soldiers; near it is a new barracks named after the Irredentist Cesar Battisti. There is a whole division of soldiers in the province, with headquarters at Bolzano. Most of the railroad employes and station masters are Italians from the south. These contrast with the natives in their feathered green peaked hats and leather breeches. All around on the Italian side a lot of new building was going on, with the fascio emblem figuring prominently in the architecture.

Cordial and Friendly.

At the Brenner pass utter cordiality and friendliness appeared to exist between the Italian and Austrian authorities. Much more so than between the French and Italians at the Little Saint Bernard pass which I visited last summer.

In Innsbruck you are struck with the Gothic resemblance in all respects to Bolzano. The picturesque Mariathereseinstrasse might as well have existed in Bolzan, for all the twelve years' change that Italian rule has brought. Prices were practically the same. I could not see that the Tyrolese of Bolzano appeared more dispirited by contrast with the Innsbruckers. The latter were, however, less indifferent and more courteous.

A colored series of postcards was displayed everywhere picturing Tyrolese peasants under Italian oppression, old men and women weeping at leaving their homes and being driven across the frontier; peasants gripping their guns and looking over the mountain passes into the country they had left. This is one form of the Irredentist propaganda. It aims to keep alive on the south side of the frontier the hankering for the return of the old régime, which, they seem to believe, will happen if the day comes for revising the peace treaties. The cult of Andreas Hofer, the Tyrolese patriot who resisted the French in 1809, is kept alive as a symbol of Tyrolese unity in Innsbruck, and there you have living the South Tyrol exiles and Irredentists, Dr. Reut Nikolussi and Dr. Mumelter, former citizens of Bolzano, who are active agitators for the return of South Tyrol to Austria. There also are the organizations Hoferbund, the Deutches Verband, and the Verein für das Deutchtum in Auslande. These organizations the Italians maintain in agitate, not for minority rights of language and customs for the South Tyrolese, but for the return of the Italian Tyrol to Austria.

Complications Set In.

That cause also finds a hearing in the Innsbruck press, consisting of four newspapers. When I came back across the frontier at the Brenner, I was reading a copy of the Innsbruck Nachrichten. A Blackshirt militiaman came through the train and confiscated it. The paper, he said, was prohibited in Italy. The reason for this appears to be that many of the South Tyrol expatriots write in the Innsbruck papers and they do not write in favor of Italy. The other Viennese Berlin and Munich papers are allowed free entrance into Italy except when something specially violent appears.

What complicates the problem for the Italians is the fact that the inhabitants of their new province live next to millions of their own people, speaking the same language and having a highly developed culture and tradition. The Italians believe, however, that if this Irredentist propaganda and interference from the other side of the frontier ceases, the two races in Italy will live peacefully side by side and that the language question will solve itself in time. The Italians in Bolzano admitted to me that it would take many years to effect the change. They stressed their care in trying to get suitable officials, and emphasized that it was their policy to get rid of ultranationalists and those who follow an irritating and pinpricking policy among the inferior officials.

Tension Removed.

As late as two years ago an aggravated condition existed in the South Tyrol, or the Upper Adige, as it is now called, between the Italians and the German speaking inhabitants of the province of Bolzano. Irreconcilable deputies from Innsbruck were crying out against the Italian régime and demanding the reannexation of the province to Austria. This brought threats and menaces from Mussolini against the then Austrian chancellor, Mgr. Seipel.

That tension now is largely removed. Agitation from the other side has relaxed, except in North Tyrol, and at the same time the Italian rule appears lenient. It contrasts with the severer Italian regulations against the Slavs on the eastern frontier. Here the Italian language and schools and administration and nomenclature are official, but the people are allowed to talk as much German as they like. There are sermons in German, plays in the theater in German, and German newspapers are still printed, German names still appear on the brass name plates on the pews of the Gothic Bolzano cathedral; in fact, the German language is far more serviceable in every way, unless your affairs concern official government business, or unless you are going to school. Some years ago, it appears, singing was forbidden. Such a prohibition has at any rate now been removed and you can hear as much singing in both Italian and German as you like.

The chief industry is the hotel business and tourism, and aside from the general slump in both in Europe this year that seems to flourish as well under Italian as under Austrian rule.

Many Vicissitudes.

The Italian police display no attitude of bullying or arrogance and seem to get on as well with the people as would their own native police. Sometimes there are episodes of violence, but not frequent, with the police in the country districts. Some time ago a couple of policemen and an elementary schoolmaster were ambushed by peasants in the Val Aurina. The policemen were guarding the Italian school teacher named Ceschini, against who the parents of the German children in the district were hostile. Several arrests were made by the authorities, but the accused were subsequently all dismissed.

The twelve years of Italian rule in Tyrol or Upper Adige have followed many vicissitudes. Between two and three hundred thousands Germans live in this region. Although by the treaty Italy was not bound by any clauses respecting maintenances of rights of minorities, her statesmen, just after the war, announced that the Italian policy with regard to Tyrol would be extremely liberal, and it was. That policy went no further than to establish bilingualism and for a long period practically local autonomy, and the conduct of the schools in German went on. This, the Italians maintained, implied the obvious condition that the inhabitants should regard themselves as Italian citizens while enjoying their own German language and institutions. The leniency, however, they assert with probable justice, only made sedition more possible in the province and encouraged intriguing Irredentist organizations in Innsbruck and Bavaria on the other side of the frontier. This agitation was based on the belief than the Anchluss would one day take place and a stronger united pan-Germanism would redeem the south Tyrol. Many of the German inhabitants of the region, seeing the Italian leniency, looked on the occupation by Rome as a sort of strange interlude which would shortly be ended. Leaders of German opinion, the Italians charged, abused this tolerance to the extent of gross discourtesy toward the king and queen of Italy when they visited Tyrol. And once when an Italian commission called on the German mayor and spoke in Italian he was greeted with loud guffaws at the funny way of speaking and told to speak in German.

Italianization.

When the Fascists came in power with their nationalism and determination to exploit Italy's victory to the fullest extent, all this policy of liberalism was for a period of years reversed. Even before the Fascist march on Rome a Fascist raid on Bolzano was conducted from Milan, and one of the four schools in Bolzano where German was taught was turned into an Italian school. There is a small Italian quarter in Bolzano. Gradually under Fascism a policy of complete Italianzation was adopted. Bilingualism was excluded. Italian became the official language of administration and schools, although German was entirely banished from the schools only two years ago. After the previous tolerance of the Italian rule this new expedient to counteract the agitation to keep the province autonomous and detached from the rest of Italy, so it could be easily annexed later to Germany, seemed hard, and loud protests against oppression and terrorism were raised throughout Europe.

Against the sterner Fascist policy of Mussolini the resistance of the Irredentists in Innsbruck was increased and from 1922 until 1929 the province was in a state of conflict and antagonism, fostered by Tyrolese Irreconcilables and the newspapers in Innsbruck, which even yet keep up a campaign against the Italian rule. Many Tyrolese left the Italian side and every year in Innsbruck on the anniversary of the annexation ceremonies were held with the flag at half mast.

Relations Improve.

Since matters came to a head two years ago, however, and since the coming to power of Chancellor Schober and conciliation between the church and state in Italy, there has been a distinct improvement in the relations of the Tyrolese with their new masters. To all appearances something of the former Italian tolerance is now admitted again, although it is not difficult to sense the sullen hostility of the older Germans against Italy and all things from the south.

The Ballilas, Dopolavoros, and other Fascist organizations, have less success here. Perhaps before the Germans become Fascists they must first become Italian, yet all these organizations aid in the nationalization work, as do the Dante Alighieri, the Opera Nazionale di assistenza all'Italia Redenta, and kindergarten establishments. That process will require a long time, even after administrative and political unity has been effected. For Bolzano is fundamentally and radically German in its culture and traditions and knows little and cares less about Dante and Carducci.

OPENING THE SEASON

VANNI-MARCOUX

[Moffett Photo.]

THIS is a civilian, or real life, picture of the noted Franco-Italian singing-actor who will appear in the name part of a new opera on the opening night of the Civic Opera company's coming season, Monday, Oct. 27. The opera is "Lorenzaccio," from the drama by Alfred de Musset, set to music by Ernest Moret. It was first brought out as an opera at the Paris Opera-Comique in 1920, Vanni-Marcoux being then also in the name part. In fact, the composer is said to have had this artist in mind when he wrote the work.

mer. I have played to more than 17,000 people—the largest indoor audience in the history of America—in Cleveland—SINCE the invention of the radio.

"The point which I wish to make is that all of the scientific discoveries which widen the means of recording or transmitting music also bring new problems to challenge the composer, the conductor, and the technical musician. These problems in themselves awaken the imagination and are likely to lead to the discovery of many new musical forms. If the talking picture has resulted in unemployment for large numbers of musicians formerly employed in motion picture houses, I would regard the condition as a temporary one, likely to right itself within a few years."

Opera New to Chicago.

"Lorenzaccio," a French opera entirely new to Chicago, will open the civic opera season this year. The music is by Ernest Moret, the text is adapted from the drama of the same name by Alfred de Musset, and the title rôle is one of the Vanni-Marcoux parts.

The play was published in 1834, but did not get to the stage until 1896, when Sara Bernhardt scored a triumph in the part of the marquise, hampered only by the fact that her rôle was overshadowed by the name part. It has been in the standard répertoire of the Comédie Française for thirty years. In 1920 the Moret opera was produced at the Opéra Comique with Vanni-Marcoux in the part he will present here. The Opéra Comique will revive it this season.

The story is of Florence in the time of the Medici, when luxury and daggers, art and poison went hand in hand.

The first scene illustrates the morals of the ducal court of the Medici, as well as the relations of the chief characters, Alexander the Duke and Lorenzo, his cousin. Alexander is a monster of cruelty and lust; Lorenzo serves him in both capacities, and on this occasion he is procuring for him a girl of fifteen.

Plotting and Perfidy.

In the second scene the Cardinal Cibo and Messer Maurizo attempt to warn Alexander against Lorenzo, whom the cardinal considers dangerous to the duke. The duke scouts the idea, explains the usefulness of Lorenzo to his tyranny, and a few minutes later gives visual proof of his cousin's harmlessness when Lorenzo falls to the ground at sight of a naked sword. A procurer, an atheist, hideous to the eye and cruel, Lorenzo is also apparently a coward.

The first scene of the second act is a slight digression from the plot, but serves to heighten the atmosphere of shamelessness, and to contrast the honored cardinal with the despised Lorenzo. By means of the confessional, the cardinal is persuading his sister-in-law, who is a republican and devoted to her husband, to become the duke's mistress, so that through her the papal court can control Tuscany. In the second scene Lorenzo's mother, who is ashamed of him, startles him with a story of having seen the ghost of his innocent youth which fled when his present self came into the house. He is stricken contrite for the moment, and sends the ghost a word of good cheer. Bindo and Venturi, windy republicans, try to enlist Lorenzo in their conspiracy, and when the duke enters Lorenzo cynically induces them both to accept political favors. Meanwhile the duke has seen Catherine Ginori, Lorenzo's young aunt. Lorenzo, confronted by a demand for the only woman who still believes in him, is forced to promise to procure her also. In the third scene Lorenzo and his bravo are testing the suitability of Lorenzo's room for a murder.

Tells His Secret.

In act three the Strozzi family have just been added to the many victims or the duke's tyranny, and the father, who has remained Lorenzo's friend, begs the once high minded young man to fulfill his early promise and rid the world of a monster. Lorenzo then tells the secret of his life. Long ago, among the ruins of the Colosseum at Rome, he had taken the vow to kill one of the tyrants who oppressed Italy. Having chosen his cousin, he nad put himself voluntarily under the evil influence of Alexander and had done him the vilest services to win his confidence [had even, in fact, feigned cowardice]. Now, however, that the hour of consummation has come, Lorenzo is no longer the young idealist who had taken the vow, but is corrupted by his intended victim. He will strike—but only to justify himself.

In scene one, act four, Lorenzo steals the duke's chainproof, then invites him to the assignation with Catherine. In scene two he announces vainly to the citizens of Florence that they are about to be freed. In the final scene the blow is struck.

Film Academy Ballots for Honors

title rôle of "Yolanda of Cyprus," among other rôles. Bettina, the younger and a mezzo, went in for more spirited heroines, such as Carmen. When they transferred their charming sister act from the music lovers' group to the "What's the best show in town?" gang, in "Three Little Girls," the art of operetta was given what is popularly known as a "break."

But if you can recall Winthrop Ames' distinguished and decorative revivals of some of the Gilbert and Sullivan pieces, you will discover the origins of Natalie and Bettina. Only a few years back, no doubt, you were picking one or the other of them out for your special approval as "that girl on the end." For in the chorus of Mr. Ames' stagings of "Iolanthe," etc., is where they started.

Their home happened to be a town called North Easton, Mass., which has boasted for a generation that it was the birthplace of Winthrop Ames, Massachusett's greatest gift to the American theater. They were singing children, of course, and gentle yearners for operatic glory. So when Mr. Ames insisted that they try their wings in the chorus of his Gilbert and Sullivan shows, they decided that he knew best.

Natalie ascended from the chorus rank to a prima donna's rating with the American Opera company in one jump. Bettina followed a less surprising evolution; in her second season with Mr. Ames she sang the title rôle in "Iolanthe," Edith in "The Pirates of Penzance," and Peep-Bo in "The Mikado." In the season of 1928-29 she joined her sister among the operas in English, making twenty appearances in the rôle of Carmen.

The girls have an idea that they are merely camping out in "Three Little Girls," getting valuable experience in acting and otherwise preparing for the time when bigger and better American or Civic opera companies will need trimmer and lovelier Marguerites and Carmens. Still, they might consider the career of Fritzi Scheff, who did very well by herself after she escaped from Verdi and fell into the clutches of Victor Herbert. . . . Perhaps the play reviewers may have to surrender these winsome Hall girls to the jealous music critics after "Three Little Girls' has run its course. But in the meantime let's wish them more operettas with revolving stages and theme songs and stern papas preventing love's happy dream from coming true.

Not "Defiant Rivalry."

The fact that the Theater Guild and the Dramatic League of Chicago will begin their seasons on the same night —Oct. 6—has been duly pointed out in this column, with the observation that this conflict of dates, in an autumn when premières are few and far between, is "one of the minor mysteries of the so-called show business." Therefore, the spokesman for the Dramatic League snaps to attention and offers an explanation. The conflict, he declares, is not "a matter of defiant rivalry," but rather something which just came to pass in those secret places called "booking offices," where Chicago's stage calendar is arranged and rearranged.

The official explainer for the League says that the Guild's bulletin, issued last March, indicated Sept. 22 as the opening date of the new season, and that the League's, published a month later, specified Oct. 13. Then the League changed its date to Oct. 6, on the theory that Isabelle Jeans would be ready then to start an American tour here in "The Man in Possession," and did not learn until late in May that the Guild had also shifted its plans to the same date. "By the time the conflict became known to both ventures," says the announcement, "it was too late to change without upsetting not only the Chicago subscribers, but also the arrangements made for the League and the Guild in other cities."

This clears the matter up neatly, of course. But those of us who make a hobby of guilds and leagues and other hopeful aspects of the drama will continue to find it practically impossible to be in two places at once on the night of Oct. 6, 1930.

New in Chicago

"YOUNG SINNERS," a comedy by Elmer Harris which was popular in New York last season, will begin an engagement at the Apollo theater this evening under the management of the Messrs Shubert. It tells one of those "flaming youth" stories, as its title suggests. Its central character is the play boy son of a millionaire. After going the pace of the jazz life he is redeemed by the soft influence of love and the stern wrath of his daddy.

Dorothy Appleby and Raymond Guion have the leading rôles. The others in the company are Edith Shayne, George Lessey, Paddy Reynolds, Muriel Belasco, Virginia Lloyd, Arthur Bowyer, Alfred A. Hasse, Edward Racey and Arthur Scanlon. The scenes are placed in Palm Beach, Park Avenue, N. Y., and the Adirondacks.

Katharine Cornell, one of the most distinguished actresses of the American stage, will begin an engagement of three weeks at the Harris theater tomorrow night in "Dishonored Lady," a drama by Margaret Ayer Barnes and Edward Sheldon. It is said to give Miss Cornell her best rôle since she played the romantic lady of Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat."

The story deals with the indiscretions of a well-born young woman and her desperate efforts to live them down—especially with her method of disposing of a South American gigolo who tries to retain his hold on her. As the press agent's notice says: "Miss Cornell plumbs the passionate, frantically struggling soul of a modern woman." There are hints that she poisons the blackmailer.

"Dishonest Lady" sounds like a stirring vehicle for the glamorous Miss Cornell. New York liked it last winter.

SHRIEKS AND SHUDDERS

JEAN CLEVELAND.

"THE HOUSE OF FEAR" seems to have settled down for a run at The Playhouse, and so here is a picture of a snappy-looking girl who helps to cause the shrieks and shudders. Miss Cleveland plays the well-bred vampire of the house party—the one who doesn't always get her man but keeps on trying. New York saw her last spring in a dramatization of the Rothstein murder case.

Brahms' Second Symphony Now Available on Records

The Tribune is devoting space each Sunday to a consideration of current phonograph records. It is an effort to itemize as intelligently as possible the new recordings, to give the record buying public information of the important things the recorders are doing, and to chronicle the progress being made by this phase of art preservative.

By Edward Moore.

HOW well do we know our symphonies, or, for that matter, any symphony? The inquiry is not addressed to conductors or orchestral players, or to the extremely limited group who by the nature of their jobs are required to have more than a bowing acquaintance with orchestral scores, but to the concert going crowd in general.

There is a belief in certain quarters that programs are highly valuable devices for settling the minds of their readers, that many a concert goer deprived of his program might possibly hazard the guess that a certain symphony in performance might be by Beethoven—or perhaps Brahms—but that its number, key, or other identifying label would probably be a mystery until the program turned up.

There is no such desire in these remarks to lift a scornful eyebrow over such conditions, merely to suggest that, since the conditions exist, there is a way out of them. It lies through the revolving disks of the phonograph records.

Victor is releasing a work that has been anticipated for some time and is just now being made public. It is Brahms' second symphony in D major, opus 73, as recorded from the playing of the Philadelphia orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. It requires six double faced disks and classifies in the Victor list as Musical Masterpiece series, Album M-82.

Knowing Means Liking.

It is an excellent illustration of what has just been talked about. With this album and a talking machine in your possession, you need never again be deceived about the Brahms' second or any part of it. Just play it a few times, repeat any disk at any part that happens to interest you, and you will have an unshakable acquaintance with it—and with better acquaintance a better liking. For the only true secret of liking music is to be acquainted with it, and acquaintance means not a thing more or less than repeated hearing.

Not that the Brahms' second is the only symphony whose friendship is to be won by phonographic means. The Victor list is astonishingly long. Brahms' other three, five by Beethoven, three by Haydn, four by Mozart, four by Tschaikowsky, and the fine one by Franck are some of the others in the catalog recorded from various orchestras and conductors, and they apply to symphonies alone.

Technically and as a matter of recording, the present release takes a high rating. There are times, it is true, when Mr. Stokowski calls up such ponderous masses of tone as to test the limitations of the delicate reproducing mechanism, but these times are few. Generally there is a highly persuasive beauty of tone, almost enough to make it worth while to listen no more deeply, but just for the sake of knowing that orchestral tone can be so beautiful. The expert specialists of the Philadelphia orchestra send out their melodic bewitchments from instruments into wax, and it returns from wax into the air again with its splendor hardly dimmed.

A Definite Personality.

It does not take many playings of the symphony to begin to realize that Leopold Stokowski is a good bit of a personality, with ideas of his own. Even in the differences between his performance and that of Mr. Stock with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, one that I have always regarded as being nearly ideal of this work, he is interesting.

Apparently, he is at times more concerned with the mood of the work than with its architectural structure. At least once in the course of the piece one begins to wonder whether he has altogether remembered the meaning of the words, allegretto grazioso [quasi andantino], with which Brahms labeled the third movement of the symphony. Gennaro Papi, conductor of the Ravinia Opera company, upon hearing this recording, commented that in one passage Stokowski forgot that he was in one room and moved to another, which was Mr. Papi's pictorial description of a somewhat abrupt change of mood of Stokowski's.

In general, however, it is good, straightforward, at times brilliant Brahms, a composer with whose interpretations Mr. Stokowski has long allied himself as a notable exponent.

Omits Speech.

When this orchestra and this composer recorded another of the Brahms symphonies, the first, I believe it was, Mr. Stokowski made an explanatory speech one record long to go with the set. This procedure has not been followed with the second. Instead there is an explanatory booklet packed with the set, no authorship credited, containing a brief biography of the composer and a brief analytical discussion.

With this, the most tuneful, least involved, easiest to grasp of the set of four, the Brahms symphonies are now complete in the Victor set. In the words of the booklet: "The tender hearted, romantic dreamer, the sober philosopher, the deeply religious Bible student, the lover of nature, the folk music enthusiast, the craftsman never content with less than perfection, the serious musican concerned not with worldly success of genuine worth, the summation of these is revealed in Brahms the composer."

Keeping Score on Smash Hits of B'way Stage

Box Office Stampede for "Fine and Dandy."

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Claims of a "smash hit"—the theatrical trade label for a show that every one wants to see the day after its opening—are being made for "Fine and Dandy," the new musical show with the eccentric and versatile Joe Cook as its star. The financial experts of Broadway are estimating that this production will gross between $43,000 and $45,000 a week at the Erlanger theater.

There is talk of adding some 138 seats to the playhouse, which would run the weekly receipts up to the neighborhood of $50,000. This is the "velvet" about which every theatrical producer dreams. The lucky manager, in this case, is Lewis E. Gensler, who has staged quite a number of shows here without getting much encouragement.

"Once in a Lifetime" is also being counted as a "smash hit," although its figures are not so impressive as those of "Fine and Dandy." This is a new comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, which is lodged at the Music Box. It is a josh on the habits of Hollywood. . . . These two shows opened on successive nights, and their success is doing much to improve the morale of the producing managers.

The latest gossip of the return of motion picture stars to the actual stage concerns Mary Pickford. She will finish her "Kiki" film in November, and will come east before the end of that month to talk things over. Before definitely deciding upon her theatrical plans, she wants to see how Maude Adams' emergence from retirement is received.

A posthumous play by William Bolitho called "Overture, 1920," will start rehearsals late next month under the direction of Mr. Connelly. It tells a story of post-war Germany, the scene being a small town during a "rising." Colin Clive, who was to have been in the London production, will head the cast, which will also include William Foran and Siegfried Rumann. The former comes out of "The Up and Up," which dies tonight. The latter is a German actor who scored last season in "The Channel Road" and "Half Gods."

The title of the new operetta by Franz Lehar has been changed from "Land of Smiles" to "Prince Chu Chang." It will open in Newark a week hence, under Shubert management. Perhaps the change was made to avoid confusion with Ziegfeld's forthcoming "Smiles." This piece by the "Merry Widow" musician is highly thought of in Europe. . . . Another change of title involves Edwin Justus Mayer's "Children of Darkness." It will be called "Knave and Queen" in London, where it will be staged at the Ambassador as a successor to the long running "Man in Possession."

Wallace Ford will probably be chosen for the Chicago cast of "Lysistrata," in the rôle acted here by Ernest Truex. When he gets into classic Greek drama the billboards ought to stop calling him "Wally."

Dwight Deere Wiman, partner with William A. Brady Jr. in staging the first "Little Show," announces that a play called "The Vinegar Tree" will be his first independent production. It was written by Paul Osborn, and once upon a time Jed Harris had a mild interest in its future. Mary Boland will be its star. The plot of "The Vinegar Tree" might be called "quadrangular." It deals with an artist, a middle aged woman, her married sister and the married sister's daughter.

The show called "Sky High" seems to have separated the Howard brothers, Willie and Eugene, who are the Castor and Pollux of the musical diversions. Eugene has notified the management that it doesn't contain a rôle that suits him, so Willie, the more gifted Howard, will carry on alone, filling the place of Bert Lahr. People with tenacious memories about such matters are saying that this is the first time the Howards have been professionally parted for five years. Willie then performed in "Sky High," and Eugene stayed on the coaching line to manage the show.

The "Garrick Gayities" company, which the Theater Guild will send on tour, is to be headed by William Holbrook and Doris Vinton. A week or two on the subway circuit will probably precede its departure.

THIRD LITTLE GIRL

EVANGELINE RALEIGH.

THE new operetta at the Great Northern has three heroines, to live up to its title of "Three Little Girls." Miss Raleigh is the third or littlest girl, qualifying as a soubrette where her elders, Natalie and Bettina Hall, are operatic prima donnas. She is a blithe lassie with a gift for the dance, and she helps to keep the merriment bubbling. This is her third visit to Chicago in three years. Last season she was the leading woman in "Fioretta."

Talkies Must Coax Children Back or Face Empty Theaters

By Tom Pettey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Back in the days before the screen learned to talk children used to flock to the movies and leave a lot of ten and twenty-five cent pieces with the blonde cashiers who sat so haughtily in those show window glass cages. Their patronage was appreciated and they were allowed to clap and cheer their favorite actors and actresses, eat peanuts, and make as much noise as they desired.

Then along came the talkies, and somebody introduced the producers to a word they never heard of before. The word was "sophisticated," and the producers have been so busy since that time trying to learn to spell it that they have forgotten all about the little folks.

The pictures began to take on the "Hollywood touch" or the "Broadway atmosphere," and any one with even a wire basket head knows there is nothing in either place to interest the normal youngster. They missed the good old riding, hard shooting kid interest pictures and the movies began to miss the youngsters.

Juvenile Features.

Having driven the children away from the pictures, men now are trying to drive them back. There is a great move on to bring them back to the movie houses.

Among the producers who have mapped whole programs of juvenile features is Sono Art World-Wide Pictures, Inc. Sono is shipping George W. Weeks to the west coast to start work on the series. The first will be "Hell Bent for Frisco."

There will be a couple of aviation stories, a railroad thriller, a race track picture, a story of the northwest mounted police, another of a rodeo in the southwest, one about the white uniformed surgeon who rides on the back of clanging ambulances, and another concerning the adventures of an automobile racer.

Offer Free Dancing Lessons.

Publix houses away out west have been offering free dancing lessons to the boys and girls to get them under their roofs. Here in the east attempts have been made to tie up with schools by staging essay writing contests, with free tickets as the prizes. Here in New York tons of ice cream have been given away, and while it was intended as an adult puller, the exploitation idea has brought a lot of children into the picture houses.

It is the new serial that will be with us early in the fall, however, that the picture people are basing their hopes on.

The theater world magazine, Variety, in a recent issue, estimates that 5,000,000 children have quit going to the movies in the last year.

"Psychologists, prominent college professors, kindergarten specialists, parent-teacher organizations," says the magazine, "all have been enlisted in the industry's effort to arrive at a formula which will start the kiddies coming back.

Laboratory Findings.

"In the course of this research school laboratories are actually coming into existence, being conducted at Horace Mann's, where not only students there of all ages but others are being assembled into a class of 500.

"Interrogations concerning certain pictures are being made."

The producers in their investigations so far have found that the children are:

More particular about their plot and action of a picture than most adults.

Uninterested in romance or "it" pictures.

Eager for bona fide action and suspense, such as is found in "The Black Pirate" or "Jack the Giant Killer" but not interested in a steady diet of these pictures.

Interested in most western pictures, railroad aventures and in airplane pictures when the war is not overly stressed.

Checking Up on Career of Miss Cornell

How Star of "Dishonored Lady" Found Fame.

KATHARINE CORNELL, who will appear at the Harris theater tomorrow night in "Dishonored Lady," is often called the foremost American actress of the present day. She was born in Germany, where her father, Dr. P. C. Cornell of Buffalo, N. Y., was pursuing postgraduate medical studies.

Dr. Cornell, an amateur actor of ability, later became director and manager of Buffalo's Star and Majestice theaters. His daughter evinced an early interest in the stage, directing the dramatic club at a girls' school in Mamaroneck and then going to New York, where she was given a two line part in the Washington Square Players' production of "Bushido."

After appearing in several plays with this group, Miss Cornell became a member of the Jessie Bonstelle stock company in Detroit, toured with a William A. Brady production, and the following year went to England to play the part of Jo in "Little Women." Returning to America, she appeared in "The Man Outside" and "Nice People" and scored a hit in "A Bill of Divorcement." From then on, her rise was rapid.

She became one of the most sought-after actresses on the American stage, but refused to be starred until the production of Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat." She rose steadily with her characterization of Mary Fitton in "Will Shakespeare"; Laura Pennington in "The Enchanted Cottage"; Henriette in "Casanova"; Shirley Pride in "The Way Things Happen"; Lalage Sturdee in "The Outsider"; Suzanne Chaumont in "Tiger Cats"; Iris March in "The Green Hat"; Leslie Crosby in "The Letter," and, last season, Countess Olenska in "The Age of Innocence."

She is married to Guthrie McClintic, whom she met when he was stage director of the Bonstelle company. Mr. McClintic has directed her in many rôles.

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Here is a catalogue of the new plays among which the town's first nighters will pick and choose next week:

"One, Two, Three" opens tomorrow night at Henry Miller's theater. This is a new Molnar comedy already acted in Berlin, Budapest, and other central European cities. Sidney Howard has made the English adaptation, and Arthur Byron will have the leading rôle in a company which will further include Audrey Dale, Reginald Mason, John Williams, Joan Carr, Camilla Crume, and A. P. Kaye. "One, Two, Three" is a short play, and it will be preceded by another Molnar comedy, "The Violet." Ruth Gordon will head the cast of the curtain-raiser.

"Mrs. Moonlight" opens tomorrow night at the Charles Hopkins theater. Mr. Hopkins is starting a subscription season with a play by the English Benn W. Levy, who has had at least one of his previous works produced over here and is the adapter of "Topaze." Haidee Wright, Edith Barrett, Guy Standing, Vernon Kelso, and Leo G. Carroll will be in the cast.

"Bad Girl" opens tomorrow night at the Hudson theater. This is a dramatization of Vina Delmar's novel. Miss Delmar and Brian Marlow wrote it, and the players will include Sylvia Sydney and Paul Kelly.

"Mr. Gilhooley" opens Tuesday night at the Broadhurst theater. Jed Harris' production of a play fashioned from Liam O'Flaherty's novel. Frank Elser made the adaptation and Helen Hayes and Arthur Sinclair will be starred in a company which includes Maire O'Neill, Barry McCollum, John A. Butler, Charles Kennedy, P. J. Kelly, and Ralph Cullinan.

ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

IN NEW YORK.

"A Farewell to Arms" has finally, after its tryout, reached the passionate pavements of Broadway. The dramatization was done by Laurence Stallings, coauthor of "What Price Glory" and parent of "The Big Parade." Mr. Stallings' own novel about the war, "Plumes," was a bitter, fine piece of work. It had something of the same irony and beauty of "A Farewell to Arms."

ANTON CHEKOV.

If the production is as great a success as it may well be, Stallings dramatization will be published by some up and coming firm. Meanwhile, armchair playgoers have their source material in Ernest Hemingway's masterpiece, and when we say masterpiece we mean just that. It is one of the few authentically great novels of our day, and strangely enough, it has been so recognized not only by the critics but by the public. I say "strangely enough" because it has a theme which has caused much adverse comment among those readers who are more interested in what an author writes about than in his art of presentation. To many readers it is the most touching, poignant love story they have almost ever encountered, but to others it is repellent. However, those remote and indefinable creatures the "man in the street" and the "woman in the home" have taken it wholly to their hearts.

It was the only novel of last year which attained a sale of 100,000 or more without the help of being selected by one of the book clubs. It had reached that astonishing sale eight weeks after its publication. Its popularity was the more surprising because Ernest Hemingway, although highly and even extravagantly praised by the critics and the cognoscenti, had the handicap of being considered "literary" and a writer rather for the discriminating few than for the eager many. The fate of "A Farewell to Arms" [as a novel] proves that a really fine, human piece of work does find its public.

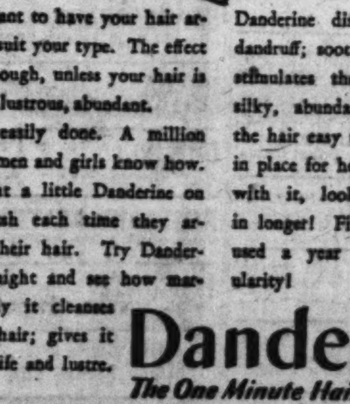
"Uncle Vanya," which is being revived in New York, is a gift to armchair playgoers. The acting version has been published. The translation and adaptation, which has been hailed by every one as a particularly creative interpretation of Chekov's genius, was done by Rose Caylor, who is in private life Mrs. Ben Hecht.

The text of the play is preceded by some twenty-five pages of introduction which she calls a "word" on Anton Chekov and which is a great many words on the play itself and reviewers, and smart cracks at both in the style of her famous husband, but without his fundamental rightness in his thrusts. It is a silly introduction and makes all the more remarkable the really fine job she did of adapting the play.

You know little more about Chekov when you have finished it than you did before, except for such sentences as "The entire play is pitched in this mood of gentle exaggeration; the characters are revealed as Dickens and Gogol revealed them, in the unmistakable colors of comedy," or: "Chekov will always remain to the book ART, and to the enlightened, entertainment."

More Operettas.

Sigmund Romberg, composer of "Nina Rosa," has agreed to write another operetta to be produced by the Messrs. Shubert. The book and lyrics will be by Otto Harbach and Irving Cæsar. Mr. Romberg has a contract to write two more screen operettas for Warner Brothers, but he will compose the stage work before going to Hollywood again.



Lovely Valerie Raemier, one of Ziegfeld's girls, wears the BEAUTY BOB. PROPER CARE keeps her hair in such wonderful condition.

"Hair that fairly sparkles with new life and lustre!"

It's important to have your hair arranged to suit your type. The effect is lost, though, unless your hair is kept soft, lustrous, abundant.

This is easily done. A million busy women and girls know how. They put a little Danderine on the brush each time they arrange their hair. Try Danderine tonight and see how marvelously it cleanses your hair; gives it new life and lustre.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; soothes, heals the scalp; stimulates the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. Waves "set" with it, look nicer and stay in longer! Five million bottles used a year proves its popularity!

Color must come before the powder

AND POWDER MUST BLEND WITH THE SKIN

THE natural skin tone you hear so much about today cannot be had with bargain counter powder. For in this day and age no sophisticated woman relies on her powder box for color. Color must come first and the powder that goes on top must actually blend with the skin . . . That new Beige powder from Primrose House is the favorite in smart circles today because it is exactly the right shade and texture for that natural effect. So fine, it actually becomes a part of the skin. It does not cake or clog the pores nor does it ever leave the face spotty or hard as do the very light or extra dark shades. Costly? Perhaps. But you can easily learn its worth by buying a dollar's worth of this $3 powder.

At all better class drug and department stores, in boxes, $1 and $3. Primrose House, 595 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

most versatile young men. He began as a writer of popular songs ["Keep the Home Fires Burning" was one of his] and drifted into the writing of sketches for reviews. He took to melodramas after that, doing a series with Constance Collier about an underworld hero known as "The Rat." Finally he became an actor, and since then has become more or less internationally known on the screen.

Ivor is playing the hero in his own piece over here, and making a fair job of it. His comedy is really two plays in one. As their plots are in no way intertwined, the assumption is natural that all he hoped to show was the contrasted lives that are often lived in adjoining flats, the easy juxtaposition of comedy and tragedy.

Comedy vs. Tragedy.

In the flat above, as Mr. Novello relates it, live the Kennards. He is a composer and she was a dancing girl he met and loved at a masked ball. She broke her engagement to another man and for a time they were happy. Then the composer went to work on a prize symphony and the wife sought relaxation with a former love.

Tragedy comes when the composer loses his eyesight through strain and they tell him he has won the symphony prize, even though he hasn't. He discovers the truth over the radio and also the trick his wife and her friend have been playing him. He casts her off, but in the end she comes back to stay until he regains his eyesight.

In the flat below the contrasting comedy is that of an affected and ambitious mother who is trying to keep a flirtatious daughter unmarried. It is broad comedy, expertly played by Lillian Braitwaite, but still somewhat too extravagant to be generally popular.

The Novello engagement has not started any too well, but neither, for that matter, has any other. A break in the weather would help.

Another Unhappy Composer.

Dr. Louis Anspacher, lecturer on the drama, has not been represented by a play in the theater for seven or eight years. It was with "The Unchastened Woman" that he made his last definite impression as a playwright.

Now, with George M. Cohan as his producer, he comes forward with an experiment in psychological drama. His piece is called "The Rhapsody," and also concerns the adventure of an unhappy composer. [I am pleased that we are having a run on unhappy composers for a change. I got awfully tired of unhappy novelists and ambitious journalists.]

The weakness of "The Rhapsody" is its failure to carry the auditor's imagination out of the theater. It is considerably too artificial a piece for the theater's familiars and a bit heavy and obscure for the crowd.

The study is of Lodar Baron, a sensitive Austrian who came out of the war suffering a severe nervous shock. As an officer he had refused to shoot down innocents. Because of his refusal he stood in the way of a court-martial that would have sentenced him to death. He escaped court-martial because his mistress, as the price of his release, gave herself to the German brute who could have preferred charges.

Obsessed with Revenge.

Now, twelve years later, still mentally confused, Lodar wanders unhappily about, convinced that some day he must meet and kill that German officer who had humiliated him. Somewhere inside his mind has grown up another man who is determined upon this revenge.

The psychologist called to cure the unhappy hero finally becomes convinced Lodar's real trouble is a suppressed fear of the German for whom he is searching. To dispel that fear he manages to bring the German and Lodar face to face. True to his oath, Lodar gets his revolver and fires two cartridges at his old enemy—cartridges from which the doctor has thoughtfully removed the bullets.

This and other adventures serve to clear the Lodar mind, and there is a somewhat obscurely reasoned conclusion that it was from his suffering while he had murder in his heart that Lodar developed his genius as a composer. Not hard to believe, in one way, that a murder urge could beget jazz music. We have long known there must be some excuse for it.

Uncertain Future.

Louis Calhern and his wife, Julia Hoyt, play the leads in "The Rhapsody." He is particularly good and she is happier than usual as the sympathetic mistress. In the love plot the mistress renounces Lodar to a pretty ingénue who is his true love when his mind is clear. The ingénue is prettily played by Natalie Schafer.

I have not much hope for "The Rhapsody."

Voice of the Fan

Dear Miss Tinée: It was a delight to read Jean Foster's letters, and I indorse her opinion of Chester Morris. It seems that no matter how beautiful the girl is who plays opposite Chester Morris, or what a wonderful actress she happens to be, the picture always belongs to him. He's just "that kind of a man."

As far as I'm concerned Chester Morris is the whole motion picture world to me, so please have a picture of him published soon, won't you?

I am an ardent movie fan, and your daily column is a wonderful help to me.

Remember, I'll be waiting for that picture. Yours sincerely,

JO LANE.

Editor's note—We'll try to oblige.

Mae's a Puritan.

Dear Mae: I feel it almost a duty to call P. J. Lanus' attention to the fact that this space is reserved ONLY for criticism and to go beyond that is extremely out of place.

I could excuse you, Mae, for liking some pictures which I don't like, but I can not excuse anybody who would call a LADY names through the mail or otherwise.

I am so glad that you are a Puritan. There are so few left, you see.

So far I have liked all the pictures which you thought were good with the exception of the last picture in which Gary Cooper played. I forget the name of it. Am glad that you aren't one of the boop-adoop fans.

LILA.

Editor's note: Thank you, ma'am!

Golden Voiced Novarro.

Dear Miss Tinée: You state in your criticism of "The Call of the Flesh" that God never made Ramon Novarro to sing the lament from "Pagliacci." Well, right you are! Why should so charming a personality be submerged in grease paint, and why should a golden voice that was made to tell of love and laughter be wailing laments, and why should an esthetically perfect body be contorted and convulsed after the Pagliacci manner? I don't agree with you that Ramon can't, but I do agree that he shouldn't. He should leave this to the less fortunate ones who are glad to hide an ugly face and form.

Ramon Novarros are rare on the screen, and they should not go unappreciated. There is altogether too much recognition given to tottering old men—like John Barrymore—who think they can still create the illusion of love's young dream, or babbling imbeciles like Jack Oakie.

Your agreeable way of saying nothing in particular has gained you much allegiance, but from today on you are short one member. V. E. K.

Editor's note: Sorry—good-by!

duction of "Good News." Miss Lawlor adds the romantic touch as the little girl who washes dishes while her sorority sisters dance, and Miss McNulty is the same tomboy she was on the stage. Stanley Smith, in the romantic lead, is, like all musical comedy heroes, nice looking, but colorless.

'TIS SAID THAT the beauteous Corinne Griffith [Mrs. Walter Morosco] is now in Nice and is expecting a visit from the stork.

GEORGE ARLISS' NEXT is to be "The Ruling Passion," written by Booth Tarkington and based on the book by Earle Derr Biggers.

FILM DAILY gives out the following dope on the interesting and heretofore perplexing question as to who originated the animated cartoons that so many audiences chuckle at these days. "Emile Reynaud, a Frenchman, is responsible, his first cartoon on paper being shown at the Musee Grevin in Paris in 1892 . . . the first cartoon on film is touted to be by Winsor McKay, originally shown in a New York theater."

OLGA BACLANOVA, who has been so much TNT to many of the stalwart heroes of the screen, is just "Mama" to Young Nicholas Sousanin Jr. He weighed 9 pounds on his arrival, approximately three weeks ago.

FROM FLORABLE MUIR—the New York News Hollywood correspondent—"About 500 dogs, cats, parrots and other pets that formerly belonged to movie stars lie at rest in the Los Angeles pet memorial park. The most pretentious grave is that of Kabar, Rudolph Valentino's dog, which is reported to have died of a broken heart grieving for its master. Others who have pets buried there are Gloria Swanson, Marie Dressler, Dolores Del Rio, Corinne Griffith, Clarence Brown, and Oscar Strauss."

Two young mothers of filmdom are rumored to be about to make their comebacks—Eleanor Boardman is preparing to do "The Great Meadow," and Norma Shearer is to start a new film soon.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

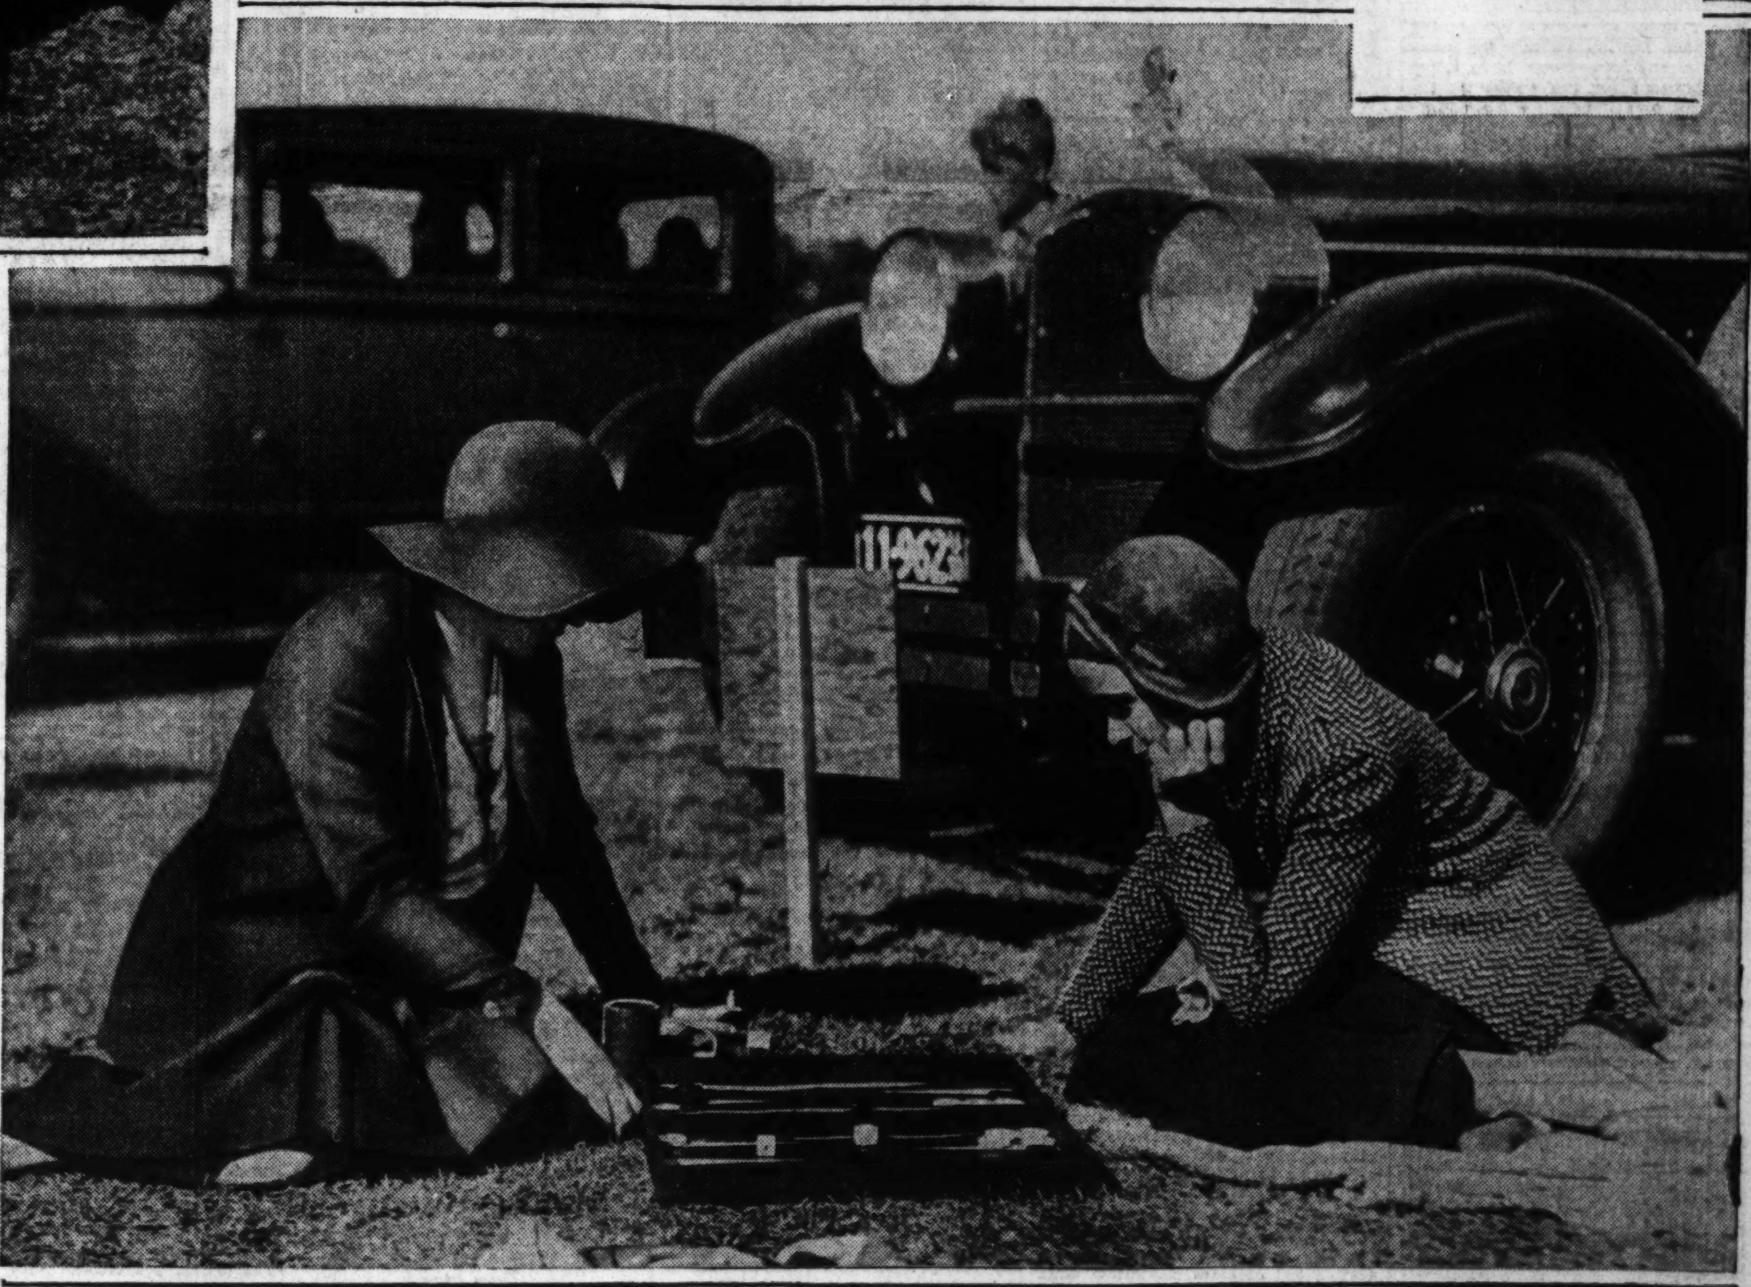
SPORTS ENTHUSIASTS AT STEEPLECHASE

MISS LYDIA SWIFT, MISS HELEN CASTLE, and MISS JEAN WILHELM

MRS. EARLE H. REYNOLDS, MRS. EDWARD S. HASLER, and MRS. PRENTISS L. COONLEY [TRIBUNE Photos.]



MRS. MERRILL HUBBARD and MRS. GEORGE F. McLAUGHLIN

SOCIETY attended the exciting Onwentsia Hunt steeplechase on Sept. 20 in great numbers. Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds, Mrs. Edward S. H asler, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Prentiss L. Coonley of Great Barrington, Mass., and New York City, formerly of Lake Forest, wer eamong the spectators who used their motors for bleachers. Miss Lydia Swift, Miss Helen Castle, and Miss Jean Wilhelm were among the sub-debs present, and Mrs. George F. McLaughlin and Mrs. Merrill Hubbard took time out between races to have a game of modern backgammon, a smartly popular pastime just now.

Pendulum of Social Activity Starts Vigorous Swinging

By Mlle. X.

THE winter season here doesn't really open for another month or so, when the first night of opera fires the official starting gun, but a peep at the engagement calendar of any one of our energetic Chicago feminines, young or old, might easily give you the idea that it was already well under way.

Each day's sheet is filled with appointments—with board and committee meetings for a dozen philanthropic undertakings and benefits, fittings for smart new frocks, sessions with decorators over the remodeling of town ménages, and the usual run of luncheons, teas, and dinners to celebrate the return of summer voyagers and the arrival of out of town guests. The pendulum of social activity is beginnin gto swing back towards town, but there are many of our fashionable folk who postpone coming in until well into the autumn. The hunting crowd, of course, stays out in the country until the first snow flies, and a number of owners of beautiful country places prefer not to close them until the last possible moment.

Hunt Meet Postponed.

Speaking of hunting, the first meet at Milburn was put off last Sunday because the ground was so dry and hard that riding to hounds would have been too dangerous. Daring is one thing, and Chicago riders have it in plenty, but foolhardiness is wisely ruled off the books. The date for the opening hunt will be decided on when there's been enough rain to soften the adamantine heart of the countryside.

The summer's drought has brought sadness to garden lovers hereabout, as well as to the equestrians. The earth is so baked that transplanting is a real problem, especially where sizable trees and shrubs are concerned, and the loss of pet evergreens and other garden favorites—with the necessity of replacing them to create lovely effects for next year—is running up into good round figures.

Mrs. Leverett Thompson, who has one of the choice places in Lake Forest, returned from the east a few days ago to find her head gardener in despair over the situation. Mrs. Clyde Carr, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Walter Brewster, and Mrs. William P. Martin are only a few of the other anxious chatelaines of charming estates who are hoping for dispensations in the near future from the rain gods.

A Cheerful Reunion.

With her daughter, Laura, Mrs. Thompson skipped off to New York earlier this month for a pleasant gathering of several members of the talented Poole clan. One of her brothers is the well known writer, Ernest Poole, and another is that distinguished painter, Abram Poole. They and their respective families, and two nieces, Frances and Marion McFadden [daughter of Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, the former Marion Poole] were all due to return from various summer wanderings, abroad and elsewhere, so the occasion turned into a cheerful reunion, with much comparing of experiences and chatting over of plans for the coming weeks.

One of these plans is Abram Poole's coming visit to this part of the world. He was here at the beginning of the summer visiting his sister, Mrs. Thompson, and during his stay he painted portraits of two of his Chicago nieces—Miss Laura Thompson and Miss Barbara Poole, daughter of the Ralph Pooles.

The paintings are a delight to their owners, and form the piece de resistance in the two parental drawing rooms at present, although that of Laura has already done a bit of traveling, as it was sent on to New York in August to be hung in an exhibit.

While Mr. Poole was here in July he hoped to start on the murals he is to do in the Wayne Chatfield-Taylor house in Lake Forest, but the remodeling of the hall with its handsome new paneling was not far enough along for him to accomplish much.

I should think he would have been more than a little relieved at the delay, as we were going through some of our hottest weather just then, and it's no fun perching atop a ladder and trying to be artistic—no matter how able and clever you may be—when the thermometer hovers around a hundred. At any rate, he returned to the east, did some painting in Boston, and is now getting ready to come back here to go on with his work.

The two McFadden girls had been in Europe with their mother and married sister, Mrs. Edward P. Lay—they're seasoned travelers, those four, and have a perfectly grand time together on their annual outings—but returned ahead of the other pair, who have now sailed for this country. Her

Society Awaits Horse Shows in New York

By Nancy Randolph.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—[Special.]—This is the period of changes and of autumn horse shows. Next week will find every one attending the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Piping Rock horse show at Locust valley, and the colors of the frocks will vie with the coloring of the trees that border the pretty grounds of the most swagger club on Long Island.

This year's show is to have no less than 61 classes, with most of the horses to be shown by their owners or amateur riders, and the entries will give more than an inkling of what we will see in November when the national once again invades Madison Square Garden.

Harvey S. Ladew is chairman of the executive committee, with the other members including Dean Bedford, William C. Langley, F. Skiddy Von Stade, and David Dows.

Among those who will exhibit on Oct. 2, 3 and 4 are Harry I. Nicholas, Thomas Hitchcock, George E. Fahys, Frederic P. Moore, George Bullock, Lawrence Smith Butler, F. Ambrose Clark, William R. Coe, Paul D. Cravath, Joseph Davis, Francis P. Garvin, W. Russell Grace, Thomas Hitchcock Jr., Walter Jennings, Edward D. Morgan, John S. Phipps, Herbert L. Pratt, Sir Ashley Sparks, S. Bryce Wing and Harry Payne Whitney.

Eastward Migration.

Changes, of course, include a continuation of the changing outlines of society's abodes. Houses are much in disfavor at present and it would seem as if all the notables had decided at one time not only to abandon Fifth avenue but cast a dark eye on Park avenue as well.

Most of us have fallen greatly in love with the far east side, right close to the river itself. Ever since Mrs. Vanderbilt Sr., Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and several others picked upon Sutton place as a pied-à-terre there has been a slow but continuous migration eastward. Where once were nothing but breweries and gas houses are now arising huge apartment houses with great suites of duplex and triplex nature.

WHEN CHICAGO WAS YOUNG

BY HERMA CLARK

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, July 17, 1874.

DEAR JULIA:

Well, another fire! Doesn't it seem as if we had had enough of disaster? Of course, this isn't nearly so bad as the Fire of 1871. We always spell that fire with capital letters. But this one is bad enough. The loss in dollars and cents is supposed to be about four million dollars.

Most of the buildings burned this time were small frame structures, built a score of years ago, with a few brick and stone buildings, and here and there a church or manufactory of considerable value. The buildings were dry as tinder and when under headway the fire was uncontrollable. Will says a pailful of water would have quenched it at first, but there was delay in sounding the alarm, and a long delay before the engines arrived.

Many people on Michigan avenue moved their lares and penates out on the sidewalk, fearful that the flames would reach them, but little damage was done so far east. Mr. Scammon and the Oceanic building, the latter at the corner of Michigan avenue and Congress street, both suffered, but the fire was checked here. The area embraced by the flames was from 12th street north to Van Buren and from Clark street east to Wabash avenue, twenty acres in extent.

The First Baptist church, which stood near the corner of Wabash avenue and Hubbard court, is a ruin. The Jones public school is an ash heap. Mandel Brothers four story store was burned. So was the Adelphi theater. Mr. Horace White, editor of THE TRIBUNE, was burned out at 403 Wabash avenue. His house was owned by Mr. Alfred Cowles, also of THE TRIBUNE. This is the second time Mr. White has gone through fire, for his beautiful Michigan avenue home was burned in 1871.

It is discouraging to have this second calamity, but at least some bad resorts have gone. Low lived places, a stench in the nostrils of decent people for years, are no more. You have doubtless read, even in New York papers, of dark happenings in "The California Gem," "The White Swan," "The Thorny Rose," "The Peach Blossom," and "The Dew Drop Inn." These, happily, are things of the past. The land will be built on by better buildings now.

You see, the fire of 1871 did not burn this section, so these shacks have persisted. Since the disaster that ruined so much of the city, the fire ordinances have been much stricter, and brick or stone are required in fire limits. There is talk now of making them even more rigorous—that is, having the fire limits coincide with the city limits. But, at any rate, frame buildings will not be tolerated so near downtown.

You should have seen Lake park tonight. It looked like a Gypsy camp, for it was filled from end to end with homeless people, huddled about the few remaining articles of bedding and furniture which they had saved. Much of the burned district was populated by Negroes and a good many Jewish immigrants. All these poor people were lamenting their misfortunes with loud voices.

The Relief and Aid society and the Young Men's Christian association have done valiant work in relieving the suffering.

We were very glad that our friends, the Blairs and the Dunhams, who live quite near the burned district, were spared. This is the second time they have had a close call; for the fire of 1871 came within almost a block of them, as did this one. Both families are out of town just now. The Dunhams are in Europe and Mrs. Dunham writes of visiting the salon and seeing some fine portraits of G. P. A. Healy's, of whom Chicago is so proud. He has a portrait of Elihu B. Washburne on view there, as well as one of Pope IX. and M. Thiers, ex-president of the French republic.

July 20.

I will add a little to my letter before sending it off. Will is having a visit with his friend, Arthur Dixon, in the parlor, and I have been sitting in there listening in horror to all the dreadful stories they are telling of political conditions in Chicago. From all they say, Chicago is in a terrible situation, being completely in the hands of gamblers and crooks.

You may have heard the name of our gaming overlord, Mike McDonald. His fame, I am sorry to say, is widespread. Will and Mr. Dixon say he is a most influential man in politics here at this time. He has been in Chicago for ten years and has his hand on many profitable gambling places in the center of the business district. At Clark and Monroe streets he owns a faro bank and saloon, where all sorts of terrible things go on. Will says the underworld gang works in this way: One of the gang finds a farmer in the big city for the first time and, learning his name, communicates it to the gang. The farmer finds himself apparently in the midst of friends and is pleased. The confidence game is tried on him. If this fails, "Three card

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Chicago friends will miss the gay and good looking Frances this winter, as she's been made one of the editors of Vogue, an important and interesting job, and will spend most of her time in New York.

* *

Private Showing of Portraits.

Apropos of things artistic, Mrs. George Corson Ellis will be the hostess tomorrow at a tea and exhibition of portraits to be given at the Lake Forest residence of her parents, the Robert J. Thornes, for another talented Gothamite, Miss Edna Frances Edell.

Miss Edell is an honor graduate of the Yale school of fine arts, where, after two years of study, she was awarded the Winchester fellowship for study in Europe—her competitors for the prize included students in the schools of architecture and sculpture, as well as other painters. Since her return from abroad she has devoted her time and energies to the portraying of children, and has spent this summer in Chicago, "doing" the youngsters of the community.

The results of her labors are to be shown tomorrow, an adorable group including the two Ellis sons, Robert and Corson; the junior Hale Holdens' youthful daughter; the Russell Kelleys' sprightly pair, grandchildren of the Stanley Fields and the William V. Kelleys; the Phelps Kelleys' son, and the Lawrence Williams' little boy; the sons of the Charles Glores, the William Spencers and the Allan Kempes, and the children of the Roy Carneys.

Horsewoman Takes Pupils.

Going back for a moment to equestrian activities in and near Chicago, I am reminded that Libby Chase, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase and one of the finest horsewoman in these parts, is so busy with her recently acquired career that she has practically no time for the merely frivolous things of life.

Some weeks ago she sent out snappy little cards announcing that she was going to give instructions in riding and the schooling of horses. At the top of each card was a pen and ink sketch done by the youngest of the Chase daughters, Janet, showing an unmistakable likeness of Libby on her hunter, Happy, with eight shaggy Shetland ponies in the foreground.

Benjamin Leslie Behr, hearing of her new venture, offered her one of his fields to use. She had the requisite number and variety of jumps put up, and hardly had everything in order before her pupils began pouring in. She says now that she had expected a few—perhaps a handful of the children of her friends—but almost immediately she found that she had every day filled and that her classes contained not only youngsters but their older brothers and sisters, and a goodly smattering of grownups.

Backgammon Popular.

Other notes of interest concerning the Chase family include the news that Mr. and Mrs. Chase have taken an apartment for the winter at the Whitehall, and that their oldest daughter, Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, is coming over from France for a two months' visit in this country. She is planning to spend half the time with her parents and the other half in New York, and is bringing only one of her children with her, as the two older ones are at school in Paris.

Mrs. Chase, by the way, is one of Lake Forest's numerous and ardent backgammon fans, as are so many of the good contract bridgers out that way. The sudden popularity of the game, revived after so many years of peaceful oblivion, is as amusing as it is interesting. I don't know how many books have been written on the subject in the last few months, but I do know it has a large and devoted following—a situation much like that during the "contract rush" a few years ago.

On every hand you'll hear chat of "blots," of the "back game," "gammons," automatic doubles, and the like, and I'm told that men are just as enthusiastic about it as women, with the Racquet club one of the favorite spots for lively competitions.

On the first page of this section there's a picture of those two attractive young matrons, Mrs. George F. McLaughlin and Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, having a game between thrills at the Onwentsia steeplechase a week ago yesterday. The former looks as if not even a sudden spill out on the field could quite take her mind off the importance of the next move.

Ex-Chicagoan Returns.

Mrs. McLaughlin has been hostess this week to an extremely popular ex-Chicagoan—Mrs. Justin Sturm, the former "Kit" McCormick, daughter of Mrs. A. A. McCormick. The Sturms moved to Connecticut a few years ago with their two sons, "Sandy" and "Dusty" (short for Alexander and Justin), where Mr. Sturm, who is a writer, might be nearer the center of things literary. Mrs. Sturm will spend a few days during her visit here with two other longtime friends of hers, Mrs. Pickett Withers and Mrs. Thomas Dennehy Jr.

The middle of this week will see the Alfred Granger family scattered to distant parts of the world. The Grangers have rented their Lake Forest house to the junior Robert Dunhams for two years and are embarking on their long sojourn on the other side of the Atlantic. After spending the winter in Vienna, they will decide what they want most to do next summer—just at present they're rather planning to go to Salzberg, to be there for the August music festivals and the Max Reinhardt productions. But they are to be pleasantly footloose during their wanderings and move pretty much as their spirit wills.

Their oldest daughter and son-in-law, the "Ted" Browns, have moved to New York to live, much to the regret of the young married group here, of which they have been a valuable part for several years. Their second daughter, Barbara, went to live in Neenah, Wis., after her marriage last year to Chester Shepherd, and their youngest daughter, Mrs. William Mitchell Blair, has been abroad all summer, and will meet her parents when they reach the other side.

League Prepares for Plays.

That up and coming group of young women, the Chicago Junior league, is hard at work these days making preparations for the opening of the Children's theater on Nov. 1—these Saturday morning plays at the Selwyn are one of the league's largest and most delightful undertakings each winter.

This year a subscription drive was inaugurated, with Margot Atkin and Margaret Quan at the head, to raise funds to put the theater on a firmer footing and to make possible a more elaborate season. Four plays will be given between November and April, instead of the usual two, with two of them, the Chauve Souris and the Indian play, written and composed by league members. Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" will be the first offering; the Chauve Souris the second, "Pinocchio" the third, and the Indian play the final presentation.

The National Junior league is helping in the production of the "Blue Bird," and the scenery and costumes are to be bought by the various leagues and shipped about from one city to another as the play is given. In a contest for the scenery and costume designs held recently five out of six scene sketches done by Mrs. Charles Lindsay III. were accepted, with Marguerite Foster's fairy palace plan chosen for the fifth act. Mrs. Lindsay and Miss Foster were also winners in the costume competition, as well as Meredith Hanley and Martha Fitts.

Letitia Channon, Jean Adams, Betty Poole, Katrina Mauff, Mary Fortune, and Mrs. Stephen Wilson are on Miss Atkin's list of sales committee chairmen in Chicago, while for the outlying districts they are as follows: Mrs. Robert McKenna, Hinsdale; Mrs. Edward Tullis, Lake Forest; Mrs. James Oates, Highland Park; Louise Lackner, Winnetka, and Mrs. George Haskell, Evanston. Mrs. Andrew Sandegrin II. is in charge of a corps of league members who will go to various club and organization meetings and to the schools to explain the subscription drive and encourage the sale of coupon books.

Low Caste Desire for Umbrellas and Shoes Causes Riot

CALICUT, Madras, India.—(AP)—A job lot of western umbrellas and shoes caused a riot on the Laccadive islands, 150 miles off the Malabar coast.

The Koyas, or aristocracy of the islands, long ago decreed that they alone might go shod and carry umbrellas but when the western shipment came in the Malumis, or sailor caste, and the Melacheris, who pick cocoanuts, decided to try dressing up.

They picked eleven Melacheris and nine Malumis to defy the old edict and it was a gala day for the strutting low castes until the Koyas chief heard about it and ordered out his spearmen. After the fight the mannequins found themselves in jail.

Any one who thinks the gangster a modern phenomenon should consider the notorious Mike McDonald, whose rule in Chicago in the seventies made the judicious grieve. He was a 19th century Capone.

By "Lake park" Martha meant what we now call Grant park.

Elihu Washburne, whose portrait by Healy, Chicago's eminent painter, hung in the Paris Salon in 1874, was grandfather of Gratiot Washburne, whose engagement to Miss Victoria Williams of Oak Park has just been announced.

Honors Vergil with Duce.

MANTAU, Italy.—(AP)—An American manufacturer, Virgil Neal, has offered a prize of 50,000 lire—$2,600—for an Italian work in verse or prose on "the heroic poem of Vergil in relation to the sentiment and ideals of Benito Mussolini." This is in connection with the 2,000th anniversary of the death of Vergil.

Jameses Leave on Aloha for Cruise in Mediterranean

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 27.—[Special Correspondence.]—Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James are now on their way to Europe aboard the Aloha. They will cruise for two months in the Mediterranean, stopping first at the Azores and then going on to Madeira, Algiers, Lisbon, Gibraltar, Morocco, Venice, Naples, Monte Carlo, and Marseilles. From Marseilles the party will return by steamer. Included in their guests are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Price and Andrew P. Alvord.

Miss Juilia A. Berwind has left here and gone to Hot Springs. Mrs. William H. Force is with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, at Chastellux.

All Newport this week tendered its congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Roderick Terry on the completion of their fifty-fifth year of wedded life. A small luncheon at Linden Gate preceded a reception which was attended by their many friends. Dr. and Mrs. Terry were married here in Newport at Linden Gate in 1875.

the junk man's cart jangled and the east side children jumped on and off the steps of the ice carts. Landing places for smart river craft come right up to the walls of the apartments and society steps from its own back door onto its own speedboat and makes the trip up river and across to its Long Island estates without having to touch the town traffic. No wonder that the river on the east is coming into great favor.

Stillman-Williams Wedding.

A wedding of great interest took place yesterday when Elizabeth Goodrich Stillman, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chauncey Stillman, because Mrs. Langbourne Meade Williams Jr. at St. John's church, at Cornwall, N. Y.

Elizabeth's brother, Chauncey Devereaux Stillman, gave the wedding reception at Kenridge, his Cornwall home, and the ceremony was performed by none other than the Right Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, assisted by the Rev. Noble C. Powell of the University of Virginia and the Rev. Dr. Percy Silver, rector of the Church of the Incarnation in New York, and the Rev. Robert Gay, rector of St John's church.

Chicago Matron of Honor.

Such an array of ecclesiastical notables hasn't been seen at a wedding in ages, and all New York journeyed up the Hudson to attend the wedding of Elizabeth and the son of the Langbourne Williamses of Richmond, Va.

Mrs. Burwell Dodd of Chicago was the matron of honor, with Barbara Schieffelin as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Louise Ireland and Mary Nicholson of New York, Susanne Williams of Richmond, Peggy Porter of Boston, and Martha Ferguson.

Frank McGuire Williams was his brother's best man, and the ushers included E. Otto Nolting Williams, George Dandridge Williams, Thomas Pinckney Jr., Egbert G. Leigh III., Allen T. Gwathmey, Frederick W. Scott Jr., George Danbridge Gibson, Joseph Bryan III., James Winston Jr., Horace N. Gilbert, J. Tyler Claiborne Jr., and R. Keith Kane.

Elizabeth Stillman is a descendant of George Stillman of Methersfield, who founded the family in this country; of William Bradford, of Mayflower fame; Samuel Wolcott, governor of Connecticut, and several other notable colonial men.

Young Williams is a descendant of Edmund Randolph, colonial governor of Virginia, and of Bartholomew Dandridge, brother of Martha Washington.

The young couple are leaving town for a honeymoon abroad and on their return will divide their time between Richmond and New York.

Newport Goes Modern.

After all the fervent declarations that Newport would never go modern the deed is about to be done. Bailey's beach, which hasn't changed since bathing suits were all-concealing, is to be thoroughly done over before next summer.

Not, of course, that the powers that be will permit modern innovations—as hot dog stands and such—but the old wooden buildings are to be done away with, new entrances made, a piazza and promenade constructed, and an additional number of bathhouses built to take care of the increasing number of notables who are flocking to Newport each summer.

For a long time the conservatives, including Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Julia Berwind, Robert Goelet, Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, and others, have frowned on efforts to modernize Bailey's. The new president, Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, however, has led the fight for improvement, and, aided by William Whitehouse, ex-Gov. "Livvy" Beeckman, and Willing Spencer, has succeeded in carrying the day.

Cottagers Linger in Southampton for Indian Summer

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Sept. 27.—[Special Correspondence.]—Most the cottagers have already left here but the Indian summer weather is keeping a number on. Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler have returned to New York together with their daughter, Sarah Schuyler Butler. Mr. and Mrs. James N. Wallace have closed Bonnie Bourne and are in New York until they leave for their winter home in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Edward H. VanIngen will remain at Mocomonta until Oct. 12. Mr. and Mrs. George Faber Downey Jr., who have been with Mrs. VanIngen, are leaving for New York this week.

Prince and Princess Edward Joseph Lobkowicz will remain here until the middle of October.

The bride and groom will go to California for their wedding trip.

Herreras Prefer Modern Touch in Colombian Palace

BOGOTA.—(AP)—Fifty rooms do not make a palace, in the opinion of President and Senora Herrera.

After the recent inauguration ceremonies Dr. Enrique Olaya Herrera, for eight years Colombian minister at Washington, and Senora Herrera walked into El Palacio, the white house of Colombia, amid much pomp and ceremony. As soon as the pomp and ceremony had died down, they got into their American limousine and hurried away to the Villa Camacho in Chapinero, a suburb.

They expect to move into El Palacio in a month or so, as soon as more bathrooms, some heating and modern kitchen furnishings have been installed. Although within 300 miles of the equator, the temperature of Bogota ranges between 50 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit, and there is no heating system in El Palacio.

The president's wife believes, however, that the great pile, with its two patios and its state dining room seating 200 guests, can be made into a real home.

Disease Kills Wild Fowl.

BOGOTA.—(AP)—Wild fowl hunters in Colombia complain that their daily bags have dropped to between 25 and 50 birds because a disease prevalent in Canada two years ago has reduced the number of feathered migrants from the north.

Cuban Women Campaign for Equal Rights

Success Seems Inevitable, Though Slow.

HAVANA.—(AP)—The trend toward greater freedom for women and the slow passing of the old Spanish tradition that their place was most emphatically in the home have united to marshal Cuba's modernized womanhood into an intelligent battle for the right to vote at all polls.

Not content with watching the "men folks" handle the whole show of governmental management, the feminists of Cuba have, through persistent effort, at last won recognition as a contending force. Now they have undertaken a campaign for full suffrage.

The Alianza Nacional Feminista, chief of Cuban women's political organizations, is leading the fight for equal rights with men throughout the provinces of the island.

Boasts a Roster of 2,000.

Although formed only two years ago, this organization boasts a roster of 2,000. Many of the names represent some of the oldest and best known families of Cuba, a fact which reflects the educational work accomplished since the days when the word "feminist" implied a sort of mannish creature who only needed trousers to complete the picture.

Heading the Alianza is Señora Maria Montalvo de Soto Navarro, a prominent member of Cuban society. Reluctant to make rash predictions or become overoptimistic, she sets no time limit on the ultimate success of the campaign.

Equal Rights Iinevitable.

"It is impossible to say when the women of Cuba will win their fight," she says. "American and English women carried on for years before their efforts bore fruit. In Cuba we can afford to wait, knowing that equal rights for women are inevitable."

Regarding the specific platform of the Alianza, Señora de Soto Navarro says that the organization is chiefly concerned with bringing Cuban women to a realization of a knowledge of their own rights.

"It is, of course, too early to center our attention entirely on congress or the senate," she declared. "First we must inculcate in the women themselves a desire for freedom. That is being done, but, naturally, we encounter a great deal of resistance from women who are still bound by Spanish tradition.

May Retain Citizenship.

"Since we have organized we have obtained passage of a law that allows a Cuban woman to retain her citizenship if she marries a man of another nationality. Now we are trying to force congress to grant a return of citizenship to those women who married into other nationalities before the passage of that law.

"Another antedated law allowed a husband to kill his wife if he found her unfaithful. This has been repealed, largely through the efforts of the Alianza.

"We have every confidence that in the near future we shall succeed in the passage of a law that allows a woman to retain her property after marriage. Under the present system she owns nothing."

League Seeks to Clarify Politics

Women Voters Offer Unprejudiced Candidate Rating, Maintain Information Booths at Election Time and Carry On Welfare Program.

By Roberta Nangle.

THE ILLINOIS LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS, the local section of the national body that has been called a league for "political preparedness," will devote itself during October to preëlection work and to a membership drive.

Perhaps the best sample of the league's efforts toward political preparedness is its preëlection activity. The October issue of the its monthly magazine, The Illinois Voter, contains records of state and national candidates compiled from questionnaires on the platform and training of the candidates. In addition, important votes of the last congress and general assembly are printed, so that the reader may check for himself the stand of his representatives. Because the league is an educational, nonpartisan body, it presents all such available information without recommendation.

Information for Voters.

In the same spirit the league will again conduct its voter's information booths in the loop and neighborhood centers. Instruction in ballot marking is given and sample ballots are distributed at these booths. Candidates' meetings, with all of the candidates for a particular office appearing on one platform; voters' schools on the structure of government, and forums on the issues of the campaign will be featured during the month at the local league meetings. Discussion of the election issues will be broadcast over W-G-N during the league's time on Monday and Wednesday afternoons.

Since the league does not indorse candidates, it is strategically placed to make an effective campaign among women of all parties on the measures it has indorsed at its national and state conventions. At the present moment the campaign for women on juries is receiving the main emphasis, for this question will be on the ballot on Nov. 4. The opening meeting of the league forum, to be held Oct. 11 at the Congress hotel, will feature this subject. Judge Leonard V. Verdi of the Superior court of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Judge John P. McGoorty will speak.

Revision of Election Laws.

Another state issue that the league will press this year will be the revision of election laws, including permanent registration such as is used in fifteen states today, and a short ballot of the office group type. As Illinois has one of the longest and most difficult ballots in the country the league leaders feel that any attempts to simplify voting and the whole election machinery should be gratefully heeded.

As for its public welfare program, the league is eagerly awaiting the report of the Illinois committee on child welfare legislation. Among other measures it is supporting is a further increase in the school distributive fund and larger school units for taxation and administration.

The Illinois league will also aid the national league in its congressional program, working for a continuation of the maternity and infancy program so effectively carried on under the children's bureau for several years. It will also support the "lame duck" amendment to the constitution which would eliminate the short session and put the will of the country, as revealed by an election, into effect more promptly.

Convention in November.

After the November election the state convention at Urbana, from Nov. 17 to 20, will be the center of interest for the league. This year the business meetings at the convention will be held in the afternoon, while the morning sessions will be given over to an institute on taxation and public finance under the direction of M. H. Hunter of the University of Illinois.

The activities of the league are known chiefly to many through its forum, which meets monthly from October to April. In November, following the October meeting on Women on Juries, there will be a discussion of the Stabilization of Industry, with Dr. William Leiserson of Antioch college as the principal speaker. In January Grace Abbott, chief or the children's bureau, will tell of the work of her department. Mrs. W. A. Roberts is president of the forum. The Week-End School of Foreign Affairs will hold its usual meetings on the fourth Saturday of every month. Prof. Quincy Wright of the University of Chicago will give a series of talks on "Our Foreign Affairs."

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

THE life member, who had recently returned from her summer home, ran into the summer affairs chairman at the dress shop they both patronized, and they stepped aside for a visit.

"I have to get something presentable for our opening reception," said the summer affairs chairman after the greetings were over. "I was too busy this summer to get any new clothes and my old ones all look pathetic."

"I heard you were busy," recalled the life member, "and that you were having all sorts of delightful affairs for the club members who remained in town. Funny, isn't it? A while back we were cutting our club year shorter and shorter each season and recently it's been getting longer and longer every year."

"Follows the trend of skirts, maybe," suggested the summer affairs chairman. "Let's see, I remember when we stopped our activities in March and started again in the late fall. The campaigning for new officers began when we seemed only to be fairly started on our year's work."

"And now you can get the members out to meetings during the whole summer!" commented the life member. "Things do change."

"Of course, our affairs were mainly social," explained the summer affairs chairman. "We had trips to places of interest, and picnics, and unique luncheons, and bridge parties. If we had talks, they were short and in the lighter vein. One night a month the husbands were invited."

"No wonder the members responded. I'll warrant the affairs saved many a one from a lonesome summer."

"Another valuable result was the friendships that sprang up. You know how some of our members stay within their own little groups. An outsider hasn't a chance. The little groups were shattered this summer. Many an adherent of one became friendly with a member of another. And now about that new gown."

Eskimos Face Extinction, Says Arctic Visitor

Writer Fears Civilization Will Erase Race.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Maude Radford Warren, writer and traveler, returned recently from a three months' journey within the arctic circle, in the northwestern part of Canada, with Aklavik as her headquarters. She traveled alone, with the aid of Indian and Eskimo guides, except when she went by airplane, the most comfortable means of travel in the northwest.

Of strong physique and indifferent to hardships, Mrs. Warren found the life of the frontier villages the "most thrilling adventure" she had known since her work in first aid stations during the war, but does not recommend the trip to the average woman traveler. "Bulldogs," or moose flies, as big as wasps and twice as voracious, impaired the pleasure of sleeping out of doors, she confesed.

Wiping Out Race.

Mrs. Warren returns an enthusiastic admirer of the Eskimo, a cheerful and industrial people, but she is alarmed lest they vanish from the northwest within fifty years. "The Eskimos are dying off in great numbers from the ravages of influenza and other diseases brought in by the white man," she said. "They have learned to eat white man's food instead of the good caribou meat and fish which used to be their chief diet. This summer I saw them eating soggy pancakes covered with syrup three times a day.

"The Indians have an arrangement with the Canadian government by which they 'take treaty,' becoming the wards of the government, and are thus guaranteed against starvation. But the Eskimos, being a more independent race, have no such arrangement. The white man could not survive within the Arctic Circle without the Eskimo and the Indian."

* *

Village Life Simple.

Mrs. Warren found village life in Aklavik charmingly simple for one who longed to escape the trivalties of modern America, but confessed she would not care to endure it permanently.

"In the winter there is no amusement at all, not even a pool table, in the entire village," she said. "They read all winter, after their day's work is done. The newspapers are brought in during the summer and they save them, in order, and read them later day by day.

"There are seven nuns in the village and five other white women connected with the Anglican missions. There is also one American woman who runs the restaurant. She is Mrs. Vincent Kost, a widow and former school teacher from North Dakota. She trades in furs with the trappers, who sleep on her kitchen floor, paying two muskrat skins for each meal. The meal consists of fish, potatoes, canned tomatoes and mince pie. Mrs. Kost also performs many other motherly tasks for the wanderers of the northwest, making their parkas and packing their rations when they start out again on the frozen trail.

Prefer Winter.

"The people in Aklavik, however, prefer the long lonesome winter to the uncertainties of summer, when strangers come poking into their peaceful village, and inspectors and all sorts of officials disturb their routine. This year they had two days of heat, 84 degrees, for which they were not prepared. The Eskimo children still clad in their caribou skins, all had the nosebleed and school had to be closed."

Mrs. Warren remained in New York just long enough to attend to business, and was off again to her home upstate, asserting that she could sleep better on the hard sand beside the Mackenzie river, in spite of the "bull dogs," than in the roar of New York's night traffic.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

What was the most embarrassing moment of your life? If you care to have it published address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Please write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

First Step in Conversation.

The opening of school always brings to mind my most embarrassing moment. At the time I had a room full of big boys, not at all interested in school, in grammar, nor me in that particular hot, sticky September morning. The boys were showing their attitude in various ways, and I was about at the end of my endurance when a new face appeared at the door. Angry at him for adding to my burden, I boiled over when I saw his jaws working.

"Put your gum in the wastebasket before you say a word to me," I began in my best school teacher voice. His flushing face, as he started to comply with my request, made be look more closely, and then I saw—no pupil, but a nice appearing young man, a book salesman for my line of textbooks.

Well, there was nothing to do but live on, but for a time living wasn't easy.

E. K.

Hasty Suggestion.

A friend and I were rummaging through some old pictures, and we came to one of hers which was unusually good looking, and showed her as having long hair.

"Why, Lois," I exclaimed, "why don't you let your hair grow? If long hair made that much improvement in me, I'd certainly let mine grow!"

Ooooooooo!

J. B.

"Limas Today."

I live in a section where the young housewives take great pride in attending personally to the thrifty, scientific running of their homes. They rather look on me, a school teacher, as incapable of handling the practical problems of housekeeping. Consequently, I make it a point of pride to be as poised and efficient as any of them.

But one day this summer I took a dime from my purse and went to the grocery store for a loaf of bread. On my way to the bread shelf I looked casually about. I was at the vegetable counter when, through the window, I observed some of my especially admired neighbors approaching. I prepared to be very brisk and nonchalant. Picking up a box of shelled lima beans I glanced over them critically—but, to my horror, as I was replacing them, they fell through a wire basket of white onions into a bin of potatoes. They were thirty cents, and I had a dime! Thinking to retrieve at least part of them, I began to hunt among the onions and potatoes—and quite forgot my approaching neighbors until an amused voice exclaimed:

"Why, Mrs. ——, are you working here?"

And I, on my knees by the potato bin, the floor about me littered with curls of white onion skin, a thinly filled box of limas in my hand and my hair in my eyes, looked up speechlessly at the neighbor I so desired to impress with my efficiency and poise!

Now, when I enter that store, I do not need the clerk's invariable greeting, "Limas today?" to remind me of my most embarrassing moment.

Sunday Evening Club Begins Its 24th Season

Barnes Tells of the Early Days of Organization.

By the Rev. John Evans.

NEXT Sunday night the Chicago Sunday Evening club begins its twenty-fourth season. During the years the ministry of the club, under Clifford W. Barnes' leadership, has become one of the notable traditions of Orchestra hall in which is centered a considerable portion of the cultural life of Chicago.

THE REV. SAMUEL A. ELIOT.

Those who read letters addressed to the club, which come from every nook and corner of the country—from the radio members, and their number increases week by week—are impressed with the religious influence Chicago radiates on Sunday evenings from Orchestra hall. Travelers to Europe return to relate Chicago's crime reputation. Over there, it is said, the constant query is, "Can any good thing come out of Chicago?"

But letters on file in Mr. Barnes' office testify to Chicago's output of religious inspiration. It has been remarked that it is a misfortune that the ether waves do not carry Chicago's religious offerings overseas to contradict foreign impressions of the city's life. Valuable as is this asset the club contributes to the city, Mr. Barnes asserts that the publicity element is far from primary in the mind of the directorate of the organization.

The club was an outgrowth of a careful study Mr. Barnes had made of Chicago's moral and religious problems. He stated that his study was made from many angles and was begun more than 30 years ago. Such points of view as would be given to a resident of Hull house, as a mission worker on the north side, as a teacher of social science at the University of Chicago and as a loop business man were all combined in Mr. Barnes' vision.

"As early as 1899, I was convinced that the loop district needed some such organization as the Sunday Evening club," said Mr. Barnes. "I even went so far as to urge, first, that the university authorities and then a group of churches undertake the task, but without avail, and as I had to leave the city shortly to become the president of Illinois college, I was in no position to push the matter."

Mr. Barnes then told of his return to the city in 1907 and of his second failure to interest the university and churches in the project. He then turned to a group of well known business men, members of the Chicago club, who undertook the project. Thus, Mr. Barnes states, the Sunday Evening club has become the spiritual enterprise of the city's business leaders rather than that of the organized religious life of the city.

While the twenty-four years point to a well established organization, the directors of the club last year began work toward a $500,000 endowment. The first move in that direction resulted from the establishment of the Charles L. Hutchison Foundation, which provides two speakers annually.

The first speaker this year—taking the place of the late Bishop Charles Palmerston Anderson, who opened the services several years—will be Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, son of the late President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard university. According to Mr. Barnes, Dr. Eliot's address will deal with the Puritan's message for today. The subject will be "Our Heritage for Christian Citizenship."

"The Trail of a Pathfinder" will be the subject of Clifford W. Barnes' informal Bible talks at the early services of the club this year. This portion of the service begins at 7 o'clock each Sunday evening and continues until the main service opens at 7:55. The Monday council of the Sunday Evening club meets at the Union League club on alternate Monday evenings at 6. The purpose of the Monday council is to extend the club activities to include young men who seek religious fellowship.

Marshall Field & Co. will furnish representatives to assist the regular ushers for the first month of the coming season. C. Ward Seabury will assist in the opening service. The officers of the club for the current year are Mr. Barnes, president; Harry A. Wheeler, first vice president; John W. O'Leary, Horace W. Armstrong, Richard C. Hall, Elmer T. Stevens, vice presidents; Edward L. Ryerson Jr., secretary, and Solomon A. Smith, treasurer.

Episcopal church laymen from all sections of northern Illinois will gather at Doddridge farm, the Budd Memorial home near Libertyville, next Friday, Oct. 3, for a three day conference on their work as members of the church. Work of the Episcopal church, nationally and locally, will be discussed.

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, new bishop coadjutor of the Chicago diocese, will outline his ideas as to the opportunities which are open to the church in Chicago and ways and means which he has to suggest for taking advantage of these opportunities. Bishop Stewart will speak at the opening session Friday night. Saturday morning, the Rev. Frederick G. Deis, field secretary of the national Episcopal council, will speak and Bishop Stewart will deliver his second address. Saturday afternoon will be devoted to recreation.

The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, rector of Christ church, Winnetka, and associate secretary of the national Episcopal field department, is scheduled to speak Saturday evening at 5 o'clock. Saturday night Col. R. G. Peck, vestryman of St. James' cathedral, will be on the program.

The conference, sponsored by the department of ways and means of the Chicago diocese, will close Sunday afternoon. It is intended as a preliminary to launching the annual canvass in each parish throughout the diocese.

Lectures and Shows Fill Art Calendar in Chicago

"SPRING," by Frances Badger, a mural panel, the fifth of a series of panels recently installed in the Joliet township high school in Joliet, Ill. These delightful murals, all of them decorative and rich in brilliant tones of reds and yellows and warm browns, are placed along the wall directly above the entrance into the school auditorium and opposite the staircase leading up from the main entrance into the school building. Miss Badger has achieved a significantly attractive effect. Her fertile imagination and vivid brush have united in making the decorations remarkably appropriate and inspiring.

Frank Lloyd Wright Talks of Particular Interest to Those with Architectural Leanings; New Exhibits Announced Daily as Fall Season Gets Under Way.

By Eleanor Jewett.

IN all probability the most significant event of this week will be the lectures to be given by Frank Lloyd Wright on Wednesday and Thursday at the Art institute. The Wednesday lecture is to be addressed primarily to the young men in architecture. Mr. Wright will speak on "The New Architecture" at 2:30 o'clock in Fullerton hall. He is well qualified to discuss his subject from every angle. His is an international reputation. His name is familiar in Berlin and Tokio, as familiar as it is in the United States, not excepting Chicago's north shore which runs riot [almost] with houses constructed to his designs.

The second of Mr. Wright's lectures will be given Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Goodman theater. Admission to the lecture is by ticket, but without charge. Tickets may be obtained at the desk in the main lobby of the Art institute. Mr. Wright will speak on "In the Realm of Ideas."

In conjunction with the lectures there is now current in the Art institute an exhibit of architectural designs and models by Frank Lloyd Wright which will continue to Oct. 12.

Two Interesting Exhibits.

Opening next Wednesday in the Chicago galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, an exhibition of fifty water color paintings by Richard A. Chase may be seen until Oct. 22. This is the first exhibit of the new season in this gallery. Mr. Chase has exhibited frequently in the last several years and during the last three he has been an exhibitor in the international water color show at the Art institute.

This history of Chicago in pictures is a new departure, a colorful adventure into the land of facts showing how imagination and beauty has been put into the commonplace by those who have worked in and for Chicago during the last decade. The water colors also show that there are beauty and color little dreamed of by the man in the street in things he passes every day with eyes shut to their significance. Mr. Chase gives impetus to our vision in providing this outlet to his own enthusiasm.

Francis Chapin, who won the Bryan Lathrop traveling scholarship a year or so ago in the annual school competition at the Art institute, a scholarship which enabled him to study in France and Italy and England, has just concluded an exhibit of oils, lithographs and water colors in the Interfraternity clubrooms on the eighteenth floor of the La Salle hotel. Mr. Chapin was awarded the Hallgarten prize in the National Academy of Design in New York last spring. He has exhibited in Paris. At our Art institute in various exhibits his work has won him the Englewood Women's club prize and the Tuthill prize in water color.

A card from Quebec gives the news that Glen Sheffer, Chicago painter and a member of the Palette and Chisel club, plans a possible exhibit in Chicago this winter. He and Mrs. Sheffer are on a long motor trip given over to sightseeing and sketching. From Quebec they go to New Brunswick, then Nova Scotia, then through the New England states and finally down the long run to California.

Delightful Travel Talk.

Anita Willets-Burnham gave her delightful travel talk, "Around the World with Paint Box and Family of Six," last Sunday at the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. An exhibit of pictures painted during her travels is at the club. Her young daughter, a painter of ability, also shows a number of vivid canvases.

Florence White Williams has been in Boothbay Harbor, Me., this fall, painting "boats and seas and New England houses."

Increase Robinson, well known for her clever and immensely alive modern work in painting and also for her illuminating and interesting talks on art, is opening a studio gallery on Diana court in the Michigan Square building, North Michigan avenue just south of Ohio street. Exhibitions and students will make the studio a welcome addition to Chicago's art life.

John David Brcin in the Tree Studio building is gradually bringing to fulfillment his mural designs for the magnificent Joslyn Memorial building to be erected in Omaha at a cost of $3,000,000. The architects of the building are John McDonald and Alan McDonald. Mr. Brcin is busy with eight panels, four of which he has finished, one large panel, two giant equestrians, and three pairs of doors. It is a job of five years' time. Mr. Brcin is an able sculptor and in his hands the pattern of decoration is safe.

Mississippiana Show.

Stuyvesant Van Veen, the young New York artist here last winter with a clever exhibit in the Ackermann gallery, writes that he is back from a trip down the Mississippi which gave him quantities of material. He says: "You can suspect that I painted as much as possible, which was nearly all the time. I worked only in water color, a medium I was using for the first time. I suspect the results were satisfactory since I am having a show of my Mississippiana first in Minneapolis, then in Cincinnati, then in Boston. . . . One of my paintings has been invited to the institute's [Chicago Art institute] American annual in October."

Mr. Van Veen was the youngest American painter to be accepted in the Carnegie International. He was nineteen last year and a canvas of his was passed by the Carnegie jury and hung in the international exhibition—a coveted honor.

The twelfth exhibition of contemporary American oil paintings will open in the Corcoran gallery in Washington on Nov. 30 and will remain on view to January.

The twenty-ninth Carnegie international exhibition of paintings opens Oct. 16 and will continue to Dec. 8.

* *

Pictures for Every Mood.

The Palette and Chisel club opens the fall season with an exhibit of water colors by Louis J. Kaep. The exhibition continues to Oct. 6. It is an attractive show. There are pictures to suit every mood and taste.

Mr. Kaep deals in nuances, in atmosphere and feeling. He is sensitive to places. He is quick to catch the essential spirit of a town, a country, or a snatch of landscape. Compare the throbbing, thrumming, rain-lashed "On England's West Coast" with the placid, clear, chill "The Old Windmill." Compare the confused, disjointed, typically primitive "Mexican 'Dobes" with the wistful, langourous "Rooftops of Nice." Compare the humor of "Bailey's Harbor" with its insistent thread of pink with the stirring "Near Biskra," or the bold, vigorous, utterly masculine "Along the Canal."

It is an extremely good show—a capital one with which to usher in another successful year for the Palette and Chisel club.

Charles L. Morgan is having an exhibit of lithographs, etchings and pastels in the Kroch gallery. A magnificent rendering of Frank Lloyd Wright's glass office building, a New York achievement discussed at length in architectural and intellectual circles, is of interest. Mr. Morgan is himself an architect as well as an etcher and painter and he is a devoted follower of Mr. Wright. The exhibition is well worth while.

* *

Curious Glass Effects.

The Walden-Dudensing galleries are showing paintings by Herman Trunk. These are gay and decorative, if the least bit stiff, formal and monotonous. A curious feature of his painting is that it seems to be done on glass. Some of the pictures look like the drawings children trace on frosted glass, not that they are childish but the effect is equally abrupt and cut off.

The caricatures by Irma Selz, which also hang in this gallery, are not especially amusing. To be good, a caricature should be at least a little like its subject. You should be able to recognize the sitter. There are doubtless some of these that you may recognize, but for the most part they fall short of their intention.

Church Notes

Luther League week will be observed in about 40 United Lutheran churches of the city, beginning today. Banquets will be held in north, west, and south sections of the city in preparation for the first institute which will be held Saturday afternoon and evening. Three national secretaries of the league will be present. They are: The Rev. A. J. Traver, the Rev. R. J. Wolfe, and Miss Amelia Mehlhouse.

The south side banquet will be held Tuesday evening at Woodlawn-Immanuel church, 64th street and Kenwood avenue. The west side banquet will be held Wednesday night at the Central Plaza hotel and the north side banquet will be held at the Belden-Stratford hotel on Thursday. The Saturday institute will be held at Unity Lutheran church, Balmoral and Magnolia avenues.

"Religion and Newspaper" is the title of a book just published by the Rev. Dr. W. B. Norton, former religious editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The book is based on Dr. Norton's long association with newspaper work. It will be reviewed at length in the book section of THE TRIBUNE next Saturday.

Lucy Stone's Land Holdings Aided in Battle for Equality

IN the life of Lucy Stone, pioneer of woman's rights in America, an interesting experience is recorded which possibly draws that region known today as Chicagoland closely into the circumstances which ultimately led to reforms and revisions that effected release of woman from the semi-bondage imposed by laws previous to the fin de siecle. The visit of Lucy Stone [Blackwell] to land which had been entered by her husband near Viroqua, Wis., was made in 1856, and Chicago at that time had so little to recommend it that, in her report of her travels, she gave the forerunner of America's second city only a passing line.

It appears from the narrative of Alice Stone Blackwell, whose biography of her famed mother has just been published, that the section of land proved up in Wisconsin served as the means of providing a permanent home in Orange, N. J., through a trade, and founded the militant abolitionist and woman's rights proponent in a community close enough to the center of cultural affairs to be effective in the years to follow.

Notes on the journey from Ohio to the northwest, which today present a vivid picture of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin during the '50s, were made by the husband, Henry Browne Blackwell, whose wife never assumed his name. His account of the journey noted that it was necessary for those who desired to "take up" Wisconsin land to visit the premises and that ultimately it was decided that Lucy Stone should accompany him from Ohio.

* *

Picturesque Experience.

"The trip proved a wild and picturesque experience," Miss Blackwell says in her biography. They drove from Chicago to Viroqua with a horse and buggy. The account of the journey follows:

"We left Chicago on Sunday afternoon and drove to Jefferson Center same evening. Monday evening we stopped at a farmer's house where Lucy was horrified by having to sleep in dirty sheets, and two girls and a dog kept passing through our room.

"We had passed during the day a beautiful lake named Zurich, where a queer, half crazy reformer keeps a school, a farm, a newspaper, and a union store all going. He has also fitted up a huge stable for a free habitation to the human race. Says he has kept cattle long enough, and now dedicates the stable to man under the title 'Humanity's Barn.' The simple farmer's family, when we took dinner, were quite disposed to accept all the father's isms.

"Tuesday noon we got dinner at one of the most beautiful farmhouses in America, on Queen Anne's Prairie, and, after passing one or two more lakes, reached a good farm again, on Turtle Prairie. Wednesday we ate dinner of bread and milk at a farmhouse where we skimmed a pan of milk some three feet in diameter, and liked the thick, yellow scum exceedingly. That night we were caught in a violent thunderstorm, but, as God guided us, we reached a nice farmhouse belonging to a locofoco politician named Burdick, whom Lucy identified, as usual, from her New England experience as a genealogical Seventh Day Baptist from Rhode Island. Indeed, Lucy or I were in every case intimate with everybody's relatives and connections. I knew all the westerners, Lucy all the easterners. She was profound east of Pittsburgh; I was deeply saturated with Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Through a Sand Storm.

"Thursday we drove to Madison through such a windstorm as is seldom seen. The sand from the lake shores fairly put out our eyes, and Madison from across the lake looked, in its cloud of dust, like a city in a conflagration. We stopped at night with some natives of Prince Edward's Island, fresh from Nova Scotia.

"Next day, after driving through various Norwegian wheat fields and pulling down fences and opening gates, we reachd the village of Black Earth and stopped at Mr. Love's tavern on the wide and desolate sand prairies of the Wisconsin river valley. Saturday, after climbing one of the immense bluffs called Point Judas, and digging into some Indian mounds, abstracting some human bones therefrom, we turned into Pine river valley, dined at Sextonville, and in the afternoon went on to Richland Center.

"Here we called on Ira Hazeltine, a shrewd, money making reformer, with long hair and beard, who, having resigned phrenological lectures for town lots, is now a small local millionaire, with spiritualistic affinities and a general love of lucre and liberty. By him we were induced to hold over and lecture that evening on woman's rights, which we did to a large and attentive audience, occupying the schoolhouse, the Odd Fellows' hall, and the adjacent grounds generally. Lucy spoke first and I followed and we went at it with a right good will.

"Next morning . . . we plunged into the dense woods of Richland county. We emerged from that leafy and stumpy wilderness into Mr. Ambrose's clearing about nightfall, with no further damage than a general removal of our epidermis that came in contact with parts of the buggy.

Journey's Hardships.

"After a lecture from the old man upon clearings of forest, and the tenets of the Dunkards, we got with some difficulty into bed [while our six roommates stepped out to give us the opportunity], and next day crossed the Kickapoo and emerged upon the high rolling prairies of Bad Axe county just as Lucy was sinking into despair.

"We lost our umbrella and sunshade at this juncture, and, in trying to find them, I lost my overcoat; but our joy of finding the overcoat consoled us for the loss of our head protectors. Reached Viroqua in the afternoon, which surpassed Lucy's expectations, there being at least thirty shanties visible to the naked eye.

"Next day we drove, with the friendly county clerk, Mr. McMichael to some timber lands in 16:13:5, where men had been stealing our timber. Hoped to capture some rails, but did not. However, we railed at the robbers, and had the pleasure of counting some hundreds of stumps which they had left behind them. . . . I am in hopes of getting Meadow's assistance in surveying our lands. Yesterday Lucy and I took a long walk with him over the new town of La Crescent, and the magnificent bluffs above it.

"Our horse and buggy are just the thing. The horse is lazy, but kind faithful, conscientious, strong, tough, and imperturbable. He eats voraciously, can be left standing without hitching, and in bad places behaves like a hero."

Lecture Interrupted.

During the summer in Viroqua conditions were primitive, but Mrs Stone found opportunities to lecture both against slavery and for woman's rights. A Fourth of July celebration was arranged, a platform built in a grove, and she was invited to give an address. During her speech the platform broke down, but no one was seriously hurt. She said, "So will this country fall unless slavery is abolished!"

She wrote her mother a lively account of a surveying trip:

"We have just returned from a novel expedition, which I must try to describe to you; but no description can reach the reality. I own 640 acres about twenty-five miles from here. We started last Friday morning to go and see it, in company with Mr. Grace, who wanted to trade with us. It was a bright, clear day, and rather too warm. We went about twelve miles over decent roads, and then it became bad. Our horse fell down. Mr. Grace's broke the harness but we picked up and pushed on till we came to a log house at the end of the road.

"There a woman told us that, if we would take down two fences and go across a corn field, we should find a blind road for about two miles, and she did not know whether there was any beyond. We went the two miles and found it indeed a blind road, which gradually grew more so, until we were entirely lost in grass as high as my shoulders, and which was full of sloughs, frightfully deep. Harry walked and I drove. At last no track could be seen. The men searched in all directions for nearly an hour, while I stayed and took care of the horses; but not the slightest trace of a road could be found. It was 6 p. m. The last house behind us was five miles away, and we were three hours getting over that distance with daylight to help.

Continue on Foot.

"It would be utterly impossible to go back at that time, and we could go no farther with the buggy. So we took out the horses, fastened them to a tree, gave them oats, and we traveled on through the nettles, briars, tall grass, sloughs, and brush, bitten by mosquitoes and black with woodticks that fastened on us. Harry tore his pantaloons [one leg] from the bottom to the waist band, so nettles, briars, and bugs had free access. I was wet to my knees, Mr. Grace ditto. The sun had gone down, and the stars were thick over us, and we still toiled on, in the right direction, but not knowing whether a human being was to be found.

"At last we came to the junction of the Kickapoo and Otter creek rivers. Both were in a freshet, and rushed past wild and high. The first thing we quenched our horrid thirst; then shouted again and again, and only the bluffs answered the sound, and we began to be seriously afraid that we must remain out, when shouting was answered to ours from two directions. You never saw gladder souls than we.

"A young man came and told us to cross the Otter by a log; but alas! the log was swept away. So he went far up the Kickapoo and swam down, whirled like a straw by the current, our men pulling him out. He took us up a quarter of a mile to a log over Otter creek, then another quarter to a log house. We went another quarter to a boat about as large as your hand, that took us, one at a time, over to the home of the young hero who had helped us. A log house with two rooms. Here we got supper, washed and dried our feet, and at 10:30 were in bed.

Mr. Grace Leaves the Scene.

"We were now within eight miles of my land, but Mr. Grace would go no farther. So Harry went on foot the eight miles, and found the land already in demand. So that what cost me last spring $800 will within a year give me $3,000. And if Harry had not come home with the skin all off his ankles, so that he could not get his boots on, we should have been satisfied. But he borrowed some soft moccasins, and the night saw us safe here. We stopped at a log house so far in the woods that the sun has never seen it [for the woods here are woods], where there was a good spring; and while we watered the horse a woman came down to ask me if my bonnet [a sun bonnet that I had just made] was in the fashion!"

In the autumn, having finished their business, they drove back. The Blackwell family had disposed of the homestead at Walnut Hills and moved to New Jersey and New York. Mr. Blackwell wrote, many years after: "I have never seen Vernon county [Bad Axe] again. The whole incident of that summer's laborious, sequestered life is associated with the memory of my wife, and seems to me like a lovely dream. The cares and privations are forgotten; the beautiful scenery and the sweet, pure air of those romantic highlands will forever linger in my memory."

Note: A tablet now marks the site of this address, calling it the first anti-slavery and woman's rights speech ever made by a woman in the great northwest.

Sight Enormous "Sea Serpent" Off Australian Coast

SYDNEY, Australia.—(AP)—A fearsome "sea serpent" sighted at various points along the coast of New South Wales caused expeditions to be financed by newspapers and moving picture interests.

Night and day they kept a lookout and then they found a 60 foot log incrusted with seaweed.

A bough protruding from one end looked like an ugly head and waves rippling over the object gave it the appearance of writhing through the sea.

Disproves American Joke.

PARIS.—(AP)—Six hundred million francs worth of checks are passing through French banks in 1930, this being 350 times the 1880 figure and making a dead letter of the old American joke about "show a Frenchman a check and he will have you arrested."

NOTES OF THE ARTISTS

The school of the Art institute opens tomorrow. Louis Ritman will take the classes held by George Oberteuffer, who has gone to New York to teach in the Grand Central Art school. Illness forced Mr. Oberteuffer's change of plan. He was an honored member of the Art institute faculty.

The Palmolive gallery is showing designs in tempora by Peter Hunt. A few lithographs by the Mexican, Orozco, bring tragedy to a wall that is lit further along with the sunny humor of Peggy Bacon's apt cartoons. A striking portrait of a young man very much in the Florentine manner of three centuries ago, remains as witness to the exhibit held here in August by Ivan Le Lorraine Albright. The throat is magnificently modeled and the color is healthy. It is the first of Mr. Albright's paintings which has made us want to see more.

Edna Frances Edell, New York portrait painter, will hold a private exhibit of children's portraits in Lake Forest.

Nights Are Restful
in the Morrison Hotel

THERE is no noise to disturb your sleep when you occupy a room in the Morrison Tower. Far below you is the throb of a busy city—but you sleep as serene as though the city were miles away.

Purest, Cleanest Air

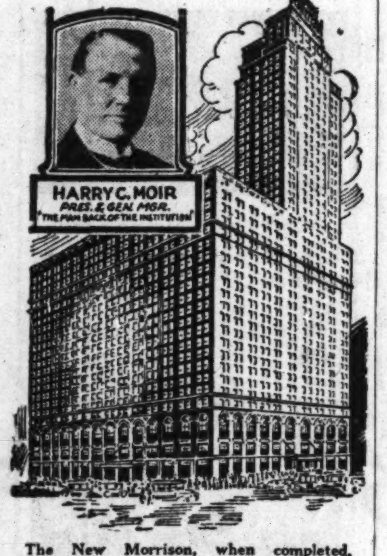
A guest in the Morrison Tower is out of reach of city sounds and out of reach of smoke and dust. The air at this high level is pure and fresh. An imposing view of the city may be had from a room in this great tower.

Nearest to Everything

The Morrison Hotel occupies the most strategic point in Chicago. It is closest to stores, offices, theaters and railroad stations. Even business houses outside the Loop can be quickly reached from the Morrison.

1950 Rooms, $2.50 Up

All rooms in the Morrison Hotel are outside, with bath, circulating ice water, telephone, bed-head lamp, and Servidor which insures absolute privacy. Excellent garage accommodations for guests with cars.



The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,450 rooms.

Round the World

On the largest and fastest ship—weeks saved at sea

Sailing January 21, on the fastest and largest ship ever to cruise Round the World—the 32,000 ton North German Lloyd "Columbus". The superior speed of the "Columbus" enables us to offer you a world cruise weeks shorter than all others without cutting the number of places seen or the duration of your visits ashore. This incomparable world cruise visits all the traditional countries—and includes such unusual places as Penang, Malacca, Siam, Macassar and opportunities to visit Angkor Wat and Bali. One third of the accommodations range between $2000 & $3000 in price.

Mediterranean

Visiting Nice at the time of the Carnival

This is the fifteenth Raymond-Whitcomb cruise to the Mediterranean. Sailing January 31 on the newest of the great Cunard liners—the S. S. "Carinthia". Visiting the Riviera, Italy, Malta, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, Turkey, Rhodes, Palestine, Egypt, Corsica, etc.—this cruise covers the Mediterranean with unusual thoroughness. 59 days to Southampton. The rates including return to New York are $1000 up.

ROTTERDAM FROM N. Y. FEB. 5th 1931

under Holland-America Line's own management.

71 DAYS OF DELIGHT

The itinerary which is the most comprehensive in the annals of this famous steamer includes Madeira, Casablanca (the playground of Morocco and North Africa), Cadiz, Seville (Granada), Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples (first call), Tunis, Athens, Constantinople, Haifa, Jerusalem, (the Holy Land), Alexandria, Cairo (and Egypt), Kotor and Dubrovnik (on the Dalmatian Coast), Venice, Naples (second call), Monaco, and the Riviera. A trip to the "Eternal City," Rome, without extra charge. Other fascinating ports of call are Malta, the romantic, Cyprus, the sunny isle, and Messina (Taormina) in Sicily. And now the island of Rhodes and further inland visits will be added. Rate from $955 including complete program of fascinating shore trips.

American Express Co. in charge of shore excursions

The Rotterdam has been entirely modernized. Real beds, instead of berths, hot and cold running water in most rooms, a delightful tile swimming pool and modern gymnasium are among the many new improvements which make this ever popular ship of even greater appeal to the discriminating cruise passenger.

Royal Wedding Unites Famous Old Families

Bride 32 Years Older than Husband.

By May Birkhead.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The marriage of Princess Amedee de Broglie to Prince Louis Fernando d'Orleans Bourbon of Spain, son of the Infanta Eulalia, who counts many Chicagoans among his friends, suggests a slight excursion into genealogy. The bride, the former Marie Constance Charlotte Say, is 32 years older than her husband. She was born in 1857. She descended from a noble family of economists, statesmen, manufacturers, and sugar magnates.

The stock is believed to be of English origin of a certain Lord Say, high treasurer under Henry VI., mentioned in connection with the Jack Cade rebellion.

It established the French branch of Says and forced them to flee to Geneva after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Jean Baptiste Say, celebrated economist, who in 1794 published an abridgment of Benjamin Franklin's life, popularized in France what used to be called the dismal science of political economy. His son Horace visited the United States about 1813 to study manufactories.

* *

Part in Third Republic.

Louis Auguste Say, brother of Jean Baptiste, had a big sugar refinery in France at Nantes. Horace's son, Leon Say, was the well known economist and statesman much identified with President Thiers in the establishment of the third republic.

In 1875 Mlle. Say became the wife of Prince Amedee de Broglie. Their children included Prince Jacques, whose first wife was the Princess de Wagram; the late Prince Albert, who married Marguerite d'Harcourt, and Prince Robert, who had four wives, one of whom was the American Estelle Alexander, the divorced wife of Sydney B. Vel.

Prince Amedee was born in 1849 and was the grandson of Prince de Broglie, who in 1816 married Albertine, daughter of the famous Mme. de Stael. The line descended from the Garibaldi family of Piedmont, Jean de Broglie of this line being the "podesta" of Chieri in 1350.

A century later one branch became established in France and eventually François Marie de Broglie was naturalized here, serving in the régime which Cardinal Mazarin headed.

The duchy of Broglie was created in 1752. In the 18th century three of this line were successively marshals for France, and the title of prince was bestowed on them by the emperor of the Holy Roman empire.

* *

Historic Chateau.

The year of her marriage to Prince Amedee, Mlle. Say, possessor of one of the largest fortunes in France, acquired the historic Château de Chaumont, known to all visitors as one of the strongholds of Loire. It was once the property of Catherine de Medici. Franklin was the guest at Chaumont when the property belonged to Jacques le Ray, whose son spent much time in the United States trying to found a colony near Cincinnati.

Many Chicagoans who are prolonging their Paris sojourns into October have seen much social life in the capital. Mrs. Joseph B. Long, who has just arrived, gave a dinner at the Ritz and a Sunday night dance. Among the guests were Thomas W. Hinde and wife, John C. Baird, Steward Baird, and Henry Peters.

Mrs. James T. Harahan was another hostess on the same night.

Seen at recent Sunday parties at Herman Gade's historic château, Mesnil-Saint-Denis, were Mr. and Mrs. George High and Mr. and Mrs. Hinde. The Gades usually entertain with a Sunday luncheon, and later in the afternoon friends motor out for the famous mint julip, a rare article in France.

Disgrace Falls on National Flower of Australians

SYDNEY, Australia.—(AP)—Whether Australia's national flower, the golden wattle, contaminates milk and butter and causes sore throats, headaches and hay fever is being debated here. Many people are chopping down wattle trees in their gardens. Dr. E. N. Ward, curator of the Sydney Botanical gardens, says researches show that many people living near wattle trees were, at certain seasons, always sick. The air around a blooming wattle tree, he said, is impregnated with pollen which irritates the throat and lungs and wattle trees growing close to dairies and creameries cause a form of fermentation dangerous to health.

MRS. IRVING L. COHN.
[Bloom Photo.]

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Joan Louise Loewy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Loewy of 6829 Paxton avenue, to Irving L. Cohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessel Cohn of Clarksville, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Cohn are residing in Dayton, O.

China's Perils Send Mission Workers Home

Christian Religion Fails to Interest Brigands.

SHANGHAI. — (AP) — Harassed by hordes of bandits and communists and the anti-religious attitude of the Chinese nationalist government the ranks of the Christian mission workers in China are dwindling.

Ever boat leaving for America or Europe takes a few more back to their homes and the majority of them carrying memories of the smoking ruins of mission buildings and deaths of colleagues, never return.

* *

Torture or Ransom.

Since the first of the year a month has seldom passed without its report that some missionary—American or European, Catholic or Protestant, man or woman—has fallen into the hands of brigands, either to be tortured to death or kept in miserable captivity until release was obtained through ransom or consular intervention.

Where there were 8,250 Protestant missionaries in China on Jan. 1, 1927, there are now 5,496. The number of cities with resident missionaries, not including Catholics, was 729 in 1927. It was only 333 in 1928, rising to 650 last year, but falling back to 450 after the Changsha and Nanking incidents this summer.

* *

Catholics Remain.

The decrease in the number of Catholic missionaries has been less marked. There are approximately 4,000 in the country, but when the Catholic missions board takes its annual count this fall the number may be 200 or 300 below that total.

In the coast districts bandits are few, but government pressure has had its effect. Anti-foreign and anti-Christian elements in the Kuomintang, the dominant political party, through propaganda and by divers laws banning prayer books, candlesticks, and what not, have made it difficult for mission schools to function.

* *

Seize Mission College.

College and university strikes have been common and not long ago a Chinese anti-Christian pedagogue seized a mission college near Peiping and converted it into a non-religious school. Efforts of the legal owners to regain control were futile.

Of all the missions those of the Spanish Augustinian fathers and of the Methodists have suffered most. Five large missions and colleges belonging to the Augustinians have been demolished,

French Official Held to Account for Air Mishaps

PARIS.—(AP)—"My worst possible customer," is the way M. Laurent Eynac, minister of air, is described by his colleague, Georges Pernot, minister of railways.

"If all Frenchmen were like him," M. Pernot adds, "the railways would have to shut down and I'd be without a job."

M. Eynac, France's "lord of the air," aged 44, one of the youngest members of Premier Andre Tardieu's youthful cabinet, learned to fly in the war and has used that mode of locomotion exclusively ever since he became chief of French aviation.

Within a week after succeeding the late Maurice Bokanowski as air minister, after the latter had met an atrocious death in a burning plane south of Nancy, M. Eynac appeared at Le Bourget one morning, hopped into a plane and flew to Marseilles. "He's game," was the verdict of the pilots.

M. Eynac is a firm believer in heavier than air machines and a confirmed opponent of dirigibles and lighter than air vehicles.

"Dirigibles at best are fair weather craft, they cannot stand the wear and tear and weather bumps of a good plane," he says.

M. Eynac of late has been under fire because of numerous fatal accidents in French military aviation.

On one night late in August two military planes with crews of six men each crashed. In one accident near Chartres the entire crew of six were killed, while four men lost their lives and two were saved by parachute jumping near Dijon.

Some opposition newspapers openly accused the minister of permitting old and decrepit material to remain in service. Others charged him with giving contracts to firms that were unreliable.

The appointment of an investigating committee by M. Eynac, at the head of which he placed Gen. Fortant, his chief adviser, failed to silence the critics and Deputy Bouesse has served notice upon Premier Tardieu that when parliament reconvenes he will interpellate the air minister upon the "methods, means, and present material of French military aviation."

Scottish Estates Prove Drug on Realty Market

GLASGOW.—(AP)—A million acres of Scotland, one-nineteenth of the country's total acreage, is for sale and nobody wants to buy it.

Most of the land is sporting ground, but experts declare it can be cultivated.

One agent has 750,000 acres for sale. In Argyllshire 14 estates are in the market, and some of Scotland's loveliest scenery is included in 38,000 acres for sale in the north.

The duke of Montrose recently offered to sell 40,000 acres—including Ben Lomond—but he did not receive a single offer.

Weather Ruins Irish Crop.

DUBLIN.—(AP)—Continuous cold and rain have greatly damaged the harvest in the Free State. Many districts are under water. Hay and corn crops have suffered most and from the west potato rot is reported.

English Royalty Watch Historic Scottish Meet

Braemar Gathering Yearly Grows More Popular.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The Scottish season this year has attracted more people and has been more interesting than for some time past. This is due largely to the presence of the royal family at Balmoral castle and partly due to the "event of national importance" at Glamis.

The king and queen are making their Scottish visit extend over a month and are loaning their presence to many of those events which typify the pastimes of the Scots. The most noteworthy and most picturesque of the Highland gatherings is that at Braemar. The sports are those that were popular in the Highlands centuries ago, and usually take the form of "strong-man" competitions rather than mere athletics. There is the putting of the heavy stone, throwing the hammer, tossing the caber, rivalry in dancing and in playing the bagpipes.

At 10 o'clock in the morning the king and queen and other members of the royal party entered the heather-bedecked stand and the "March-Past" began. The clansmen flaunting the Stuart tartan, with thistle in their bonnets and led by the king's pipers, were the Balmoral Highlanders; the men in Duff tartan wore sprigs of holly in their glengarries and the Farquharsons, with their own tartan, wore fir sprigs in their caps. Each group carried its claymores, its Lochaber axes, and its own standards. And the piping was the best that could be heard in Scotland.

Founded by Malcolm III.

The gathering was founded by Malcolm III, who instituted a race from Braemar to the top of a neighboring hill to enable him to select the fleetest for employment in a new system of letter carrying. The popularity of the race has led to its being repeated as an anuual event. It was when Queen Victoria gave her patronage to the Braemar gathering that it shot into the fame it enjoys today. About twenty-four years ago the Duke of Fife gave the Princess Royal park at Braemar for the games.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen, Lord and Lady Huntly, and the Princess Royal with her house guests from Mar Lodge are part of the royal party.

Lord and Lady Huntly were on an earlier date the patrons of the Aboyne gathering, which takes place at the Scottish seat, Aboyne castle, of Lord Huntly, who is better known by his hereditary title, "Cock o' the North." The Marchioness of Huntly was Miss Charlotte Isabel Fallon of Cincinnati and the widow of James MacDonald of Washington. It will be remembered that a year or so ago the marquis adopted the two little Chicago girls who are his wife's nieces. Lord Huntly is a great exponent of reel dancing and a feature of the Aboyne gathering is the reel dancing on the village green. This year the little Chicago nieces were among the participants in the children's dancing.

At Grantully Castle.

Admiral Earl Beatty and Lady Beatty have returned from their cruise in the Sheelah, which bore them through the waters of nearly all the Scandinavian countries, and have taken up their residence at their northern seat, Grantully castle. Their sons, Lord Borodale and Peter Beatty, are with them and Lady Beatty is doing some entertaining there. Among her guests are Col., the Hon. Piers Legh, equerry to the prince of Wales, and his American wife, who was Miss Sarah Bradford of Nashville, Tenn.

One of the amusing results of the popularity of the Scottish season this year has been the shortage of houses of modest size in Scotland and, as one ghillie put it, "Some people are living in strange places."

Lady Titchfield and her husband are visiting his sister, Lady Victoria Wemyss, and since they have let Castle Wemyss for the season, they are occupying the small house usually reserved for the bailie. Mrs. Richard Hoare, Lady Londonberry's sister, is occupying the cottage which was converted from a dairy that had been built especially for the late duke of Sutherland. The shelves where pans of cream used to stand are still ranged around the walls of the sitting room, but now they are the resting place for such things as books, photographs, and gramophone records.

Arthurian Congress.

In quite another part of this island, Truro, Cornwall, we have been hearing about the Arthurian legends at the first Arthurian congress. From the University of Chicago, Prof. Wither has been attending, the only other American delegate being Prof. Loomis of Columbia, who was accompanied by Mrs. Loomis. Other Arthurian scholars present were Mr. Henry Jenner of Cornwall, who was elected president; Prof. Wilmotte of the University of Brussels; Prof. Van Hamel, University of Utrecht; and M. Eugene Vinaver, president of the Oxford Arthurian society. There were other representatives from Ireland, Wales, Scotland, and England. Lord Falmouth, in welcoming the delegates, said that it was within the realm of possibility that their deliberations should prove that Arthur was a real personality, a great king whose rule brought peace and happiness to the island, and that Cornwall was the land to which Arthur belonged most of all. The task that the congress wishes to accomplish is that of determining what is myth and what is real, a task, indeed, but the only grave thing it has done is to cast a doubt on the ruins of Tintagel castle as the birthplace of Arthur. But even if they have divested it of its Arthurian glamour, they cannot ruin its own great beauty.

Another Guinness Wedding.

There is to be another Guinness wedding, but this time it is the "other" Guinnesses. It is Miss Tanis Guinness, who is to marry the Hon. Drogo Montague, the second son of the Earl of Sandwich. She is the daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Guinness and the sister of Mr. Loel Guinness and Mme. Guevara, who was formerly Miss Meraud Guinness. The other branch of the same family includes Mr. Richard Guinness and his children, who are the Hon. Mrs. Arthur James and his stepdaughter, "Baby" Jungman.

Golf Courses.

$1,000 a Month

From an Empty Building!

It can be done with the DA-NITE GOLF COURSE. Thousands are getting rich—you can get in the big money game—if you act—NOW! Expert statisticians figure 25 million people are playing miniature golf every week. You can get your share of this patronage with an INDOOR course this fall and winter. A building as small as 50x100 feet is ample. The DA-NITE is the most practical course made for indoor use: 18 attractive holes, complete with unique and mechanical hazards. GENUINE TURFTEX GREENS, the finest artificial greens made. Requires no upkeep, rolling or tamping. Putts true like creeping bent grass. Withstands wear and weather.

100% PORTABLE.

The DA-NITE is the pioneer portable golf course. Built in sections of 4½ feet long. It can be set up by two men in 4 hours. No special tools or base work required. Each hole is complete in itself.

THIS Unemployment Situation

Means Nothing to

THE MOLER TRAINED Beauty Specialist AND Barber

For There's Always a Steady Position Waiting at a Bigger Salary Than the Average Man or Woman Earns.

BECAUSE

When the unemployment situation is at its worst you find the trained Barber and Beauty Specialists as much in demand as ever. This is on account of the people that are looking for work must look their best.

MOLER'S is the oldest and largest organization of its kind, established in 1893, with branches in all the principal cities, from coast to coast. Inasmuch as MOLER'S is the oldest and largest, is it not reasonable enough to believe that they are better known and their graduates would be in more demand?

Also, many of the present shop owners have graduated from some MOLER school. Now they hire Moler graduates exclusively.

Own Your Own Shop or Travel If You Like

Later on Mr. Moler will assist you in opening your own Beauty or Barber Shop on terms. Then your income will be still greater.

Or you can travel, for as a MOLER graduate you are able to work abroad, aboard transcontinental trains, ocean liners, etc.

Just Read What These Moler Graduates Say

I learned Beauty Culture at MOLER'S and have been steadily employed until a few months ago, when Mr. Moler assisted me in opening my own shop. Now I am earning still more money.
SAYS A DETROIT BEAUTY SHOP OWNER.

I learned Barbering at MOLER'S and am now working aboard a Santa Fe crack train, where my tips alone are more than many men earn.
SAYS A MOLER GRADUATE.

These names furnished on request.

Moler's Finance Plan is a surprising offer which enables every one to start at once—no matter what your financial condition may be.

BURNHAM

Beauty Culture TRAINING Assures You POSITION and INCOME

Wonderful opportunities await BURNHAM graduates this Fall and Winter, for they are thoroughly prepared to take advantage of the openings in the best shops in Chicago and elsewhere throughout the country. BURNHAM'S has not only secured positions for thousands of graduates, but has helped thousands to open their own smart shops. A BURNHAM diploma assures you of a profitable position and a successful future.

SURPRISINGLY LOW TUITION. EASY PAYMENT PLAN.

The school charges are very moderate and the method of payment very convenient for you. Come in this week and ask us to explain.

REMEMBER THESE FACTS:

BURNHAM'S

is the oldest, largest, and most celebrated of all Beauty Culture Schools, and has been training ambitious women for OVER HALF A CENTURY. In addition to operating the largest school, this organization also operates the largest retail beauty establishment in the world. BURNHAM students derive the full benefit of the vast experience and research work of this famous establishment. No other school can offer such a background.

BURNHAM'S

insists that a method of instruction must not merely be NEW—it must be PERFECTED. Others follow after BURNHAM'S leads the way. To have the backing of an organization of such prestige, stability, and reputation is of the utmost importance to you during your entire business career.

BURNHAM'S

Will make you an expert in every phase of Beauty Culture — Facial Massage — Electrolysis — Permanent Waving—Finger and Water Waving—Hair Cutting—Hair Tinting—Manicuring—Making of Wigs, Toupees, and Hair Pieces — Adjustment of Hair Pieces—New Modes of Hair Dressing—Body Massage, etc. Burnham training enables you to pass any state board examination.

NEW CLASSES NOW FORMING

for the manufacture of hair goods in all new styles. This course cannot be obtained in any other school.

VISIT BURNHAM'S.

Be our guest. Let us show you why the exclusive proven BURNHAM SYSTEM of training is your assurance of success. Let us show you why BURNHAM graduates are in constant demand at higher salaries. Talk to us about the wonderful opportunities for YOU in beauty culture. You'll be happy to know that BURNHAM'S, because it is so much apart from the average school, does not find it necessary to use "high pressure" selling methods to secure enrollments. You will enjoy your visit.

DAY OR EVENING CLASSES.

Come any day or Monday, Wednesday or Friday evenings until 9 o'clock. Our large classrooms, the most conveniently located in the city, have been newly decorated—everything is clean, fresh, and new. The very atmosphere typifies A NEW START FOR YOU. Ask for BURNHAM'S new beauty culture book. It's free.

Improve Your ENGLISH

Beginning and Advanced Classes Limited to from 5 to 10 Members.

You cannot improve your English in a few lectures given to large classes. As one of a group, do not expect to make the progress that the investment of your time warrants.

At the Berlitz School classes are limited—5 to 10 members. Thus you are assured INDIVIDUAL instruction, ACTIVE participation in round table discussions, under the guidance of professors who are recognized authorities.

To men and women who have studied English in high school or college with disappointing results, the famous Berlitz Conversational Method will prove a revelation. For more than a half century, in every country on the Globe, the Berlitz Method has been sensationally successful. MASTER ENGLISH AT THE BERLITZ SCHOOL. A demonstration lesson will suggest the progress you may expect. Also lessons in French, Spanish, German and Italian by NATIVE instructors. Phone Harrison 0392 for an appointment.

SUCCESSFUL TAILORING SALESMEN,

CAN YOU ANSWER THESE QUESTIONS? 1. Have you had at least four seasons' experience selling tailoring or clothing direct to wearer? 2. Have you, for the past two seasons, averaged at least 200 orders per season? If you are one of the few men who can meet these requirements write at once, giving such information about yourself as will distinguish you from the mass of mediocre tailoring salesmen and enable us to recommend you unhesitatingly to our client, one of the foremost tailoring concerns in the quality field.

In reply you will not be sent a barrage of printed literature, as this is NOT a mail order proposition. Instead, a personal appointment will be arranged at our expense, at which time complete details of a new business opportunity will be given to you—an opportunity to capitalize upon your ability to its ultimate earning power without any investment on your part. Address in confidence, Robert H. Dixon, care of Faxon Advertising Agency, 540 North Michigan-av., Chicago.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Miscellaneous.

I WANT FIVE MEN.

Please don't waste my time if you are a broken down, habitually "broke" real estate salesman. Prefer men without experience, who are discontented with present earnings and who know they can sell and get into the big money with proper start and help. A car would help, for you will get additional pay for its use. This is not a canvassing job but a job which you don't give up in a hurry if you make the grade. I won't waste your time if I am not sure you can make at least $1,000 between now and Christmas. See Mr. F. H. Corthell, Sales Director, Room 822, 160 N. La Salle-st., between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., or phone State 3783 for appointment.

JOURNEYMEN Steamfitters and Plumbers.

We can put you to work in your own line. Be at our office Monday night at 7:30 p. m., Room 1214, 176 W. Adams-st. If you are sincere in wanting to go to work, this is your opportunity. We will help you to help yourself during the building slump.

THE BRIAR
540 BRIAR-PL.
BUCKINGHAM 2600.
If we had to admit that we are charging you on your rent for style—we mean a great, impressive lobby, and lots of dignity—and for the privilege of living in a building with a restaurant which 400 people come to for just a single routine dinner; and for service which we modestly confess is the very best—then we would have to admit that we are renting our apartments almost gratis.
2 to 5 Rooms, $75 to $250.

WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITIES — MOSES LAKE, WASHINGTON. RICH FRUIT AND DIVERSIFIED FARMS BRING INDEPENDENCE. Twenty acres enough for a happy farm home. Better yourself; avoid fear of unemployment; be your own boss. Men with little money can get irrigated farms yielding large crops of apples, pears, peaches, cherries, apricots, strawberries, watermelons, cantaloupes, alfalfa, potatoes, garden vegetables. Long growing season, early markets guarantee higher prices. Climate and surroundings favor health, comfort, contentment for your entire family.
Moses Lake District includes 9,300 acres in the heart of Columbia Basin, Central Washington—2,300 acres in rich, developed farms. Soil is volcanic ash, surface sloping gently to lake—fine for irrigation—no drainage problems.
Most advantages, least disadvantages for an irrigated district. Low prices—easy terms. Unfailing water, more than ample [five feet per acre assured], pumped from wells or lake by cheap electric power. Low taxes.
Unimproved lands sell at $25 to $75 per acre—easy payment terms. Irrigation District costs only $2.68 per acre, payable 35 to 40 cents per year.
Write for information—all questions honestly answered. The Milwaukee Road recommends only good lands—seeks to help new settlers get lands best suited to their needs, at reasonable prices, with payments they can meet—and to advise them after settlement. Only a successful farmer is a benefit to the Milwaukee Road. R. W. Reynolds, Commissioner, The Milwaukee Road, 919-W Union Station, Chicago, Ill.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

IT'S A SHAME TO DO IT!

But We Must Liquidate Our Used Car Stock in Order to Make Room for More Trade-Ins—So

Every Car in Our Place Now Offered at $200 Under the Market Price!

Compare our prices, car for car, with any other dealer in Chicago. You will be surprised to note that in many cases our prices are as much as $200 to $300 under the market valuations. And in addition, every car is sold under the terms of the Studebaker Used Car Pledge, which guarantees five days' free driving trial.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN, 1930 Pres. Str. 8 that was only driven a few thousand miles. It's in such good condition now that it carries a new car guarantee. Has wire wheels, fender wells, Houdaille shock absorbers, spotlight and every essential extra. Chance to save $1,000 on a car that's almost brand new.

HUDSON SEDAN, 4 dr., 5 pass., finished an attractive color. Has thousands of miles of unused transportation, and the equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, spare tire, bumpers, etc. $335.

STUTZ VICTORIA. 4 pass. that looks and runs absolutely like a new car. The attractive two tone green finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery shows no signs of wear. Equipped with spotlight, hydraulic shock absorbers, safety glass, etc. $545.

CHRYSLER SEDAN. Model 75. This car in is marvelous condition today. Every feature of this upholstery, finish, tires and motor will please the most exacting buyer; 6 wire wheels, side mounts, snubbers, bumpers, etc. $745.

WILLS STE. CLAIRE ROADSTER. A late model with a comfortable rumble seat. The finish gleams and the upholstery looks like new. Good tires, and the motor is 100%. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, hydraulic shock absorbers, bumpers, etc. Priced at $450 for quick sale.

CHEVROLET SPORT COUPE. This car must be seen to be appreciated. The motor runs smoothly and the upholstery, tires and finish are in dandy condition. Spacious rumble seat. $125.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN. If you are in the market for a late model, you cannot get a better bargain than this car. Good looking finish, expensive upholstery that looks new. Tires have little mileage. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Special for $545.

PEERLESS SEDAN. It's a late model, finished a beautiful blue. The mileage is very low, as this car was in storage for almost a year. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire and other extras. The motor is excellent. $345.

PAIGE SEDAN. 7 pass. that looks and runs good. Bumpers, spare tire and many extras. Reduced to $285.

BUICK SEDAN. This 7 pass. is an ideal car for the family. Sweet running motor; many extras; nice original finish and good upholstery. A real bargain at $195.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA. 1929 Commander. Examine this car from bumper to bumper and you'll agree that it's one of the most handsome cars you've ever seen. Bring your own mechanic to inspect the motor and he'll testify that it's okay in every respect. A real bargain at $845.

NASH COACH. Late model 2 dr. Adv. 6, painted an attractive color. The interior is very clean and the motor is in dandy condition. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Reduced to $385.

PACKARD TOURING. Light Six that's a sporty looking car. This car was under the supervision of a trained chauffeur at all times, so it's in wonderful shape now. Many extras; very good tires. $145.

JORDAN SEDAN. Maroon finish. We recommend this as one of our best buys. Has 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. It's a beauty and the performance is exceptionally good. Only $285.

LINCOLN SEDAN. 7 pass. that was owned by a wealthy family in conjunction with three other cars. Result is this car was driven very little, so it's in fine condition today. Wire wheels, 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, etc. $645.

PONTIAC CONV. COUPE. 1929, painted an attractive color. This car is like new in every respect, for the finish, upholstery and tires do not show any signs of use. Comfortable rumble seat and hundreds of dollars' worth of extras. $545.

ERSKINE SEDAN. Was oiled and greased every 500 miles, so it's in wonderful shape now. Appearance is very attractive and the equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, etc. $295.

BUICK BROUGHAM. 1929 5 pass. Mast. 6 that looks and runs absolutely like a brand new car. The attractive finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery shows no signs of wear. Brand new tires all around. Equipped with 6 wire wheels, side mounts, trunk, rack, spotlight, etc. This car is de luxe in every respect. $985.

DE SOTO COACH. 1929 with brand new tires, 4 whl. brakes, bumpers, etc. The finish, upholstery and motor are in the original new condition. $485.

MARMON SEDAN. Late model 8. It's the last word for sparkling performance and beautiful appearance. Tires are very good and there is a wealth of extras. Will not remain long at $395.

PACKARD SEDAN. 7 pass. Single Six. Here's an expensive car at an inexpensive price. Every feature is still in new car condition and it's equipped with every essential extra. $550.

AUBURN 8 SEDAN. 1929, with a sweet running motor; finish is bright and gleaming; upholstery and tires appear unworn. Was driven very little, so it's like a new car today. $795.

DODGE SEDAN. A school teacher owned this car and she gave it very good attention. We checked over the motor, equipped the car with new tires and priced it unusually low for immediate disposal. $165.

HUPMOBILE 8 ROADSTER. This low slung car is in exceptionally fine condition. Has rumble seat, 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $295.

HER friends and her family often remark on it.

After a day of dusting, sweeping, dishes and beds, when she has done a big job of household cleaning and rearrangement, she looks fresh and youthful. Her explanation is simple. When she chose her new apartment, she made sure that the rooms were conveniently placed. Now she saves steps and energy.

You, too, can gain time and comfort just by making careful choice of your apartment. One well laid out cuts down the hours you spend in the house, gives you more freedom, more playtime, more rest. It makes steps fewer—steps that may mean wrinkles, sore feet, depression.

Your best opportunity to find a conveniently arranged, step-saving apartment is in Tribune Want Ads! Study them carefully. You will find more apartment-to-rent advertising here than in all other Chicago newspapers combined! Think of the time and effort you can save by using this complete guide to Chicago's apartment houses. Then make sure of pride and contentment in your new home by reading the
